PREFACE.

That a knowledge of the New Testament in its original tongue is a thing to be desired by intelligent Christians none will question. No book can be thoroughly known in a translation only; and the Bible, although "the most translatable of books," is no exception.

Many, who would gladly undertake the study, are deterred by the manifold and unquestionable difficulties of the Greek Language. It seems worth while to ask whether this obstacle cannot, in some measure, be removed.

Undoubtedly, the Greek of the New Testament, as a later dialect of an elaborate and polished language, can most effectively be studied through the medium of the elder forms of the tongue. This method, accordingly, is in general chosen; and the historians and orators, the philosophers and poets of Greece, have led the way to the Evangelists and the Apostles.

Yet many persons have no opportunity for studies so extended and difficult. Are they, therefore, to be forbidden all access, save through translators, critics, and interpreters, to the words of the Divine revelation?

In attempting to reply, we note that the Greek of Scripture is, for most purposes, a language complete in itself. Its forms and rules are definite, its usages in general precise. Its peculiarities, though best approached from the classic side, may be reached by a shorter way, and be almost as well comprehended.

Many circumstances, again, facilitate the special study of the New Testament tongue. The language of orators and philosophers had descended to men of simpler mind and less artificial speech. Comparing the Sacred Volume with Greek literature generally, we find a smaller vocabulary, fewer grammatical forms, less intricate etymological rules, with scantier lists of exceptions, and a far less elaborate syntax; while the student has the advantage of being confined for the time to one limited, but intensely interesting, field.

The following pages are then intended as a sufficient guide to Biblical Greek for English students, that is, for those who have not studied the classical languages. It may also be of service to those who have made some progress in classical studies, but who wish to concentrate their chief regards upon the language and syntax of the New Testament.

The plan of the volume, and the method recommended for its study, are sufficiently set forth in the Introduction. To specify all the sources, English and German, from which valuable aid has been derived, would be unnecessary. Winer's comprehensive work (Sixth Edition, Leipsic, 1855; Edinburgh, T. & T. Clark, 1859, by Masson) has of course been consulted throughout. Scarcely less useful have been the researches and discussions of the late Dr. Donaldson. The New Testament Grammars of the Rev. W. Webster, and of the Rev. T. S. Green, have afforded some very valuable hints. On Greek Testament Lexicography, it will suffice to name the admirable Clavis Novi Testamenti recently published at Leipsic by Dr. C. L. W. Grimm.

The work has been carefully revised throughout in MS. by the Rev. Dr. Jacob, late Head Master of Christ's Hospital, author of the Bromsgrove Greek Grammar, and other classical works; and, in the proof sheets, by the Rev. R. B. Girdlestone, M.A., Editorial Superintendent of the British and Foreign Bible Society. To the important suggestions of these gentlemen the volume in its present state owes very much. It is now commended to attentive students of the New Testament, in the hope that it may lead not a few to the better understanding, and therefore to the higher appreciation of the Divine oracles.

SAMUEL G. GREEN.

INTRODUCTION.

The following work so far differs from other manuals of the Greek language, both in its method and in the persons for whom it is intended, that some preliminary words on the plan by which its several parts should be studied will not be out of place.

On ORTHOGRAPHY, the sections should be thoroughly mastered, not only for the sake of facility in reading, but because most of the difficulties and so-called irregularities in the inflection of substantives, adjectives, and verbs depend on letter-changes, of which the rules are comparatively few, and really simple. To know these laws at the outset is to be provided with a key to varieties and intricacies which might otherwise prove hopelessly bewildering. It will be advisable that no student should advance beyond this portion of the work before being able to read the lessons on pages 11, 12 with fluency, and accurately to transcribe the paragraph on page 13. Great attention should be paid at this stage to pronunciation, especially to the distinction between the long and short yowels; and those who may be studying the work by themselves are strongly recommended to take an opportunity of reading a chapter or two in Greek to some scholar who can criticise and correct their mistakes.

In Etymology, the forms must be carefully and completely learned. Everything in the student's further progress depends upon this. It is believed that the systematic and progressive plan on which the substantives and verbs, as the groundwork of the whole, have been discussed, will but lightly burden the memory, while the judgment will be kept constantly at work. The chief point to be noted is the place and power of the STEM in Greek words. The first and second declensions of Substantives will be seen to be mainly reducible to the same law; the third declension, instead of perplexing the learner by countless varieties, will exhibit one normal form. The inflection of Adjectives will appear but a repetition of that of the Substantives; while the Pronouns only slightly differ. Of the Verbs, the terminations should in the first instance be carefully learned. The first Paradigm will be found to exhibit the simplest way in which these terminations can be combined with the verbal root; those that follow being but variations on the same model, according to the character of the Stem. The Verbs in µ, or of the Second Conjugation,* are classified in a way which, it is believed, will give no serious difficulty to the student.

The Exercises up to this point are simply for practice in declension and conjugation, consisting almost exclusively of words occurring in the "Sermon on the Mount:" they are fair specimens of the ordinary vocabulary of the language; and the learner is strongly recommended to write them out in all their forms, not neglecting the accents, which, by the help of the rules given under the several heads, will present but little difficulty.

A stock of words will thus have been acquired, with a knowledge of forms of inflection quite sufficient for ordinary cases. Some chapters of greater difficulty follow, treating of the Verbs, tense by tense, and exhibiting the chief variations and anomalies in particular words. These sections may be omitted on a first study of the volume, but it will be important to read them carefully afterwards. The aim has been, so to classify the verbal forms that most apparent irregularities may be seen to be only exemplifications of some more extended rule; and, without trespassing on the more extended field of classical literature, to leave no word in the New Testament without the means of ready analysis and explanation.

^{*} In strictness, of course the First. The normal forms of the Verb are really to be found here; and the terminations of Verbs in ω might be deduced from these, by the aid of "the connective vowels." See especially Professor Greenwood's Greek Grammar. It has not, however, been thought necessary, in the present work, to carry analysis so far.

The Exercises which succeed these sections are for still further test. Here for the first time some easy sentences are introduced for translation. Logically, these should no doubt have been deferred until some rules of Syntax had been laid down; but the interest and utility of such Exercises may be held a sufficient defence of the irregularity, especially as they contain scarcely any usages but such as are already familiar to those who have grammatically studied any language. Here, a Greek Testament Lexicon or Vocabulary will be found necessary.

The chapters on the indeclinable Parts of Speech call for no remark. Their complete discussion belongs to Syntax: but it was held necessary to the completeness of the Etymology to give at least a general view of their formation and meaning. So far as they extend, these sections should be closely studied.

The reader will then be prepared for the SYNTAX, the study of the intermediate chapters being postponed, if preferred, to a subsequent stage. These sections, on the different Languages of which the New Testament contains the trace, and on New Testament Proper Names, will suggest topics of interesting inquiry, which, in a manual like the present, could be pursued only for a very little way.

The Syntax embodies the simplest laws of concord, government, and the connection of sentences, as well as others of a more special and less obvious kind. The doctrines of the Article, of the Preposition, and of the Tenses, have received careful attention, as throwing light on many obscure or misunderstood passages. The arrangement of the Syntax has been adopted with a view to the learner's convenience, and for the most part follows the order of the Parts of Speech.

The student is specially and strongly recommended to study the order of the whole work, and especially of this part, in the ANALYTICAL TABLE OF CONTENTS. To this Table much care has been devoted, in the hope that it might be convenient not only for ordinary reference, but as an outline and conspectus of the volume; suggesting at one view the leading principles of the language, and especially useful in recapitulatory examinations.

The sentences from the Greek Testament, so numerous in this division of the work, are intended partly to exemplify the rules to which they are appended, the illustrative words being printed in a thicker type; partly also to form together a series of Preparatory Reading Lessons or Primer, introductory to the sacred volume. The student is therefore earnestly counselled to study these sentences in order. Most of them, of course, belong to the easier parts of New Testament Scripture; others again are more difficult and unusual in their structure; while in very many will be discovered shades or specialties of meaning which the English Version does not exhibit, and which perhaps no translation could reproduce. The study, therefore, of these sentences will be an introduction to Biblical exegesis, which may prepare not a few readers for more extended inquiries.

A Vocabulary to the whole New Testament, and a brief discussion of the chief New Testament Synonyms, complete the plan of the work.

The work claims, be it remembered, to be an Introduction only. By its means, a not inadequate beginning may be made in what is surely the noblest of studies. Its aim is to familiarise many readers, who else had despaired of the possibility, with the words of Christ and of His Apostles. Should its purpose in any way be accomplished, it will give access also to those criticisms by which expositors in our own land and age, as in others, have so variously and nobly illustrated the "living oracles." The labour followed by such rewards will have been well spent: and readers of the New Testament in its own tongue, whether they advance or not to that high critical discernment which only the few attain, will have found in the acquisition a pure and lifelong joy.

NOTE ON THE REFERENCES TO CRITICAL EDITIONS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.—Several words and phrases of the New Testament differ in the best MSS. from the reading of the ordinary text. In a few cases the variations are of some grammatical importance, and it has been necessary, therefore, to refer to them. These references have mostly been made by the help of the Critical Editions of the New Testament published by J. J. Griesbach (1796–1806); by Dr. Tischendorf, Leipsic, seventh ed., 1859; by Dr. Lachmann, Berlin (1842–1850); and by Dr. S. P. Tregelles (including as yet only the Gospels, the Acts, and the General Epistles), 1844–1861.

2. Notes on the Alphabet.

a. The word Alphabet is derived from the names of the first two letters, alpha, beta. The forms of the Greek letters, which, it will be seen, greatly resemble those of our own language (the Roman letter), are originally modified from the Phænician.

b. The second forms of certain letters are used interchangeably with the first, but less frequently. Those of gamma and tau are almost obsolete. The final s, besides being always employed at the end of words, is often used in the middle of compound terms when a part of the compound ends with sigma. Thus, $\pi \rho os \phi \epsilon \rho \omega$.

c. For an explanation of the numeral use of letters, and especially of omissions in the list, see § 48.

3. The Vowels.

The vowels are α , ϵ , η , ι , o, v, ω .

a. In this country they are generally pronounced according to the English sounds. The Continental pronunciation of a, η , ι , is undoubtedly the more strictly correct; but the matter is of little practical importance. Absolute conformity to the ancient mode is unattainable, and it is most convenient to adopt the method of pronunciation current among scholars of our own country.

H and ω are long vowels. Care must be taken to distinguish them from the short ϵ and o. Thus, $\mu \epsilon \nu$ is pronounced like the English men; $\mu \eta \nu$, like mean. In $\tau o \nu$, the o is pronounced as in on; in $\tau \omega \nu$, as in own; a, ι , ν , may be either long or short.

b. The diphthongs are $a\iota$, av, $\epsilon\iota$, ϵv , oι, ov, pronounced as in English; also \bar{a} , η , φ (or, with capitals, $\Lambda\iota$, $\Pi\iota$, $\Omega\iota$), where the ι occurs with a long vowel, and is not pronounced, being, therefore, written underneath the vowel (excepting in the case of capitals), and called iota subscript. It will be important to note this in the declension of nouns and the conjugation of verbs.

Hu is pronounced like ev, eu; and vi like wi.

c. Every vowel, when standing as the first letter of a word, has what is called a breathing over it, written as an apostrophe, either turned outwards, as (') or inwards, as ('). The former is termed the soft breathing, and shows that the vowel is simply to have its own sound; the latter the hard, and is equivalent to the Euglish h aspirated. To note the latter is most necessary for correct pronunciation. Thus δ , $\hat{\eta}$ must be pronounced ho, $h\bar{e}$.

The initial v is always aspirated. So $i\pi\epsilon\rho$, huper.

- d. At the beginning of a word, the consonant (or semivowel) ρ always takes the aspirate, becoming rh. When two ρ 's come together in the middle of a word, the aspirate and soft breathing are successively employed. Thus $\dot{\rho}\epsilon\omega$, $rhe\bar{o}$; $\dot{a}\dot{\rho}\dot{\rho}\eta\tau os$, arrhetos. When a word begins with a diphthong, the breathing is placed upon the second letter: $a\dot{v}\tau ov$, auton; $a\dot{v}\tau ov$, hauton.
- e. In the lengthening of vowels for purposes of inflection or derivation, \check{a} becomes \check{a} , or more generally η ; ϵ becomes η , or $\epsilon \iota$; $\check{\iota}$, $\check{\nu}$, become respectively $\check{\iota}$, $\check{\upsilon}$; \circ becomes ω , or $\circ \iota$.
- f. Two vowels, or a vowel and a diphthong, occurring together in different syllables are often contracted into one, according to the following Table:—

	followed	l by		α	ϵ	η	0	ω	aı	$\epsilon\iota$	η	OL	ψ	ου
α	$\mathbf{becomes}$			α	а	а	ω	(t)	a	ą	ą	é	ή.	ω
ϵ	37	••••	. a	or η	$\epsilon\iota$	η	ου	ω	η	$\in \mathcal{U}$	η	οι	Ó	ου
0	,,			ω	ου	ω	ου	ω	ώ	01*	Ol	oı	ψ	ου

The left perpendicular line in this table gives the former vowel in each combination, the upper horizontal line the latter, and the result of the contraction will easily be found. Thus ϵ_0 gives ϵ_0 ; a ϵ , long ϵ_0 ; and so of the rest. It must be noted that where the letter ϵ_0 occurs in inflection between two short vowels, it is generally dropped, and contraction takes place according to the table.

^{*} Or ov, when the ϵ_i is the contraction of $\epsilon \epsilon$, as in the infinitive of verbs contract in o.

It will be observed by inspection of the table that an o sound always preponderates in contraction with the other vowels; that an a sound, when first, prevails over an e sound following it, and vice versa. Some special and exceptional methods of contraction will be found noticed in Etymology.

VOWELS-CONTRACTIONS-HIATUS.

Exercise 1.-Vowel Contractions.

Write the contracted forms of τιμαω, τιμαεις, τιμαει, τιμαομεν, τιμαετε, φιλεω, φιλεεις, φιλεει, φιλεομεν, φιλεετε, δηλοω, δηλοεις, δηλοοις, δηλοομεν, δηλοετε, φιλεης, τιμαοι, δηλοητε, νοος, νοου, γενεος, αιδοα, όρεα, βασιλεες, μειζοα.

- g. Diæresis is the opposite of contraction, and is expressed by two dots (") over the second of two vowels which are to be separately pronounced. Thus Kaïvav, Ca-i-nan, not Cai-nan.
- h. Hiatus, and the ways of avoiding it.—The hiatus (i.e. yawning) caused by the meeting of vowels at the end of one word and the beginning of the next is often prevented by one or other of the following ways:—
- 1. The $ν \hat{v}$ ἐφελκυστικόν, or nu-suffixed. This v is added to datives plural ending in ι , and to the third persons of verbs ending in ϵ or ι , when the following word begins with a vowel, or at the end of a sentence. These words will be marked in declension and conjugation by a bracketed (v); thus, $a\hat{l}ωσ\iota(v)$, ἐπίστενσε (v). In a similar manner, οὖτω, μέχρι, and ἄχρι, as a rule add s when followed by a vowel. In the last two words, however, the New Testament text is not by any means uniform; and on all three the best MSS. greatly differ.

The negative $o\mathring{v}$ becomes $o\mathring{v}_{\kappa}$ when the next word begins with a vowel,* and the preposition $\mathring{\epsilon}_{\kappa}$ becomes $\mathring{\epsilon}_{\varepsilon}$.

2. Elision marked by an apostrophe.—The following words lose their final vowel before an initial vowel in the next word; the prepositions ἀπό, διά, ἐπί, παρά, μετά, and the conjunction ἀλλά; with (occasionally) the particle δέ and its negative compound οὐδέ; also (before ὧν) the preposition ἀντί. When the initial vowel is aspirated, π , τ , become ϕ , θ (see § 4, b). Thus, ἀπὸ αὐτῶν becomes ἀπ' αὐτῶν, and ἀπὸ έαυτῶν, ἀφ' έαυτῶν; so for μετὰ ἀλλήλων, μετ' ἀλλήλων, but for μετὰ ἡμῶν, μεθ' ἡμῶν; and for ἀντὶ ὧν, ἀνθ' ὧν.

This elision was, in classical Greek poets, used much more frequently in words ending in a, ϵ , ι , o; and hence, in one passage of the New Testament, in a poetical quotation, the adjective $\chi\rho\eta\sigma\tau\acute{a}$ suffers this elision (1 Cor. xv. 33), $\chi\rho\eta\sigma\theta$ $\acute{o}\mu\iota\lambda\acute{a}\iota$.

3. Crasis.—An hiatus is sometimes prevented by a Crasis (lit. a "mixing"), or the union of the two words; the vowels forming a long vowel, or diphthong. This takes place but rarely, and only when the former word is very short and closely connected with the latter. The breathing of the vowel in the second word is retained, to mark the fusion, and is then called a Coronis. Thus, for τὰ αὐτά, the same things, ταὐτά is sometimes written; for καὶ ἐγώ, and I, κἀγώ; for τὸ εναντίον, the contrary, τοὐναντίον; and once for τὸ ὄνομα, the name, τοὔνομα (Matt. xxvii. 57).

4. The Consonants.

- a. As in the orthography of other languages, the four consonants, λ , μ , ν , ρ , are termed liquids; the nine consonants, β , γ , δ , π , κ , τ , ϕ , χ , θ , are mutes.
- b. The mutes may be evidently arranged according to the organs of speech specially concerned in their formation.

Thus, π , β , ϕ , are labials (p-sounds);

 κ , γ , χ , are gutturals (k-sounds);

 τ , δ , θ , are dentals (t-sounds).

Each of these divisions has, it is also plain, a sharp, flat, and aspirate consonant. Hence the highly important classification of the following Table:—

	Sharp.	Flat.	Aspirate.
Labials Gutturals . Dentals	π κ τ	β γ δ	φ χ θ	p-sounds. k -sounds. t -sounds.

The guttural γ is pronounced, before a k-sound or ξ, like the nasal ng. Thus, ἀγγελος, ang-gelos (the second γ, as always, being hard); ἀγκυρα, ang-kura.

c. Σ is the simple sibilant, which, in composition with a p-sound, gives $\psi = \pi \sigma$, $\beta \sigma$, or $\phi \sigma$; in composition with a k-sound gives $\xi = \kappa \sigma$, $\gamma \sigma$, $\chi \sigma$; in composition with δ gives $\zeta = \delta \sigma$; these three, ζ , ξ , χ , being double letters.

d. The following eight rules must be carefully observed, as they relate to the changes which are imposed by the necessities of orthography on the conjugation and declension of words, and will explain much hereafter that would otherwise be found very perplexing.

1. As above, a labial followed by σ becomes ψ ; a guttural followed by σ becomes ξ .

2. A labial or guttural before a dental must be of the same order, i.e. must be changed, if not already so, into a sharp, flat, or aspirate, according to the nature of the dental.

3. A dental, followed by σ , disappears.

4. Before the letter μ , a labial becomes μ ; a guttural becomes γ ; a dental becomes σ .

5. The letter ν becomes μ before labials; γ before gutturals; before a liquid is changed into the same liquid; and before σ or ζ is dropped.

The combination of ν with a dental and the sibilant, as $\nu\tau\sigma$, becomes simply σ , with compensation by the lengthening of the preceding vowel; ϵ becoming $\epsilon\iota$, and $\epsilon\iota$, ov. Thus,

γιγαντσι	becomes	γιγασι;
έλμινθσι	2.2	έλμισι;
τυφθεντσι	,,	τυφθεισι ;
τυπτοντσι	,,	τυπτουσι

§4, d.] COMBINATIONS AND CHANGES OF CONSONANTS.

6. A sharp mute before an aspirated vowel is changed into the corresponding aspirate. Sometimes this change will take place when the mute occurs at the end of one word, and the vowel at the beginning of the next. Thus, ἀφ' ὧν for ἀπ' ὧν; οὐχ όραω for οὐκ όραω.

7. When two consecutive syllables of the same word begin with an aspirate, the former often loses its aspiration. Thus, θριχοs is changed into τριχοs; and έχω into έχω. But affixes generally lose their aspiration in preference to the stem, whether they are placed first or last; as τι-θε-τι, for θι-θε-θι, where the last syllable is a mere adjunct to the root.

8. No consonant can end a Greek word, except ν , ρ , σ , ξ , ψ ; the last two being compounds of s. The preposition $\epsilon \kappa$ before a consonant, and the negative adverb $\delta \nu \kappa$ before a vowel, are apparent exceptions; but, having no accent, they may be counted as parts of the following words.

Exercise 2.—On the Combination of Consonants.

Rule 1. Write down the proper forms of γραφσει, νιπτσω, λεγσον, έχσω, στρεφσεις, τριβσομεν, λεγσας, πεμπσον.

- 2. Ο πειθσω, έλπιδσεις, άδσοντες, άνυτσει.
- 3. Ο τετριβται, γεγραφται, λελεγται, βεβρεχται, ετριβθην, πλεκθηναι, λεγθηναι, επεμπθην.
 - 4. Of τετριβμαι, γεγραφμαι, βεβρεχμαι, πεπειθμαι, ήνυτμαι, πεπλεκμαι.
- 5. Of πανπολυς, συνφημι, συνγνωμη, συνχαιρω, συνζυγος, συνστρα τιωτης; also of παντς, λυοντσι, λυθεντσιν.

5. CHANGES OF CONSONANTS.

Some other changes of consonants may be noticed, though they do not so invariably conform to general rules as the preceding.

- 1. Assimilation.—The labials π , β , ϕ before μ , and ν before the other liquids, are regularly assimilated to the following letters; i.e. changed into the same letter (see § 4 d, 5). Sometimes a latter consonant is assimilated to a former one; as, $\delta\lambda\nu\mu\iota$ for $\delta\lambda$ - $\nu\nu\mu\iota$.
- Duplication. The letter ρ is regularly doubled when a vowel is placed before it. Thus, ἀπο-ρίπτω becomes ἀπορρίπτω.

Sometimes λ is doubled, to compensate for the loss of a vowel; as, $\mu \hat{a} \lambda \lambda \lambda \nu$ for $\mu a \lambda \iota \nu$, $\dot{a} \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda \lambda \omega$ for $\dot{a} \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \omega$. In comparatives and in verbs, $\sigma \sigma$ or $\tau \tau$ is sometimes put for a guttural κ , γ , χ , with a following vowel; as, $\hat{\eta} \sigma \sigma \nu$ for $\hat{\eta} \kappa \iota \nu$, $\tau a \rho \acute{a} \sigma \sigma \omega$ for $\tau a \rho a \chi \epsilon \omega$. In some words, ζ appears instead of $\sigma \sigma$: as $\mu \epsilon i \zeta \omega \nu$ for $\mu \epsilon \gamma \iota \omega \nu$.

- 3. Transposition.—A vowel with a liquid is often transposed; as, θνήσκω for θαν-σκω.
- 4. Omission.—Any consonants which make a harsh sound may be omitted in the formation or inflexion of words.
- 5. Insertion.—Sometimes, though rarely, a consonant is inserted to assist the sound; as, from ἀνὴρ, gen. (ἄνερος, ἀν-ρος) ἀνδρὸς; so ἄνθρωπος is from ἀνὴρ ἀψ, making άν-ρωπος, and, with θ inserted, ἄνθρωπος.

6. The Accents.

- a. Every Greek word, except the proclitics and enclitics, which will be noticed under their respective parts of speech, has an accent expressed on one of its last three syllables. The accents are used in writing, but mostly disregarded in pronunciation. Their use was to mark a certain stress (or "rising" or "falling" inflexion) on the syllables where they are placed. It is said that they were invented by Greek grammarians, as a guide to foreigners in pronuncing the language. Some linguists of our own day have endeavoured to reinstate them as helps in this respect, but without much success.
- b. The accents are the acute ('), the grave ('), and the circumflex (^).

The accent is marked upon a vowel, and in diphthongs upon the latter vowel; as αὐτὸς, οὖτως. The acute and grave are placed after the breathing, and the circumflex over it; as ôς, οὖτος. The acute on the last syllable becomes grave, unless the word ends a sentence; except τίς the interrogative, which always keeps its acute. Every unaccented syllable is said to have the grave tone; but the grave accent is not marked, except where it stands for a final acute.

c. Words are called, with reference to accent—Oxytone (lit. sharptoned), when the acute is on the last syllable, as $\partial \lambda \pi is$; Paroxytone, when the acute is on the penultima (last but one), as $\partial \nabla \tau \omega s$; Proparoxytone, when the acute is on the antepenultima (last but two), as $\partial \lambda u s$; Perispomenon (lit. drawn-out), when the circumflex is on the last syllable, as $\partial u \tau o s$; Properispomenon, when the circumflex is on the penultima, as $\partial u \tau s$. The circumflex cannot be farther back than the penultima.

If the last syllable of the word contains a long vowel, the acute accent must be on the last or last but one, the circumflex only on the last. Should, therefore, the final syllable of a proparoxytone be lengthened by declension, the accent is thrown forward, i.e. the word becomes paroxytone. Thus, $\mathring{a}v\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma s$, $\mathring{a}v\theta\rho\omega\pi\omega v$. But if the final syllable of a properisponenon is lengthened, the accent is changed to the acute, i.e. the word becomes paroxytone. Thus, $\lambda\iota\beta\epsilon\rho\tau\iota\nu\sigma s$, $\lambda\iota\beta\epsilon\rho\tau\iota\nu\omega v$.

It should be observed that the circumflex accent is always the result of contraction, i.e. of an acute and grave ('')—not of a grave and acute ('')—as will be shown under Etymology.

- d. Enclitics are words which merge their accent into the word immediately preceding, which are affected as follows:—A proparoxytone or properisponenon takes an acute accent on the last syllable also. Thus, ἄνθρωπός τις, οἶκός τις. An oxytone that would otherwise (see above) take the grave accent retains the acute. Thus, μαθητής τις. Paroxytones and perispomena show no alteration.
- e. Proclitics lose their accent in the words following. In an emphatic position, a proclitic becomes oxytone. Thus où with a verb is not; où alone, no! A proclitic followed by an enclitic is also oxytoned, as où us. The two may be written as one word.

Special rules of accentuation will be given under the sections of Etymology. The learner is recommended to accentuate from the first, in writing Greek; especially as the accent of very many words can only be known by acquaintance with the words themselves, and if neglected at first, will be extremely difficult to acquire afterwards.

7. ON THE TRANSFERENCE OF GREEK WORDS INTO ENGLISH.

Most proper names, and some few other words, are literally transcribed from the one language into the other. The medium of transference is almost always the Latin, and therefore the orthography conforms to Latin rules. For the most part, the Greek letters are represented by the equivalents given (§ 1). The following exceptions must, however, be noted:—

κ is always c, the letter k not being found in the usual Roman alphabet. Where the c would be soft in ordinary English pronunciation, it is generally so in Greek names, as $K\nu\rho\dot{\eta}\nu\eta$, Cyrene. In some words of infrequent use, good speakers sometimes deviate from this rule, saying, e,g. Akéldama, not Aséldama.

The vowel v is represented by y, as $\sum v\rho ia$, Syria.

The diphthong at becomes e, as Kaî σ a ρ , Cesar. Occasionally, the diphthong is made simply e; so, Aἴ $\gamma \nu \pi \tau$ (os), Egypt; Τρ $\dot{\nu}$ φαινα, Tryphena.

The diphthong or becomes α , as $\Phi \circ i\beta \eta$, $Ph \otimes be$; sometimes, as above, only e: thus, $\Phi \circ \iota \nu i \kappa \eta$, Phenice.

The diphthong ϵ_i becomes \bar{e} or $\bar{\imath}$, as Λαοδίκεια, Laodicēa; Θυάτειρα, Thyat $\bar{\imath}$ ra: sometimes (in practice) $\check{\imath}$, as Σελεύκεια, Seleucia. But the i ought really to be long, or long e; so Attalia.

The diphthong ov appears as u, as Λουκâs, Luke; or, before a vowel, as v, as, Σιλουανός, Silvanus.

The initial I before a vowel becomes J, as Iovôas, Judas.

The initial P, always aspirated in Greek (§ 3,d), is generally without the aspirate in English. Thus, 'Paββί, Rabbi. But 'Pήγιον, likegium; 'Pόδοη, Rhoda; and 'Pόδος, Rhodes, are exceptions, being original Greek words.

Changes in the terminations of these transferred words belong to Etymology. No rule can be given but usage why some should have their endings changed, while others are exactly transcribed. Occasionally, the same word appears in two forms. Thus, Marcus and Mark, Lucas and Luke. The learner is recommended to read carefully parts of the New Testament where many proper names occur, comparing the English with the Greek. No better portion for the purpose could be found than Romans xvi.

8. Punctuation.

Four marks of punctuation are used for the division of sentences; the comma, the colon, the period, and the note of interrogation.

The comma (,) and the period (.) are like our own.

In modern typography, it is very usual not to begin new sentences with capital letters; reserving these for proper names, for the commencement of quotations, and for the beginning of paragraphs.

The colon (sometimes called semicolon) is expressed by a point above the line, thus (\cdot).

Interrogation is marked by a sign, after the question, resembling our semicolon (;).

Inverted commas, as marks of quotation, are sometimes, though rarely, employed in printed Greek.

The Greek equivalent for &c., et cætera, is in the initials κ . τ . λ , for $\kappa a \hat{\iota} \tau a \lambda o \iota \pi a$, and the rest.

The following sentence exhibits the different marks of punctuation (John ix. 40):—

Καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ, Μὴ καὶ ἡμεῖς τυφλοί ἐσμεν; εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Εἰ τυφλοὶ ἦτε οὐκ ἃν εἴχετε ἁμαρτίαν νῦν δὲ λέγετε, Θτι βλέπομεν. ἡ οὐν ἁμαρτία ὑμῶν μένει.

READING LESSONS.

I. Acts ii. 1-13.

Write the following in Roman letters, carefully inserting the initial aspirate wherever it occurs, and discriminating between the long and the short o and e, as in Lesson III below:—

Καὶ ἐν τῷ συμπληροῦσθαι τὴν* ἡμέραν τῆς Πειτηκοστῆς, 2 ἦσαν ἄπαντες ὁμοθυμαδὸν ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτό.† Καὶ ἐγένετο ἄφνω ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἦχος ὥσπερ φερομένης πνοῆς βιαίας, καὶ ἐπλή-

II. Romans iv. 1-16.

Read the following, carefully attending to the punctuation, which in this passage is marked with unusual decisiveness:—

Τι οὖν ἐροῦμεν ᾿Αβραὰμ τὸν πατέρα ἡμῶν εὑρηκέναι κατὰ

The quotation-marks (inverted commas) introduced in verses 3, 7, 8, are used, as is the practice in some editions of the Greek Testament, to indicate a citation from the ancient Scriptures.

III. MATTHEW v. 1-16.

Write the following in Greek characters, punctuating the sentences, inserting the soft and aspirate "breathings," but not attempting accentuation. The usual marks (-) and (') discriminate the long and the short vowels. In the diphthongs, the short o and e are to be used. Where an iota is to be subscribed, the vowel is italicised; thus, $\bar{o} = \omega$.

The Greek Testament will furnish many other exercises, which should be repeated until the learner can read the language with perfect facility. A little care and time now devoted to this point, even before the meaning of a single word is understood, will very greatly contribute to future progress.

PART II.

ETYMOLOGY.

CHAPTER I. INTRODUCTION.

- 9. Etymology treats of the classification, the derivation, and the inflection of words.
- a. The parts of speech in Greek, and in all other languages, are substantially the same.
- b. More important than any others are the Noun and the Verb. These, as the necessary elements of a sentence, will first be treated of, in their various inflections. With the Noun are closely connected the Article, Adjective, and Pronoun. The Verb also has its noun, the Infinitive, and its adjective, the Participle. Of these two the latter only is inflected.
- 10. The elementary part of every word is called its stem, as every inflection presupposes it, and branches from it.

The Root of a word is its yet simpler element in the same or another language. With this, practical grammar has comparatively little to do; but to know the stem is of the utmost importance in the analysis of any word. Throughout the etymology the stem will be marked by thick letters, with a hyphen indicating the (general) incompleteness of the stem until some letter or syllable be added by way of inflection.

The last letter of a stem is called the stem-ending. If the letter is a vowel, the stem is called "vowel," or pure. So a stem ending with a liquid is called a liquid stem; ending with a mute, a mute stem. Liquid and mute stems are sometimes called impure.

CHAPTER II. THE NOUN, OR SUBSTANTIVE.

11. Nouns have three genders, Masculine, Feminine, and Neuter; also three numbers, Singular, Dual, and Plural. The dual number denotes two, or a pair of anything; but as it is not found in the Greek Testament, it will not be noticed in the forms of declension given.

There are five cases: the Nominative, or case of the Subject; the Genitive, or Possessive; the Dative, or Conjunctive; the Accusative, or Objective; the Vocative, employed in direct address.

Strictly speaking, the Nominative and Vocative are not cases: the word implying dependence. Of the three true cases, often called oblique,* the Genitive originally signifies motion from, then, more generally, separation; the Dative, rest in, hence conjunction with; the Accusative, motion towards, hence denoting simply the object of the transitive verb. This general description of the three cases, for the further illustration of which see Syntax, will explain most of their uses.

In the paradigms of Nouns Substantive, a convenient English rendering of the Genitive is by the preposition of, and of the Dative by to. It must, however, be remembered that these words are used for the sake of distinction merely, and not as intimating that such are the most correct or usual renderings.

12. Before proceeding to the inflection of Nouns, it will be convenient to give the Definite Article in its numbers, genders, and cases. This must be thoroughly committed to memory.

There is no indefinite article in Greek, the nearest equivalent being the Indefinite pronoun $\tau\iota s$, any. † This is also subjoined, chiefly for the reason that the two words together furnish a model, nearly complete, of the declension of all substantives and adjectives.

^{*} Oblique, or slanting, from the habit among old grammarians of expressing the forms of the noun by a diagram, the nominative being an upright stem, from which the cases branched at different angles.

⁺ Or the numeral εis, one, as παιδάοιον έν, a lad (John vi. 9).

Α.	τόν	τήν	τό	τούς	aulpha s	τά

Accentuation.—The nominative, masculine and feminine, singular and plural, is proclitic; the genitive and dative of both numbers are perispomenon; the rest oxytone.

13. Indefinite Pronoun: any, a certain, a. Stem, τίν-

G.	τινος	τινος	τινων	τινων
D.	τινι	$\tau\iota u\iota$	τισι	τισι
Α.	τινα	τι	τινας	τινα

Accentuation.—The word is generally enclitic, as here given; the accent being regarded as transferred to the previous word (§ 5, d). When accented, the forms are oxytone, except the genitive plural, which is perisponenon. Thus, $\tau \nu \delta s$, $\tau \nu \delta t$, $\tau \nu \delta v$.

- 14. A comparison of the two forms now given will show four particulars, applicable to all nouns, adjectives, and pronouns; and, therefore, at the outset, important to remember.
- a. Neuters have but one form in each number for the nominative and accusative. Perhaps this might have arisen from things without life being regarded as objects only. Neuters plural, nominative and accusative, always end in a (short), except when contracted, as $\tau \epsilon i \chi \eta$ for $\tau \epsilon i \chi \epsilon a$ (Heb. xi. 30).
- b. The dative singular always ends in \(\tilde{\tau}\); though, where the letter preceding is a long vowel, the iota is subscript.
 - c. The genitive plural always ends in ων.
- d. Masculine and neuter forms are always alike in the genitive and dative.

15. GENDER OF SUBSTANTIVES. General Rules.

Many names of inanimate objects are of the masculine or feminine gender. This fact, no doubt, arose from the habit of personification, common in early ages. The English, indeed, is the only great language in which masculine and feminine, with almost undeviating strictness, denote male and female. The French idiom, in the opposite extreme, entirely rejects the neuter.

Considerable difficulty, therefore, is felt by beginners in determining the gender of many nouns. In some cases, it will be necessary to consult the Lexicon; in others, the termination of the word will be a guide, as is shown under the several declensions.

The following rules, however, are of general application:

- a. The names of males are Masculine*; so of rivers and winds, which were regarded by the early Greeks as gods.
- b. The names of females are Feminine*; so also of trees, countries, islands, most towns, and abstract terms.
- c. Diminutives in -ov are Neuter, even though the names of persons. To the class of neuters also belongs the verbal substantive, or infinitive verb, with indeclinable nouns generally.

16. Declension of Nouns Substantive.

There are three leading types of inflection, under one or other of which all declinable nouns may be classified. These are called the Three Declensions, and, as has been stated, the model of each may be traced in the Article and the Indefinite Pronoun.

The First Declension corresponds with the feminine of the article, $\dot{\eta}$. The Second Declension corresponds with the masculine or neuter of the article, $\dot{\delta}$, $\tau\dot{\delta}$. The Third Declension corresponds with the form of the indefinite pronoun, τis , τi .

A model of each declension is here given.

* The generic names of animals are sometimes common, i.e., of either mase, or fem. gender, according to circumstances (so also $\pi a \hat{s}$, child); more frequently epicane, i.e., of one gender, used indifferently for both sexes. Thus in Greek, wolf is always mase, for always fem., even in Luke xiii. 32.

παίδες, O children!

These three paradigms having been committed to memory, the several declensions, with their rules of formation, their analogies and variations, may now be more particularly discussed.

A certain likeness will, on examination, be detected between the First and Second, especially in the plural number. The plural terminations may be set side by side, thus:—

N.	and v. First Declension,	- cr	Second Declension,	-oı
. G.	,,	-ων	33	-ων
D.	,,	ars	"	-ois
A.	22	as	,,	- ovs

In the former, the predominant vowel is evidently α ; in the latter, o. So in the singular, the first declension in the dative has η (for α lengthened, \S 3, e); the second, ω (for σ lengthened). In the accusative, the first has $\alpha \nu$, or $\eta \nu$; the second, $\sigma \nu$.

The two may accordingly be discriminated as the A declension and the O declension; a distinction which the further examination of their structure makes yet more plain.

Both, again, are distinguished from the third by admitting the termination which marks the case into the last syllable of the word; while the latter adds the termination as a distinct syllable.

The First and Second Declensions are, on account of this last peculiarity, called the Inseparable, or Parisyllabic; the Third, the Separable, or Imparisyllabic declension.

All three admit, however, of many variations, as will now be shown in detail.

17. First (inseparable), or A Declension.

This declension includes both masculine and feminine nouns. The stem invariably ends in a. As the feminine has already been given as containing the typical form, that may be placed first.

REMARKS.

- a. The stem-ending α becomes η in the nominative and accusative singular whenever preceded by a consonant; except by the liquid ρ , the double consonants, or σ , sometimes ν preceded by a diphthong or long vowel. In these cases, the α remains, long after ρ , short in the other cases. Preceded by a vowel, the α remains, generally long. Thus we have the nominatives $\epsilon \nu \tau o \lambda \dot{\eta}$, $\sigma \nu \nu \alpha \gamma \omega \gamma \dot{\eta}$, $\psi \nu \chi \dot{\eta}$; but $\theta \dot{\nu} \rho \bar{a}$, $\delta \dot{\sigma} \dot{\xi} \dot{a}$, $\gamma \lambda \hat{\omega} \sigma \sigma \dot{a}$, $\beta \sigma \sigma \dot{\lambda} \lambda \dot{\tau} \sigma \sigma \dot{a}$, $\lambda \dot{\epsilon} a \nu \dot{a}$, $\sigma \kappa \iota \ddot{a}$, $\beta \sigma \sigma \iota \lambda \dot{\epsilon} \iota \ddot{a}$, $\dot{\alpha} \lambda \dot{\eta} \theta \dot{\epsilon} \iota \ddot{a}$.
- b. In the genitive and dative singular, the stem-ending a, when not preceded by a vowel or ρ, becomes η. After a vowel or ρ, it remains. Thus, Ν. δόξα; G. δόξης; D. δόξη; but ἡμέρα, ἡμέρας, ἡμέρα, and σκιά, σκιᾶς, σκιᾶ.
- c. The plural terminations in all forms of this declension are exactly alike, the a in -as of the accusative being long.
 - d. Accentuation.—Whatever syllable is accented in the nominative retains the accent throughout, so long as the laws in § 6, c, permit. The only apparent exception is in the genitive plural, which in this declension is always perispomenon. This, however, is accounted for by its being a contraction of $-\acute{\alpha}\omega v$. Oxytone words become perispomenon in the genitive and dative of both numbers. For purposes of accentuation, the termination $\alpha \iota$ in the plural nominative is considered short.

D.	$\mu a \theta \eta au \hat{\eta}$	$\mu a \theta \eta au a \hat{\imath}_S$	νεανία	νεανίαις
A.	μαθητήν	μαθητάς	νεανίαν	νεανίας
\mathbf{v}_{\cdot}	μαθητά	μαθηταί	νεανία	νεανίαι

REMARKS.

a. All masculine nouns of the first declension form the nominative from the stem by adding s, lengthening a into η after all consonants except the liquid ρ , and retaining a after vowels and ρ . The vowel of the nominative is retained in the dat. and acc. sing.

b. The genitive singular of all masculine nouns of this declension ends in ov, originally ao. The vocative gives the simple stem. Other cases conform entirely to the feminine type.

c. Accentuation.—The remarks under the feminine paradigms are applicable to masculine also.

Exercise 3.—Nouns of the First Declension, for Practice.
(Selected from the "Sermon on the Mount.")

1. MASCULINE.

κριτής, judge ὀφειλέτης, debtor προφήτης, prophet τελώνης, tax-gatherer, "publican"

 $i\pi\eta\rho\epsilon\tau\eta s$, attendant, servant

2. Feminine.

βασιλεία, kingdom δικαιοσύνη, righteousness ἐντολή, commandment ζωή, life θύρα, gate κεφαλή, head λυχνία, lampstand οἰκία, house πέτρα, rock ψυχή, soul, natural life

The learner should commit these words to memory, with their meanings, and should then write them down in different numbers and cases, with and without the corresponding articles, until all the forms are mastered. So with the other Exercises.

20. IRREGULAR FORMS OF THE FIRST DECLENSION.

- a. Masculine proper names in as of this declension form the genitive in a, excepting when preceded by a vowel. Thus, 'Iωνâs, Jonah, gen. 'Ιωνâ; Κηφâs, Cephas, gen. Κηφâ; Βαρνάβαs, gen. Βαρνάβα; 'Ιούδαs, Judah or Judas, gen. 'Ιούδα. The accent of the genitive corresponds with that of the nominative. But 'Ανδρέαs, Andrew, makes 'Ανδρέου; 'Ησαΐαs, Ιsαίαh, 'Ησαΐου. These names are from the Hebrew, with the exception of 'Ανδρέαs.
- b. In Acts v. 1, we find $\Sigma a\pi \phi \epsilon i\rho \eta$, dative of the proper name Supphira; and in Acts x. 1, $\sigma \pi \epsilon i\rho \eta s$ is used as the genitive of $\sigma \pi \epsilon i\rho a$, cohort—in both cases contrary to the rule in § 19, α . Similar variations from the regular form are found in good MSS. in the case of other substantives.

21. Second (inseparable), or O-Declension.

This declension contains masculine, feminine, and neuter nouns. The stem invariably ends in o, to which -s is added to form masculine and feminine nominatives, and -v to form the neuter.

22. MASCULINE AND FEMININE PARADIGMS. Second Declension.

	λόγος, word, masc. Stem, λογο-		δδός, way, fem. Stem, δδο-
	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.	SINGULAR.	PHURAL.
N.	λόγος .	λόγοι	δδός	δδο ί
G.	λόγου	λόγων	δδοῦ	ό δων
D.	λόγω	λόγοις	δδ ώ	όδο î ς
Α.	λόγου	λόγους	δδόν.	δδούς
v.	λόγε	λόγοι	δδέ	δδοί

REMARKS.

a. As before noticed, this paradigm corresponds with that of the first declension, \circ - being substituted for \circ -. The differences are, that in the nominative singular the stem-vowel is not lengthened, and that the vocative singular changes this vowel into \circ . In the accusative plural, the termination \circ is for \circ ovs (§ 4, d, 5), as in the first declension \circ is for \circ avs; in each case, \circ being added to the accusative singular.

Accentuation.—The remarks on the first declension are mostly applicable. The syllable accented in the nominative retains the accent throughout wherever possible; oxytones becoming perispomena in the genitive and dative of both numbers. The genitive plural of other nouns is not, as in the first declension, perispomenon. In the nominative plural, the termination of is treated with reference to the accent as a short syllable.

23. NEUTER PARADIGM. Second Declension.

N.	σῦκον	σῦκα
G.	σύκου	σύκων
D.	σύκω	σύκοις
A_{ν}	σῦκου	σῦκα
V.	σῦκον	σῦκα

REMARKS.

The only difference between this paradigm and that of the masculine and feminine is that already stated, § 14, a. The accusative of all neuters is the same form with the nominative and vocative; and in the plural these cases end in a.

Accentuation.—For the accentual changes in the declension of $\sigma\hat{\nu}\kappa\nu\nu$, see § 6, c.

24. Paradigm of Contracted Nouns. Second Declension.

Nouns of this declension whose stem-vowel o- is preceded by or o, generally suffer contraction, according to the scheme in § 3, f.

Thus, νόος, mind, becomes νοῦς; ὀστέον, bone, ὀστοῦν. The contracted forms of these words are not invariably employed in the Septuagint or New Testament. On νοῦς, see Variable Nouns, § 32, α.

To this head may also be referred some nouns in $-\omega_s$, like the proper names, $^{2}A\pi o\lambda\lambda\dot{\omega}_s$, $K\hat{\omega}_s$.

26. THIRD (or Separable) DECLENSION.

Nouns in this declension are masculine, feminine, or neuter. Their varieties necessitate the giving of several paradigms, although all are reducible to a simple form, already illustrated in the indefinite pronoun $\tau\iota s$, and shown in the two nouns declined below.

The one essential thing, in this declension especially, is to know the stem, which may end in a consonant (impure, mute or liquid), or in a vowel (pure). From this the nominative, as well as every other case, is derived; but the stem-ending is better seen in the genitive, which, in Vocabularies and Lexicons, is therefore given with the nominative.

The termination of the genitive singular in this declension is always os. Take this away, and the remaining part of the word is the stem.

27. General Paradigm of the Third Declension.

M. Or F.		N.
	alών, age, duration, masc.		βη̂μα, word
	Stem, αἰων-		Stem, ρηματ-
	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
N.	αἰών	αὶῶνες	ρημα	ρήματα
G.	αἰῶνος	αὶώνων	ρήματος	ρημάτων
D.	αλῶνι	$a\iota\hat{\omega}\sigma\iota(v)$	ρήματι	ρήμασι(ν)
A.	αὶῶνα	αὶῶνας	ρημα	ρήματα
V_{\bullet}	αἰών	αλώνες	ρημα	ρήματα

28. TERMINATIONS OF THIS DECLENSION.

These paradigms are essentially alike in termination, setting aside the invariable differences between neuter and other forms (§ 14, a).

We thus find that the terminations of the third declension are, in the SINGULAR—

Genitive, os, appended to the stem.

Dative, i, also appended to the stem.

Accusative, &. This, however, is really a substitute for v, which we find in the first and second declensions, and which in pure stems often appears in the third also.

Vocative, the stem, subject to necessary modifications (§ 4, d, 8), or like the nominative.

In the PLUBAL-

Nominative, es, appended to the stem.

Genitive, wv, appended to the stem.

Dative, σι, added to the stem, with necessary modifications (§ 4, d, 1, 5). On the ν εφελκυστικόν, see § 3, h, 1.

Accusative, as, the a short or s added to the accusative singular. Compare the First and Second Declensions, § 22, a.

Vocative, like the nominative.

Accentuation.—The accented syllable of the nominative, as in other nouns, retains the accent throughout, wherever possible. For a special rule respecting monosyllables, see § 29. In the above paradigms, αἰάν in the nominative is written for αἰῶν.

29. VARIETIES IN THE THIRD DECLENSION ACCORDING TO STEM-ENDINGS.

The stem of this declension may end in any consonant (except μ and the double consonants, ξ , ξ , ψ) and in the vowels ι and υ .

First Rule.—The most usual termination of the nominative singular is s added to the stem, in accordance with the orthographic law, § 4, c.

Thus (1), a labial stem makes the nominative in \u03c4.

EXAMPLES.

"Αραψ, Arabian, from ἀραβ-, gen. ἄραβος Αἰθίοψ, Ethiopian, ,, αιθιοπ-, gen. αἰθίοπος

(2) A guttural stem makes the nominative in §.

EXAMPLES.

φλόξ, flame,	from	φλογ-,	gen. φλογός
κήρυξ, herald,	33	κηρυκ-,	gen. κήρυκος
νύξ, night,	99	,	gen. νυκτός
θρίξ, hair,	22	θριχ-,	gen. τριχός (§ 4, d, 7.)

(3) A dental stem drops the stem-termination before s.

EXAMPLES.

παίs, child,	from	παιδ-,	gen. παιδός
ὄρνις, bird,	39	όρνῖθ-,	gen. ὄρνιθος
χάρις, favour,	22	χαρίτ-,	gen. χάριτος
δδούs, tooth,	22		gen. ὀδύντος (§ 4, d, 5.)

(4) Vowel stems add s simply.

EXAMPLES.

πόλις, city,	from	πολι-,	gen. πόλεως, for πόλιος
lχθύs, fish,	"	ίχθυ-,	gen. ἰχθύος

Second Rule.—Stems ending in ν and $\nu\tau$ (generally), in ρ (almost always), and in s (invariably, except in neuters), form the nominative by lengthening the vowel preceding the termination.

EXAMPLES.

ποιμήν, shepherd,	from	ποιμεν-,	gen. ποιμένος
λέων, lion,	"	λεοντ-,	gen. λέοντος
ρήτωρ, orator,	"	ρητορ-,	gen. βήτορος
aldws, modesty,	"	aibos-,	(gen. aldóoos)

The genitive of this last word is contracted by dropping the spetween two short vowels, and combining them; aidios, aidiose. (See § 3, f, Table and Note.)

Certain nouns with the stem-ending ρ preceded by ϵ are syncopated, i.e., omit this vowel in some of their cases. One, $\partial \nu \rho \rho$, man, $\partial \nu \rho$, in omitting ϵ , inserts the letter δ between ν and ρ . (See § 5, 5.) The dative plural of these nouns also adds α after ρ . (See the Paradigms.)

Third Rule.—Stems in ϵv , αv , δv , while adding s in the nominative singular, according to the first rule, drop the v in the genitive singular and other cases, thus forming an apparent exception to the rule that the genitive gives the stem by taking away the termination δs . The irregularity is only apparent, as the v of the stem is in reality the old consonant v (written in Greek f, and called, from its shape, digamma), which originally belonged to the genitive, like the other consonant stem-endings. Thus, $\beta \delta v$, δv , $\delta \delta f$, gen. $\delta \delta \delta f$, now written $\delta \delta \delta s$. Some of the cases of these nouns are also contracted, as the paradigm will show. Stems in ϵv take a special form of the genitive singular, called the "Attic Genitive," ending in $\epsilon \omega s$.

Fourth Rule.—Neuter stems in es change this termination in the nominative into -os, and suffer contraction in other cases by § 3, f.

Example.—""" σρος, mountain, όρες-, gen. ("" σρος σος, "" σρος, "" σρος, πομπίαtive and accusative plural ("" σρος σρος, "

Fifth Rule.—Other neuter nouns, together with those masculines and feminines which have liquid stems preceded by a long vowel, retain the stem in the nominative unchanged, so e by the general orthographic law. Thus, $\alpha i \omega \nu$, $\dot{\rho} \hat{\eta} \mu a$, already given. The latter becomes $\dot{\rho} \hat{\eta} \mu a$ from $\dot{\rho} \eta \mu a \tau$ -, according to § 4, d, 8.

Accentuation.—Monosyllabic neuters are oxytone in all their dissyllabic forms, except the genitive plural, which is perisponenon. Masculine and feminine monosyllables accent the penultimate in the accusative singular and nominative and accusative plural; in other cases follow the rule of neuters.

30. PARADIGMS ILLUSTRATING THE FIVE FOREGOING RULES.

- I. The letter s affixed to the stem.
 - a. Consonant Stems (mute), labial and guttural.

V.	 ιχθύ	λχθύες	πόλι	(πόλεες) πόλεις

REMARKS.

One neuter noun, σίναπι, mustard (singular only), is declined like πόλις, excepting that the accusative is, of course, like the nom.

Accentuation.—For accentual purposes, the genitive termination, $\epsilon \omega s$ or $\epsilon \omega v$, in these nouns, is considered as one syllable, and does not, therefore, require the acute accent to be thrown forward.

II. The vowel of the last syllable stem lengthened.

Α,	πατέρα	πατέρας	ἄνδρα	ἄνδρας
v.	πάτερ	πατέρες	ἄνερ	ἄνδρες

REMARK.

To this class of syncopated nouns belong $\mu\eta\tau\eta\rho$, mother; $\theta\nu\gamma\acute{a}\tau\eta\rho$, daughter; $\gamma a\sigma\tau\acute{\eta}\rho$, belly. A $\sigma\tau\acute{\eta}\rho$, star, has $a\sigma\tau\rho\acute{a}\sigma\iota(\nu)$ in the dative plural, but is not syncopated in any other case.

Accentuation.—These words are paroxytone in the cases that retain ϵ , and throughout the plural (excepting $\partial \nu \hat{n} \rho$, which is irregular). The syncopated cases of the singular are oxytone, and the vocative throws back its accent as far as possible.

REMARK.

Nouns in -evs form the accusative singular in -ea (the a long); those in -avs and -ovs take v.

Accentuation.—Nouns in -eus are all oxytone in the nominative singular, and perispomenon in the vocative.

IV. Neuter nouns in -os, from the stem ending es-.

Exercise 5.—Nouns of the Third Declension, for Practice.

Selected from the "Sermon on the Mount."

 The learner should assign each noun to its proper class.

MASCULINE.

γραμματεύs, -εωs, scribe χιτών, -ῶνοs, vest, inner garment όδούς, όδόντος, tooth ὄφις, όφέως, snake

FEMININE.

31. IRREGULAR NOUNS OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

These are irregular, chiefly in the nominative. Thus, γυνή, woman, takes gen. γυναικός, and forms all its cases from the stem γυναικ-, the vocative being γύναι by § 4, d, 8.

Γόνν, knee, is declined regularly as from the stem γονατ- (neuter), gen. γόνατος, nom. plur. γόνατα, &c.

Κύων, dog (masculine, also feminine in singular), is declined as from κυν-, gen. κυνός, &c.; but voc. sing. κυον, dat. plur. κυσί(ν).

Mάρτυς, witness (masculine), is from the stem μαρτυρ-, which it follows throughout, except in dat. plur. μάρτυσι(ν).

"Υδωρ, water, is declined regularly as from the neuter stem ίδατ-, gen. εδατος, nom. plur. εδατα, &c.

Some neuter stems in -ατ- form the nominative by changing the τ into s, instead of dropping it. Thus, κερατ-, horn, nom. sing. κέρας, nom. plur. κέρατα, gen. κεράτων; κρεατ-, flesh, nom. sing. κρέας, nom. plur. κρέα, by syncope from κρέατα; τερατ-, prodigy, nom. sing. τέρας, nom. plur. τέρατα, dat. τέρασι(ν).

The accusative plural form, $\tilde{a}\rho\nu as$, lambs, is once found (Luke x. 3), and may be referred to the stem $\dot{a}\rho\epsilon\nu$ -, nom. sing. $\tilde{a}\rho\eta\nu$, the ϵ dropped in inflection by syncope.

In one passage, the name of the Greek deity Zeus is found (nom. Zεύs) gen. Διός, acc. Δία (Acts xiv. 12, 13).

32. Nouns of variable declension in the New Testament.

- a. A few substantives in -os are found with forms both of the second declension and of the third (neuter stem -es- like γένος). Thus, σκότος, darkness, is generally neuter of the third, but once masculine of the second (Heb. xii. 18, σκότφ); πλοῦτος, wealth, is properly masculine of the second, but is found in good MSS. neuter of the third; ἔλεος, mercy, is also of both declensions in the accusative case only (ἔλεον, Matt. ix. 13, Titus iii. 5, Heb. iv. 16, &c.), but the genitive is always ἐλέους, dat. ἐλέει. Nοῦς, mind (see § 24), second declension, occasionally takes a genitive and dative as of the third declension; νοός (1 Cor. xiv. 19), νοΐ (Rom. vii. 25; 1 Cor. i. 10, xiv. 15). So πλοός (Acts xxvii. 9) for πλοῦ.
- b. The word σάββατον, sabbath, is a regular noun, second declension, neuter, except in the dative plural, which in the New Testament is σάββασι (as if from σαββατ-, σάββα). But the Septuagint has also σαββάτοις (1 Chron. xxiii. 31).
- c. In proper names much irregularity exists. Μωσῆs (or Μωυσῆs), Moses, is thus declined:—
 - G. Μωσέως
 - D. Μωσεί, or Μωσή
 - A. Μωσέα, οτ Μωσῆν
 - V. $M\omega\sigma\hat{\eta}$ (LXX).

The name of Jerusalem is found in a threefold form: (1) 'Γερουσαλήμ, indeclinable, a transcript of the Hebrew word; (2) 'Γεροσόλυμα, neuter plural, second declension; (3) 'Γεροσόλυμα, feminine singular (Matt. ii. 3, only). Many proper names analogous in form to nominatives of the different declensions are indeclinable. So Κανᾶ, Βηθσαιδά, Βηθφαγή, Γολγοθᾶ, 'Γαμᾶ, 'Λαρών, Συμεών, Κεδρών, 'Γεριχῶ.

To this class may be referred the indeclinable neuters, πάσχα, passover; σίκερα, strong drink (Luke i. 15). The last two are, in fact, but adaptations of Hebrew words. Ἰῶτα, jot (Matt. v. 18), "Αλφα and ὧμέγα (Rev. i. 8), the names of Greek letters, are also treated as neuter nouns without inflection.

CHAPTER III. ADJECTIVES.

In respect of form, adjustives are divided into three classes :-

- 1. Those which combine the first and second declensions.
- 2. Those which combine the first and third.
- 3. These which follow exclusively the type of the third.

In the first two, the form of the first decleusion is feminine,

REMARKS.

- a. 'Αργύρεος, silver (adjective), occurs in the New Testament in two forms: acc. plur. ἀργυροῦς, neut. nom. and acc. plur. ἀργυροῦ.
- b. These adjectives occur very infrequently. It will be observed that the feminine of $\chi\rho\dot{\nu}\sigma\epsilon\sigma$ is formed irregularly; as -os preceded by a vowel, according to rule, requires -a. The adjective $\sigma\tau\epsilon\rho\epsilon\dot{\sigma}$, $\epsilon\dot{\alpha}$, $\epsilon\dot{\alpha}$, $\epsilon\dot{r}$, $\epsilon\dot{r}$, is declined without contraction.
 - c. Accentuation.—The final syllable in these adjectives, when contracted, is circumflexed throughout. Thus we have, not only άπλοῦς from ἀπλοῦς, simple (regular, see § 6, c), but χρυσοῦς from χρύσεος, and ἀργυροῦς from ἀργύρεος, anomalous.

36. Second Form. General Remarks.

Masculine.—The nominative is formed from the stem, according to the methods of the Third Declension. Thus, όξυ- gives nom. masc. όξύς, sharp (§ 29, i. (4); παντ- becomes πα̂ς, all (§§ 29, i. (3); 4 d 5); and ἐκοντ- gives ἐκών, willing (§§ 29, ii.; 4, d, 8).

Feminine.—The nominative always ends in ă; the other cases in the singular follow the model of the First Declension (§ 18, α). The stem-ending v becomes -εια, as δξύς, δξεῖα; ντ- becomes -σα, as πᾶς, πᾶσα, and ἐκών, ἐκοῦσα. But stems in -ν- insert an ι before that consonant, as μέλας, black, μελαν-, f. μέλαινα; and στ- (originally Fοτ) becomes -νια. Thus, λέλνκώς (participle), having loosened, λέλνκοτ-, f. λέλνκυῖα.

Neuter.—The neuter nominative contains the simple stem, altered only by the general euphonic rules; as δξύ, πῶν, ἐκόν, μέλαν, λελυκός.

Note. The stem-ending \mathbf{v} becomes $\boldsymbol{\epsilon}$ in the genitive and dative singular, and throughout the plural: $\hat{\epsilon i}$, dative singular, being contracted into $\hat{\epsilon i}$; and $\hat{\epsilon \epsilon s}$, $\hat{\epsilon a s}$, in the plural, into $\hat{\epsilon i s}$. But $\hat{\epsilon o s}$, genitive singular, and $\hat{\epsilon a}$ in the neuter plural, are uncontracted. A very few substantives also change \mathbf{v} into $\hat{\boldsymbol{\epsilon}}$; the only instance in the New Testament being $\pi \eta \chi \hat{\omega} \nu$ (John xxi. 8; Rev. xxi. 17) for $\pi \eta \chi \hat{\epsilon \omega} \nu$, from $\pi \hat{\eta} \chi v s$, cubit.

38. The declension of adjectives like μέλας, μέλαινα, μέλαν, black, gen. μέλανος, μελαίνης, μέλανος, dat. plur., m. and n. μέλασι(ν), and of participles like λελυκώς, λελυκυΐα, λελυκός, having loosened, gen. λελυκύτος. λελυκύτος, λελυκότος, will not now present any difficulty. One participle, έστηκώς, having stood, from the verb ἴστημ, takes the alternative form, ἐστώς, the result of syncope and contraction, and is thus declined:—

The contraction is from έσταώς. (See § 6, c.)

Accentuation.—Oxytones circumflex the feminine. Adjectives of the second class otherwise follow the ordinary rules. It will be observed that in the genitive and dative singular, masculine and neuter, $\pi \hat{as}$ takes oxytone forms, otherwise accenting the stem-syllable throughout.

39. Two adjectives of common occurrence are irregular in the singular masculine and neuter, owing to a combination of forms. Their declension is as follows:—

$$\mu\epsilon\gamma\alpha$$
- ($\mu\epsilon\gamma\alpha\lambda\sigma$ -, $\mu\epsilon\gamma\alpha\lambda\alpha$ -), great.

Α.	μέγαν	μεγάλην	μέγα

Plural regular, as if from μέγαλος.

Plural regular, as if from πολλός.

The adjective $\pi\rho a\dot{\nu}s$, or $\pi\rho \hat{a}os$, meek, is found in different forms of declension. Thus, in Matt. xi. 29, we have nom. sing. $\pi\rho \hat{a}os$, sometimes written $\pi\rho \hat{a}os$;* in xxi. 5, $\pi\rho a\dot{\nu}s$; in 1 Pet. iii. 4, gen. sing. $\pi\rho a\acute{e}os$; and in Matt. v. 5, nom. plur. $\pi\rho a\acute{e}is$.

^{*} Lachmann and others read ποαύς here, thus removing the irregularity.

40. Third Form. General Remarks.

Adjectives of this class being altogether of the third declension, have no special form for the feminine, and are, therefore, of two terminations or (sometimes) of only one. Compare τ_{is} , § 13.

For the most part, the declension of these adjectives is without peculiarity. It should be noted that an adjective in -ων (nominative singular) may be from one or other of the stem-endings οντ and ον. If from the latter, it belongs to the third class. Thus, ἐκών, from ἐκοντ-, has three terminations; but σώφρων, from σωφρον-, only two.

By far the largest and most important class of adjectives in this division are those in -\eta_s, neut. -\epsilon_s, where the stem-ending \epsilon_s is not changed into os in the nominative and accusative singular, as in the corresponding class of substantives (§ 29, iv.), but where similar contractions to those of nouns take place in the other cases.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

42. There are two regular methods of forming the Greek comparative and superlative.

The first and most usual is by adding to the stem of the positive the further stem-ending $\tau\epsilon\rho$ for the comparative, $\tau\alpha\tau$ for the superlative. These forms are then declined exactly like the first form of adjectives.

Thus, from πιστός, faithful, stem πιστο-, we have—

Comparative, nom. sing. πιστότερος, πιστοτέρα, πιστότερον.

Superlative, nom. sing. πιστότατος, πιστοτάτη, πιστότατον.

From ἀληθής, true, stem ἀληθες-

Comparative, ἀληθέστερος, ἀληθεστέρα, ἀληθέστερον.

Superlative, ἀληθέστατος, ἀληθεστάτη, ἀληθέστατον.

Adjectives of the first class which have a short syllable before the stem-ending o- change this vowel into ω .

Thus, σοφός, wise, makes-

Comparative; σοφώτερος, σοφωτέρα, σοφώτερον.

Superlative, σοφώτατος, σοφωτάτη, σοφώτατον.

From véos, new, we have in like manner—

Comparative, νεώτερος, νεωτέρα, νεώτερον.

Superlative, νεώτατος, νεωτάτη, νεώτατον.

Accentuation.—Comparatives and superlatives of this form are always proparoxytone, except when the final syllable is long; then paroxytone. In other words, the accent is thrown back as far as possible.

43. The second form of comparison is by adding, generally to an abbreviated form of the positive stem, -ίων (stem-ending 10v-) for the comparative, and -1070s (stem-ending 1070-) for the superlative.

EXAMPLES.

ταχύς,	swift,	ταχίων,*		τάχιστος
αλσχρός,	disgraceful,	αλσχίων,		αΐσχιστος
καλός,	fair,	καλλίων,		κάλλιστος
μέγας,	great,	μείζων (for	μεγίων),	μέγιστος

Accentuation.—In these, as in other comparative and superlative forms, the accent is thrown back as far as possible.

44. PARADIGM OF COMPARATIVES IN -ιων OR -ων.

These follow the third form of adjectives (see σώφρων, § 41), but are sometimes contracted by the omission of the v before a or e, and the combination of this vowel with the o of the stem. This contraction is, however, infrequent in the New Testament.

∇_{\bullet}	μείζονες or μείζους	μείζονες or μείζου:

^{*} See John xx. 4. In classic Greek, θάττων is the form generally used.

45. To this form of comparison belong several irregular comparatives and superlatives, of which the following list will suffice:—

ảγαθόs, good,	comp.	βελτίων,	sup.	βέλτιστος
	,,	κρείσσων,	"	κράτιστος
како́s, bad,	22	κακίων,	22	κάκιστος

πολύς, παηγ,	12	πλείων or πλέων,	22	πλείστος

Some adjectives, it will be seen from the above, have an alternative comparison, having recourse to different roots for the purpose. The respective forms are now interchangeable, or nearly so. For shades of difference between them, see Vocabulary and the Chapter on Synonyms.

46. The following comparatives and superlatives have no answering positives:—

(From ἄνω, adv. up) ἀνώτερος, upper; ἀνώτατος, topmost. (From κάτω, adv. down) κατώτερος, lower; κατώτατος, lowest. (From ἔσω, adv. within) ἐσώτερος, inner; ἐσώτατος, inmost (From πρό, prep. before) πρότερος, former; πρῶτος, first.

Many of these forms are but seldom used.

47. EMPHASIS IN COMPARISON.

(a) An emphatic comparative is made by the adverb μᾶλλον, more. So Mark ix. 42, καλόν ἐστιν αὐτῷ μᾶλλον, "it is far better for him." The same adverb is sometimes prefixed to a comparative, as in Mark vii. 36, μᾶλλον περισσότερον, "much (lit. more) the more abundantly." In Phil. i. 23, yet another adverb of intensity is affixed to μᾶλλον with the comparative, πολλῷ μᾶλλον κρεῖσσον (lit. "by much the more better"). Compare "most unkindest cut of all" in Shakspeare (Julius Cæsar, iii. 2). So Psa. ix. 2 (Prayer Book version) "O Thou Most Highest."

(b) Another form of securing emphasis is by affixing a comparative termination to a comparative or superlative form. Thus, from μείζων, greater (3 Ep. John 4), μειζοτέραν οὐκ ἔχω χαράν, "I have no greater (more greater) joy;" and from ελάχιστος, least (Eph. iii. 8), τῷ ἐλαχιστοτέρφ πάντων τῶν ἀγίων, well rendered in E. V., "less than the least of all saints."

Exercise 7.—Additional Adjectives, for Practice.

Selected from the "Sermon on the Mount."

FIRST FORM.

äγιος, holy ἀδίκος, unjust ἀρχαῖος, ancient καθαρός, pure πουηρός, wicked πτωχός, poor, pauper στενός, narrow τέλειος, full-grown, perfect φανερός, evident φρόνιμος, prudent

THIRD FORM.

 $\"{a}$ ρπαξ, -αγος, rapacious | $\grave{\epsilon}$ λεήμων, -ονος, merciful

In practising with these forms, they should be combined with the nouns of the previous Exercises. The adjectives should also be put into the different forms of the comparative and superlative. Almost countless combinations will thus result, by which the learner, either with or without the aid of an instructor, may become versed in these parts of speech.

NUMERALS.

48. THE CARDINAL NUMBERS.

- (a) For the signs of the respective numbers, the letters of the Alphabet are used, according to the list in § 1. When a letter is employed numerically, an acute accent is appended. Thus, a', 1; β', 2, and so on. To express thousands, an accent is placed beneath, a, 1,000; β, 2,000; μ, 10,000, &c.
- (b) It will be seen that the places of some numbers are vacant, owing to letters having dropped, in very ancient times, out of the Greek Alphabet: the Digamma (F) having come between ϵ and ζ ; while the space between π and ρ was occupied by Koppa (φ), a guttural with a hard k-sound, the original of the Latin and English letter q. As the alphabet ends with ω' , 800, another discarded letter, Sampi (\Re) was used for 900.* Three signs have therefore been added, as follows: ε' (the sign of a double consonant, st, used instead of F), 6; φ' , 90; \Re), 900.
- (c) Combinations of tens and units, or of hundreds, tens, and units, are expressed, not as in our Arabic numeration, by the collocation of unit-signs, but by addition. Thus, $\iota a'$, 11; $\iota \beta'$, 12; $\kappa \gamma'$, 23; $\rho \delta'$, 104; $\iota a \circ \xi \eta'$, 1868; $\chi \xi \varsigma'$ (Rev. xiii. 18), 666. In these expressions, the numeral accent is only written once, excepting with thousands.
- 49. The cardinal numbers, είs, one; δύο, two; τρεῖs, three; τέσσαρεs, four, are declined as follows. The rest are indeclinable up to two hundred, which, with the other hundreds, follows the plural of the first form of adjectives in -οι, -αι, -αι, -α.

 ϵ îs, μ ia, $\xi \nu$ (stem, $\epsilon \nu$ -), one.

50. The Ordinal Numbers.

For first, the superlative form $\pi\rho\tilde{\omega}\tau$ os (§ 46), is used. The succeeding ordinals are derived from the stem of their cardinal numbers, and are declined like adjectives of the first form. Cardinal numbers are sometimes used instead of ordinals in reckoning the days of the week, &c. (See Syntax.)

REMARK.

In compound numbers, the largest is placed first,* and the smaller follow in order, with or without the conjunction kal, and. The smaller numbers are in many copies treated as enclitics, and attached to the larger as one word.

Examples.—Τεσσαράκοντα δύο, "forty-two" (Rev. xi. 2, xiii. 5); ἐκατὸν πεντήκοντα τριῶν, "of a hundred and fifty-three" (John xxi. 11); θρόνοι εἴκοσι τέσσαρες, "twenty-four thrones" (Rev. iv. 4); τεσσαράκοντα καὶ ἐξ ἔτεσιν, "for forty-six years" (John ii. 20); ἐτῶν ὀγδοηκοντατεσσάρων, "of eighty-four years" (Luke ii. 37); δέκα καὶ ὀκτὰ ἔτη, "eighteen years" (Luke xiii. 16); τὰ ἐνενηκονταεννέα, "the ninety-nine" (Matt. xviii. 12; Luke xv. 4).

52. DISTRIBUTIVE NUMBERS.

The distribution or repetition of a number is variously expressed. In Mark vi. 7, the simple cardinal is repeated: $\delta \acute{v}o \ \delta \acute{v}o$, "two and two;" Luke x. 1, for the same thing, more classically employs a preposition, $\mathring{a}v\grave{a}$ $\delta \acute{v}o$; Mark xiv. 19, and John viii. 9, combine another preposition with the cardinal: $\epsilon \acute{t}s \kappa a\theta \acute{v} \epsilon \acute{t}s$, "one by one."

^{*} The rule in classic Greek is to place the smaller number first, with wal, or the larger without wal.

Exercise 8.-Numbers.

- 1. Interpret the following numerical symbols:— θ' , $\iota\eta'$, $\kappa\delta'$, $\mu\varsigma'$, $\rho\iota\delta'$, $\tau\lambda\beta'$, $\gamma\rangle\Diamond\theta'$, $v\circ\epsilon'$, $\omega\iota\alpha'$, ζ φ $\mu\gamma'$, $\beta\sigma\kappa\beta'$, $\psi\nu'$, $\chi\pi\zeta'$.
- [Vocabulary.—ωρα, -as, hour; ἡμέρα, -as, day; σάββατον, -ou (lit. sabbath), week, sing. or plur.; μήν, μηνός, m. month; ἔτος, -ous, n. year; πλείων, comp. adj. more; καὶ, and; ἤ, or; ἐν (prep., proclitic), in, governing the dative.]

Translate the following :-

- 1. ἐν ἔτει πεντεκαιδεκάτω.
- 2. ἐν τῷ μηνὶ τῷ ἔκτῳ.
- 3. ή ώρα ή δεκάτη.
- 4. ἐν τῷ ἐνὶ καὶ έξακοσιοστῷ ἔτει, ἐν τῷ δευτέρῳ μηνί.
- 5. ή μία (ήμέρα) τῶν σαββάτων. (See John xx. 1, &c.)
- 6. ή πρώτη σαββάτου. (See Mark xvi. 9.)
- τŷ τρίτη ἡμέρα. Supply on, to express the force of the dative.
- ἡμέραι πλείους ὀκτὼ ἡ δέκα. Supply than, after the comparative.
- 9. διακόσιοι έβδομήκοντα έξ.
- 10. ἔτη ὀγδοήκοντα τέσσαρα.
- 3. Render the following into Greek :-
 - 1. Thirty years.
 - 2. Eleven months.
 - 3. In the fourth month, on the sixth day. (See 7, above.)
 - 4. Twelve hours in the day.
 - 5. On the first day of the week.*

^{*} In what two ways might first and week respectively be expressed? See 5, 6, above.

CHAPTER IV. PRONOUNS.

53. Personal Pronouns.

These are divided into (1) the simple substantive-pronoun, (2) the reflexive, and (3) the adjective-personal or possessive.

The Substantive Pronouns of the first Two Persons.

	First per	son—	Second person—
	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
N.	ἐ γώ, Ι	ημεῖς, we	σύ, thou	ύμεῖς, you
G.	ἐμοῦ or μου	ήμῶν	σοῦ or σου	ύμῶν
D.	ἐμοί or μοι	ήμῖν	σοί or σοι	ύμῖν
A.	ἐμέ or με	ήμᾶς	$\sigma\epsilon$ or $\sigma\epsilon$	ύμᾶς

Accentuation.—In the singular, genitive, dative, and accusative, the unemphatic pronoun is enclitic. (See § 6.)

54. For the third personal pronoun, he, she, it, the New Testament employs the three genders of the adjective-pronoun aὐτός, self (αὐτο-, -α-).

SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	M.	F.	N.	M.	\mathbf{F}_{\bullet}	N.
N.	αὐτός	αὐτή	αὐτό	αὐτοί	αὐταί	αὐτά
G.	αὐτοῦ	αὐτῆς	αὐτοῦ	αὐτῶν	αὐτῶν	αὐτῶ ν
D.	αὐτῷ	$a v ilde{\eta}$	αὐτῷ	αὐτοῖς	αὐταῖς	αὐτοῖς
A.	αὐτόν	αὐτήν	αὖτό	αὐτούς	αὐτάς	αὐτά

The nominative of this pronoun, when used in the personal sense, is always emphatic.

55. Reflexive Pronouns.

These are formed by the combination of the personal pronouns with the oblique cases of $ai\tau is$. In the singular, the two are written as one word.

	SINGULAR.	SINGULAR.
G.	ϵ μαυτοῦ, - $\hat{\eta}$ s, of myself	σεαντοῦ, -η̂s, of thyself
D.	$\epsilon \mu a v \tau \hat{\varphi}$, $-\hat{\eta}$, to myself	$\sigma \epsilon a v \tau \hat{\psi}, -\hat{\eta}, to thy self$
Α.	εμαυτόν, -ήν, myself (obj.)	σεαυτόν, -ήν, thyself (obj.)

The plurals of these forms are written separately. Thus, ήμῶν αὐτῶν, of ourselves; ὑμῖν αὐτοῖς, to yourselves, &c.

Third person (from the old stem, \(\xi\)-, him), of himself, herself, itself, &c.—

SINGULAR.				PLURAL,
	M.	\mathbf{F}_{\circ}	N.	M.	F.	N.
G.	έαυτοῦ	$ϵ$ $avτ\hat{\eta}s$	$\dot{\epsilon}$ $av\tau o\hat{v}$	έαυτῶν	έαυτῶν	$\dot{\epsilon}av\tau\hat{\omega}v$
D.	έαυτῷ	έαυτῆ	έαυτῷ	έαυτοῖς	έαυταῖς	έαντοῖς
A.	ξαυτόν	έαυτήν	έαυτό	έαυτούς	έαυτάς	έαυτά

This reflexive pronoun is sometimes written without the ϵ, as αὐτοῦ, αὐτόν, &c., and is only distinguished from the cases of αὐτός by the aspirate. This must be very carefully marked.

Where there is no risk of ambiguity, this reflexive pronoun may be used for the first and second persons likewise. Thus, ἐν ἐαυτοῖς, "in ourselves" (Rom. viii. 23); τὴν ἐαυτῶν σωτηρίαν, "your own salvation" (Phil. ii. 12.)

56. Possessive, or Adjective-Personal Pronouns.

(a) These are declined precisely like adjectives of the first form, and are as follows:—

First person, \epsilon \mu \delta s, \epsilon \mu \acute{\eta}, \epsilon \mu \delta \upsilon, my.

i j \mu \epsilon \tau \epsilon \rho o s, i \mu \epsilon \tau \epsilon \epsilon \rho a, i \mu \epsilon \tau \epsilon \rho o \upsilon, o u r.

Second person, \sigma \delta s, \sigma \acute{\eta}, \sigma \delta \upsilon, t h y.

i \nu \epsilon \tau \epsilon \rho o s, i \nu \epsilon \tau \epsilon \epsilon \rho a, i \nu \epsilon \epsilon \epsilon \rho o \upsilon, j \nu a v r.

- (b) There is no possessive pronoun in the New Testament for the third person singular or plural, the genitive case of αὐτός or of ἐαυτοῦ being used instead. Thus, νίδς ἐαυτοῦ, or αὐτοῦ, his own son, i.e., the son of the person who is subject of the sentence; νίδς αὐτοῦ, his son, i.e., the son of another person. In Heb. i. 3, τῷ ῥήματι τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ is "by the word of His own power," i.e., that of Christ himself; αὐτοῦ, the reading of some editors, would denote "of His power," i.e., that of God the Father. Again, 1 John iii. 3, τὴν ἐλπίδα ἐπ' αὐτῷ, "the hope in * Him," i.e., in Christ, not αὐτῷ, which would have referred the hope to the subject of the sentence, "every one."
- (c) The genitive cases of the other personal pronouns are also used most frequently with the force of the possessive.

57. Demonstrative Pronouns.

The chief original demonstrative was the article, already given (§ 12), and all other demonstrative pronouns are formed upon its model.

They are—(a) $\delta\delta\epsilon$, $\eta\delta\epsilon$, $\tau\delta\delta\epsilon$, this (here).

- (b) οῦτος, αῦτη, τοῦτο, this (near).
- (c) ἐκεῖνος, ἐκείνη, ἐκεῖνο, that (yonder).
- (d) ὁ αὐτός, ἡ αὐτή, τὸ αὐτό, the same.
- (a) $\delta \delta \epsilon$ is simply the article declined with the enclitic $\delta \epsilon$.
- (b) οὖτος is thus declined (stem, τουτο-).

,	,		,	, ,
		SINGULAR.		,	PLURAL.
	M.	\mathbf{F}_{\bullet}	N.	M.	\mathbf{F}_{*}	N.
N.	οὖτος	αΰτη	τοῦτο	οῦτοι	αὖται	$ au a \hat{v} au a$
G.	τούτου	ταύτης	τούτου	τούτων	τούτων	τούτων
D.	τούτω	ταύτη	τούτω	τούτοις	ταύταις	τούτοις
A.	τοῦτον	ταύτην	τοῦτο	τούτους	ταύτας	ταῦτα

Care must be taken to distinguish the feminine of the nominative singular and plural, αὖτη, αὖται, from the corresponding cases of αὐτός, viz. αὐτή, αὐταί.

^{*} The preposition employed in this passage further marks this meaning.

- (c) ekeîvos is declined exactly like the article.
- (d) δ aðrós in all its cases is only aðrós (§ 54), with the definite article prefixed. The neuter plural, nominative and accusative, is sometimes written $\tau a \partial \tau a$, being distinguished by the coronis over the \dot{v} (§ 3 h 3), as well as by the accent, from $\tau a \partial \tau a$, these, neuter plural of $\delta \partial \tau o s$.
- (e) The demonstrative pronouns of quality, quantity (number), and degree, are declined like (b) preceding:—

Quality, τοιούτος, τοιαύτη, τοιούτο, such.
Quantity, τοσούτος, τοσαύτη, τοσούτο, so great.
Number, τοσούτοι τοσαύται, τοσαύτα, so many.
Degree, τηλικούτος, τηλικαύτη, τηλικούτο, so very great.

The last-mentioned pronoun is found only in 2 Cor. i. 10; Heb. ii. 3; James iii. 4; Rev. xvi. 18.

58. THE RELATIVE PRONOUN.

(a) The relative os, n, o, who or which, is thus declined:—

SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	M.	\mathbf{F}_{\bullet}	N.	M.	F.	N.
N.	ős	$ ilde{\eta}$	ő	70	aἵ	ã
G.	οΰ	η๊ς	οΰ	ผิษ	ών	ῶν
D.	ઌૄૼ	η̈́	ဖို	ols	ais	ols
A.	őν	ήν	ő	oซs	äs	ä

- (b) The similarity between this pronoun and the article will be seen at once. In the nominative singular feminine and the nominative plural masculine and feminine, the only difference is that the article is proclitic. The stem of the relative is ô-, while that of the article is ro-.
- (c) An indefinite relative, whoever, whatever, is made by combining the enclitic τ_{is} with δ_{s} , $\tilde{\eta}$, \tilde{o} . Both parts of the word are declined, as follows:—

		SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	M.	F.	N.	M.	\mathbf{F}_{\bullet}	N.
N.	δστις	ήτις	ő,τ ι	οἵτινες	αίτινες	äτινα
G.	οῦτινος	ήστινος	οὖτινος	ὧντινων	ώντι ν ων	ῶντινων
D.	φ τινι	ήτινι	ῷτινι	οΐστισι	αΐστισι	οΐστισι
A.	őντινα	ήντινα	ő,τι	ούστινας	άστινας	äτινα

The nominative and accusative neuter singular is divided as above (sometimes by a space without the comma), to distinguish the word from the conjunction $\delta \tau \iota$, that.

The genitive masculine singular is sometimes written $\tilde{\sigma}\tau ov$, used in the New Testament only in the adverbial phrase $\tilde{\epsilon}\omega s$ $\tilde{\sigma}\tau ov$, as long as, until (Matt. v. 25, &c.).

- (d) Sometimes the relative is declined with the particle -περ (marking emphatic identity), and means the very one who. Thus (Mark xv. 6) ὅνπερ ἢτοῦντο, the very person whom they demanded. Other indeclinable suffixes are often used, e. g., ὅσγε (Rom. viii. 32), ἄδηποτε (John v. 4). (See Syntax, on the Particles.) For the relative adverb οὖ, consult § 129.
- (e) Derivative relative pronouns are employed to express quality, quantity, and number.

Quality, olos, such as.

Quantity, őgos, so great as.

Number, ocou, plural of ocos, so many as.

Also the relative of degree, ήλίκος, of what a size, used only in two passages (Col. ii. 1; James iii. 5).

59. Interrogative Pronouns.

(a) The simple interrogative is τis ; τi ; who? or what? The declension of this pronoun is identical with that of the indefinite τis (§ 13), except that in the interrogative the ι of the stem syllable is accented throughout, the dissyllable forms being paroxytone.

For the adverbial interrogative form, $\mu \dot{\eta} \tau \iota$, see § 134, c.

(b) Other interrogative forms are employed, correlative to the relative pronouns under § 58, e, and, like them, denoting quality, quantity, number, and degree. They all prefix the letter π - to the relative forms.

Quality, ποΐος, of what kind? Quantity, πόσος, how great? Number, πόσοι, how many?

Degree, πηλίκος, how great l used in the New Testament only indirectly: Gal. vi. 11, "with what large letters" (probably to mark emphasis); Heb. vii. 4.

- (c) Direct interrogatives are often themselves used in the indirect construction, as John v. 13, "He that was healed knew not who (τίς) it was."
- (d) The properly indirect interrogatives prefix the letter δ to the direct forms beginning with the letter π . 'Oxolos, of what kind? is the only one of these employed in the New Testament.

60. Indefinite Pronouns.

- (a) The ordinary indefinite pronoun $\tau \iota s$, any, a certain one, has been given, § 13. The genitive and dative singular are occasionally $\tau \iota v$, $\tau \varphi$, enclitic.
- (b) Compounds of this pronoun are οὔτις, μήτις, no one. For the distinction between them, see § 134, b, and compare under εἶς, § 49.
- (c) The old indefinite pronoun $\delta \epsilon \hat{v} v a$, such a one, used with the article, is once found (Matt. xxvi. 18).

61. DISTRIBUTIVE PRONOUNS.

These are mostly declined like adjectives, and are as follows:-

- (a) ἄλλος, ἄλλη, ἄλλο, another (numerically).
 Plur. ἄλλοι, ἄλλαι, ἄλλοι, others.
- (b) ἔτερος, ἐτέρα, ἔτερον, other (different). Plur. ἔτεροι, ἔτεραι, ἔτερα, others.

For the force of the article with these pronouns, see SYNTAX.

- (c) ἀλλήλων, of each other, only used in the genitive, dative, and accusative plural.
- (d) ἔκαστος, ἐκάστη, ἔκαστον, each, used only in the singular; with doubtful exceptions, in Phil. ii. 4; Rev. vi. 11.
- 62. The number of the pronouns being so limited, it is unnecessary to give exercises for further practice. The foregoing forms and inflections must be very accurately committed to memory, and the distinctions between similar words carefully marked.

The following table of correlative pronouns will be found useful as a summary:—

	Demonstra- tive.	Relative.	Interrogative.	Dependent Interro- gative.	Inde-" finite.
Simple	οῦτος	ős	τίς		TIS
Quality	τοιοῦτος	οἶος	ποῖος	όποίος
Quantity	τοσοῦτος	őσος	πόσος
Degree	τηλικοῦτος	ἡλίκος		πηλίκος

CHAPTER V. THE VERB.

63. THE VOICES.

There are four principal things which verbs are employed to predicate concerning a given subject:—

- 1. Its state.
- 2. Its action upon an object.
- 3. Its action upon itself.
- 4. The action of the object upon it.

Hence arises a fourfold division of verbs: into neuter (or intransitive), active (or transitive), reflexive, and passive.

The Greek language employs a threefold modification of the verbal stem to express these varieties of meaning. The modifications, or "voices," are named as follows:—

The Active Voice, as λύω, I loosen.

The Reflexive, or Middle Voice, as hiopai, I loosen myself.

The Passive Voice, as λύομαι, I am loosened.

Neuter verbs borrow the Active or the Middle form, as πάσχω, I suffer; βούλομαι, I wish.

64. THE MOODS.

The Greek verb has four modes, or moods:* the Indicative, Imperative, Subjunctive, and Infinitive.

- The Indicative asserts absolutely, as ἔλυσα τὸν δέσμιον, I loosened the prisoner.
- 2. The Imperative commands, as λύετε τὸν δέσμιον, loosen (ye) the prisoner!

^{*} Compare "Handbook of the English Tongue," § 277.

- 3. The Subjunctive asserts conditionally, as ὅταν λύσητε τὸν δέσμιον, when you have loosened the prisoner. A subjunctive clause, it is evident, requires another to complete its meaning; hence the name of the mood, the "subjoined" mood. It is often also called the "Conjunctive."
- 4. A division of the Subjunctive is called the Optative Mood, because sometimes employed to express a wish, as in the frequent phrase, μη γένοιτο (rendered E. V. "God forbid") may it not be! It is really the subjunctive of the historical tenses. Thus, in the phrase, He asks if it be so, the verb be, subjoined to the principal tense "asks" (present), would, in Greek, be subjunctive. He asked if it were so, would require were to be in the optative after the historical tense "asked" (aorist). For further detail, the Syntax must be consulted.
- 5. For the Interrogative, either the Indicative or the Subjunctive may be employed, according to the nature of the question. (See SYNTAX.)
- 6. The Infinitive expresses the action or state denoted by the verb, as in itself an object of thought, as λίειν τὸν δέσμιον, to loosen the prisoner, i.e., "the act of loosening him." The Infinitive, it is plain, partakes of the nature of a substantive, and is often called the verbal noun; being, moreover, employed as an uninflected singular neuter, with the article in all its cases. (See Syntax.)
- 7. To the Moods must be added the Participles, which are verbal adjectives, and agree with substantives expressed or understood, as δ δέσμιος λυθείς, the prisoner, being loosened; δ λελουμένος, he who has been washed.

As the Infinitive "partakes" the nature of the substantive, and the Participle that of the adjective, they are sometimes both called participials. It is, however, more common to distinguish them by the phrase "the infinitive verb," the remaining moods being known as "the finite verb."

Both the Infinitive and the Participles are used in different tenses, for which see the paradigm of the Verb.

65. The Tenses.

a. Time is present, past, and future. In each, an action may be predicated, as indefinite (i.e., having regard to the act itself rather than to the time), imperfect (i.e., going on), or perfect (i.e., finished). Hence nine possible tenses, of which the Greek language has seven, as follows:—

	Indefinite state.	Imperfect state.	Perfect state.
	(I write) Aorist (I wrote)	ing)	Perfect (I have written) Pluperfect (I had written)
Future time.	Future (I shall write)	0,	Future-perfect* (I shall have written)

b. More detailed exposition of these tenses, the names of which the table gives in italics, will be found in the Syntax, where it will also be explained how the meaning of the deficient tenses, the Present Indefinite and the Future Imperfect, is supplied.

The Aorist (ἀόριστος, indefinite) is properly an indefinite past, but it has other uses, which will also be afterwards explained.

- c. Of the above, the Present, Perfect, Future, and Future Perfect, are called principal tenses; the Imperfect, Aorist, and Pluperfect, historical tenses.
 - d. The tenses are usually arranged as follows:—
 - 1. Present, as λύω, I loosen.
 - 2. Imperfect, as ἔλυον, I was loosening.
 - 3. Future, as $\lambda \acute{v} \sigma \omega$, I shall or will loosen.
 - 4. Aorist, as «λυσα, I loosened.

- 5. Perfect, as λέλυκα, I have loosened.
- 6. Pluperfect, as (ϵ)λελύκειν, I had loosened.
- Future-perfect, found only in the passive or middle, λελύσομαι, I shall have been loosened.

66. Numbers and Persons.

There are in the Greek verb three persons, corresponding with those in other languages, and three numbers, the singular, dual, and plural, of which the dual is disused in the New Testament. (See § 9.) Only the singular and plural, therefore, are given.

67. Conjugations.

There are two principal forms of conjugation. In the most ancient, the first person singular, present indicative active of the verb has the termination μ_t ; in the later, the termination ω . The latter being the easier, the more symmetrical, and embracing the far larger number of verbs, is generally given first, and is called the First Conjugation. The other is termed the Second Conjugation, or, more generally, the verb in - μ_t .

REMARK.

The first person singular, present indicative active, is the form of the verb given in almost all Vocabularies and Lexicons, and is generally explained by the English infinitive. Thus, $\lambda \dot{\nu}\omega$, I loosen; more properly, I am loosening.

68. THE VERBAL STEM.

The chief thing necessary to be known in a verb is the stem, which is easily found by abstracting from any given verbal form the adjuncts of mood and tense. Thus, a glance over the forms of the verb "to loosen" in the preceding section will at once disclose its stem, λv .

Additions to the stem are made either at its beginning or its end. An addition at the beginning is termed augment or redupli-cation; an addition at the end, the inflexional termination. The former belongs alike to the two conjugations; in the latter, the conjugations vary.

69. Augment and Reduplication.

- a. The augment characterises the historical tenses (§ 65, c) in the indicative mood.
- (1) Verbs beginning with a consonant prefix the letter ξ , called the syllabic augment. Thus, from λύω, imperfect λνον, aorist λλυσα.
- (2) Verbs beginning with a short vowel augment by lengthening it: ἄ- into η-, ε- into η- (in a few cases into ει-), ἴ- into ῖ-, ε- into ῦ-, and ο- into ω-. This is termed the temporal augment. Verbs beginning with the ("changeable") diphthongs αι, αυ, οι, are augmented by changing the former vowel. Thus, αι- becomes η-, αυ- is changed to ηυ-, and οι- becomes φ-. Sometimes, also, ευ- is augmented into ηυ-. The other diphthongs and the long vowels are ("unchangeable," i.e.) incapable of augment.
- b. The reduplication, i.e., the repetition of the initial consonant of the stem with ε, belongs to those tenses which mark a completed action (the perfect, pluperfect, and future-perfect), and is continued through all the moods. It takes place, in general, only when a verb begins with a single consonant or a mute and a liquid. Thus λέ-λυκα, perf. from λύω; βε-βούλευκα, from βουλεύω; γέ-γραφα, from

In verbs beginning with a vowel, only the Temporal Augment is employed in these tenses, but it is continued through all the moods. To distinguish this augment from that of the historical tenses, it is sometimes called the improper reduplication.

c. Verbs compounded with prepositions almost invariably take the augment or reduplication after the preposition and at the beginning of the proper verbal stem. Thus, from ἐκ-λύω, to set free, comes the Aorist ἐξέλυσα (ἐκ changed into ἐξ by § 3, ħ, 1), and from ἀπο-λύω, to dismiss, the Aorist is ἀπέλυσα, the o disappearing by elision before the augment vowel (§ 3, h, 2). The prepositions $\pi\epsilon\rho\dot{\iota}$ and $\pi\rho\dot{\iota}$, however, do not elide their vowels; and a few other exceptions will be noted in their place.

70. Inflexional Terminations.

a. As a verb is distinguished by voice, mood, tense, number, and person, five different elements will evidently concur in fixing the termination in any given case. Thus, if the phrase, We were being loosened, is to be translated into Greek, it will be necessary to fix "the personal ending" of the first person plural passive, the "tense-characteristic" of the imperfect, and the "modal vowel" of the indicative.

b. The Personal endings are no doubt the fragments of ancient personal pronouns, affixed to the verb;* but the original forms are in a great measure disused or lost. The attentive student will observe the recurrence of -s in the second person singular, and of -μεν, -τε, in the first and second persons plural, throughout the active. It will be seen, also, that in the active principal tenses the third person plural ends in -σι (-σιν before an initial vowel in the next word), and in the historical tenses in -ν. In the passive and middle, the normal forms are, for the principal tenses—Sing., -μαι, -σαι, -ται; Plur., -μεθα, -σθε, -νται; historical tenses—Sing., -μην, -σο, -το; Plur., -μεθα, σθε, -ντο. The Summaries of Terminations which follow will suggest other points of comparison.

71. Tense-characteristics.

The Tense-characteristics most important to be noticed are the following:—

a. The Future and (First) Aorist Active have -σ-. So from the verbal stem πιστευ- we have the Future stem πιστευσ-. When the verbal stem ends with a short vowel, it is generally lengthened in the Future: thus, from λυ- is formed λῦσ-; from τιμά-, τιμησ-(see § 3, e); and from δηλο-, δηλωσ-.

^{*} See Müller's "Lectures on the Science of Language," 1st ser., especially p. 272, seq.

- b. The Perfect and Pluperfect Active take -κ-. Thus, πιστευ(with the reduplication, § 69, b), makes πεπιστευκ-. Here also a final stem-vowel is usually lengthened; as from τιμά-, τετιμηκ-, and from δηλο-, δεδηλωκ-. But λυ- makes λελύκ-.
- c. The Future and (First) Aorist Passive take -θ-, lengthening the vowel where lengthened in the Perfect Active. Thus, from the verbal stems already given, πιστευθ-, λύθ-, τιμηθ-, δηλωθ-.
- d. In the Perfect and Pluperfect Middle and Passive, the normal forms (see $\S 70$, b) are affixed to the verbal stem without any connecting letter.

The successive paradigms will show how the tense-characteristics are modified by the consonants of the verbal stem, 72. Modal Vowels.

The modal vowels will be sufficiently traced in the Summary of Terminations. It will be especially noted how the Subjunctive throughout lengthens the vowels of the Indicative, and how the Optative abounds in diphthongal forms. In the third person plural, it will also be seen that the Subjunctive takes the termination of the principal tenses, the Optative of the historical.

The Imperfect and Pluperfect tenses occur only in the Indicative Mood;* the Future, also, is absent from the Imperative and Subjunctive.

73. TERMINATIONS OF THE SEVERAL MOODS AND TENSES.

The following terminations are, in the simplest form of verbs in $-\omega$, affixed directly to the verbal stem, and will all be found exemplified in the conjugation of $\pi\iota\sigma\tau\epsilon\dot{\nu}\omega$. The preliminary study and comparison of the terminations will much facilitate the acquisition of the Verb.

^{*} It will be seen under SYNTAX that the Optative Mood really is the historical Subjunctive. Hence the Present and Perfect Optative are the Imperfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive. The ordinary names have, however, been retained to prevent unnecessary difficulty to the learner.

It will be observed that the Middle and Passive Voices are alike in four tenses:—Present, Imperfect, Perfect, and Pluperfect.

Accentuation.—The accent of Verbs is generally thrown as far back as possible. Observe, however, some exceptions in the following scheme.

Indicative Mood. Present Tense.

Active-

Sing. $-\omega$, $-\epsilon\iota$; Plur. $-o\mu\epsilon\nu$, $-\epsilon\tau\epsilon$, $-o\upsilon\sigma\iota(\nu)$.

Middle and Passive—

Sing. -ομαι, -η*, -εται; Plur. -ομεθα, -εσθε, -ονται.

Imperfect, with Augment.

Active-

Sing. -ov, -es, -e(ν); Plur. -o μ e ν , -ete, -o ν .

Middle and Passive—

Sing. -όμην, -ου†, -ετο; Plur. -όμεθα, -εσθε, -οντο.

Future (compare Present).

Active-

Sing. $-\sigma\omega$, $-\sigma\varepsilon\iota$; Plur. $-\sigma\circ\mu\varepsilon\nu$, $-\sigma\varepsilon\tau\varepsilon$, $-\sigma\circ\nu\sigma\iota(\nu)$.

Middle—

Sing. -σομαι, -ση, -σεται; Plur. -σόμεθα, -σεσθε, -σονται.

(First;) Aorist, with Augment.

Active-

Sing. - $\sigma \alpha$, - $\sigma \alpha$ s, - $\sigma \epsilon(\nu)$; Plur. - $\sigma \alpha \mu \epsilon \nu$, - $\sigma \alpha \tau \epsilon$, - $\sigma \alpha \nu$.

Middle-

Sing. -σάμην, -σως, -σατο; Plur. -σάμεθα, -σασθε, -σαντο.

Passive—

Sing. $-\theta\eta\nu$, $-\theta\eta$ s, $-\theta\eta$; Plur. $-\theta\eta\mu\epsilon\nu$, $-\theta\eta\tau\epsilon$, $-\theta\eta\sigma\alpha\nu$.

^{*} Contraction of -εσαι. The contraction into -ει is very unusual.

[†] Contraction of -εσο.

[‡] The consideration of the Second Aorist (and the Second Tenses generally) is deferred to §§ 85-90.

[§] Contraction of - oaoo.

Perfect, with Reduplication.

Active-

Sing. - $\kappa \alpha$, - $\kappa \alpha$ s, - $\kappa \epsilon(\nu)$; Plur. - $\kappa \alpha \mu \epsilon \nu$, - $\kappa \alpha \tau \epsilon$, - $\kappa \bar{\alpha} \sigma \iota(\nu)$.

Middle and Passive—

Sing. -μαι, -σαι, -ται; Plur. -μεθα, -σθε, -νται.

Pluperfect, with Reduplication and Augment.*

Active-

Sing. -kein, -keis, -kei; Plur. -keihen, -keite, -ke(1) σ an.

Middle and Passive—

Sing. -μην, -σο, -το; Plur. -μεθα, -σθε, -ντο.

Imperative Mood.

Present.

Active-

Sing. (2nd pers.) -ε, (3rd pers.) -έτω; Plur. -ετε, -έτωσαν.†

Middle and Passive—

Sing. (2nd pers.) -ovt, (3rd pers.) -έσθω; Plur. -εσθε, -έσθωσαν.

First Aorist, without Augment.

Active-

Sing. -σον, -σάτω; Plur. -σατε, -σάτωσαν.

Middle-

Sing. -σαι, -σάσθω; Plur. -σασθε, -σάσθωσαν.

Passive—

Sing. -θητι, -θήτω; Plur. -θητε, -θήτωσαν.

Perfect, with Reduplication (compare Present).

Active-

Sing. -κε, -κέτω; Plur. -κετε, -κέτωσαν.

Middle and Passive—

Sing. - σ 0, - $\sigma\theta\omega$; Plur. - $\sigma\theta\epsilon$, - $\sigma\theta\omega\sigma\alpha\nu$.

^{*} Augment generally omitted in the New Testament.

[†] There is an alternative form in -ντων, Pass. -σθων, seldom used.

[†] Contracted from -εσο.

Subjunctive Mood.

Present.

Active-

Sing. $-\omega$, $-\eta$ s, $-\eta$; Plur. $-\omega\mu\epsilon\nu$, $-\eta\tau\epsilon$, $-\omega\sigma\iota(\nu)$.

Middle and Passive—

Sing. -ωμαι, -η, -ηται; Plur. -ώμεθα, -ησθε, -ωνται.

First Acrist, without Augment (compare Present).

Active—

Sing. $-\sigma\omega$, $-\sigma\eta$ s, $-\sigma\eta$; Plur. $-\sigma\omega\mu\epsilon\nu$, $-\sigma\eta\tau\epsilon$, $-\sigma\omega\sigma\iota(\nu)$.

Middle—

Sing. -σωμαι, -ση, -σηται; Plur. -σώμεθα, -σησθε, -σωνται.

Passive-

Sing. $-\theta\hat{\omega}$, $-\theta\hat{\eta}$ s, $-\theta\hat{\eta}$; Plur. $-\theta\hat{\omega}\mu\epsilon\nu$, $-\theta\hat{\eta}\tau\epsilon$, $-\theta\hat{\omega}\sigma\iota(\nu)$.

Perfect, with Reduplication (compare Present).

Active-

Sing. - $\kappa \omega$, - $\kappa \eta s$, - $\kappa \eta s$; Plur. - $\kappa \omega \mu \epsilon \nu$, - $\kappa \eta \tau \epsilon$, - $\kappa \omega \sigma \iota(\nu)$.

Middle and Passive—Made by Perfect Participle with Auxiliary Verb.

Optative Mood.

Present.

Active-

Sing. -0141, -015, -01; Plur. -01464, -0176, -0164.

Middle and Passive-

Sing. -οίμην, -οιο, -οιτο; Plur. -οίμεθα, -οισθε, -οιντο.

Future (compare Present).

Active-

Sing. -σοιμι, -σοις, -σοι; Plur. -σοιμεν, -σοιτε, -σοιεν.

Middle-

Sing. -σοίμην, -σοιο, -σοιτο; Plur. -σοίμεθα, -σοισθε, -σοιντο.

Passive—

Sing. -θησοίμην, -θήσοιο, -θήσοιτο; Plur. -θησοίμεθα -θήσοισθε, -θήσοιντο.

First Aorist, without Augment.

Active-

Sing. - oaipi, - oais, - oai; Plur. - oaipev, - oaite, - oaiev.*

Middle-

Sing. -σαίμην, -σαιο, -σαιτο; Plur. -σαίμεθα, -σαισθε, -σαιντο.

Passive-

Sing. -θείην, -θείης, -θείη; Plur. -θείημεν, -θείητε, -θείησαν.

Perfect, with Reduplication (compare Present).

Active-

Sing. -коіµі, -коіs, -коі ; Plur. -коіµєν, -коіте, -коієч.

Middle and Passive—Perfect Participle with Auxiliary Verb.

Infinitive Mood.

Present.

Active, - er; Middle and Passive, - co a.

Future.

Active, -σειν; Middle, -σεσθαι; Passive, -θήσεσθαι.

First Aorist, without Augment.

Active, -oai; Middle, -oaodai; Passive, -Oquai.

Perfect, with Reduplication.

Active, -κέναι; Middle and Passive, -σθαι.

Participles.

Present.

Active, -ων (stem, -οντ-, see § 37); f. -ουσα; n. -ον. Middle and Passive, -όμενος, -ομένη, -όμενον (see § 34).

Future.

Active, -σων, -σουσα, -σον ; Miclelle, -σόμενος, -σομένη, -σόμενον ; Passive, -θησόμενος, -θησομένη, θησόμενον.

First Aorist, without Augment.

Active, -σas (stem, -σαντ-, see § 37), -σασα, -σαν; Middle, -σάμενος, -σαμένη, -σάμενον; Passive, -θείς (stem, -θεντ-, see § 37), -θεῖσα, -θέν.

The termination -ειαν (Æolic), for third person plural, is found twice in the New Testament (Luke vi. 11; Acts xvii. 27).

Perfect, with Reduplication.

Active, κώς (stem, -For-, see § 38), -κυΐα, -κός; Middle and Passive, -μένος, -μένος, -μένον.

The Verbal Adjectives.

Many verbs have, in addition to their passive participles, a kind of participial adjective, to signify capability or duty. The former is generally expressed by the termination -τός, -τή, -τόν, appended to the verbal stem; the latter by the termination -τόος, -τία, -τόον. Thus, from λυ- may be formed λυτός, capable of being loosened; λυτός, that ought to be loosened.

74. PARADIGM OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION, OR OF "THE VERB IN -ω."

The verb $\pi\iota\sigma\tau\epsilon\iota\acute{\nu}\omega$ has been chosen as a model, because it is a characteristic word of the New Testament, and because all its forms contain the unalteved stem. The verb $\beta \sigma \nu \lambda \epsilon \iota\acute{\nu}\omega$, to advise, employed by Kühner and others, only occurs in the New Testament in the middle voice; and $\lambda \iota\acute{\nu}\omega$, to loosen, chosen by Professor Curtius and Principal Greenwood, though easy to conjugate, has the disadvantage of having the stem long in some forms, and short in others, although unaltered to the eye.

Stem, $\pi \iota \sigma \tau \in v^-$, to believe or trust; Mid., to trust one's self or to confide; Pass., to be entrusted.

75. The learner who has thoroughly mastered the different forms of $\pi\iota\sigma\tau\epsilon\acute{\nu}\omega$ now given, is ready to encounter with comparative ease the manifold variations of verbs in ω . First, however, let the following Exercises be written:—

Exercise 9.-On Pure Uncontracted Verbs.

- 1. Write out the whole of the regular verb βουλεύω: active, to advise; middle, to deliberate, to advise oneself; passive, to be advised.
- [Vocabulary of Verbs selected from the "Sermon on the Mount."—ἀκούω, to hear; δουλεύω, to serve; λύω, to loosen (compound derivatives, ἀπολύω, to put away; καταλύω, to abrogate); νηστεύω, to fast; προφητεύω, to prophesy; φονεύω, to murder.]

Analyse and translate the following forms: —δουλεύειν, καταλύσαι, λύση, ἡκούσατε, φονεύσεις, φονεύση, ἀπολύση, ἀπολελυμένην, νηστεύητε, νηστεύοντες, προεφητεύσαμεν.

Also the following: — κατελύθη, ἀπολέλυται, νήστευσον, πεφονεύκασιν, λελυκέναι, καταλελυκώς, νηστεύσω, προφήτευσον, προφητεύουσαι, προφητεύητε, δεδουλεύκαμεν, δουλεύοντες, ἐδούλευσεν, δουλευέτωσαν, ἀπολυθέντες, ἀπολελύσθαι, ἀπελύοντο.

76. The verbs in the foregoing Exercise, as well as the conjugated verb $\pi\iota\sigma\tau\epsilon\dot{\nu}\omega$, are all distinguished by a rowel stem-ending, which, in the great majority of cases, is the letter ν in a diphthongal or simple form. They are, therefore, called pure verbs; and inasmuch as the stem appears throughout without contraction or alteration, they are further termed uncontracted.

To the class of pure uncontracted verbs belong most with the stem-ending v or v, but no others. It is, therefore, necessary to see how the verbal terminations are to be adapted to other kinds of stem; and to do this thoroughly in the case of all regular verbs, little else is needed than the remembrance and application of the elementary laws of euphony, as stated in § 4.

It must be noted by the learner that, when the terminations of the voices, moods, and tenses are once known, and a very few simple general rules of conjugation impressed on the memory, the acquisition of all the multifarious "classes" and "species" of verbs in ω is a matter of euphony, and nothing else.

77. Let us take the possible verbal stem-endings according to the alphabet. It will appear that the stem may terminate (1) in a vowel or (2) in a consonant; and that the consonant may be (1) a mute, (2) a liquid, or (3) a double letter. The last may be rejected from the account, as no verbal stems, in fact, do so terminate. We have, then, three main divisions: the pure verbs, the mute, and the liquid.

78. Pure Verbs.—Special Rules.

- a. A verbal stem may end in α, ε, ι, ο, or υ; i.e., in any short vowel. Those in ι and υ, the uncontracted, have been considered already.
- b. From the rules and tables given under § 3, f, and the partial illustrations of them seen in the nouns and adjectives, it has been seen that when α, ε, or ο, precedes a vowel, long or short, it is generally contracted with it into one syllable. Hence, verbal stems ending in these vowels form a second class of pure verbs—viz., the contracted.
- c. As, however, it appears from the paradigm that the last letter of the stem precedes a vowel only in the Present and Imperfect tenses, it follows that the contraction will be confined to these parts of the verb, and that there will be no deviation in other parts from the general form of $\pi\iota\sigma\tau\epsilon\acute{\nu}\omega$.

d. For the Table of Contractions, see § 3, f. Note especially that with -ou the stem-vowel α - makes ω -, while ϵ - and σ - disappear before the diphthong. In the Infinitive, also, the combination -oeiv becomes -ouv.

- 79. The following paradigms will now present no difficulty:—
 - 1. A-stem, τιμάω, to honour.
 - 2. E-stem, $\phi \iota \lambda \epsilon \omega$, to love.
 - 3. O-stem, δηλόω, to manifest.

Exercise 10.—On pure Contracted Verbs.

[Vocabulary of Verbs, selected from the "Sermon on the Mount."
—ἀγαπάω, to love; αἰτέω, to ask; διψάω, to thirst; θεάομαι, to behold (dep.*); θεμελιόω, to found; ζητέω, to seek; μετρέω, to measure; μισέω, to hate; οἰκοδομέω, to build; όμοιόω, to liken; πεινάω, to hunger; ποιέω, to do, make.]

Also the following: -θεάσασθαι, τεθέαται, ἢγάπησεν, ἀγαπᾳ, ἢγαπημένην, ἀγαπᾶν, αἰτεῖσθε, ἢτοῦντο, ἢτήσαντο, αἰτῶμεν, ἐζήτουν, ζητῶν, ζητείτω, ἐζητεῖτο, ὁμοιώθημεν, ἐπείνασα (see § 96, α), πεινᾳ, ἐδίψησα, διψᾳ.

^{*} Deponent, i.e., middle form with active meaning: an active form not being used. See § 100.

81. MUTE VERBS.—SPECIAL RULES.

The large class of mute verbs comes next in order—i.e., verbs whose stem-ending (or "characteristic") is either a labial, π , β , ϕ ; a guttural, κ , γ , χ ; or a dental, τ , δ , θ . It will be convenient to retain the names of (§ 4, b) p-sounds (labials), k-sounds (gutturals), and t-sounds (dentals). The cross-division, into sharp, flat, and aspirate, must also be remembered.

- 82. Whenever, in the conjugation of a verb, the stem is followed immediately by a vowel, the mute stem-ending is unaffected. In the Present and Imperfect tenses, therefore, the mute verb precisely resembles $\pi\iota\sigma\tau\epsilon\dot{\nu}\omega$.
- 83. a. Many tense forms, however, begin with a consonant: as those of the Future and First Aorist with -σ-, that of the Perfect with -κ-, that of the First Aorist passive with -θ-; while in the different parts of the Perfect middle and passive, there occur four several consonants immediately following the stem, the terminations being -μαι, -σαι, -ται, -μεθα, -σθε, -νται. So with the Pluperfect.
- b. The rules, therefore, in $\S 4$, d, will be applied to modify the mute stem-endings.
- (1) Thus, with -σ (Fut. act., First Aorist act. and mid., Perf. mid. and pass., second person sing., and imper.)—

$$\pi$$
-, β -, ϕ -, become ψ .
 κ -, γ -, χ -, γ -, ξ - τ -, δ -, θ -, disappear.

(2) Before -θ (pass. Fut. and First Aor.) π- and β- become φ.

 κ - and γ - ,, χ . τ -, δ -, θ -, ,, σ .

(3) Before -τ (mid. and pass., Perf. ind., third person sing.)—

$$\pi$$
-, β -, ϕ -, become π
 κ -, γ -, χ -, γ -, κ .
 τ -, δ -, θ -, γ -, σ -.

(4) Before -µ (mid. and pass., Perf., first person sing. and plur., and Perf. participle—π -, β -, ϕ -, become μ . κ -, γ -, χ -, γ -, γ -, γ -, δ -, θ -, γ -, σ -.

- (5) Terminations commencing with $-\sigma\theta$ drop the σ after a consonant; the remaining θ affecting the mute according to rule. Thus, from $\tau\rho\bar{\iota}\beta$, $\tau\dot{\epsilon}$ - $\tau\rho\iota\dot{\beta}$ - $\sigma\theta\dot{\epsilon}$ (mid. and pass., Perf. ind., second person plur.) becomes first $\tau\dot{\epsilon}$ - $\tau\rho\iota\dot{\beta}$ - $\theta\dot{\epsilon}$, then $\tau\dot{\epsilon}$ $\tau\rho\iota\dot{\phi}\theta\dot{\epsilon}$.
- (6) The combination -ντ in the terminations of the middle and passive Perfect (-νται) and Pluperfect (-ντο) is impracticable after a consonant. Hence the form is dropped altogether, and the perfect Participle, with the substantive verb, put in its stead, as in the Perf., subj., and opt. Thus τρῖβ- would regularly give the combination (3rd pers. plur., Perf., mid. and pas.) τέ-τριβ-νται, which cannot be dealt with by any of the foregoing laws.* The compound form τετριμμένοι εἰσι(ν) is therefore employed.
- (7) There only remains the $-\kappa$ of the Perfect active. Before this letter the dentals τ -, δ -, θ -, are dropped. Thus, $\pi\epsilon$ $\pi\epsilon\iota\theta$ κa becomes $\pi\epsilon$ - $\pi\epsilon\iota\kappa a$. But when the stem-ending is a labial or a guttural, the κ is treated as an aspirate or hard breathing, the mute being changed into its corresponding aspirate, and κ disappearing. So $"a\gamma\omega$ gives $"a\gamma\omega$ for $"a\gamma$ - $"a\omega$ and $"a\omega$ - $"a\omega$ -"

84. PARADIGMS OF THE MUTE VERBS.

- a. To facilitate comparison, all the tenses are given. It has not, however, been thought necessary to go through all the numbers and persons, excepting in the Perf., mid. and pass.
- b. It will be seen that the sharp labial, the flat guttural, and the aspirate dental have been selected. No difficulty will be found in applying the laws of inflection to mutes of the kindred classes.

^{*} In the older Greek writers, the ν is sometimes replaced by the aspirate $\dot{\alpha}$. Thus the word would become $\tau \epsilon \tau \rho i \phi \alpha \tau \alpha \iota$; but this usage is not confined to mute verbs or to the Perfect tense.

c. The verb $\tilde{a}\gamma\omega$, beginning with a vowel, takes the temporal augment instead of the reduplication in the perfect tenses. See § 69, b.

Note.—The Future Perfect, "Paulo-post Future" (see § 65, d, 7), is once found in the New Testament: κεκράξονται (Luke xix. 40), from κράζω (stem, κραγ-, § 85, α, 2, ii.) But as this is the only instance, the tense has not been given in the paradigm.

- 85. Before treating of the remaining class of consonant-verbs, i.e., those with a liquid stem-ending, it is necessary to notice a most important modification to which very many mute verbs, as well as those of other classes, are subjected.
- α. In the examples given, the stem appears full and unaltered in the Present tense. $T\rho i\beta\omega$ is from the stem $\tau\rho\iota\beta$ -, $\check{a}\gamma\omega$ from $\check{a}\gamma$ -, and $\pi\epsilon i\theta\omega$ from $\pi\epsilon\iota\theta$ -. There are, however, many verbs in which the stem is modified in the formation of the Present. It is therefore requisite to note two main points: first, the stem of the Verb, from which all the tenses are derived; and secondly, the stem of the Present, as found in Lexicons and Vocabularies.
- (1) Labial stems are modified by the introduction of -τ- before the termination. Thus;—stem τυπ-, strike, Present τύπτω; stem βλαβ-, hurt, Present βλάπτω (for βλάβ-τ-ω, § 4, d, 3); stem ρίφ-, throw, Present ρίπτω (for ρίφ-τ-ω, § 4, d, 2).
- (2) Guttural stems are modified by changing the stem-ending
 (i) into -σσ-, or its equivalent -ττ-. Thus from the stem ταγ-, set in order, we have Present τάσσω or τάττω; (ii) into -ζ-, e.g., stem κραγ-, cry out, Present κράζω.
- (3) Dental stems are modified by changing the stem-ending into -ζ-: thus, from the stem φραδ-, tell, comes the Present φραζω.

It will be seen that, as the Present termination $-\omega$ may be derived either from a guttural or a dental stem, a knowledge of the verb will be required before deciding to which of the two to refer it.*

b. The tenses of these "strengthened" verbs, as they are called, are formed, from the verbal stem, according to the rules before given. Thus—

^{*} The original modification of guttural and dental stems was probably by the insertion of a short vowel (ι or ϵ) after the characteristic. So $\tau \alpha \gamma$, $\tau \alpha \gamma \epsilon \omega$; $\phi \rho \alpha \delta$, $\phi \rho \alpha \delta \epsilon \omega$, $\phi \rho \alpha \delta \epsilon \omega$. The softening occasioned by the vowel may be compared with the effect of i upon t in the termination -tion.

τύπτω,	to strike	τυπ-	fut.	τύψω	perf.	τέτυφα
βλάπτω,	to hurt	βλαβ-	22	βλάψω	22	βέβλαφη
ρίπτω,	to throw	ှ် းတုံ-	22	ρίψω	,,	ἔ ρριφα
τάσσω,	to arrange	ταγ-	"	τάξω	22	τέταχα
κράζω,	to cry	κραγ-	. ,,,	κράξω	,,	κέκραχα
φραζω,	$to \ tell$	φραδ-	,,	φράσω	22	πέφρακα

- c. Every class of mute verbs (as well as others, on which see hereafter) may receive modification by the insertion of a vowel in a short stem-syllable, so as to form a diphthong. Thus $\phi \nu \gamma$, flee, gives $\phi \epsilon i \gamma \omega$, and $\lambda \iota \pi$ -, leave, $\lambda \epsilon i \pi \omega$. Only, in this case, the Future and Perfect are formed from the stem of the Present, as $\lambda \epsilon i \pi \omega$, $\lambda \epsilon i \psi \omega$, $\lambda \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \iota \phi a$.
- 86. The most important point connected with the modification of the stem is the introduction, into the verbs so characterized, of a set of "secondary" tenses, in which the unmodified stem appears. These tenses, except in special cases, are of precisely similar meaning to the corresponding "primary" tenses. For example, the difference between the First and the Second Aorist is a difference of form only. The same remark can hardly be applied so unreservedly to the First and Second Perfect; but the instances of difference belong rather to the Lexicon than to the Grammar, and will be explained in the Vocabulary.

A few verbs unmodified, as $\xi\chi\omega$, have a Second Aorist, as will be afterwards noted. Occasionally, too, the Second Aorist differs in meaning from the First. The above rule, however, is general.

87. SECOND AORIST.

The Second Aorist Active in the Indicative resembles the Imperfect, in the other moods the Present, except that the Imperfect is taken from the modified, the Second Aorist from the original stem.

Thus from φεύγω (φυγ-), to flee—

Imperfect, ἔφευγον, ἔφευγες, ἔφευγε(ν), ἐφεύγομεν, κ.τ.λ. Sec. Aorist, ἔφυγον, ἔφυγες, ἔφυγε(ν), ἐφύγομεν, κ.τ.λ.

The augment and the terminations of the two tenses will be seen to be exactly alike.

In the moods after the Indicative, the Second Aorist drops the augment and follows the Present in termination, but accentuates the final syllable of the Infinitive (perispomenon) and Participle (oxytone).

With these explanations, the Second Aorist Active paradigm will present no difficulty.

	τύπτω, to strike.	$\lambda \epsilon l \pi \omega$, to leave.
	Stem $\tau v\pi$ -	$\lambda \iota \pi$ -
Indicative,	ἔτυ πον	ἔλιπον
Imperative,	τύπε	λίπε
Subjunctive,	$ au \acute{v}\pi \omega$	λίπω
Optative,	τύποιμι	λίποιμι
Infinitive,	$ au v \pi \epsilon \hat{\iota} v$	$\lambda \iota \pi \epsilon \hat{\iota} \nu$
Participle,	τυπών, οῦσα, ό	ν λιπών

b. The Second Aorist Middle follows exactly the same analogy. The Imperative, however, is perispomenon, the Infinitive paroxytone.

Indicative,	ἐ τυπόμην	$\epsilon \lambda \iota \pi \delta \mu \eta \nu$
Imperative,	$ au v \pi o \widehat{v}$	$\lambda \iota \pi o \widehat{v}$
Subjunctive,	τύπωμαι	λίπωμαι
Optative,	τυποίμην	λιποίμην
Infinitive,	τυπέσθαι	λιπέσθαι
Participle,	τυπόμενος	λιπόμενος

c. Second Aorist Passive.—Here the mood and tense-endings are like those of the passive First Aorist, the difference being that the unmodified root is used instead of the aspirated form with -0-. First Aorist, $\epsilon \tau \iota \psi \theta \eta \nu$; Second Aorist, $\epsilon \tau \iota \iota \tau \iota \nu \tau \nu$. In the Imperative second person, -θι is found instead of -τι. One paradigm of this tense will suffice:—

Indicative, $\epsilon \tau \upsilon \pi \eta \upsilon$ Opta Imperative, $\tau \upsilon \pi \eta \theta \iota$, $\tau \upsilon \pi \dot{\eta} \tau \omega$ Infin Subjunctive, $\tau \upsilon \pi \hat{\omega}$ Part

Optative, τυπείην Infinitive, τυπήναι Part. τυπείς, τυπείσα, τυπέν

88. SECOND FUTURE.

a. In the Passive voice, there is a Second Future connected with the Second Aorist, exactly as the First Future is connected with the First Aorist. Thus from τύπτω we have, First Aor. pass., ἐτύφθην; First. Fut., τυφθήσομαι; Second Aor., ἐτύπην; Second Fut., τυπήσομαι. The paradigm is as follows:—

89. SECOND PERFECT.

b. The Second Perfect belongs to the Active voice only, and is distinguished from the ordinary Perfect of mute verbs by having the unmodified stem without the aspirate. Thus: τύπτω (τυπ-). First Perf., τέτυφα; Second Perf., τέτυπα. The tense is of rare occurrence, and its special significance will have to be explained in individual cases. It occurs in some verbs that do not modify their stem. The Second Pluperfect accompanies it, where found. One paradigm here also will be sufficient. Second Perfect of ποάσσω (πραγ-), to do:—

Indicative, $\pi \epsilon \pi \rho \alpha \gamma \alpha$ Optative, $\pi \epsilon \pi \rho \alpha \gamma \omega \iota \nu$, Plup. $(\epsilon) \pi \epsilon \pi \rho \alpha \gamma \epsilon \iota \nu$ Imperative, $\pi \epsilon \pi \rho \alpha \gamma \epsilon \iota \nu$ Infinitive, $\pi \epsilon \pi \rho \alpha \gamma \epsilon \iota \nu \omega$ Participle, $\pi \epsilon \pi \rho \alpha \gamma \epsilon \iota \nu \omega$ - $\epsilon \pi \rho \alpha \gamma \epsilon \iota \nu \omega$

90. GENERAL RULES FOR THE SECOND TENSES.

- (1) These do not occur in the pure verbs, or in verbs having a dental, τ, δ, θ (ζ), for their characteristic.
- (2) The same verb very seldom takes both First and Second Aorists in the Active or Middle.

- (3) The Passive may have both First and Second Aorist and Future.
- (4) When both First and Second Perfect active are found, the former is often transitive, the latter intransitive. πέπραχα, I have done; πέπραγα, I have fared (compare English, "How do you do?").

Remark.—For the vowel-modifications of the second tenses, see the sections on Tense-formation, §§ 93—99.

Exercise 11.-On Mute Verbs.

[Vocabulary, from the "Sermon on the Mount."—(1) LABIAL STEMS: $\beta\lambda\epsilon\pi\omega$, to see; $\dot{a}\lambda\epsilon\dot{a}\phi\omega$, to anoint; $\partial\lambda\dot{a}\omega$, to straiten; $\kappa\rho\dot{\nu}\pi\tau\omega$, to hide; $\nu\dot{a}\pi\tau\omega$, to wash; $\sigma\tau\rho\dot{a}\phi\omega$, to turn; $\tau\rho\dot{a}\phi\omega$ ($\partial\rho\dot{a}\phi$ -), to nourish.

- (2) GUTTURAL STEMS: ἄγω, to lead; διώκω, to pursue; ἔχω (ἐχ), to have; λέγω, to say; προσεύχομαι, to pray (dep.).
- (3) DENTAL STEMS: ψεύδομαι, to lic (dep.); ὀνειδίζω, to reproach; δοξάζω, to glorify; νομίζω, to suppose; νήθω, to spin; άγιάζω, to hallow.

Analyze and translate the following words: —δεδιωγμένοι, δνειδίσωσιν, διώξουσι, ψευδόμενοι, έδίωξαν, κρυβηναι, δοξάσωσι, νομίσητε, ἔχει, στρέψον, προσεύχεσθε, διωκόντων, ἔχετε, βλέπων, προσεύχη, πρόσευξαι, προσευχύμενοι, άγιασθήτω, ἄλειψαι, νίψαι, βλέπων, κλέπτουσι, νήθει, λέγοντες, στράφεντες (see § 98, d), τεθλιμμένη.

Also the following: ἤλειψε, ἡγιασμένοι, ἁγιάσαι, ἐδίωκον, κεκρυμμένα, κρύψατε, εἶχον, ἔξω, ἔχον, ἐψεύσω, ψεύσασθαι, ἐθρέψαμεν, νίψης, ἔστρεψε, λεγόμενος, λεχθείς, προσηύχετο, προσευξάμενοι, θρέψω.

91. LIQUID VERBS.

Verbs with the stem-endings λ , μ , ν or ρ , present many variations from the foregoing models, which will be noticed in the sections on Tense-formation. It will be sufficient, as introductory to the paradigm, to observe—

a. The stem of these verbs is generally modified in the Present: e. g., stem ἀγγελ-, announce, Present act. ἀγγελλω; φαν-, appear, Pres. φαίνω.

b. The Future active originally ended in -έσω, middle -έσομαι; but the σ being dropped (see a similar case in Nouns, § 30, iv.), two vowels are brought together, and contraction ensues. Thus, ἀγγελ-, Fut. (ἀγγελέ-σ-ω, ἀγγελέ-ω) ἀγγελῶ; middle (ἀγγελ-έ-σ-ομαι, ἀγγελ-έ-ομαι), ἀγγελοῦμαι. The Future, active and middle, of liquid verbs is therefore declined like the Present of contracted pure verbs with stemending ε-.

c. The First Aorist active and middle follows the Future in the omission of the σ , but lengthens the vowel of the preceding syllable. Thus:—

фай-,	fut.	φανῶ,	1st Aor.	ἔφηνα
άγγελ-,	,,	ἀγγελῶ,	22	ήγγειλα
кріv-, judge	, ,,	κρΐνῶ,	,,	ἔκρῖν α
σĭρ, drag,	,,	σὔρῶ,	,,	ἔσῦρα

d. In the Perfect active, as \mathbf{v} - and $\mathbf{\mu}$ - cannot come before - $\mathbf{\kappa}$, various expedients are adopted. $\kappa \rho i \nu \omega$, to judge, $\kappa \lambda i \nu \omega$, to bend, $\pi \lambda i \nu \omega$, to wash, drop the \mathbf{v} ($\kappa \epsilon \kappa \rho \iota \kappa a$, &c.) Other verbs, as $\phi a \iota \nu \omega$, adopt a Second Perfect, lengthening the vowel as in the Aorist ($\pi \epsilon \phi \eta \nu a$). Others, again, form the Perfect as from a pure root in ϵ -, as $\mu \epsilon \nu \omega$, to remain, $\mu \epsilon \mu \epsilon \nu \eta \kappa a$, as if from $\mu \epsilon \nu \epsilon \omega$.

e. In the Perfect passive, ν- is changed into σ- or into μ- before -μαι, as, from φαν-, πέφασμαι instead of πέφαν-μαι, and from ξηραν-, εξήραμμαι instead of εξήραν-μαι. The three verbs which drop ν-before -κα in the Perfect active lose it also in the Perfect and First Aorist passive. Thus, κέκριμαι, ἐκρίθην. Those verbs which assume a root in ε- for the Perfect active, construct the passive Perfect and First Aorist after the same analogy.

Exercise 12.—On Liquid Verbs.

I. [Vocabulary, from the "Sermon on the Mount."—αὐξάνω, to grow, to increase; βάλλω, to throw, cast; θέλω, to will (augment with η, see § 94, ii.); κρίνω, to judge; μωραίνω, to corrupt; σπείρω, to sow; φαίνω, to show (Second Aorist, passive or middle, appear); χαίρω, to rejoice.]

II. Analyze and translate the following forms:—χαίρετε, μωρανθη, βληθηναι (see § 98, c), βληθήση, βάλε, βληθη, θέλοντι, κριθηναι, φανης, σπείρουσιν, αὐξάνει, βαλλόμενον, κριθητε, κριθήσεσθε, βάλητε, θέλητε.

Also the following:—θέλει, ἤθελον, ἠθέλησα, θέλοντες, κρίνει, κρινεί, κρίνατε, ἐμωράνθησαν, ἐμώρανεν, σπείρων, σπαρείς, ἐσπαρμένον, ἐφάνη, φαίνεσθε, ψανεῖται, βάλε, βλήθητι, βάλλειν, βαλεῖν, βάλλω, βαλῶ.

93. Notes on the Tenses.

The foregoing paradigms have fully given the typical forms of the First Conjugation, i.e., of the great majority of verbs, and of most of the tenses in all verbs. Many minute variations must now be noticed, with apparent irregularities, which for the most part can themselves be reduced to rule, or explained by some early usage of the language.

Accentuation.—It may be repeated at the outset from § 73, that verbal forms mostly retract the accent, i.e., throw it back as far as possible. Exceptions are noted below under the different Tenses. When the accent falls on the penultimate, e.g., in dissyllables, a long yowel is circumflexed, in certain forms, as has been already shown.

94. The Present and Imperfect: Active, Middle and Passive.

I. The Present Indicative Active, first person (the form usually given in Lexicons, Vocabularies, and Concordances*) contains the verbal stem, often modified.

The principal forms of modified stem are as follows:-

- 1. Labial stem-endings, strengthened by τ-. (See § 85, α, 1.)
- 2. Short stem-syllables lengthened. (See § 85, c.)
- 3. The euphonic $\sigma\sigma$ -, $\tau\tau$ -, for a guttural characteristic; ξ for a dental, or occasionally for γ -. (See § 85, α , 2, 3.)
 - 4. λλ- for the characteristic λ-. (See note, § 85.)
 - 5. The letter v- affixed to the stem-syllable.

This may take place in different ways.

a. To a pure stem, simply affixed:

Thus from $\phi\theta\alpha$ -, $\phi\theta\acute{a}\nu\omega$, to anticipate. from $\pi\iota$ -, $\pi\iota\nu\omega$, to drink.

b. Two consonant stems follow this model:

from καμ-, κάμνω, to be weary. from δακ-, δάκνω, to bite.

^{*} Bruder's Concordance, 4to (Tauchnitz), gives the Present Infinitive.

- c. One affixes νε-, ἀφικ-, ἀφικνεόμαι, to arrive.
- d. To a pure stem lengthened, two verbs only:

from βα-, βαίνω, to go. from ἐλα-, ἐλαύνω, to drive.

e. To a consonant stem, with connective a:

from ἁμαρτ-, ἁμαρτάνω, to sin. from λαβ-, λαμβάνω, to take.

In the last-mentioned verb, it will be seen that μ is also inserted in the stem-syllable. This is for $-\nu$ - (made μ before a labial, § 4, d, 5). So $\mu \alpha \nu \theta \dot{\alpha} \nu \omega$, to learn, from $\mu \alpha \theta$ -, and other verbs. The stem appears in the Second Aorist, $\ddot{\eta} \mu \alpha \rho \tau \sigma \nu$, $\ddot{\epsilon} \lambda \alpha \beta \rho \nu$, $\ddot{\epsilon} \mu \alpha \theta \rho \nu$.

6. An alternative pure stem in e-.

This appears generally in the Future, Aorist, and Perfect.

Thus έχ- and σχε-, to have, ἔχω, εξω, οr σχήσω, ἔσχηκα; Second Aor., ἔσχον. θελ- and θελε- (also έθελ-), to will, θέλω, θελήσω, ἐθέλησα. μεν- and μενε-, to remain, μένω, μεμένηκα.

Occasionally the ϵ -stem appears in the Pres. Thus $\delta o \kappa \epsilon$ - and $\delta o \kappa \epsilon$ -, to appear, $\delta o \kappa \hat{\omega}$ ($\delta o \kappa \epsilon \hat{\omega}$), $\delta \delta \hat{\xi} \omega$, $\tilde{\epsilon} \delta o \hat{\xi} a$.

Some of the verbs under 5, e, have a similar alternative stem. Thus from άμαρτάνω we find άμαρτήσω, ήμάρτηκα.

7. The inchoative form (so called because some verbs of this class denote the beginning of an action), in σκ- or ισκ-.

Pure stems add -σκ-, generally lengthening a short stem-vowel. So θνα-, transposed from θαν-, to die, θνήσκω, ἔθανον, Perf. τέθνηκα.

Consonant stems add -ισκ-, and often, as in 6, have an alternative stem in ε-. Thus εύρ-, εύρε-, to find, εύρίσκω, εύρησω, εύρηκα, εύρηκα, εύρον. πάσχω, to suffer, (παθ-, with alternative stem, πενθ-) has Second Aor. ἔπαθον, Second Perf. πέπονθα. διδάσκω, to teach, originally from δα-, assumes a mute guttural stem: Fut., διδάξω; First Aor. pass., εδιδάχθην.

Verbs of this class are very various in form, as exhibited in the Lexicon or Vocabulary.

8. Reduplicated stems, the initial consonant repeated with .

Four verbs of this class are of very common occurrence.

σ. γίνομαι (deponent intransitive), to become stem γεν-, by reduplication γιγεν-, shortened into γιγν-, the second γ- being dropped for the sake of cuphony; Impf., ἐγινόμην; Inf., γίνεσθαι; Second Aor., ἐγενόμην, γενέσθαι.

b. γινώσκω, to become acquainted with, to know. Stem γνο-, which becomes γιωσκ-, after the model of class 7; then by reduplication γιγνωσκ-, when γ- is dropped, as in the last instance; Fut., γνώσομαι; Perf., ἔγνωκα; Second Aor., ἔγνων (like second conjugation).

c. μιμνήσκομαι, to remember (deponent), from μνα-, μνήσομαι, ἐμνήσθην, μέμνημαι.

d. πίπτω, to fall. This is not a labial verb strengthened by τ-. Its root is $\pi\epsilon\tau$ -, by reduplication $\pi\iota\pi\epsilon\tau$ -. The weak vowel - ϵ - is then dropped, leaving $\pi\iota\pi\tau$ -. Second Aor., $\epsilon\pi\epsilon\sigma\sigma\nu$, the σ - being softened from τ -; Fut., $\pi\epsilon\sigma\sigma\nu$ are; Perf., $\pi\epsilon\pi\tau\omega\kappa$ a. (Compare § 96, d.)

II. The IMPERFECT TENSE always follows the stem of the Present, the Augment being prefixed.

For the Augment, consult § 69. After the Augment, an initial -ρ- is doubled, as from ρύομαι; Impf., ἐρρυόμην; First Aor., ἐρρύσθην. A few verbs have the Attic double augment η instead of ε. Thus, μέλλω, to be about to do a thing, has ἔμελλον and ἤμελλον interchangeably. 'Οράω, to see, has a double augment also: Impf., ἐώρων; Perf., ἐώρᾶκα. (See further, under the Aorist, § 97.)

95. THE SECOND AORIST, ACTIVE AND MIDDLE.

This is the simplest of the Tenses (see § 87), and in general contains the exact verbal stem. Hence it is mainly found in verbs whose Present-stem is modified. So Imperf., ἔτυπτον; Second Aor., ἔτυπον. In one verb, ἄγω, to lead, where the Present-stem is unmodified, the Second Aorist is distinguished from the Imperfect by a reduplication: Impf., ἥγον; Second Aor., ἥγαγον; Inf., ἀγαγεῖν.

Note.—Some short stem-syllables with ϵ - change this into α in the Second Aorist, as from $\sigma\pi\epsilon l\rho\omega$, to sow $(\sigma\pi\epsilon\rho$ -), $\check{\epsilon}\sigma\pi\alpha\rho\omega$.

The Vowel Aorist.—A few pure stems (like the second conjugation, or "verbs in -µt") affix the tense-endings to the stem, with lengthened vowel, rejecting the usual modal vowel.

Thus, γινώσκω (γνο-, see § 94, 8, b), ἔγνων. δύνω, to set, as the sun (δυ-), ἔδυν. Βαίνω, to go (βα-), ἔβην.

For the conjugation of these forms, see paradigms of verbs in -µu.

Accentuation.—The Second Aorist active infinitive circumflexes the final syllable; $\tau \nu \pi \epsilon \hat{\iota} \nu$; in the participle accents the stem-syllable $- \nu \tau$, with a circumflex on the fem. where possible, $\tau \iota \pi \dot{\omega} \nu$, $\tau \nu \pi \dot{\nu} \hat{\omega} \dot{\omega} \alpha$, $\tau \nu \pi \dot{\omega} \dot{\nu}$. In the middle the imperative is perispomenon, $\tau \nu \pi \dot{\omega} \hat{\nu}$; the inf. paroxytone, $\tau \nu \pi \dot{\omega} \dot{\omega} \dot{\omega}$.

96. THE FUTURE, ACTIVE AND MIDDLE.

For the relation between the Future stem and the simple stem of the verb, consult § 85, b, c.

a. In pure stems, the vowel is lengthened before the Future characteristic -σ-. The stem-endings α- and ε- become η; ο- becomes ω-; ι- and υ- are made long. Thus, τιμάω, τιμήσω; φιλέω, φιλήσω; δηλόω, δηλώσω; λύω, λύσω.

Exceptions: (i.) α - becomes $\bar{\alpha}$ - after a vowel or ρ . Thus:—

ἐάω, to permit, Fut. ἐάσομαι.

láoμαι, to heal, ,, láσομαι.

πειράομαι, to try, ,, πειράσομαι.

So πεινάω, to hunger, ,, πεινάσω.

χαλάω, to loosen, ,, χαλάσω.

But χράομαι, to use, makes χρήσομαι.

(ii.) The following verbs do not lengthen their stem-endings for the Future:—*

α-forms: γελάω, to laugh, Fut. γελάσω.

κλάω, to break, ,, κλάσω.

ε-forms: ἀρκέω, to suffice, ,, ἀρκέσω.

έπαινέω, to praise, ,, έπαινέσω.

καλέω, to call, ,, καλέσω.

τελέω, to finish, ,, τελέσω.

φορέω, to carry, , φορέσω.

b. Verbs in ίζω (stem ιδ-) usually drop the -σ- Future characteristic, replacing it by a contraction similar to that of the liquid verbs. This form is called the Attic Future.

^{*} Some of these verbs are regular in classic Greek.

Thus: $\partial \phi \rho \rho i \zeta \omega$, to separate, makes Fut. $\partial \phi \rho \rho i \omega$. $\partial \phi \rho i \zeta \omega$, to hope, ,, $\partial \phi i \omega$. $\partial \phi i \zeta \omega$, to carry, ,, $\partial \phi i \omega$, mid. $\partial \phi i \omega$. $\partial \phi i \zeta \omega$, to carry, ,, $\partial \phi i \omega$, mid. $\partial \phi i \omega$. $\partial \phi i \omega$, $\partial \phi i \omega$

But the verbs of this class which drop $-\sigma$ - in the Future, resume it in the First Aorist; so far differing from the liquid verbs.

c. Three verbs in $-\epsilon \omega$, originally $-\epsilon F \omega$, show the digamma (see § 29, iii.) in inflection, as v :=

πλέω, to sail, Fut. πλεύσομαι πνέω, to blow, ,, πνεύσω. , ρέω, to flow, ,, ρεύσω.

Another digammated verb, $\chi \epsilon \omega$, to pour, omits the σ altogether, and conforms to the Attic Future, retaining, however, the ϵ before the circumflexed final: $\epsilon \kappa \chi \epsilon \hat{\omega}$, I will pour forth (Acts ii. 17)

In this class the First Aorist characteristic conforms to that of the Future. So $\tilde{\epsilon}\pi\nu\epsilon\nu\sigma a$. From $\tilde{\epsilon}\kappa\chi\epsilon\hat{\omega}$ is formed First Aor. $\tilde{\epsilon}\xi\epsilon\chi\epsilon a$, uncontracted.

To the digammated verbs may be referred καίω, to burn, Fut. καύσω; κλαίω, to weep, Fut. κλαύσω and κλαύσομαι (Luke vi. 25; Rev. xviii. 9). (See d.)

d. Several active verbs of frequent occurrence have a Future in the middle form, still with active meaning; as—ἀκούω, to hear, Fut. ἀκούσομαι, οτ ἀκούσω.

ζάω, to live, ,, ζήσομαι οτ ζήσω.
λαμβάνω, to take, ,, λήψομαι (from λαβ-, ληψ-) θανμάζω, to wonder, ,, θανμάσομαι, once.
φεύγω, to flee, ,, φεύξομαι.
πίνω, to drink, ,, πίομαι, -εσαι, -εται (Luke xvii. 8).

^{*} In classic Greek, σαλπίγξω, from stem σαλπιγγ-.

97. THE FIRST AORIST, ACTIVE AND MIDDLE.

- a. Connexion of the Aorist stem with that of the Future.—1. In the pure and mute verbs, the σ of the Future is retained.
- 2. In the liquid verbs, the Aorist lengthens a short vowel before the stem-ending. Thus, σπερ-, to sow; Fut., σπερῶ; First Aor., ἔσπειρα; and from ἀγγελ-, ἤγγειλα.

Verbs in αίνω, from the stem -ἄν, generally have ἄ in the Future, α in the First Aorist. So λευκαίνω, to whiten; Fut., λευκάνω; First Aor., ἐλεύκανα, σημαίνω, to signify; First Aor. inf., σημάναι (Acts xxv. 27). Similarly, ἐπιφάναι (Luke i. 79), from ἐπι, φαίνω,* to show, appear. But κερδαίνω, to gain, Fut. κερδαίνω, makes ἐκέρδησα, as from an alternative pure root, κερδα-.

b. Peculiarities of Augment.—The double augment is occasionally found: ἀνοίγω, to open, ἀνέφξα, also ἤνοιξα; similarly, βούλομαι, to will (deponent), ἤβουλήθην (2 John, 12). Compound verbs generally prefix the augment to the verbal stem; but where the compound has lost its force, or has usurped the place of the simple verb, the augment may precede the whole verb. Thus, from προφητεύω, ἐπροφήτευσα, instead of προεφήτευσα. The prefix, εὐ, well, is sometimes augmented into ηὐ-, sometimes left unaltered. So from εὐδοκέω, to be well pleased, εὐδόκησα (Matth. iii. 17), and ηὐδόκησα (Luke iii. 22). But a verbal stem after εὐ, beginning with α, ε, ο, is itself augmented. So from εὐαγγελίζομαι, to preach the Gospel, we have εὐηγγελισάμην, not ηὐαγγελισάμην.

The root ἀγ-, to break (second conjugation, ἄγννμι (with prefix, κατα, makes First Aor. κατέαξα (John xix. 32), instead of κάτηξα. But as the ϵ - is found in the Future of the same verb (κατέάξω, Matth. xii. 20), and in the Second Aor. subj. pass. (κατέαγῶσι, John xix. 30), it may mark a collateral form of the verb, and not be intended as an augment.†

The Aorist augment of the verb $\alpha i \rho \omega$ (see § 92) is variously printed i l or i l. The latter is correct, as it is the simple stem which is lengthened.

Note. Some verbs in the LXX. have a kind of compound Aorist tense ("Alexandrian"), like the First in termination, but like the Second in tense-

^{*} The classical First Aor. of φαίνω is ἔφηνα.

[†] Or it may be simply to distinguish the forms from those of κατάγω, to lead down.

form: i.e., attaching First Aorist terminations to the simple verbal stem. So in classic Greek, ήνεγκον οτ ήνεγκα. See § 103 (6). An instance in the New Testament of the Alexandrian Aorist is Heb. ix. 12, εδράμενος. Many others occur in the most ancient MSS., and have been adopted into critical editions, as ἔπεσαν (compare § 94, 8, d), and εἶπα in different numbers and persons; in imper., εἶπάτωσαν (Acts xxiv. 20).

Accentuation.—The active First Aor. Infinitive accents the penultimate, circumflexing all diphthongs and long vowels, as φυλάξαι, πιστεῦσαι. The act. Optative third pers. sing. has an acute accent on the same syllable, the at being here regarded as long, as πιστεύσαι. The same form again is found in the middle Imperative; the at, as usual, being treated as short, and the accent thrown back, as πίστευσαι. Only in monosyllabic stems, where the accent must be on the penultima, a long vowel is circumflexed, as λῦσαι. To present the three cases at one view:

Act. Opt., 1st Aor., third pers. sing., πιστεύσαι λύσαι φυλάξαι. Active, 1st Aorist, infinitive, πιστεῦσαι λῦσαι φιλάξαι. Middle, 1st Aorist, imperative, πίστευσαι λῦσαι φύλαξαι.

98. THE AORISTS AND FUTURES PASSIVE.

- a. The First Aorist, Future and Perfect (with the Pluperfect), Passive, have generally the same modification of the verbal root. Thus, from τιμα-, ἐτιμήθην, τετίμημαι; from λυ-, ἐλῦθην, λῦθήσομαι, λελῦμαι; and from πειθ-, ἐπείσθην, πεισθήσομαι, πέπεισμαι. Το know one of these Tenses is, therefore, a help to the knowledge of the rest. But σώζω, to save, makes ἐσώθην and σέσωσμαι.
- b. The chief variation in the stem-syllable of these tenses from the ordinary model is in the case of pure verbs. Usually, these lengthen the vowel stem-ending. In several verbs, however, the short vowel remains, as in ἐδέθην, ἐλύθην, and others. In many, again, the letter σ is inserted after the stem, as in ἐτελέσθην (Perf., τετέλεσμαι), ἐχαλάσθην (2 Cor. xi. 33), and from ῥύομα, to deliver, ἐρρύσθην (2 Tim. iv. 17). Thus, also, from ἀκούω, to hear, ἠκούσθην, ἀκουσθήσομαι, ἥκουσμαι.
- c. The transposition of a vowel and liquid, in short moneyllabic roots, is very common in these tenses. Thus, $\beta \alpha \lambda$, to throw, becomes $\beta \lambda \alpha$, and gives $\hat{\epsilon} \beta \lambda \hat{\eta} \theta \eta \nu$, $\beta \lambda \eta \theta \hat{\eta} \sigma \rho \mu \alpha \iota$, $\beta \hat{\epsilon} \beta \lambda \eta \mu \alpha \iota$. The root καλε, to call, is treated as καλ-, κλα-; First Aor. pass., ἐκλήθην; Fut., κληθήσομαι; Perf., κέκλημαι.

- d. A weak vowel in a short liquid stem is often changed into a. This rule generally applies to the Perfects, Active and Passive, and to the Aorists and Futures Passive (sometimes also to the Second Aorist active: see § 95, note). Thus, from ἀποστέλλω, to send forth (στέλ-), ἀπέσταλκα, ἀπέσταλμαι, ἀπεστάλην, ἀποσταλήσομαι. The verb πίνω, to drink (καταπίνω, to swallow), changes ι into ο. So we find πέπωκα, κατεπόθην, καταποθήσομαι.
- e. The First Aorist and Future passive are chiefly found in pure stems and derivative verbs; the Second in original consonant-verbs. Where, too, the First would give an inharmonious concurrence of letters, the Second will usually be employed. Both are seldom used in the same verb. But a verb that has the First Aorist in the Active, may have the Second in the Passive, and vice versa.

For the usage of particular verbs, consult the Vocabulary. πλήσσω, πληγ-, to strike, makes Second Aor. ἐπλήγην; but in compounds η becomes a, as ἐξεπλάγησων (Luke ii. 48); φύω, to grow, has the Second Aor. participle φυέν, (Luke viii. 6, 8).

Irregularities of Augment in the Aorists passive.—κατειλήφθη, in many copies of John viii. 4; ἀπεκατεστάθη (ε after both prepositions): Matth. xii. 13. From ἀνοίγω (compare § 99, α, 3), we find ἡνοίχθην, ἀνεψχθην, ἡνεψχθην (Rev. xx. 12); and Second Aor. ἡνοίγην, with Second Future, ἀνοιγήτομαι.

Accentuation.—The Aorists passive circumflex the Subjunctive mood-vowel throughout, and the penultimate of the Inf. $-\hat{\eta}\nu\alpha\iota$. The participle accents the stem-syllable $-\epsilon\nu\tau$ throughout, with a circumflex on the fem., wherever possible.

Thus: λυθείs, λυθείσα, λυθέν, λυθέντοs, λυθέντοs, λυθείσης, λυθέντοs, κ.τ.λ.

99. The Perfect and Pluperfect, Active, Middle, and Passive.

- a. For the Reduplication, see § 69. The following variations must be noted:—
 - 1. A verb beginning with two consonants, other than a mute followed by a liquid, or with a double consonant, takes ε-. Thus, στεφανόω, to crown, ἐστεφάνωκα, ἐστεφάνωμαι; ξηραίνω, to wither, ἐξήραμμαι. So when v follows γ-, as from γνο-, ἔγνωκα.

- The verb λάμβανω, λαβ-, takes εt- instead of the reduplication,* εἴληφα.
- 3. Some verbs beginning with α, ε, or ο, take a double reduplication in the active.

ἀκούω, to hear, ἀκήκοα.

(ἐλυθ-), to come, ελήλυθα. See § 103 (2).

The verb $d\nu o i\gamma \omega$ (see §§ 97, 98) may have a double augment in the perf. pass., $\dot{\eta} \nu \epsilon \omega \gamma \mu \dot{\epsilon} \nu \eta$ (Rev. iv. 1).

- 4. The PLUPERFECT in the New Testament generally omits the augment, taking only the reduplication, as τεθεμελίωτο, it had been founded (Matt. vii. 25).
- b. Termination of the Active Perfect third person plural.—Many MSS. frequently give this as -aν, like the First Aor. In John xvii. 7, the rec. text reads ἔγνωκαν.
- c. The Second Perfect active takes the termination of the First without the characteristic -k- or aspirate, and often modifies a vowel in the stem-syllable, preferring o. Thus, $\lambda \epsilon i \pi \omega$, $\lambda \epsilon \lambda o \iota \pi a$, $\pi a \sigma \chi \omega$ (alternate stem, $\pi \epsilon v \theta$ -), $\pi \epsilon \pi \sigma v \theta a$.

This tense is often intransitive; as from πείθω, to persuade, First Perf., πέπεικα, I have persuaded; but Second Perf., πέποιθα, I have confidence, I fully believe. To the class of Second Perfects belong the forms ἔοικα, I am like (Fiκ-); οΐδα, I know (Fiδ-). (See § 103.)

When the stem-ending of the verb is an aspirate—mute, labial or guttural—the Perfect is in the Second, or unaltered, form: as from γραφ-, to write, γέγραφα.

d. Some peculiarities of the Perfect Passive have been noted under the head of the Aorist. Vowel changes in the stem-syllable are given in the Lexicon or Vocabulary. So, also, the insertion or otherwise of -σ- after a vowel stem-ending.

^{*} So in classic Greek some other verbs, as λαγχάνω, εἴληχα.

Ε.g., τρέφω, to nourish (θρεφ-), τέτροφα, τέθραμμαι. Again, θραύω, to crush, makes τέθρανσμαι (Luke iv. 18); but παύομαι, to cease, πέπανμαι (1 Pet. iv. 10).

c. The Future-Perfect (passive in classic Greek; called often the paulo-post Future) is but the middle Future reduplicated. Luke xix. 40, is the only instance in the New Testament: κεκράξονται, will immediately cry out.

Accentuation.—The Perfect Infinitive accents the penultimate - έναι. In the active Participle, the stem-syllable, masc. - οτ, fem. - νι, is accented all through, the latter circumflexed wherever possible.

λελυκώς, λελυκυΐα, λελυκός, λελυκότος, λελυκυίας, λελυκότος.

In the middle and passive, the Infinitive accents the penult., circumflex on diphthongs and long vowels, βεβουλεῦσθαι, τετιμῆσθαι, τετύφθαι. The participle accents the penultimate; as λελυμένος, λελυμένη, λελυμένον.

100. DEPONENT VERBS.

Deponent verbs have no active voice, but may be either middle or passive in form. This is decided by the Aorist.

Thus: δέχομαι, to receive; First Aor., ἐδεξάμην (middle).
βούλομαι, to wish; First Aor., ἐβουλήθην (passive). αἰσθάνομαι, to perceive; Second Aor., ἢσθόμην (middle).

Some verbs have both Aorists, active and passive, with the same meaning; as ἀποκρίνομαι, to answer; First Aor., ἀπεκρινάμην and ἀπεκρίθην, I answered Deponent transitives often have each tense with its proper force.

Thus: ὶάομαι, to heal; ὶασάμην, I healed; ὶάθην, I was healed.
λογίζομαι, to reckon; ἐλογισάμην, I reckoned; ἐλογίσθην, I was reckoned.

The verb γίγνομαι, to hecome (γεν-, see 94, 8, α) has the forms, Fut., γενήσομαι; First Aor., έγενήθην; Second Aor., έγενόμην; Perf., γέγονα (Second Perf.); rarely γεγένημαι.

101. IMPERSONAL VERBS.

Impersonal verbs are used only in the Third Person singular, and are generally rendered into English with the pronoun it.

For the grammatical construction of impersonals, see § 171.

The chief impersonal verbs are $\delta \epsilon \hat{i}$, it is necessary; one ought; $\chi \rho \hat{\eta}$, it is expedient, or fitting; $\pi \rho \hat{\epsilon} \pi \epsilon \iota$, it becomes; $\delta o \kappa \hat{\epsilon} \hat{i}$, it seems; $\mu \hat{\epsilon} \lambda \epsilon \iota$, it is a care.

The following forms of these verbs almost all occur in the New Testament. The participle, it will be observed, is neuter. Some of the verbs are also found personally:—

Indic. Pres.	δεῖ,	χρή,	πρέπει,	δοκεῖ,	μέλει.
Imperf.	ἐδεῖ ,	$\epsilon \chi \rho \hat{\eta} \nu$,	έ πρεπε(ν),	έ δόκει,	***
First Aor.				ἔδοξ∈(ν)	***
Subj.	$\delta \epsilon \eta$	***	***	***
Inf.	δεῖν,	χρῆναι,	***		• • •
Part. Pres.	δέον,		πρέπου,	δοκοῦν,	• • •

From εἰμι, the substantive verb, is formed the impersonal ἔξεστι. it is lawful; part., ἔξον.

102. Defective Verbs of the First Conjugation.

The explanations given under the several Tenses have sufficiently accounted for most of the so-called "irregularities" in the conjugation of verbs in $-\omega$.

Some verbs, however, of very frequent occurrence, are anomalous in another way.

The ancient Greek tongue, like all early languages, while destitute of words expressing the more complex ideas, had a redundancy of terms denoting some of the simplest actions. Hence arose many synonymous words, some of which, being evidently unnecessary, were afterwards dropped. But in several instances, of two or three verbs meaning the same thing, different tenses were discontinued in each, so that forms of distinct verbs had to be brought together to constitute a whole. Compare in English go, without a Preterite, and went, without a Present, except in some phrases, wend.

Occasionally, again, where the same tense of two synonymous verbs has been retained, it expresses two different shades of meaning.

- 103. The following are the principal verbs which thus derive their forms from different roots:—
- (1) αἰρέω, to take (in comp., καθαιρέω, to take down; προαιρέω, to take beforehand, &c.); Mid., αἰροῦμαι, το choose; Principal Tenses, αἰρήσω, αἰρήσομαι, ἥρηκα, ἥρημαι, ἡρέθην, αἰρεθήσομαι. From stem ελ.; Second Aor. αct., εἶλον; Inf., ελεῖν; mid., εἶλόμην; Inf., ελεσθαι.
- (2) ἔρχομαι, to go, come; Impf., ἢρχόμην. Other tenses from stem ἐλῦθ-, lengthened into ἐλευθ- (Fut.), contracted into ἐλθ- (Second Aor.); Fut., ἐλεύσομαι; Perf., ἐλήλυθα; Plup., ἐληλύθειν; Second Aor., ἢλθον; in the several moods, ἔλθε, ἔλθω, ἔλθοιμι, ἐλθεῖν, ἐλθών. So many compounds.
- (3) ἐσθίω, to eat; Impf., ἤσθιον; Second Aor. from φαγ-, ἔφαγον, φαγεῖν; Fut., φάγομαι, φάγεσαι, φάγεται, κ.τ.λ. So κατεσθίω, to devour.
- (4) δράω, to see; Impf., έώρων; Perf., έώρᾶκα. Tenses from stem δπ-, δπτ-: Fut. ὄψομαι, ὄψει, ὄψεται; First Aor. subj., ὄψωμαι (once, Luke xiii. 28); First Aor. pass., ὄφθην, ὀφθῆναι; First Fut. pass., ὄφθησομαι. Tenses from fiδ-: 2nd Aor., εἶδον, ἴδω, ἰδεῖν, ἰδών (ἰδού, an old Imperfect middle used as an interjection, behold!); Second Perf., I know (= have seen) οἶδα, οἶδας, οἶδε(ν), οἴδαμεν, οἴδατε, οἴδασι(ν) (in Imp., ἴσθι, ἴοτε; Subj., εἶδῶ; Inf., εἶδέναι; Part, εἶδώς; Plup. ind., I knew, ἥδειν); Fut., εἶδήσω, shall know (Heb. viii. 11).
- (5) τρέχω, to run; Second Aor. from δρεμ-, ἔδραμον; Fut., δραμοῦμαι (LXX.)
- (6) φέρω, to bear; Fut. from stem ol-, οἴσω. Tenses from ἐνεγκor ἐνεκ-: First Aor. act., ἤνεγκα; Second Aor., ἤνεγκον, ἐνεγκεῖν;
 First Aor. pass., ἦνέχθην; Perf., ἐνήνοχα, with double reduplication.
 Compare προσφέρω, εἰσφέρω, κ.τ.λ.
- (7) εἶπον; Second Aor., I said (supplies Present and Imperfect from φημί, second conjugation); stem, ἐπ-; First Aor., εἶπα. Tenses from ἐρ-: Fut., ἐρέω, ἐρῶ; Perf., εἴρηκα; Perf. pass., εἴρημαι. Tenses from ῥε-: First Aor. pass., ἐρρέθην or ἐρρήθην; Part., ῥηθείς.

These forms are not all actually found in the New Testament, though most of them are. Other forms occur in Greek authors, and, if required, may easily be formed by the usual analogies.

Exercise 13.-On the Defective Verbs.

[The following forms, which should be carefully analyzed, are all from the "Sermon on the Mount," and illustrate the frequency with which this class of verbs occurs.

FORMS.— ὄψονται, ἴδωσιν, οίδε, οἴδατε, εἴπωσι, εἰρίεθη, εἴπη, ερεῖς, εροῦσι, ἢλθον, παρελθη, εἰσελθητε, ελθών, ἐξελθης, εἴσελθε, ελθέτω, εἰσελθετε, εἰσερχόμενοι, εἰσελεύσεται, προσφέρης, πρόσφερε, εἰσενέγκης, ἔξελε, φάγητε, φάγωμεν.

104. The Second Conjugation, or Verbs in -μι.

The chief peculiarity of the Second Conjugation is that the Present and Imperfect tenses, and in many verbs the Second Aorist active and middle, affix the ancient terminations (see § 70)* to the stem, without a connecting vowel. The moodvowels, however, of the Subjunctive and Optative are retained. The old Infinitive ending, -vat, reappears.

The other tenses conform to the paradigm of the First Conjugation, with occasional exceptions, that will be noted in their place.

^{*} These terminations are, in the Active, for the Present (as a principal tense), singular, $-\mu$, $-\sigma$, $-\tau$, ; plural, $-\mu\epsilon\nu$, $-\tau\epsilon$, $-\nu\sigma\iota$; for the Imperfect and Second Aorist (as historical), singular, $-\nu$, -s, $-\nu$ (generally dropped); plural, $-\mu\epsilon\nu$, $-\tau\epsilon$, $-\sigma\alpha\nu$. The ancient Imperative ending, $-\theta\iota$, also appears. In several cases the terminations are slightly modified, as the paradigms will show. The analogy to the Aorists passive of the First Conjugation will be observed throughout, in form and accentuation.

105. Modifications of the Stem.

Verbs in -μι modify the verbal stem in one or more of three ways.

- a. A pure stem lengthens the vowel in the active indicative singular. Thus from $\phi \alpha$ -, say, we have first person, $\phi \eta$ - μi ; third person, $\phi \eta$ - σi .
- b. Most stems prefix a reduplication in the Present and Imperfect tenses. Thus, δο-, give, first becomes δω-, as above; then, δί δω-μι. So τίθημι, from θε-, put. The vowel preferred in this reduplication is τ. The root στα-, place, accordingly makes ἴστημι, and ε-, send, ἵημι. Sometimes the stem is reduplicated within itself (the Attic reduplication, see § 99, a), as, from ὀνα-, profit, ὀνίνημι. In other cases, a nasal -ν- is inserted, modified before labials into -μ-; thus πρα-, burn, gives πίμπρημι.
- c. Several verbs add the syllable -νυ- to the stem before the personal endings in the Present and Imperfect tenses. Pure stems take -ννυ-. Thus, δεικ-, show, gives δείκνυμι; and στρο-, strew or spread (with lengthened vowel, as above), στρώννυμι.
- d. It is convenient, then, to mark two chief classes of verbs in -µ.

The first exhibits the simple lengthened stem, generally with reduplication preceding.

The second inserts -vv- or -vvv- between the stem and the personal endings.

106. Paradigms of the First Class.

These also fall into two divisions. The former exhibits the normal forms; the latter contains a few verbs, with short monosyllabic stems, somewhat irregular in their conjugation, and, from their importance, requiring separate treatment. To the latter class belongs the substantive verb: $\epsilon i\mu i$, I am; $\epsilon i \nu ai$, to be.

Note.—It will be observed that several Aorist forms are omitted: the alternative tense being in use. For example: in the Active indicative of τίθημι and δίδωμι, the First Aorist is employed for the singular, the Second for the plural, while in the Middle throughout "στημι has the First, τίθημι and δίδωμι the Second. The Active First Aorist of "στημι is transitive, the Second Aorist intransitive, as will be shown hereafter.

[§ 108.

108. Remarks on the Paradigms.

- 1. The First Aorist Active of τίθημι and δίδωμι, and, as will be seen hereafter, of ἵημι also, takes -κ- instead of -σ- for tense-characteristic. This peculiarity is confined to these three verbs; and their First Aorist is found only in the Indicative mood.*
- 2. The Perfect tenses of ιστημι, from the stem στα-, take the hard breathing, with ε- as an "improper reduplication;" εστηκα. The augmented tenses have ε-, as εστην; but the Imperfect retains ε.
- 3. The First Aorist of ιστημι is transitive, the Second intransitive, in meaning: ἔστησα, I placed; ἔστην, I stood.
- 4. A verb, $\sigma \tau \eta \kappa \omega$ (intransitive), to stand, of the First Conjugation, derived from the Perfect of $\sigma \tau \alpha$ -, is found in a few forms in the New Testament. It must be distinguished from the Perfect forms of $"i\sigma \tau \eta \mu \iota$.

109. Verbs belonging to this Class.

The number of verbs which conform to the above paradigms is very small. The principal are subjoined.

A-STEMS.—Like ιστημι, are conjugated the following:—

- a. 1. δνίνημι, to benefit (stem δνα-, with Attic reduplication), only once in the New Testament; Second Aorist, Optative, middle, δναίμην (Phile. 20), may I have joy!
- 2. πίμπρημι, to burn (stem πρα-, reduplicated, with nasal), only once in the New Testament, Present Infinitive, passive, πίμπρασθαι (Acts xxviii. 6), to be burned, or inflamed.
- 3. $\phi\eta\mu i$, to say (stem $\phi\alpha$). The Present Indicative is usually enclitic, except second person singular, otherwise oxytone; third person singular, $\phi\eta\sigma i(\nu)$; plural, $\phi\alpha\sigma i(\nu)$; Imperfect, $\tilde{\epsilon}\phi\eta\nu$; third person singular, $\tilde{\epsilon}\phi\eta$. (See § 103, 7).

^{*} To this remark there is one exception if the reading δώση (on which see note, p. 121) be genuine.

- 4. $\chi\rho\dot{\eta}$, it is fitting (stem $\chi\rho\alpha$ -), impersonal. (See §§ 101, 171.) Once in the New Testament (James iii. 10).
- b. Deponent Verbs.—1. δύναμαι, to be able (stem δυνα-). Present Indicative, -μαι, -σαι (or in MSS., δύνη), -ται, κτ.λ.; Imperfect, εδυνάμην, or (with double augment) ήδυνάμην; Present Subjunctive, δύνωμαι; Optative, δυναίμην; Infinitive, δύνασθαι; Participle, δυνάμενος; Verbal, δυνατός, possible, capable; Future, δυνήσομαι; First Aorist, εδυνήθην, or ήδυνήθην (occasionally in MSS. ήδυνάσθην).
- 2. ἐπίσταμαι, to know, or to feel sure, i.e., "to take one's stand upon" (stem ἐπί, preposition, and -στα-, but without aspiration), only in Present in New Testament; Indicative, -μαι, -σαι, -ται, -μεθα, -σθε, -νται; Participle, ἐπιστάμενος.
- 3. κρέμαμαι, to hang, neuter (stem κρέμα-); Present Indicative, third person, κρέμαται; plural, κρέμανται; Participle, κρεμάμενος; First Aorist, ἐκρεμάσθην; Subjunctive, κρεμασθῶ; Participle, κρεμασθείς.
- E-STEMS. Deponent Verbs.—1. ἡμαι, to be seated (stem ε-), properly a Perfect middle or Passive, as from εω, I set, or seat; εομαι, I seat myself (like εζομαι; see also καθίζω); ἡμαι, I have seated myself, and so am now sitting. Only found in the New Testament compounded with the preposition κατά, down. καθήμαι, I am sitting down, second person, καθή, for καθήσαι; Imperative, κάθου, for κάθησο; Infinitive, καθήσθαι; Participle, καθήμενος; Imperfect Indicative, ἐκαθήμην, properly a Pluperfect.
- 2. κείμαι, to lie down (stem κε-), properly also a Perfect, "I have laid myself," or "have been laid down;" Infinitive, κείσθαι; Participle, κείμενος; Imperfect Indicative, ἐκείμην, -σο, -το.
- 110. The three stems, $\epsilon \sigma$ -, ϵ -, and ϵ -, being marked by special peculiarities, must be placed alone. The first of the three is by far the most important, as the stem of the substantive verb, esse, to be. With the personal termination, - μ -, the stem $(\epsilon \sigma \mu \iota)$ becomes $\epsilon i \mu \iota$, I am; and with the Infinitive ending, - $\nu \alpha \iota$, $\epsilon \iota \nu \alpha \iota$, to be.

Several tenses are wanting in the conjugation of this verb, which is as follows:—

Note on Accentuation.—In the Present Indicative, with the exception of the second person singular, this verb is an enclitic, excepting (1) where it follows a paroxytone, when it retains its accent as above; and (2) in the third person, where it is a predicate, when it becomes paroxytone, as ἔστι Θεός, there is a God. It is also paroxytone after ώς, οὐκ, εἰ καὶ, τοῦτ', ἀλλ'. Thus, οὐκ ἔστι, it is not; τοῦτ' ἔστι, that is to say.

111. Not unlike the substantive verb in conjugation, and therefore to be carefully distinguished from it, are the verbs $\epsilon \tilde{\iota} \mu \iota$ (stem ι -), go, and $\tilde{\iota} \eta \mu \iota$ (stem ϵ -), send. Neither of them is found in the New Testament,* except in composition. It will suffice to give a few forms of $\epsilon \tilde{\iota} \mu \iota$, to show the differences between it and the substantive verb; while the most important compound of $\tilde{\iota} \eta \mu \iota$ is subjoined in full.

Forms of $\epsilon \hat{\imath} \mu \iota$, to go (stem \mathfrak{i} -):—

^{*} Some MSS. read in John vii. 34, 36, for $\epsilon i\mu l$, I am, $\epsilon l\mu l$, I (will) go. This present tense has in classic Greek a Future significance, equivalent to the English idiom, I am going.

112. Conjugation of ίημι, to send, in its Compound, ἀφίημι.

The stem is ϵ , which, reduplicated, gives $i\eta\mu\iota$. Prefixed is the preposition $i\pi\delta$, from, away from; the \bullet being lost before ι by elision, and the π changed by the aspirate into ϕ .

Hence ἀφίημι, to send away, let go (permit), forgive.

The tenses which follow the analogy of the First Conjugation are included, so far as necessary, in the following paradigm, and will readily be traced.

113. SECOND CLASS. VERBS IN -vvµl or -vrvµl.

1. These verbs have no Second Aorist.*

2. Most of them have a kindred form of the First Conjugation, in -νύω or -ννύω. From this form are taken—often, the Indicative Present and Imperfect, with the Present Infinitive; generally, the Present Participle; and always, the Subjunctive and Optative moods. Thus, from δεικ-, show, we sometimes find the forms δεικνύω, -εις, -ει, δεικνύειν, δεικνύων; while the only Present Subjunctive recognised is δεικνύω, -γς, -γ; and the only Present Optative, δεικνύοιμι.

In the paradigms, these forms of the First Conjugation are marked by a dagger (†).

3. All the tenses but the Present and Imperfect are formed from the stem (without -vv-). These are placed separately for comparison.

115. Remarks on the Paradigms.

- α. The quantity of the v is marked in a sufficient number of cases to indicate the rest. Where in the first class of verbs in -με, the stem-vowel α, ε, or o, is made long, the v of the second class is also lengthened. Thus $\tau i\theta \eta \mu \iota$, $\delta \epsilon i \kappa \nu \tilde{\nu} \mu \iota$, but $\tau i \theta \epsilon \mu \epsilon \nu$, $\delta \epsilon i \kappa \nu \tilde{\nu} \mu \epsilon \nu$.
- b. Verbs of this class seldom occur in the New Testament, with the exception of δείκνυμι and ἀπόλλυμι. (See below.)

116. Verbs with Consonant-stems, like δείκυυμι.

- 1. μίγνυμι, to mix (stem, μιγ-), only found in the New Testament in forms like the First Conjugation; First Aorist, ἔμιξα; Perfect Participle, μέμιγμαι.
- 2. ὅλλυμι, to destroy, to lose (stem, όλ-, or -όλε); hence ὅλ-νυμι, and with the ν assimilated, ὅλλυμι), only found in the New Testament with the prefixed preposition, ἀπό. Present Indicative, ἀπόλλυμι; Middle and Passive, ἀπόλλυμα. Chiefly found in tenses derived from collateral stem ἀπολε-, Active Future, ἀπολέσω, once ἀπολῶ;* First Aorist, ἀπώλεσα; Perfect, with neuter meaning, I perish! ἀπόλωλα; Middle Future, ἀπολοῦμαι; Second Aorist, ἀπωλόμην; Present Participle, οί ἀπολλύμενοι often, the perishing.
- 3. ὅμννμι, to swear (stem, -ὀμ- or -ὀμο-). The forms used in the New Testament are Present, as of First Conjugation, ὀμνύω, ὀμνύωι (but in Mark xiv. 71, the best MSS. read ὀμνύναι); First Aorist, ὅμοσα; Infinitive, ὀμόσαι, from ὀμό-.
- 4. ρήγνυμι, to tear (stem, ραγ-). Present Passive Indicative, third person plural, ρήγνυνται (Matt. ix. 17); but generally with forms as from ρήσσω, ρήξω.

117. Verbs with Vowel-stems, like ζώννυμι.

A-STEMS. — κεράννυμι, to mix (stem, κερά-). Only twice, First Aorist, ἐκέρασα (Rev. xviii. 6); Perfect Participle Passive, κεκερασμένος (Rev. xiv. 10).

^{* 1} Cor. i. 19, from LXX.

2. E-STEMS.— ϵννυμι, to clothe (stem, fϵ-), only found with the prefixed preposition, ἀμφί, about. Present Active Indicative, third person singular, ἀμφιένννσι(ν) (Matt. vi. 30; Luke xii. 28), and Perfect Passive Participle, with augment prefixed to the preposition, ἢμφιϵσμένον (Matt. xi. 8; Luke vii. 25).

κορέννυμι, to satisfy (stem, κορε-), First Aorist Passive Participle, κορεσθείς (Acts xxvii. 38); Perfect Passive Participle, κεκορεσμένος (1 Cor. iv. 8).

σβέννυμ, to extinguish (stem, σβε-), Future Active, σβέσω; Future Passive, σβεσθήσομαι.

3. O-STEMS.—ρώννυμι, to strengthen (stem, ρ΄o-), found only in the Perfect Middle Imperative, ἔρρωσο; plural, ἔρρωσθε, be strong! i.e., Farewell.

στρώννυμι, to strew, or spread (stem, στρο-). Present forms as from στρωννύω; First Aorist Active, ἔστρωσα; Perfect Participle Passive, ἐστρωμένος.

If the above verbs, with their significations, are now committed to memory, some trouble may be saved at subsequent stages.

Exercise 14.—On the Second Conjugation, or Verbs in -\mu \cdots

[The following examples of verbs in -μι occur in the "Sermon on the Mount," and are here presented for analysis. In addition to explanations already given (see Exercise 13, on the Defective Verbs), it must be noted that the prefix ἀπο- (from, away from), with the verb δίδωμι, has the sense of return; ἀποδίδωμι, to give back; and ἐπι-, with the same verb, may be rendered over; ἀντι-signifies against.]

FORMS.— ἐστιν, ἐστε, ἔσται, ἴσθι, εἶ, ἔστω, ἔσεσθε, ης, ὅντα, ὅντες, τιθέασιν, προσθεῖναι, προστεθήσεται, ἀντιστῆναι, δός, δότω, δίδου, ἀποδῷς, παραδῷ, δῶτε, ἐπιδώσει, δοθήσεται, διδόναι, ἄφες, ἀφίεμεν, ἀφῆτε, ἀφήτει, δύνασαι, δύναται, δύνασθε, κειμένη, ἀπόληται, ὀμόσαι, ὀμόσης, ῥήξωσιν, ἀμφιέννυσιν.

Exercise 15.-General, upon the Verbs.

 The learner should now be expert in tracing any verbal form to its stem. As a test of proficiency, the following list of verbs is subjoined, taken in order from the Second Epistle to the Thessalonians. Let the stem, conjugation, class, voice, mood, tense, and, when necessary, the number and person, of every one be written down; if possible, without reference to any paradigm. Prefixes not belonging to the root are printed in thick type. The Vocabulary or Lexicon must be consulted for the meaning of the words.

Exercise 16.—Short Sentences.

I. THE BEATITUDES (Matt. v. 3-10).

These and the following Sentences are given chiefly as practice in applying the rules of conjugation and declension. As the clauses are complete in sense, they necessarily involve the principles of Syntax; but no difficulties in construction will be found. For the use of the Cases, see 11. The references in the Notes to succeeding parts of the work will also be useful.

Observe that throughout the Beatitudes the substantive verb are must be supplied with the predicate, μακάριοι, blessed. (See § 166.) 571 is because (§ 136, 6).

- Μακάριοι οἱ πτωχοὶ τῷ πνεύματι ¹¹ ὅτι αὐτῶν² ἐστιν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν.

CHAPTER VI.—PREPOSITIONS.

118. It was stated in § 11 that three forms of inflection, or "cases," in Nouns are used to denote three several relations of place: the Genitive implying motion from; the Dative, rest in, or connexion with; and the Accusative, motion towards. The cases thus severally answer the questions, Whence? Where? Whither?

With this general distinction are connected very many other relations, which are expressed by the same three cases, with the aid of Prepositions.

To Syntax it belongs to exhibit the various meanings of the prepositions, and their place in sentences. For the present, it will suffice to give a list of the chief of them, with their general significations. This is necessary, partly because several adverbs (see § 132) are derived from prepositions; but chiefly because of the important place which prepositions hold in the composition of verbs. (See Chapter X.)

Prepositions may govern—

- 1. The Genitive only: Whence?
- 2. The Dative only: Where?
- 3. The Accusative only: Whither?
- 4. The Genitive and Accusative: Whence? Whither?
- 5. The Genitive, Dative, and Accusative: Whence? Where? Whither?

119. Prepositions governing the Genitive only.

ἀντί (opposition, equivalent), over against, opposed to, instead of. ἀπό (motion from the exterior), from, away from.

 $\dot{\epsilon}\kappa$, $\dot{\epsilon}\xi$ (motion from the interior), from, out of. $\pi\rho\dot{o}$, before, whether of time or place.

To these may be added most of the "improper" prepositions, as they are often called; being really adverbs with a prepositional government. (For a list of these, see § 133.)

120. Prepositions governing the Dative only.

ἐν, in, of time, place, or element; among.
 σύν (union of co-operation), with.

121. Prepositions governing the Accusative only.

ἀνά (up in), used in the phrases ἀνὰ μέσον, in the midst of; ἀνὰ μέρος, in turns (1 Cor. xiv. 27).

els (motion to the interior), into, to, unto, with a view to.

122. Prepositions governing the Genitive and Accusative.

διά, through. Gen (through, as proceeding from), through, by means of. Acc. (through, as tending towards), on account of, or owing to.

κατά, down. Gen. (down from: so, literally, 1 Cor. xi. 4), against. Acc. (down towards), according to, throughout, during, over.

μετά (union of locality; compare σύν). Gen., together with, among. Acc., after.

 $\pi\epsilon\rho$ i, around. Gen., about, concerning, on behalf of; once, above (3 John 2). Acc., about, round about.

ύπέρ, over. Gen., above, on behalf of, for. Acc., beyond.

iπ6, under. Gen., by (of the agent or efficient cause). Acc., under, in the power of, close upon (as Acts v. 21, close upon morning, i.e., "very early").

123. Prepositions governing the Genutive, Dative, and Accusative.

in (superposition). Gen., upon (as springing from), over, in the presence of, in the time of. Dat., upon (as resting on), in addition to, on account of. Acc., up to (used of place, number, aim), over (of time, place, extent).

 $\pi a \rho a \dot{\alpha}$ (juxtaposition). Gen. (from beside), from, used of persons, as $\dot{a}\pi \dot{\alpha}$ of places. Dat. (at the side of), near, with, of persons only, except John xix. 25. Acc. (to, or along the side of), beside, compared with, i.e., so as to be shown beyond, or contrary to, instead of.

πρός (in the direction of). Gen., in favour of, only in Acts xxvii. 34. Dat., at, close by. Acc., towards, in reference to.

124. Synoptical Table of the Prepositions.

The Prepositions are here exhibited in groups, both because their meaning may thus be more easily remembered, and because the comparison, both in meaning and form, suggests some interesting points of relationship. For further details the student may consult Dr. Donaldson's "New Cratylus," Book ii., chapter 2. Only the general meaning of every preposition is given in the following table; and the initial capitals denote the cases governed. Cases found in classic Greek, but not in the New Testament, with certain prepositions, are bracketed.

G. 'A π ó, in reference to the exterior, from.

G. Ek, in reference to the interior, from, proclitic.

D. E_{ν} , ,, in, ,,

A. Eis, ,, to, ,,

(D.) A. 'Aνά, up; opposite of κατά.

G. A. Kaτά, down; opposite of ἀνά.

G. D. A. 'E πi , superposition, upon.

G. D. A. Пара́, juxtaposition, beside.

G. D. A. Πρός, propinquity, towards.

G. (D.) A. Περί, circumvention, entire; around.

(G. D. A.) 'Aμφί, circumvention, partial; about.

- G. A. 'Y $\pi\epsilon\rho$, over; (super).
 - G. A. Υπό, under; (sub).
- G. A. Μετά, association, with, after.
 - D. Σύν, co-operation, with.
- G. 'Αντί, opposition, specific, over against.
 - G. Πρό, opposition, general, in front of, before.
 - G. A. Διά, through, kindred with δύο, and regarding the object as divided into two parts.

'Aμφί is not used in the New Testament, except in composition. In classic Greek, its use is comparatively rare. With all three cases it means about, or around.

Accentuation.—The Prepositions are all oxytone except the proclitics, ϵ is, ϵ k, ϵ ν .

125. For further details as to the meaning and use of the prepositions, see Chapter X., especially the Table, § 147, a; also Syntax.

In explanation of the very various significance which may belong to the same preposition, two points should be noted: (1) that its meaning will be necessarily modified by the signification of the verb that it may follow, and by that of the noun which it governs, as also by the case of the latter; and (2) that as all languages have a far smaller number of words than there are shades of thought to express, one word must often have many applications. Then, as no language is exactly parallel, word for word, with any other, the variations of meaning included under one Greek term, for instance, will not be the same as those embraced by the nearest English equivalent. Thus, $i \pi i \rho$ may often be translated for; but the applications of the two words, though perhaps equally various, are very far from being identical.

CHAPTER VII.—ADVERBS.

- 126. The simplest, and perhaps the original form of an Adverb, is some case of a substantive, a pronoun, or an adjective agreeing with a noun understood; fixed absolutely in that shape to express some quality, manner, place, or time.
- a. The Accusative is very often thus employed, as ἀκμήν (Matt. xv. 16), yet, lit., "up to (this) point;" περάν, on the other side. In like manner is used the accusative neuter of many adjectives, both singular and plural; often with the article: as, τὸ λοιπόν, furthermore (once, τοῦ λοιποῦ, Gal. vi. 17); τὰ πολλά, for the most part. So, possibly from obsolete adjectives, σήμερον, to-day; αὔριον, to-morrow; χθές, yesterday.
- b. The Dative (sometimes in an obsolete form) is also frequently found: as $i\delta(a, privately; \pi\epsilon\xi\hat{\eta}, by land$. Here the iota subscript is often omitted: $\pi\acute{a}\nu\tau\eta$, always (Acts xxiv. 3, in some copies, $\pi\acute{a}\nu\tau\eta$); $\epsilon l\kappa\hat{\eta}$, without a cause.
- c. The Genitive occurs in αὐτοῦ, there, as well as in other forms, which will be noticed immediately.
- d. In some instances, a preposition with its case written as one word, is used adverbially, as παραχρῆμα, immediately, lit., "along with the business;" ἐξαίφνης, suddenly, lit., "from a steep descent;" καθεξῆς, in order, lit., "according to a special course."
- e. The older form of the language employed the terminations -θεν, -θι, and -δε as case-endings of nouns (Gen., Dat., Acc.), and when they became obsolete in ordinary declension, they were retained as adverbial terminations to denote whence, where, and whither. Thus: οὐρανόθεν, from heaven; παιδιόθεν, from childhood (Mark ix. 21); πέρνσι (the -σι standing for the older -θι), last year (2 Cor. viii. 10; ix. 2). These terminations are also found in adverbs derived from prepositions and other adverbs, on which see § 132.

127. ADVERBS IN -ws.

The most common form of adverbs is, however, that in -ως. This termination, which answers exactly in meaning to our final syllable -ly,* is affixed to adjective-stems of all forms, the stem-ending, where needful, being modified.

For example:

First form (§ 34), δίκαιος, just, δικαιο-; δικαίως, justly. Second form (§ 37), πάς, all, παντ-; πάντως, wholly.

Third form (§ 41), $d\lambda\eta\theta\dot{\eta}s$, true, $d\lambda\eta\theta\epsilon\sigma$ -; $d\lambda\eta\theta\hat{\omega}s$, truly.

Participles may also yield this adverbial form, as ὅντως (from ἄν, stem ὀντ-) really.

Sometimes an adverb formed from an adjective appears in two forms; as ταχύ and ταχέως, quickly; εἰθύς (probably a corrupt form of εἰθύ) and εἰθέως, immediately.

128. Comparison of Adverbs.

The comparative of adverbs is generally the neuter singular accusative of the corresponding adjective; the superlative, the neuter plural. Thus: ταχέως (or ταχύ) quickly; τάχιον, more quickly (John xx. 4); τάχιστα, most quickly (Acts xvii. 15); εἶ, well (probably from ἐΰς, an old equivalent of ἀγαθός); βελτίον, better (2 Tim. i. 18). Adverbs of other than adjective derivation conform to this model. So from ἄνω (see § 132) is found ἀνώτερον.

Some comparatives take the termination -ωs, as περισσοτέρωs, more abundantly.

An irregular comparative and superlative are μᾶλλον, more; μάλιστα, most. So, ἆσσον, nearer (Acts xxvii. 13), attributed to the adverb (in classic Greek); ἄγχι, near; superlative, ἄγχιστα.

^{*} It is possibly an old dative plural: -ωs = -ois. The accentuation generally follows that of the genitive plural of the adjective; as δικαίων, δικαίως, ἀληθῶν, ἀληθῶν.

129. Pronominal Adverbs, used also as Conjunctions.

Several adverbs are formed indirectly or directly from pronouns; and, like pronouns, are demonstrative, relative, interrogative, dependent interrogative, and indefinite (enclitic).

The following Table gives the chief pronominal adverbs found in the New Testament:—

	Demonstrative.	R lative.	Interrogative.	Dependent Interrogative.	Indefinite.
Time	τότε, then νῦν, νυνί, ποισ	őτε, when ἡνίκα, when, in particular	$\pi \delta \tau \epsilon$; when?	δπ δτ ε, when	ποτε, some- time
Place	αὐτοῦ, here ὧδε, here ἐκεῖ, εκεῖσε, there, thither ἐνθάδε, hither	où, where	ποῦ; where?	δποῦ, where	που, some- where ἐντεῦθεν,hence, thence	öθεν, whence	πόθεν; whence?
Manner	οὕτω(s), thus, so	ώs, αs	πω̂s; how?	δπωs, how $ πότερον, whe- $ ther	$\pi\omega(s)$, somehow

The correlatives in the above Table will be immediately perceived. For further details compare under Pronouns, especially § 62, and Syntax. $0\tilde{v}\tau\omega$, so, becomes $\tilde{v}\tau\omega$ s before a vowel, and the indefinite $\pi\omega$ is always $\pi\omega$ s, except in composition.

It will be observed that the scheme of adverbs is incomplete in the relative and interrogative divisions, by the omission of the (accusative) form whither. Classic Greek supplies the omission by the words of, πoi ; $\delta \pi oi$, but these are not found in the New Testament, the genitive forms of, $\pi o \hat{v}$; $\delta \pi o \hat{v}$ being used. Compare in English the tendency to say "Where are you going?" for "Whither are you going?"

130. Numeral Adverbs.

Numeral adverbs end in -is, -κis, or -akis, as δίs, twice; τρίs, thrice; ἐπτάκις, seven times; ἐβδομηκοντάκις, seventy times (Matt. xviii. 22); πολλάκις, many times. ἄπαξ, once for all, is exceptionally formed; ὁσάκις, as often as (1 Cor. xi. 25, 26), is from the relative.

131. Adverbs from Verbs.

Ancient verbal forms, used as adverbs, are $\delta\epsilon\hat{v}\rho o$, hither, with its plural, $\delta\epsilon\hat{v}\tau\epsilon$. These are generally employed as imperatives, "Come thou (or ye) hither!" The imperative $\tilde{a}\gamma\epsilon$ is also employed as a kind of adverb, Go to! (James iv. 13; v. 1.)

Some verbs in -ίζω, expressing national peculiarity, form an adverb in -ιστί. Thus, from ελληνίζω, we find ελληνιστί, in the Greek language; similarly, έβραϊστί, in the Hebrew language.

132. Adverbs from Prepositions.

Once a preposition without change is employed as an adverb (2 Cor. xi. 23), ὑπὲρ ἐγώ, I (am) more.*

133. Prepositive Adverbs, or Improper Prepositions.

Several adverbs may be used like prepositions to govern nouns, and are then termed "improper" or "spurious" prepositions. The following is an alphabetical list of the principal found in the New Testament:—

αμα, together with.ανευ, without.αχρι(s), or μέχρι(s), until.

^{*} So, πρόs, too, often in classical Greek.

eyyus, near, in time or space. ξμπροσθεν, before. έναντίον, in front of, against. ενεκα (-εν), for the sake of. ένωπίον, before, in the presence of. έξω, without. ἐπάνω, above. ĕσω, within. εωs, as far as. μέσον, in the midst of (Phil. ii. 15, MSS.). μεταξύ, between. οπίσω, ὅπισθεν, behind, after. οψέ, at the end of (Matt. xxviii. 1). πλήν, except. πλησίον, near; παραπλησίον, very near. ύπερέκεινα, beyond (2 Cor. x. 16). χάριν, by favour of, for the sake of. χωρίς, separated from, without.

Some of the above, it is evident, are originally adverbial forms of adjectives and substantives. All govern the Genitive, except ἄμα (Matt. xiii. 29), and παραπλησίου (Phil. ii. 27), which take the Dative; as does ἐγγύς sometimes.

134. NEGATIVE ADVERBS.

a. The negative adverbs are où (before a vowel, οὐκ; before an aspirated vowel, οὐχ), not, and μή, not.

Accentuation.—où is proclitic, excepting where emphatic; as ob, No. (John i. 21).

b. For an explanation of the difference between these two words, see Syntax. It must suffice now to say that $o\dot{v}$ denies absolutely, $\mu\dot{\eta}$, on some expressed or implied condition. The former is called the "categorical," or "objective" negative; the latter, the "conditional," or "subjective." Both words are used in composition with τις, τι (see § 60); also with the indefinite adverbs in the Table, § 129, as οῦπω, not yet; μήποτε, never in any case.

c. M $\acute{\eta}$ is also used as an interrogative adverb, expecting the answer, no; and, in composition with the interrogative τis , adds a kind of appeal to the hearers, as though enlisting their assent to the negative: thus, $\mu \acute{\eta} \tau \iota i \acute{\tau} \acute{\omega}$; (Mark xiv. 19), Is it I $\acute{\iota}$ i. e., "It is not I, is it?"

CHAPTER VIII.—CONJUNCTIONS AND OTHER PARTICLES.

135. Besides the Conjunctions properly so called, used, as in other languages, to unite words and sentences, there are in Greek several indeclinable words, employed sometimes separately, often in combination with other words, for the purpose of emphasis. These cannot always be translated, the degree of emphasis being too slight for the words of other languages to convey.

These indeclinable words, together with the conjunctions themselves (and sometimes the primitive adverbs), are generally called Particles.

It belongs to SYNTAX to discuss the place and power of the particles in a sentence. All, therefore, that is now necessary is, to classify the chief of them, and to indicate their general meaning.

136. Classification of the Conjunctive Particles.

The Conjunctions denote (1) annexation, (2) comparison, (3) disjunction, (4) antithesis, (5) condition, (6) reason, (7) inference, or (8) result. The relative forms of the adverbs (see § 129) are also really conjunctions.

- 1. Annexation.—The copulative conjunctions are κai , and, also, even; $\tau \epsilon$, and, also. The latter is generally subordinate: $\tau \epsilon \dots \kappa ai$, both ... and, not only ... but; sometimes $\kappa ai \dots \tau \epsilon$, or $\tau \epsilon \dots \tau \epsilon$. Very generally, however, both ... and is expressed by $\kappa ai \dots \kappa ai$, as in 1 Thess. ii. 14, 15, &c.
- 2. Comparison.—As conjunctions of comparison, the particles $\dot{\omega}_{s}$, as; $\ddot{\omega}\sigma\pi\epsilon\rho$, just as; $\kappa a\theta\dot{\omega}_{s}$, like as, are used; generally in correlation with the adverb $o\ddot{\nu}\tau\omega_{s}$, so. (Compare § 129, Table).

- 4. Antithesis.—The antithetic conjunctions are $d\lambda\lambda \dot{a}$ (originally neuter plural of $\ddot{a}\lambda\lambda o_{s}$) and $\delta\dot{\epsilon}$, both signifying but. The adversative sense is much stronger in the former than in the latter. With $\delta\dot{\epsilon}$ the particle $\mu\dot{\epsilon}\nu$ often stands in the preceding sentence, and may be rendered indeed or on the one hand ($\delta\dot{\epsilon}$, on the other), or, more frequently, may be left untranslated, marking simply that the two clauses stand in real or formal antithesis. Etymologically, $\mu\dot{\epsilon}\nu$ is (probably) "the first thing;" $\delta\dot{\epsilon}$, "the second thing:" the antithesis is, therefore, often very slight, a distinction rather than opposition.
- 5. Condition.—The conditional particles are ϵl , if; $\epsilon \tilde{u}\gamma \epsilon$, if at least; $\epsilon \tilde{u}\pi \epsilon \rho$, if at all; $\epsilon \tilde{u}\nu$ (ϵl $\tilde{u}\nu$), if (possibly). For the important rules as to their use with verbs, see Syntax.
- Cause.—Particles expressive of a reason (causal) are, ὅτι, that, because; γάρ, for; διότι, because; ἐπεί (see § 129), since.
- Inference.—The chief inferential particles are, οὖν, therefore; τοίνυν, then; ἄρα, consequently; διό, wherefore; τοιγαροῦν, accordingly.
- 8. Result.—The "final" conjunctions are v_a , in order that; is and v_a , so that; v_a , that not, lest.

137. Particles of Emphasis and Interrogation.

- a. The chief emphatic particles are $\gamma\epsilon$, at least, indeed (enclitic); and $\delta\dot{\eta}$, certainly, now. To these may be added the enclitics $\pi\epsilon\rho$, very, verily, and $\tau o\iota$, certainly, found in combination with other words, as $\epsilon \pi\epsilon\iota\delta\dot{\eta}\pi\epsilon\rho$ (Luke i. 1), since verily; $\mu\epsilon\nu\tau o\iota$, however.
- b. As interrogative particles the following are employed: ϵi , if, used elliptically, "Tell us if—;" η , simply denoting that a question is asked, and requiring no English equivalent save in the form of the sentence; and $\delta \rho a$ (not to be confounded with $\delta \rho a$, \$136, 7), which makes the question emphatic (only in Luke xviii. 8; Acts viii. 30; Gal. ii. 17). For the interrogative adverbs, see § 129; and for the structure of interrogative sentences, consult the SYNTAX.

138. Interjections.

a. An Interjection is generally but the transcript of a natural instinctive sound, and therefore scarcely ranks among the "parts of organized speech." Words of this kind in the New Testament are δ, O! oh! ča, ah! expressive of pain and terror (Mark i. 24; Luke iv. 34); οὐά, ah! expressing scorn and hatred (Mark xv. 29); οὐά, woe! alas! often governing a dative; οὐαὶ ὑμῶν, woe unto you! alas for you!

b. The imperative form, "δε, see, is often treated interjectionally, but still more frequently the old imperative middle of the same verb is employed, accented as a particle: ιδού, lo! behold!

CHAPTER IX.—ON THE FORMATION OF WORDS.

139. 1. Roots.—Words of all kinds are derived from some Root. For the distinction between root and stem, see § 10. The root is that part which remains after taking away from a whole family of kindred words all the parts which are different in each. Thus, AK- is the root of ἀκ-μή, ἀκ-ρός, ἄκ-ανθα.

The root expresses the leading idea, or general meaning, which runs through all the kindred words, though differently modified in each; thus, AK- expresses the general meaning of "sharpness" or "pointedness."

In the formation of words, some are derived directly from the root; as $\partial_{\kappa}\mu\dot{\eta}$, from AK-. Others take as a ("secondary") root the stem of words already formed; as $\partial_{\kappa}\mu\dot{\eta}\partial_{\omega}\partial_{\omega}$, from $\partial_{\kappa}\mu\dot{\eta}$ ($\partial_{\kappa}\mu\alpha$ -).

Hence we find primary, secondary, tertiary, &c., formations.*
Thus:—

Primary. Secondary. Tertiary.

'AK-μή, point 'AKμ-άζω, to flourish

"AK-ροs, pointed 'AΚρι-βήs, accurate 'AΚρίβε-ια, accuracy.

'AΚριβ-ῶs, accurately.

2. Classes of Words.—Without attempting here any extended statement of the methods and laws of derivation, it will be useful to specify some of the leading terminations which occur in the formation of Greek words. Each of these terminations has a particular force and meaning of its own, whatever be the root or stem to which it is joined: thus, $\kappa\rho\iota$ - $\tau\eta$ s, $\zeta\eta\lambda\omega$ - $\tau\eta$ s, $\kappa\lambda$ έ π - $\tau\eta$ s, π ο λ ί- $\tau\eta$ s, have all the same termination, - $\tau\eta$ s, and with the same meaning.

Classes of words may thus be formed, by arranging together those which have the same terminations, and marking their signification; and this may be done with words of all kinds—substantives, adjectives, pronouns, verbs, and particles.

^{*} See, for greater detail, the "Bromsgrove Greek Grammar," by Dr. G. A. Jacob, § 78.

3. Modification of Stem-endings.—The final vowel or consonant of the root or stem will be affected by the termination according to the general usages of the language, as illustrated especially in the inflections of the verbs. Thus, ποιη-τής, from ποιε- (compare § 96, α, &c.), and καλύπ-τω, κάλυμ-μα (see § 4, d, 4), from καλυπ-οτ καλυβ-.

140. Classes of Substantives.

a. First Declension.—1. Masculine nouns in -της express a male agent, or person belonging to something. Thus, κρῖτής, a judge; ποιητής, a maker, doer, poet. Some nouns of this termination are formed from the root of simpler nouns: as πολίτης (πόλις), citizen; οἰκέτης (οἶκος), domestic.

Accentuation.—Dissyllables of this class, and polysyllables with short penultima, throw back the accent as far as possible, except κριτής. So ψεύστης, δεσπότης, ψεῦσται, δέσποτα (voc.) The rest are oxytone, except πολίτης.

- 2. Feminine Nouns.—i. The termination -ία (paroxytone) expresses quality. Adjective stems in εs- or oo- give the forms (proparoxytone) -ειά, -οιά. So, σοφία, wisdom (σοφός); ἀλήθεια, truth (ἀληθής); εὔνοια, good-will (εὔνους). A few nouns in -εία (paroxytone) are from verbal stems in -ευ, and denote the result of action; as βασιλεία, kingdom (βασιλεύω); παιδεία, instruction (παιδεύω).
- ii. Substantives in -οσύνη connected with adjective stems in ον, rarely in ο-, also denote quality; as σωφροσύνη, prudence, from σώφρων, stem ον-; ελεημοσύνη, compassion (ελεήμων); δικαιοσύνη, righteousness (δίκαιος); άγιωσύνη, holiness (ἄγιος), the ο- becoming -ω, because of the short preceding syllable. (Compare § 42.)
- b. Second Declension.—1. Masculine Nouns.—The termination -μός (oxytone) appended to verbal stems denotes action; as from θύω (θυ-), to rage, θυμός, passion. Sometimes σ intervenes, as in δεσμός, bond, from δε-, δέω, to bind; or θ , as κλανθμός, lumentation, from κλαF-, κλαίω, to weep. (See § 96, c.)

- Neuter Nouns.—i. The ending -τρον, from verbal roots, denotes instrument. Thus, λυ-, λύω, to release; λύτρον, ransom.
- ii. The termination -w, from substantive stems, is diminutive: as from $\pi a \hat{\imath}_s$ ($\pi a \iota \delta$ -), a child; $\pi a \iota \delta$ iov, a little child. To -w is sometimes prefixed the syllable ap- or $\iota \delta$ -: as $\pi a \iota \delta$ ap ov, a little boy; $\kappa \lambda \iota \nu i \delta \omega v$, a little bed, from $\kappa \lambda \iota \nu \eta$, a couch; $\delta \sigma \sigma a \rho \omega v$, a farthing, from Latin as. (See § 154, a.)

Diminutives in -ιον must be distinguished from neuters of adjectives in -ιος, used as substantives: e. g., ἱλαστήριον, propiliatory.

The masculine and feminine terminations -ισκος, -ίσκη, are also occasionally used as diminutives. Thus, νεανίας (stem, α-), a youth; νεανίσκος, a lad. So παιδίσκη, a damsel.

Accentuation of Neuters.—Neuter nouns generally retract the accent. Diminutives in 100 are, however, paroxytone, except when a short syllable precedes this termination.

- c. Third Declension.—1. Masculine Nouns.—i. The suffix -εύs (oxytone), stem ε̄-, denotes an agent: as γραμματεύς, α scribe, from γραμματ-, γράμμα, α letter. (For the declension of these substantives, see § 30, iii.)
- ii. The terminations -τήρ (oxytone) and -τωρ (paroxytone, stem τορ-) also signify an agent: as φωστήρ, luminary, from φως, light; ρήτωρ, an orator, from ρε- (in the obsolete verb, ρέω, to speak).
- 2. Feminine Nouns.—i. The ending -σις (gen. -σεως, root σι-), from verbal stems, expresses action. Thus, δικαιο- (δικαιόω, to justify) gives δικαίωσις, justification; and πραγ- (πράσσω, to do), πράξις, action. These nouns, a very numerous class, retract the accent. (For their declension, see § 30, i. b.)
- ii. The termination -της (gen. -τητος, root τητ-) denotes quality, and is attached to adjective stems. Thus, ἴσος, equal, gives ἰσότης, equality; ἄγιος, holy, ἀγιότης, holiness. These also retract the accent.

- 3. Neuter Nouns.—i. The termination - μ a (stem μ a τ -) denotes the result of an action, and is affixed to verbal stems. Thus, $\pi \rho \acute{a} \sigma \sigma \omega$, $\pi \rho a \gamma$ -, gives $\pi \rho \acute{a} \gamma \mu a$, a thing done, an action; and the obsolete $\acute{\rho} \acute{\epsilon} \omega$, $\acute{\rho} \acute{\epsilon}$ -, forms $\acute{\rho} \acute{\eta} \mu a$, a thing spoken, a word.
- ii. The ending -os (from stem ϵ_s -, see § 30, iv.) denotes, from verbal stems, result; from adjective stems, quality. Thus, from ϵ_s -, Second Aor. ϵ_s - ϵ_s -ov, I saw (see § 103 (4), we have ϵ_s - ϵ_s

141. The following scheme exhibits at one view the principal terminations of derivative nouns. The nominative and genitive endings are given, as in Lexicons and Vocabularies; but the stem and declension will easily be traced.

142. Classes of Adjectives.

1. The most common derivative Adjectives are of the First Form, and the usual terminations are the following:—

a. From substantive roots, the ending -ιος (-ίā*), -ιον, is possessive, i.e., has the sense "of, or belonging to." Thus, from οὐρανο, οὐρανός, heaven, is derived οὐράνιος, heavenly; from τιμα-, τιμή, honour, τίμιος, honourable, precious. The ι of this termination sometimes forms a diphthong with a final stem vowel; so from δίκη (δικα-), justice, comes δίκαιος, just; from ἀγορά, market-place, ἀγοραῖος, public. To this class also belong the adjectives formed from the names of cities or countries, and denoting their inhabitants. Thus, Ἑφέσιος, Ephesian (Ἑφέσος); Ἰονδαῖος, Jew (Ἰονδαία).

Accentuation.—The diphthongal forms are generally properispomenon; the others are proparoxytone, i.e., retract the accent.

- b. The termination ἴκός, -ή, -όν (oxytone), from verbal or substantive roots, marks ability or fitness: as κριτικός, capable of judging (κρίνω); βασιλικός, royal (βασιλεύς).
- c. The ending -ἴνος, -η, -ον (proparoxytone), from substantive roots, expresses the material of which anything is made: as ξύλινος, wooden (ξύλον).

Note.—The same substantive stem may have a derivative of each of the two last-mentioned forms. Thus, from $\sigma a \rho \kappa$ ($\sigma a \rho \xi$), flesh, are formed $\sigma a \rho \kappa u v \sigma s$, made of flesh, "fleshy;" and $\sigma a \rho \kappa u v \sigma s$, of the nature of flesh, "fleshly." The former is only found in the received text of the New Testament in 2 Cor. iii. 3; but on the authority of MSS., many critics substitute it for the latter in Romans vii. 14; 1 Cor. iii. 1. The internal evidence in these passages seems, however, against the alteration.

Sometimes the termination -εος (contr. -ους) denotes material: as ἀργύρεος, ἀργύρους, of silver (ἄργυρος).

d. The termination -ρός, -ρά, -ρόν (oxytone), denotes the complete possession of a quality, like the English -ful or -able: as, from loχυ-, loχύs, strength, loχυρόs, powerful.

^{*} Some of these adjectives are "of two terminations." (See § 34, b.)

- e. Adjectives ending in -τμος, -ον, -στμος, -ον (proparoxytone), are occasionally formed from verbal stems, and express ability or fitness: as δόκιμος, receivable, current (of coin), so approved, from δεχ-, δέχομαι, to receive; χρήσιμος, useful, from χρα-, χράσμαι, to use. Some proper names are of this class, as Ονήσιμος (lit. profitable, see Philem. ii.)
- f. The verbals in -τόs and -τόs have already been noticed (§ 73, p. 69).
- 2. Second and Third Forms.—Here the derivative stem-endings -s and -pov need only be noticed.
- a. Adjectives in - η s (see § 41) are generally correlative to nouns in -os, the stem of which, it will be remembered, is also in ϵ s (§ 30, iv.) So $\psi \epsilon \tilde{v} \delta os$, falsehood; $\psi \epsilon v \delta \dot{\eta} s$, false.
- b. Adjectives in -μων, derived from verbal stems, attribute the action of the verb to the person: as ἐλεε-, ἐλεέω, to pity; ἐλεήμων, compassionate.

143. Scheme of Derivative Adjectives.

Signification.	Terminations of Nom. Sing.
Quality	-ης, -€ς
Do. complete	-ρός, -ρά, -ρόν
Attribute, locality	- tos (-aîos, - eîos, -oîos) [- ta], tov
Property	-ικός, -ική, -ικόν
Material	-ινος, -ίνη, -ινον
Do.	(-εος) -οῦς, [-έα], (-εον) -οῦν
Fitness	-(σ)ιμος, -(σ)ιμον
Attribute	-μων, -μον
Possibility (verbal)	-τός, -τή, -τόν
Obligation (do.)	-τέος, -τέα, -τέον

144. Classes of Verbs.

a. Verbs from substantive or adjective roots ("denominative verbs") may signify the being, doing, or causing that which the noun imports. Verbs in $-\dot{\alpha}\omega$, $-\dot{\epsilon}\omega$, generally denote simply state or action; verbs in $-\dot{\alpha}\omega$, $-\dot{\epsilon}\omega$, $-\dot{\epsilon}\omega\omega$, generally denote simply state or action; verbs in $-\dot{\epsilon}\omega$, $-\dot{\epsilon}\omega\omega$, causation. Thus, $\delta o \nu \lambda \dot{\epsilon} \dot{\omega}\omega$, I am a slave; $\delta o \nu \lambda \dot{\epsilon} \dot{\omega}\omega$, I make a slave of another, I enslave. The distinction is not always observed; for instance, $\pi \lambda \eta \theta \dot{\nu} \nu \omega$ may be either I multiply, transitive, or I abound, intransitive. Verbs in $-\dot{\epsilon}\omega$ often have the sense of becoming or acting that which the noun denotes. Thus, 'lovaaios, a Jew; lovaai $\zeta\omega$, I act the Jew (Gal. ii. 14).

The principal denominative verbal terminations are as follow:-

-άω, as τιμάω, to honour (τιμή).

-έω, ,, πολεμέω, to make war (πολέμος).

-όω, ,, δουλόω, to enslave (δοῦλος).

-άζω, ,, ἐργάζομαι, to work (ἔργον).

- $l\zeta\omega$, ,, $\dot{\epsilon}\lambda\pi\dot{\epsilon}\zeta\omega$, to hope $(\ddot{\epsilon}\lambda\pi\dot{\epsilon}s)$.

-αίνω, ,, λευκαίνω, to whiten (λευκός).

-εύω, ,, βασιλεύω, to reign (βασιλεύς).

-ύνω, ,, πληθύνω, to abound, multiply $(\pi\lambda\hat{\eta}\theta os_f)$.

b. Verbs from simpler verbal stems are "inceptives" in -σκω, as γηράσκω, to grow old; "frequentatives" or "emphatic verbs," as βαπτίζω, to baptize (βάπτω); and "causatives," as μεθύσκω, to intoxicate (μεθύω); γαμίζω or γαμίσκω, to give in marriage (γαμέω). To these, as anomalous derivatives from Perfects, may be added στήκω, to stand, from the Perfect ἔστηκα; and γρηγορέω, to watch, from ἐγρήγορα, the reduplicated Second Perfect of ἐγείρω.

145. GENERAL REMARK ON DERIVATION.

It often happens that the original of a derivative does not appear in the language in its simpler form; and still more frequently, that it is not found in the New Testament. On the other hand, the actual derived forms are far fewer than the possible.

The copiousness and fertility of the Greek as a living language depended especially on the power which it possessed of expressing new thoughts and shades of thought by words framed according to strict analogy, and therefore competent to take their place at once without question in the vocabulary. The language of science among ourselves—which, in fact, is borrowed from the Greek—furnishes an illustration of the same power to accompany, with equal step, the progress of knowledge and of thought.

CHAPTER X.—ON THE FORMATION OF COMPOUND WORDS.

146. Compound words are either parathetic or synthetic in their formation.

In parathetic* compounds, both words retain their form and meaning, subject only to the laws of euphony. They are, therefore, merely placed side by side, as it were, though they are written as one word. This is the case with all verbs compounded with prepositions, as $\tilde{\epsilon}\kappa\beta\acute{a}\lambda\lambda\omega$, from $\tilde{\epsilon}\kappa$ and $\beta\acute{a}\lambda\lambda\omega$; $\tilde{\epsilon}\pi\acute{\epsilon}\rho\chi\sigma\mu\alpha\iota$, from $\tilde{\epsilon}\pi\acute{\epsilon}$ and $\tilde{\epsilon}\sigma\chi\sigma\mu\iota$; $\kappa\alpha\theta\acute{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\eta\mu\iota$, from $\kappa\alpha\tau\acute{\epsilon}$ and $\tilde{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\eta\mu\iota$; $\sigma\nu\gamma\chi\alpha\acute{\epsilon}\rho\omega$, from $\sigma\acute{\epsilon}\nu$ and $\chi\alpha\acute{\epsilon}\rho\omega$. (The changes in the terminations of some of the above prepositions need no explanation.)

In synthetic† compounds, the former word, a noun or a verb, loses all inflection; while the latter often takes a form which it could not have had out of composition. The words are therefore pluced in close union, and really make one word: as φιλόσοφος, from φίλος and σοφία.

147. PARATHETIC COMPOUNDS.

The former word of a parathetic compound is almost always in the New Testament a particle, i.e., a preposition or an adverb; never a verb.

The signification of many compounds can be satisfactorily ascertained only from the Lexicon, as the meaning of the prefix is often modified by that of the principal word.‡ It will, however, be helpful to the

^{*} From παρά and θε- (τίθημι), "set side by side."

[†] From σύν and θε-, "set together or com-posed"

[‡] So in English: e.g., the particle over varies its meaning in the words overthrow, overtake, overrun, overtime, overbearing; the fundamental signification being, however, discernible in all.

learner to have at one view the chief significations of the particles used in composition. The following table (a) should be compared with that in § 124; and a little thought will trace the connexion in each case between the primitive significations (printed in italics) and the secondary meanings that follow.

a. The Prepositions, as used in Composition.

άμφι, round about.

åva-, up, back again.

avri-, instead of, against, in return for.

åπο-, away from, dismission, completeness.

Sia-, through, thorough, between.

els-, into.

έκ- (ἐξ- before a vowel, ἐγ- before a guttural), out of, forth, utterly.

έν- (έμ- before a labial mute, or μ), in, upon, intrinsically.

έπι-, upon, to, in addition.

ката-, down, downright, against.

µета-, with, participation, change.

παρα-, beside, beyond, along.

περι-, around, over and above, excess.

προ-, before, forward.

προς-, towards, in addition to.

συν (συμ- before a labial, mute, or μ; συγ- before a guttural), with, association, compression.

ὑπο-, under, concealment, repression.

b. Separable Particles (Adverbs) in Composition.

å- (from äμα), together, as äπας (-ντ-), all together.

άρτι-, lately, only in ἀρτιγέννητος, new-born (1 Pet. ii. 2).

ed-, well, prosperously.

παλιν-, again, only in παλιγγενεσία, regeneration (Matt. xix. 28; Titus iii. 5).

παν-, all (from neuter of παντ-).

τηλε-, afar off, only in τηλαυγώς, distinctly (Mark viii. 25).

c Inseparable Particles in Composition.

à- (from ἀνά), intensive: perhaps only in ἀτενίζω, to gaze steadfastly.

à- or àv-, not, the usual negative prefix, answering to our un-.

Sus-, hardly or ill, like our dis-, mis-, or un-.

ήμι-, half (Latin, semi-), only in ήμιθανής, half-dead, and ήμιώριον, half an hour.

The Prepositions (Table a), when used in the composition of nouns and adjectives, generally mark a secondary formation, i.e., a derivation from a compound verb. Thus, ἀπόστολος, apostle, is not from ἀπό and στόλος, but from ἀποστέλλω, to send forth. So ἀποστολή, apostleship. Again, from ἐκλέγομαι, to choose out, come ἐκλεκτός, chosen, elect; and ἐκλογή, election. Some such nouns and adjectives, however, are found, without any corresponding compound verb.

The Adverbs and Inseparable Particles (Tables b, c) (except b-negative) are generally used with substantives and adjectives, not with verbs.

Two Prepositions may be combined in the formation of a word, the characteristic formative force of each being retained. Thus, καθίστημι, to establish, ἀποκαθίστημι, to restore; παρακαλέομαι, passive, to be comforted,* συμπαρακαλέομαι, to be comforted together; εἰσάγω, to introduce, παρεισάγω, to introduce by the bye (2 Pet. ii. 1). So παρεισήλθεν (Romans v. 20), entered by the way. Again, ἀντιλαμβάνομαι is to help, generally (lit., "to take hold of, over against"), but συναντιλαμβάνομαι is to help by coming into association with (as Luke x. 40; Romans viii. 26).

148. Synthetic Compounds.

In synthetic compounds the former word is a noun or a verb, never a particle.

When the former word is a noun, if its stem does not already ^{*} Literally, to be called to one's side: i.e., for purposes of consolation, or, it might be, of exhortation, or advocacy. Hence the word Παράκλητος has the threefold meaning of Comforter, Exhorter, Advocate. (See John xiv. 16, 26; 1 John ii. 1.)

end in -0, the vowel -0- is commonly added as a connective, when the latter word begins with a consonant, as, from καρδία, καρδι-0-γνώστης.

When the former word is a verb, the connecting vowel is usually -1-, as from $\mathring{a}\rho\chi\omega$, $\mathring{a}\rho\chi$ -1- $\sigma\nu\nu\mathring{a}\gamma\omega\gamma\sigma$; but sometimes -0-, as $\mathring{\epsilon}\theta\epsilon\lambda$ -0- $\theta\rho\eta\sigma\kappa\epsilon\mathring{a}$. The form of a verbal noun is often used, as from $\mathring{\delta}\epsilon\mathring{\delta}\omega$ ($\mathring{\delta}\epsilon\mathring{i}\sigma\iota$ s), $\mathring{\delta}\epsilon\iota\sigma\iota$ - $\mathring{\delta}a\mathring{\iota}\mu\omega\nu$.

Compound verbs of this class usually take their form from a compound noun; the verb thus appearing in a shape which it cannot have out of composition: as, εὐχαριστέω, to give thanks, from εὐχάριστος, not from εὐ and χαριστέω; φιλοτιμέομαι, to be ambitious, from φιλότιμος, not from φίλος and τιμέομαι.

In synthetic compounds the latter word generally has the leading significance, and is defined or modified by the former.

The following compounds illustrate the foregoing remarks:-

οίκο-δεσπότης, householder.

κακ-οῦργος, evildoer (κακός ἔργον).

αίματ-εκχυσία, bloodshedding (αίμα, ἔκχυσις from ἐκ and χέ $(F)\omega$).

καρδι-ο-γνώστης, one who knows the heart.

άρχ-ι-συνάγωγος, ruler of the synagogue.

μακρό-θυμος (adjective), μακροθυμία (substantive), long-suffering.

δωδεκά-φυλον (neuter substantive), ten tribes (Acts xxvi. 7).

δευτερό-πρωτος, second-first (Luke vi. 1), probably, "the first Sabbath in the second year of the Sabbatical cycle of seven years." See Wieseler's "Chronological Synopsis of the Four Gospels," II. ii. 4. Wieseler fixes the year as 782, A.U.C.

149. ILLUSTRATION OF THE VARIETIES OF DERIVATION AND COMPOSITION.

The root κρι-, verbal stem κριν-, primary meaning to separate, may be taken as illustrating the variations and combinations of a Greek word.

First, we have simple derivatives, formed as in Chapter IX.:—

κρίνω, to separate, or judge.

κρίσις, the process of separation, or judgment.

κρίμα, the act or result of judgment, sentence.
κριτήριον, a standard of judgment, or tribunal.
κριτής, a judge.
κριτικός (adjective), able to judge, a discoverer (Heb. iv. 12).
```

Next, we note the composition of the verb with different prepositions:—

άνακρίνω, to inquire, estimate.
διακρίνω, to distinguish, separate, decide; middle, to hesitate, έγκρίνω, to judge, or reckon, among (2 Cor. x. 12).
ἐπικρίνω, to adjudge (Luke xxiii. 24).
κατακρίνω, to give judgment against, condemn.
συγκρίνω, to judge together, compare.
ἀποκρίνομαι, to answer.
ἀνταποκρίνομαι, to aussuer against (Luke xiv. 6; Rom. ix. 20).
ὑποκρίνομαι, to dissemble (Luke xx. 20).
συνυποκρίνομαι, to dissemble with any one (Gal. ii. 13).

We may then note the various compound substantives, which may be compared with the corresponding verbs:—

ανάκρισις, an examination (Acts xxv. 26).
απόκρισις, an answer.
διάκρισις, the act of distinguishing, discernment.
κατάκρισις, condemnation.
ὑπόκρισις, dissimulation, hypocrisy.
ἀπόκριμα, a sentence, as of death, or, response (2 Cor. i. 9).
κατάκριμα, a sentence of condemnation.
πρόκριμα, a prepossession, prejudice (1 Tim. v. 21).
ὑποκριτής, lit. a stage-player, a hypocrite.

We now take a group of negative compounds :-

άδιάκριτος, not subject to distinction, impartial or sincere (James iii. 17).

ἀκατάκριτος, uncondemned. ἀνυπόκριτος, unfeigned Finally, the New Testament contains three instances of the composition of this root with nouns and pronouns:—

αὐτοκατάκριτος, self-condemned (Titus iii. 11).

εἰλικρινής (from εῖλη, sunshine, cognate with ἥλιος), judged of in the sunlight, pure, sincere (Phil. i. 10; 2 Pet. iii. 1).

είλικρινεία (from the above), sincerity.

Many other compounds of this root exist, but these are all which the New Testament contains.

CHAPTER XI.—FOREIGN WORDS IN NEW TESTAMENT GREEK.

150. Languages of Palestine.—Hebrew.

Two languages were spoken and understood in Palestine. The one, called in the New Testament "the Hebrew tongue" (Acts xxii. 2; xxvi. 14), was in reality a very considerable modification of the Old Testament Hebrew, and is generally now termed "the Syro-Chaldaic," or "the Aramaic" (from Aram, the Hebrew word for Syria). This was the language of the people, and, to some uncertain extent,* remained in colloquial use until the destruction of Jerusalem.

Some critics believe that St. Matthew's Gospel was originally written in Aramaic, and that the book as it appears in the New Testament is a more or less literal translation. In this opinion we do not concur; but there can be no doubt that in the days of our Lord the ancient language was still most fondly cherished by the people. Expressions that fell from the Saviour's lips in moments of deep emotion, in the performance of signal miracles, in Gethsemane, and on the Cross, are carefully recorded; and other words of technical character, or religious association, or homely use, are also found in the native tongue of Israel.

151. Introduction of Greek.

But as a direct result of the conquests of Alexander the Great and his successors, the Greek tongue had been carried into almost all the countries of the civilized world, and had become the medium of commercial intercourse, the language of the courts, and, in fact, the universal literary tongue of the provinces afterwards absorbed in the Roman Empire. The natives of Alexandria and of Jerusalem, of Ephesus, and even of Rome, alike adopted it; everywhere with characteristic modifications, but substantially the same. Hence it had become a necessity to translate the Old Testament Scriptures into Greek; and as this great work was executed by Alexandrian Jews, its language not only shows the influence of the Hebrew original, but contains special forms and peculiarities of expression indigenous to Egypt. This translation, or "the Septuagint,"* naturally became the basis of all subsequent Jewish Greek literature, and in particular of the New Testament, which, however, to the Egyptian superadds Palestinian influences. It was in the Greek of the Septuagint thus modified that, in all probability, our Lord and His apostles generally spoke. The dialect of Galilee (Matt. xxvi. 73) was not a corrupt Hebrew, but a provincial Greek.

^{*} See on the whole subject, Dr. Roberts' "Discussions on the Gospels."

The New Testament writers, it should be noted, differ considerably from one another in style. The Book of Revelation, for instance, is very unlike the writings of the Apostle Paul. All, again, vary greatly from classical models, both in vocabulary and syntax, exchanging the elaborate harmonies of Attic Greek for simpler constructions and homelier speech.

152. Infusion of Latin.

The Roman conquest and tenure of Palestine may be thought likely to have stamped some lasting traces on the language. Such traces undoubtedly appear in the New Testament; but, considering the might of the dominant people, these are marvellously few. The Romans could impose their laws, their polity, their military power, upon vanquished nations, but not their speech. Certainly, there are some Latin words in the New Testament; but these are almost wholly nouns denoting military rank or civil authority, coins, or articles of dress; a valuable historic testimony, were there none beside, how "the sceptre had departed from Judah, and a lawgiver from between his feet."

^{*} That is "the Seventy" (often quoted as LXX.), from the traditional number of translators.

By way of illustration to the foregoing remarks, lists are here appended of the chief Aramaic (or Syro-Chaldaic) and Roman terms contained in the New Testament.

153. Hebrew and Aramaic Words and Phrases.

The Hebrew root is in a few cases assimilated to the forms of the Greek language; but is oftener simply transcribed, and used without declension or conjugation.

a. Assimilated words are the following:—

Μεσσίας, MESSIAH, "the Anointed." This word occurs only in John i. 41, iv. 25; the Greek equivalent, Χριστός, from χρίω, to anoint, being everywhere else employed.

Φαρισαίος, Pharisee, from a Hebrew word, meaning to separate. and Σαδδουκαΐος, Sadducee, from another, meaning to be righteous, are of constant occurrence—"Separatists" and "Moralists."

μαμμωναs (gen. -a, dat. -a), Mammon, riches (Matt. vi. 24; Luke xvi. 9, 11, 13). Its derivation is uncertain; but there is no reason for supposing that it was anywhere the name of a false deity.

άρραβών, -ωνος, a pledge, or earnest (2 Cor. i. 22, v. 5).

On σάββατον, sabbath, see § 32, b.

γέεννα, -ης, from two words signifying valley of Hinnom; hence, metaphorically, for the place of future punishment (see 2 Kings, xxiii. 10; Isa. xxx. 33; Jer. vii. 31).

b. Indeclinable words are more numerous. i. The following may rank among proper names, on which class of words see further, § 157:-

'Ακελδαμά, field of blood (Acts i. 19).

Βεελζεβούλ, lord of dung (Matt. xii. 24, &c.), a contemptuous Jewish turn to the name of the Ekronite god Beelzebub, "lord of flies" (see 2 Kings i. 2, 3). Hence "prince of the demons."

Boaνεργές, Sons of thunder (Mark iii. 17).

Γαββαθά, the Pavement, or Tribunal (John xix. 13).

Γολγοθά, the Place of a skull, or of skulls (Matt. xxvii. 33; Mark xv. 22; John xix. 17), called in Greek Κρανίον (Luke xxiii. 33), where our word Calvary is taken from the Vulgate.

'Ρεμφάν, probably the planet Saturn (Acts vii. 43, from Amos v. 26, LXX.)

ii. Other Syro-Chaldaic nouns are as follow :-

'Aββâ, Father, in confidence, endearment, or entreaty (Mark xiv. 36; Rom. viii. 15; Gal. iv. 6).

κορβαν, gift (Mark vii. 11), κορβανας (decl. Matt. xxvii. 6), treasury.

μάννα, lit. "what is this?" manna (Exod. xvi. 15; John vi. 31, 49, 58; Heb. ix. 4; Rev. ii. 17).

 $\mu\omega\rho\dot{\epsilon}$, fool! (Matt. v. 22) may be a Greek vocative ($\mu\omega\rho\dot{\epsilon}s$), but is more probably an Aramaic word of similar sound, denoting utter mental and moral worthlessness.

πάσχα, Passover.

ράββί, my master! lit. "my great one!" (Matt. xxiii. 7, &c.) So ράββονί (Mark x. 51), and ράββονιί (John xx. 16).

ράκα, a term of contempt, from a Hebrew root signifying emptiness, or vanity (Matt v. 22).

σαβαώθ, hosts, i e., the hosts of heaven (Rom. ix. 29; Jas. v. 4). σίκερα, strong drink (Luke i. 15).

χερουβίμ, cherubim, Hebrew plural of cherub (Heb. ix. 5).

c. Aramaic Phrases.—ἀλληλούϊα, praise ye Jehovah! (Rev. xix. 1, 3, 4, 6.)

 $\dot{a}\mu\dot{\eta}\nu$, after ascriptions of praise, so let it be; before assertions, verily.

¿φφαθά, be opened! (Mark vii. 34.)

'Ηλὶ, 'Ηλὶ, λαμὰ σαβαχθανί; My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me? (Matt. xxvii. 46,) from Ps. xxii. 1; the last word being the Aramaic equivalent of the original Hebrew verb. 'Ηλι is my God, from the Hebrew El. Mark xv. 34, reads Ἐλωΐ.

μαραναθά, The Lord cometh ! (1 Cor. xvi. 22.) (The word preceding, ἀνάθεμα, accursed, is pure Greek, and should be followed by a colon or period.)

ταλιθά κοῦμι, Maiden, arise! (Mark v. 41.)

&σαννά, Save now! (Matt xxi. 9; Mark xi. 9, 10; John xii. 13,) taken from Ps. exviii. 25.

154. LATIN WORDS.

a. Names of Coins.—κοδράντης, "quadrans," farthing" (Matt.
 v. 26; Mark xii. 42), the fourth part of the ἀσσάριον, "as," (diminutive term), also rendered farthing in E.V. (Matt. x. 29; Luke xii. 6), the sixteenth part of the δηνάριον, "denarius," rendered penny (as in Matt. xviii. 28, &c.), silver coin, worth about 74d.

b. Judicial.—σικαρίος, "sicarius," assassin (Acts xxi. 38). φραγέλλιον, φραγέλλόω, "flagellum, flagello," scourge (noun and verb) (John ii. 15; Matt. xxvii. 26; Mark xv. 15).

c. ΜΙΕΙΤΑRY. — κεντυρίων, "centurio," centurion (Mark xv. 39, 44, 45). Elsewhere the Greek ἐκατόνταρχος (or χης) is employed. κουστωδία, "custodia," guard (Matt. xxvii. 65, 66; xxviii. 11). λεγεών, "legio," legion (Matt. xxvi. 53; Mark v. 9, 15; Luke viii. 30).

πραιτώριον, "prætorium," officer's or governor's quarters, palace (Matt. xxvii. 27; Phil. i. 13, &c.).

σπεκουλάτωρ, "speculator," member of the royal guard (Mark vi. 27).

d. Political. — κῆνσος, "census," tribute (Matt. xvii. 25; xxii. 17).

κωλωνία, "colonia," colony (Acts xvi. 12). λιβερτίνοι, "libertini," freedmen (Acts vi. 9).

e. Articles of Dress.—λέντιον, "lenteum," towel (John xiii. 4, 5).

σιμικίνθιον, "semicinctium," apron (Acts xix. 12). σονδάριον, "sudarium," handkerchief (Luke xix. 20, &c.).

f. General.—ζιζάνιον, "zizanium," wild darnel, "lolium" (Matt. xiii. 25-40).

κράββατος, "grabbatus," mattrass or small couch (Mark ii. 4, &c.)

μάκελλον, "macellum," shambles, meat-market (1 Cor. x. 25). μεμβράνη, "membrana," parchment (2 Tim. iv. 13).

μίλιον, " milliare," mile (Matt. v. 41).

μόδιος, "modius," a measure (about an English peck, Matt. v. 15, &c.).

ξέστης, "sextus, sextarius," a small measure (about an English pint), pitcher (Mark vii. 4).

ρέδη, "rheda," chariot (Rev. xviii. 13).

ταβέρνη, "taberna," tavern (Acts xxviii. 15).

τίτλος, "titulus," title, superscription (John xix. 19, 20).

φόρον, "forum," part of the name Appii Forum (Acts xxviii. 15). χάρτης, "charta," paper (2 John 12).

(For Latin Proper Names, see Chapter XII.)

CHAPTER XII.—NEW TESTAMENT PROPER NAMES.

155. The personal names of the New Testament are in general derivative or composite words, originally with a specific meaning. They belong to three languages—Hebrew, Greek, and Latin (compare Chap. XI.)—a circumstance which occasions some little difficulty and confusion, especially since the Hebrew names sometimes appear in the forms of the Greek declension, sometimes, as in their original shape, indeclinable. Our translators, too, have occasionally adopted different renderings of the same Greek name, and in many cases have made the New Testament English form different from that in the Old.

156. Hebrew Names.

a. The original indeclinable Hebrew forms may end in almost any letter; as, e. g, 'Αβιούδ, 'Αβραάμ, 'Ισραήλ, 'Ελισάβετ, 'Ιεφθαέ, Νῶε, 'Ησαῦ, 'Ιεριχῶ. Such forms are generally oxytone. So 'Εμμανουήλ, God with Us.

b. The following names are found both in indeclinable and declinable forms:—

Ίερουσαλήμ and Ἱεροσόλυμα, -ων,* Jerusalem.

Σαούλ and Σαῦλος, Saul.+

'Ιακώβ, Jacob (Old Testament), and 'Ιάκωβος, James (New Testament).

^{*} Once Ἱεροσόλυμα appears as a feminine singular (Matt. ii. 3; so, perhaps, iii. 5?).

⁺ The Hebrew form occurs only in the accounts of Saul's conversion (Acts ix., xxii., xxvi., except xiii. 21, in reference to the Old Testament king).

Συμεών, Simeon (Old Testament), and Σίμων, -ωνος, Simon* (New Testament).

Λευΐ, Levi (Old Testament), and Λευΐς, Levi (Matthew, New Testament). Compare § 32.

- c. Hebrew names in ah appear in the form -as (see § 20, a). Those in iah, or jah, a form of the name of the Supreme Being, Jehovah, are rendered into Greek by -ias: as 'Hλίas, Elijah; 'Hσαΐas, Isaiah. These, however, take a genitive in -ov. (Μεσσίαs, Anointed, is of a different derivation.)
- d. The circumflexed termination - $\hat{a}s$ (gen. - \hat{a}) marks some names belonging to the later Hebrew (or Aramaic): as $K\eta\phi\hat{a}s$, $Ba\rho a\beta\beta\hat{a}s$. To these must be added, $I\omega\hat{a}s$, Jonah, Jonas, or Jona.

More frequently, however, -as indicates the contraction of a Greek or Latin name, as shown §§ 158, b, 159, d.

157. Double Names.

- a. When two names are applied to the same person, one is sometimes the Hebrew (or Aramaic) appellation, the other its translation into Greek. Thus, Tabitha (Hebrew) and Dorcas (Greek) both signify "gazelle;" Thomas (Hebrew) and Didymus (Greek) both stand for "twin." So also Cephas (Hebrew) is translated by Peter, "stone."
- b. Some Greek names are mere vocal imitations of the Hebrew, the sound being imperfectly transferred. Thus, Judah, or Judas, becomes Theulas (Acts v. 36); while Levi may have given rise to the form Lebbaus. Some, again, have thought Alphaus (Matt. x. 3, &c.), and Clopas (John xix. 25), to be only two forms of the same Hebrew word. Cleopas (Luke xxiv. 18) is a different name from the latter. It is possible that Paul, Παίλος, may in like manner have sprung from the Hebrew Saul; or it had a Latin origin; see § 159, c.
 - c. In many cases, again, where two names are borne, one is a surname, either (1) from some characteristic circumstance, as Cephas or Peter of Simon, and Barnabas of Joses; or (2) a patronymic formed by the Aramaic Bar, "son," as Bar-jesus (son of Joshua, Ἰησοῦς) of Elymas, and possibly Bar-tolmai, Βαρθολομαῖος, of Nathanael; or (3) a local appellation, as Iscariot (Hebrew, "a man of Kerioth," see Josh. xv. 25), and Magdalene (Greek, "a woman of Magdala"). Observe that Canaanite, properly "Kananite," κανανίτης (Matt. x. 4; Mark iii. 18), is not a local name, but probably the Greek form of the Hebrew word for zealot, rendered (Luke vi. 15; Acts i. 13), Ζηλωτής.

d. When the name of the same person appears in a Græcised and a Hebrew style, the former would naturally be employed among the Gentiles and Hellenists; the latter among the Palestinian Jews. So Saul becomes Paul, when he starts on his first missionary tour (Acts xiii. 9), and ever afterwards retains the name.

158. Greek Names.

a. Pure Greek names are common, whether of Hellenists (i. e., Greek-speaking, or foreign Jews) or of Gentile converts. It has often been noticed that the names of all "the seven" (Acts vi.) are Greek. So throughout most of the Epistles. "Euodias," Eiodía (Phil. iv. 2), is a feminine form, and should have been rendered Euodia.

b. Many Greek composite names are contracted into forms in -âs: as Epaphroditus into Epaphras (Col. i. 7; iv. 12); Artemidorus into Artemas (Titus iii. 12); Nymphodorus into Nymphas (Col. iv. 15); Zenodorus into Zenas (Titus iii. 13); Olympiodorus into Olympas (Rom. xvi. 15); Hermodorus into Hermas (Rom. xvi. 14). The termination dōrus is from δῶρον, gift; and the former parts of these compounds are from the Greek mythology.

Other contractions are, Parmenas for Parmenides (Acts vi. 5); Demas, probably for Demetrius; Antipas, for Antipater; Apollos, for Apollonius. Σώπατρος (Acts xx. 4) and Σωσίπατρος (Rom. xvi. 21) seem to be the same name in different forms.

159. LATIN NAMES.

- a. The Latin names occur chiefly where we might expect them, in letters written to or from Rome. The chief are Cornelius, Aquila, Priscilla or Prisca, Caius, i.e., Gaius, Urban, Rufus, & Julia, Tertius, Quartus, Fortunatus, Marcus or Mark, Clement (Κλήμης, -εντος), Pudens, Claudia, and perhaps Linus (2 Tim. iv. 21). Some have thought that the last-mentioned was a Briton, Lin, of the household of Caractacus.
- b. Three names of Roman Emperors are also found in the New Testament in a Latin form, Augustus, 'Αυγούστος (Luke ii. 1; but the Greek equivalent, Σεβαστός, is found, referring to Nero, Acts xxv. 21, 25); Tiberius, Τιβέριος (Luke iii. 1); and Claudius, Κλαύδιος (as Acts xi. 28). The surname Cwsur, Καΐσαρ, is applied to Augustus (Luke ii. 1), to Tiberius (Luke iii. 1, &c.), to Claudius (Acts xi. 28), to Nero (Acts xxv. 8; Phil. iv. 22, &c.). Caligula is not mentioned.
- c. If the word Παῦλος be not, as is most likely, an imperfect Greek transcript of the Hebrew name Saul, it must also be referred to the class of Latin words, as in Rome it was the name of a noble house. Some have thought that the Apostle's family, on receiving the rights of Roman citizenship, had been adopted into this house; others, with even less likelihood, connect his assumption of the name with the conversion of Sergius Paulus (Acts xiii. 7—12).
- d. Latin names, like Greek, may be contracted. Thus Luke, Λοῦκας (rendered Lucas in E.V.; Philem. 24), is an abbreviated form of the Latin name Lucanus. Similarly, Silvanus (Σιλονανός) and Silas denote one person. Amplias (Rom. xvi. 8) is probably a contraction of the Roman name Ampliatus.

For the significance of these various names, the Lexicon may be consulted.

^{*} Rom. xvi. 9. This name is written in E.v. "Urbane," but it must be pronounced as a dissyllable.

PART III.

SYNTAX.

CHAPTER I.—CONSTRUCTION OF THE SIMPLE SENTENCE.

Subject—Copula—Predicate.

The laws of Universal Grammar, with regard to the construction and arrangement of Sentences, should be clearly borne in mind, that their special exemplifications in the Greek language may be understood. For the most part, it will be convenient to show the application of these laws under the heading of the parts of speech or forms of inflexion severally affected by them. A brief summary may, however, first of all be given, with the essential rules of construction.

- 161. A Sentence, or "thought expressed in words," consists of one or more Propositions.
- 162. The essentials of a Proposition are, the Subject and the
- 163. The Subject expresses the person or thing of which something is affirmed, desired, or asked, and must, therefore, be a noun substantive, or the equivalent of one.

Equivalents to nouns substantive are (1) personal pronouns, or (2) substantivized expressions, for which see § 202.

164. The Predicate expresses that which is affirmed, denied, or asked respecting the subject; and in its simplest form it is (1) a noun substantive or its equivalent, or (2) an adjective or its equivalent.

The equivalent of an adjective is a participle.

165. The simplest form of Proposition is that which connects Subject and Predicate by a tense of the substantive verb, to be, called the COPULA.

Acts xxiii. 6 : έγω Φαρισαίός είμι, I am a Pharisee.

Matt. xvi. 18: σὸ εἶ Πέτρος, thou art Peter.

Matt. xiii. 38: δ άγρός ἐστιν δ κόσμος, the field is the world.

Phil. iii. 3: ήμεις έσμεν ή περιτομή, we are the circumcision.

Acts xix. 15: ὑμεῖς τίνες ἐστέ; who are ye?

Eph. v. 16: ai ἡμέραι πονηραί είσι, the days are evil.

Luke v. 1: αὐτὸς ἦν ἐστώς, he was standing.

Luke xxi. 24: 'Γερουσαλήμ έσται πατουμένη, Jerusalem shall be trodden down.

The verb $\epsilon i\mu l$, to be, is the true copula; but some other verbs admit a similar construction, such as $b\pi d\rho\chi\omega$, to be essentially; $\gamma l\gamma ro\mu\alpha l$, to become; $\phi a l ro\mu\alpha l$, to appear; $\kappa a \lambda o l \mu a l$, to be called; $\kappa a \theta l l r ro\mu\alpha l$, to be set down as, or constituted. These are called Copulative Verbs, as they agree with $\epsilon l \mu l$ in their construction, although in reality embodying part of the predicate. See § 181.

166. The Copula is often omitted, where ambiguity is not likely to arise from its absence.

Matt. v. 5 : μακάριοι οἱ πραεῖς, blessed (are) the meek.

2 Tim. ii. 11: πιστὸς ὁ λόγος, faithful (is) the word.

Heb. xiii. 8: Ἰησοῦς Χριστὸς ... ὁ αὐτός, Jesus Christ (is) the same.

For the way to distinguish between an attributive adjective and a predicate in such cases, see § 206.

167. The Copula and Predicate are most generally blended in a verb, which is then called the Predicate. Thus, ἐγὼ γράφω, I write, is very nearly equivalent to ἐγώ εἰμι γράφων, I am writing.

The careful student will observe that the term predicate is applied to the adjective and the verb in different senses. In the latter case, it really means copula and predicate combined. An adjective or substantive predicate is sometimes called the "complement" of the verb with which it stands connected.

168. The substantive verb may become itself a Predicate, involving the notion of existence.

John viii. 58: ... ἐγώ εἰμι, Before Abraham was, I am.

Rev. xxi. 1: ή θάλασσα οὐκ ἔστιν ἔτι, the sea is no more.

But the phrase, $i\gamma\omega$ $i\mu$, it is I, occurring in the Gospels (as Matt. xiv. 27; Mark vi. 50; John vi. 20, xviii. 5, 6, 8), may mean one of three things; $i\gamma\omega$ being (1) subject or (2) predicate, or (3) the verb being predicate.

169. The Subject, when a personal pronoun, is generally omitted, if no special emphasis or distinction is intended; the number and person of the verb sufficiently showing its reference.

Thus, λέγω ὑμῶν (Matt. v. 18, 20; viii. 10, 11, ἀc.), I say unto you, is unemphatic; but in ἐγὼ λέγω ὑμῶν, I say unto you (v. 22, 28, 32, 39, 44), our Lord pointedly contrasts his own teaching with that of the Rabbis. So (v. 21) οὐ φονεύσεις, thou shalt not murder. Had the reading been σὺ οὐ φ..., the meaning would have been, "thou, in particular," shalt not. In Luke x. 23, 24, we read, "Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see (βλέπετε, unemphatic): for I tell you that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see" (ὑμῶς βλέπετε, emphatic, by way of antithesis to "prophets and kings." Again, σώσει is he shall save; αὐτὸς σώσει, he (emphatically, and none other) shall save (Matt. i. 21). See also Mark vi. 45, "until he (αὐτός) should send away the people," for no one else could do it. Observe also the repetition of αὐτοί, they, in the Beatitudes (Matt. v. 4–8).

The emphasis conveyed by the insertion of the pronominal subject is often too subtle to be expressed by translation; but it is always worth noting. (See Acts iv. 20; 1 Cor. xv. 30, &c.) The emphatic ἐγώ (1 Cor. ii. 1, 3, iii. 1), is very noticeable. So in many other passages.

170. The omitted Subject of the third person plural is often to be understood generally. Compare the English expressions, They say, &c.

Matt. v. 11: ὅταν ὀνειδίσωσιν ύμᾶς καὶ διώξωσι, when they reproach and persecute you, i.e., men in general.

John xx. 2: ἢραν τὸν Κύριον, they have taken away the Lord, i.e., some persons or other have.

See also Matt. viii. 16, Mark x. 13, they were bringing, i.e., from time to time; Luke xvii. 23, John xv. 6, where E.V. reads "men;" Acts iii. 2, &c.

171. Verbs in the third person singular, without a subject expressed, frequently imply some necessary or conventionally-understood Subject of their own.

1 Cor. xv. 52: σαλπίσε, lit., he shall sound the trumpet, a classical expression, implying δ σαλπιγκτής, the trumpeter, equivalent, as E.V., to the trumpet shall sound.

To this head are to be referred many so-called impersonals: as βρέχει, it rains (in First Aorist, James v. 17). The Greeks originally understood and sometimes expressed Zεῦς, or Θεός, with all such words. "He rains, thunders," &c.; hence passing into the impersonal usage. Again, φησί, λέγει, he or it says; once εἴρηκε, he or it hath said (Heb. iv. 4); once εἶπε, he or it said (1 Cor. xv. 27), are used as formulas of quotation; ή γραφή, the Scripture, to be supplied (compare Rom. iv. 3, &c.); or ὁ Θεός, God (see Matt. xix. 5).

See, for λέγει, 2 Cor. vi. 2; Gal. iii. 16; Eph. iv. 8, &c.; for φησί, 1 Cor. vi. 16; Heb. viii. 5.

Once, φησί seems to be used in the general sense, as plural; they say (2 Cor. x. 10); but many MSS. (and Lachmann) there read φασί.

172. The Nominative is the case of the Subject, and the Subject and Predicate must correspond in number and person; whence the grammatical rule called the First Concord. A Verb agrees with its nominative case in number and person.

For other uses of the Nominative, see §§ 242-244. All these are connected with its true use as Subject. It cannot be too strongly impressed upon the learner that the key to every proposition, however complicated, is in the nominative case and verb; that is, in the Subject and Predicate. To these all the other words are only adjuncts.

173. The great apparent exception to the First Concord is that a Neuter Plural nominative often takes a singular verb.

John ix. 3: îνα φανερωθη τὰ ἔργα τοῦ Θεοῦ, that the works of God may be manifested.

Acts i. 18: ἐξεχύθη πάντα τὰ σπλάγχνα αὐτοῦ, all his bowels gushed out.

2 Pet. ii. 20: γέγονεν τὰ ἔσχατα χείρονα, the lust things have become worse.

So in many other passages.

The reason for this idiom is undoubtedly that, as neuters generally express things without life, the plural is regarded as one collective mass.

174. Variations in this idiom are as follow:-

a. When the neuter nominative plural denotes animated beings, the verb is commonly in the plural number.

Matt. x. 21: ἐπαναστήσονται τέκνα ... καὶ θανατώσουσιν, Children shall rise up against ... and kill.

James ii. 19: τὰ δαιμόνια πιστεύουσιν καὶ φρίσσουσιν, the demons believe and tremble.

b. The usage, however, is by no means fixed. Thus, things without life are occasionally associated with a plural verb.

Luke xxiv. 11: ἐφάνησαν ... τὰ ῥήματα, the words appeared.

John xix. 31: "να κατεαγῶσιν τὰ σκέλη, that the legs might be broken.

c. Living Subjects are also found with a singular verb.

1 John iii. 10: φανερά ἐστιν τὰ τέκνα, κ.τ.λ., the children of God and those of the Devil, are manifest.

Luke viii. 30: δαιμόνια πολλά εἰσηλθεν, many demons went out.

d. In some passages the singular and plural seem used indiscriminately with the same Subjects.

John x. 4: τὰ πρόβατα αὐτῷ ακολουθεῖ ὅτι οἴδασιν, κ.τ.λ., the sheep follow him because they know his voice.

Ver. 27: τὰ πρόβατα ... ἀκούει καὶ ἀκολουθοῦσί μοι, the sheep hear my voice and follow me.

1 Cor. x. 11: ταῦτα πάντα συνέβαινον ... ἐγράφη δε, all these things happened, ... and were written.

The uncertainty of the usage in this matter has been a fruitful source of various readings. It is often difficult, if not impossible, to decide whether the singular or the plural is in the original text.

175. a. When the Subject is a collective noun in the singular, denoting animate objects, the verb may be put in the plural number. This construction is known as Rational Concord.*

Matt. xxi. 8: ὁ δὲ πλείστος ὅχλος ἔστρωσαν, κ.τ.λ, the greater part of the multitude strewed their (plural) garments in the way.

Luke xix. 37: ἤρξαντο ἄπαν τὸ πλῆθος, κ.τ.λ., all the multitude of the disciples began to praise God, rejoicing (also plural).

Rev. xviii. 4 : ἐξέλθετε, ὁ λαός μου, Come forth, my people I

b. The Singular and Plural are combined in some passages.

John vi. 2: ἠκολούθει ... ὄχλος πολύς ὅτι ἐώρων, a great multitude was following ... because they were seeing.

Acts xv. 12: ἐσίγησε $\pi \hat{a} \nu \tau \hat{o} \pi \lambda \hat{\eta} \theta o s$ καὶ ἤκουον, the whole number became silent, and were listening.

The singular, however, is the more usual construction.

176. a. When two or more nominatives, united by a copu-

^{*} Constructio ad sensum, or Ex animo loquentis, or Synesis.

lative conjunction, form the Subject, the verb is generally in the plural.

If the nominatives are of different persons, the first is preferred to the second and third, the second to the third; that is, I (or we) and you and he are resolved into we; you and he into you.

Acts iii. 1: Πέτρος καὶ Ἰωάννης ἀνέβαινον, Peter and John were going up.

John x. 30: ἐγὼ καὶ ὁ πατὴρ ἔν ἐσμεν, I and my Father are one.

1 Cor. ix. 6: ἐγὼ καὶ Βαρνάβας οὐκ ἔχομεν, κ.τ.λ., have not I and Barnabas authority? &c.

1 Cor. xv. 50: σὰρξ καὶ αῖμα ... οὐ δύνανται, flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God.

b. The verb, however, often agrees with the nearest Subject.

In this case the Predicate is to be understood as repeated with the other Subjects, or that with which the verb agrees is thrown into prominence, the others being subordinate.

It should be observed that in this construction the Greek verb usually precedes the nominatives.

Acts xvi. 31: σωθήση σὸ καὶ ὁ οἶκός σου, thou shalt be saved and thy house.

1 Tim. vi. 4: ἐξ ὧν γίνεται φθόνος, ἔρις, βλασφημίαι, κ.τ.λ. from which comes envy, strife, railings, &c.

In these two cases the verb is repeated in thought.

John ii. 12: κατέβη ... αὐτὸς καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, He went down, to Capernaum, himself and his disciples.

Here the one Subject is thrown into prominence; and the construction is the common one when the principal Subject is placed nearest the rarb. Compare Matt. xii. 3; Luke xxii. 14; John ii. 2, iv. 53, viii. 52, xviii. 15, xx. 3; Acts xxvi. 30; Philemon 23, 24, where the approved reading is ἀσπάζεται.

177. When the Predicate of a simple sentence is a noun or pronoun, united to the Subject by the copula, it corresponds with the Subject by the law of apposition, viz.:—

A substantive employed to explain or describe another, under the same grammatical regimen, is put in the same case.

John xv. 1 : ὁ Πατήρ μου ὁ γεωργὸς ἐστι, my Father is the husbandman.

It is unnecessary that the substantives should correspond in gender or number.

2 Cor. i. 14: καύχημα ύμῶν ἐσμεν, we are your boast.

2 Cor. iii. 3: ἐστὲ ἐπιστολὴ Χριστοῦ, ye are the epistle of Christ.

178. When the Predicate is an adjective, including adjective pronouns and participles, its agreement with the Subject comes under the Second Concord, viz.:—

Adjectives, pronouns, and participles agree with their substantives in gender, number, and case.

For further exemplification of this concord, see Chapters IV., V.

In simple sentences the case is of course the nominative. The agreement in gender and number may be illustrated by the following:—

Matt. vii. 29 : ἢν διδάσκων, he was teaching.

Matt. xiii. 31, &c.: $\delta\mu$ oía $\epsilon\sigma\tau$ iν $\hat{\eta}$ βασιλεία, κ.τ.λ., the kingdom of heaven is like, &c.

Mark v. 9: πολλοί ἐσμεν, we are many.

Luke xiv. 17: ετοιμά εστι πάντα, all things are ready.

John iv. 11: τὸ φρέαρ ἐστὶ βαθύ, the well is deep.

1 John v. 3: ai ἐντολαὶ αὐτοῦ βαρεῖαι οὐκ εἰσὶν, his commandments are not grievous.

Rev. vii. 14: οὖτοί εἰσιν οἱ ἐρχόμενοι, κ.τ.λ., these are they that are coming out of the great tribulation.

179. When the Subject is a collective noun, the adjective Predicate is sometimes plural. (Compare § 173.)

John vii. 49: ὁ ὅχλος οὖτος ... ἐπάρατοί εἰσιν, this multitude are accursed.

180. An adjective Predicate is occasionally generalized by being put in the neuter gender, though the Subject is masculine or feminine.

1 Cor. vi. 11: ταθτά τινες ητε, lit., some of you were this (these things).

1 Cor. vii. 19 : ή περιτομή οὐδέν ἐστι, circumcision is nothing.

181. The laws of apposition and concord, as above applied, may be restated in the form of the following rule:—

Copulative verbs require the Nominative case after as well as before them.

For the chief copulative verbs, see § 165, note.

John i. 14: δ Λόγος εγένετο σάρξ, the Word became flesh.

Acts xvi. 3 : "Ελλην ὑπῆρχεν, he was a Greek.

2 Cor. xiii. 7: Γνα ήμεις δόκιμοι φανώμεν, that we should appear approved, or "be manifestly approved."

Matt. v. 9: νίοι Θεού κληθήσονται, they shall be called sons of God.

Acts x. 32: $\Sigma(\mu\omega\nu\alpha$, & ethicalental Pétros, Sinon (accusative), who is surnamed Peter.

Romans v. 9: ἀμαρτωλοί κατεστάθησαν οί πολλοί, δίκαιοι κατασταθήσονται εί πολλοί, the many were made (lit., set down as) sinners, the many shall be made (lit., set down as) righteous.

182. Hitherto the rules and examples given have been designed to show the main elements alone of the simple sentence. Other words, however are very generally added to the Subject, to the Predicate, or to both, for the purpose of further explanation.

These words are called the complements of the simple sentence, and are variously said to complete, to extend, or to enlarge the Subject or the Predicate, as the case may be.

183. The Subject, which is essentially a noun substantive, may be extended by apposition with another noun, by the qualifying force of adjectives, pronouns, or the article, by dependent nouns, or by prepositional phrases.

For Apposition, see § 177.

For Adjectives, see Chapter IV.

For the Article, see Chapter II.

For the dependence of nouns one upon another, and for prepositional phrases, see Chapter III.

- 184. The Predicate, when a noun, may be extended in the same manner as the Subject.
- 185. When an adjective is Predicate, it may be extended by dependent nouns, by adverbs, or by prepositional phrases.
- 186. Verbal Predicates may be variously extended. Any verb may be qualified by an adverb. Prepositional phrases may be employed in this connection also. Especially, the meaning of a verb transitive requires to be completed by the Object or Objects, direct or indirect.

For the direct Object, see § 281.

For indirect Objects, see on the Genitive and Dative cases, Chapter III.

187. The complements of a simple sentence cannot include a verb, as this would introduce a distinct predication. Verbal clauses, therefore, forming part of a period are termed accessory clauses, and a sentence with one or more accessory clauses besides the principal one, is called a COMPOUND SENTENCE.

Accessory clauses, as related to the principal, are either coordinate or subordinate.

- 188. Co-ordinate accessory clauses are similar in construction to the principal, and are often connected with it and with one another by conjunctions. (See § 402, seq.)
- 189. Subordinate clauses are dependent upon the principal or upon the accessory clauses, or upon single words or phrases in either.

It is plain that subordinate clauses may be co-ordinate with one another.

190. The methods of introducing subordinate clauses are very various. The chief are, by the Relative Pronoun (§§ 343, 344), by the use of the Participials (participle or infinitive) (§§ 385—396), and by the Particles (§§ 383, 384).

Otherwise: subordinate clauses are Substantival, Adjectival, or Adverbial. A substantival clause expresses the subject or object of a verb, or stands in apposition, and usually employs the infinitive; an adjectival clause, qualifying a word or sentence, is introduced by a relative pronoun or conjunction, or employs a participle; and an adverbial clause is introduced by a conjunction, or employs a participle, or the oblique case of a noun.

191. It is often difficult to determine whether a certain phrase is a complement of the Subject, or of the Predicate.

Many illustrations might be given from the Epistle to the Romans. For instance: ch. i. 17 (ii. 4), δ δίκαιος ἐκ πίστεως ζήσεται, Iit. the righteous (man) from faith shall live. Are we to understand the prepositional phrase ἐκ πίστεως as the complement of the Subject δ δίκαιος, or of the Predicate ζήσεται In other words, are we to translate "The righteous man from faith (he that is righteous, or justified by faith) shall live?" or, "The righteous man shall live from faith?"

Again, iv. 1: are we to attach the prepositional phrase, κατὰ σάρκα, according to the flesh, with the word προπάτορα, forefather, in apposition with Abraham, the Subject of the accessory clause, or to the Predicate hath found?—that is, does the Apostle ask, "What shall we say that Abraham, our father as pertaining to the flesh, hath found?" or, "What shall we say that Abraham our father hath found as pertaining to the flesh?"

The true connection of accessory clauses is also occasionally doubtful.

For instance, in Acts iii. 21, it may be fairly discussed whether the relative clause, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets, belongs to the word times, or to all things.

Such questions of interpretation are not proposed for consideration here; their settlement must often depend, not only on the laws of construction, but on the signification of individual words. Reference is made to them only to show the necessity, to a right interpretation of a passage, of distinctly analyzing the parts of every compound sentence, and of assigning to each its right position. In our own language, this is comparatively easy, as the order of the sentence in general indicates the mutual relation of its parts; in Greek, through the number and variety of the inflections, the order is of little importance to the structure of the sentence, though of much to its emphasis.

192. As hints for disentangling a compound sentence, the following may be valuable:—

Search first for the predicate, or thing affirmed—usually, of course, a verb—then for the subject. These once fixed, every other verb will mark an accessory clause, which will have to be regarded apart. The remaining words, generally in close grouping with the Subject and Predicate, must be assigned to them respectively as their complements, according to the usages of the several parts of speech and forms of inflection. To these it is now necessary to turn, in order.

CHAPTER II.-THE ARTICLE.

Latin, Articulus; Greek, ἄρθρον (a joint). Hence, anarthrous, "without an article."

Construction of the Article.

- 193. The Article, δ , η , $\tau\delta$, the (see § 12), is usually employed, as in other languages, with nouns substantive. The Second Concord applies to this relation; the article agreeing with its noun in gender, number, and case.
- 194. This general usage, however, admits of many variations, attributable to the fact that the Article was originally a demonstrative pronoun.*

Its demonstrative use is clearly seen in the Apostle Paul's quotation (Acts xvii. 28), τοῦ γὰρ καὶ γένος ἐσμέν, we are his offspring.

195. A remnant of the old demonstrative use is, that the Article often stands without a noun expressed, like our this, that; the sense of the phrase showing who or what is to be understood.

For example, the phrase & per ... & & signifies this ... that, or the one ... the other.

Acts xiv. 4: οἱ μὲν ἦσαν σὺν τοῖς Ἰουδαίοις, οἱ δὲ σύν τοῖς ἀποστόλοις, some were with the Jews, others with the apostles.

In Matt. xiii. 23, δέ is repeated: ὁ μὲν έκατὸν, ὁ δὲ εξήκοντα, ὁ δὲ τριάκοντα, some a hundred, some sixty, some thirty.

See also Matt. xxii. 5; Mark xii. 5; Acts xvii. 32; Gal. iv. 22; Eph. iv. 11; Phil. i. 16, 17; Heb. vii. 20, 21.

^{*} The student may be reminded that the English article the, the German der, the French le, are also original demonstratives. So in other languages.

When δ $\delta\epsilon$ is used in narration, even without a preceding $\mu\epsilon\nu$, it always implies some other person previously mentioned, as—

Matt. ii. 5: οἱ δὲ εἶπον, and they said.

Mark xiv. 61: δ δè ἐσιώπα, and he was silent.

Acts xii. 15: ή δè διϊσχυρίζετο, and she steadfastly asserted.

So in innumerable passages.

196. The Article, disconnected from a noun, is often followed by a genitive.

Matt. x. 2: Ἰάκωβος ὁ τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου, James the (son) of Zebedee.

Mark xii. 17: ἀπόδοτε τὰ Καίσαρος, render the (things or rights) of Cæsar.

Gal. v. 24: οἱ τοῦ Χριστοῦ, the (servants or disciples) of the Christ, i.e., of the Anointed one.

2 Pet. ii. 22: τὸ τῆς ἀληθοῦς παροιμίας, the (saying) of the truthful proverb.

The plural neuter τά is very frequently used in this construction, as in the second of the above instances. So τὰ τοῦ νόμου, the things of the law; τὰ τοῦ Πνεύματος, the things of the Spirit; τὰ ἐαυτῶν, their own interests (lit. the things of themselves), and so on.

197. Similarly, the Article precedes a preposition with its Matt. v. 15: τοις έν τη οικία, to those in the house.

Mark i. 36: Σίμων καί οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ, Simon and those with him.

Luke ii. 39: τὰ κατὰ τὸν νόμον, the (things) according to the law.

Eph. i. 10: τὰ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς ... τὰ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, the (things) in the heavens ... the (things) on the earth.

Acts xiii. 13: οἱ περὶ τὸν Παῦλον, those about Paul, including himself (by a classic idiom), i.e., Paul and his associates. (See John xi. 19, Martha and Mary with their friends.)

Any of the prepositions may follow the Article; for their several significance, see Chapter II. § 288, &c.

198. A construction essentially similar is that of the Article with adverbs, the noun being supplied in thought.

Instances of this are: τὸ νῦν, the (thing) now: the present (Matt. xxiv. 21; Luke v. 10); ἡ σήμερον, to-day; ἡ αὕριον, the morrow (feminine, as if from ἡμέρα, day; Matt. vi. 34; xxvii. 62). So, in many passages, ὁ πλησίον, the (man who is) near, one's neighbour; τὰ ἄνω, the (things) above; τὰ κάτω, the (things) beneath; οι ἔξω, those without; τὰ ὁπίσω, the (things) behind; τὰ ἔμπροσθεν, the (things) before, &c.

In effect, the Article with an adverb is equivalent to an Adjective.

199. The Article is frequently placed before adjectives, the substantive being implied.

This construction belongs to all genders, and to both numbers. Instances of its occurrence are numberless. Thus:—

Mark i. 24: ὁ ἄγιος, the Holy (one).

Matt. vii. 6: 70 ayrov, the holy (thing).

Matt. xxiii. 15: τὴν ξηράν, the dry (land).

Luke xvi. 25: τὰ αγαθά, the good (things).

Eph. i. 3: ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις, in the heavenly (places).

1 Thess. iv. 16: οἱ νεκροὶ ἐν Χριστῷ, the dead in Christ.

Titus ii. 4: ἵνα σωφρονίζωσι τὰς νέας, that they may school the young (women).

Compare the ordinary English phrases, the good, the great, the wise, with the abstracts, the true, the right, the beautiful. In Greek, however, the usage is much more extended, and is exemplified also by anarthrous adjectives.

200. The Article is commonly also used before participles; the sense again supplying the noun.

Matt. i. 22: τὸ ἡηθέν, the (thing) spoken.

Matt. v. 4: οἱ πενθοῦντες, the (persons) mourning.

Matt. xi. 3: ὁ ἐρχόμενος, the coming (One).

Matt. xiii. 3: ὁ σπείρων, the (man) sowing, i.e., "a sower."

Matt. xxiii. 37: τοὺς ἀπεσταλμένους, the (persons) having been sent.

2 Cor. ii. 15: ἐν τοι̂ς σωζομένοις ... ἐν τοι̂ς ἀπολλυμένοις, in the (persons) being saved ... in the (persons) perishing.

It will appear from these and other instances that the most convenient way of translating the Article with the participle will often be by changing the phrase into a relative and finite verb. Thus, in the last two examples, we idiomatically and accurately render, those who have been sent, and those who are being saved ... those who are perishing.

For further details on this frequent and important construction, see Chap. VI. § 396.

201. The Infinitive Mood in all its tenses is treated as an indeclinable neuter substantive, and is often thus qualified by the article, the phrase expressing the abstract notion of the verb (See Chapter VI. §§ 388—390.)

Matt. xx. 23: τὸ καθίσαι ἐκ δεξιῶν, the sitting (lit., "the to-sit") on my right hand.

Matt. xiii. 3: τοῦ σπείρειν, (for the purpose) of sowing.

Matt. xiii. 4: ἐν τῷ σπείρειν, in the sowing.

Mark xiv. 28: μετὰ τὸ ἐγερθῆναι, after the rising.

Phil. i. 21: τὸ ζῆν Χριστος ... τὸ αποθανεῖν κέρδος, Living (is) Christ ... dying (is) gain.

This construction will be more fully illustrated under the head of the Infinitive. One caution here may not be out of place. The English form in ing may be either an adjective or a substantive. Thus we may say, a living man, or Living is enjoyment. In the former case, the word is a participle; in the latter, an infinitive; and in rendering into or from Greek, the two must be carefully discriminated.

202. Sometimes, again, whole phrases or sentences are qualified by a neuter Article; especially quotations, before which some such word as saying, proverb, command, may be supplied, or expressions of a question, problem, or difficulty.

Quotations are as in Matt. xix. 18: 70 00 φονεύσεις, 00 μοιχεύσεις, the (command) "thou shalt not steal, thou shalt not commit adultery."

See also Luke xxii. 37; Rom. xiii. 9; Gal. iv. 25, τδ Αγαρ, the (name) Hagar; Eph. iv. 9; Heb. xii. 27.

Expressions of the latter class are as in Luke i. 62: τὸ τί ἀν θέλοι καλεῖσθαι, the (question) what he would like (him) to be called.

Luke ix. 46: τὸ τίς ἄν εἴη μείζων, the (dispute) which should be greater.

Luke xxii. 4: τὸ πῶς αὐτὸν παραδῷ, the (scheme) how he might betray him.

Rom. viii. 26: τὸ τί προσευξώμεθα, the (question) how we should pray.

See likewise Luke xix. 38; Acts xxii. 30; 1 Thess. iv. 1, and a few other passages.

- 203. The employment of the Article with Pronouns is reserved for discussion in § 220.
- 204. Generally, an Infinitive, Participle, Adjective, or other word or phrase, qualified by the Article, is said to be substantivized, i.e., made virtually a Noun, and treated similarly in the sentence.

Significance of the Article: its Insertion or Omission.

205. The Article is strictly definite; and is used, as in other languages, to mark a specific object of thought.

Matt. vi. 22: ὁ λύχνος τοῦ σώματός ἐστιν ὁ ὀφθαλμός, the light of the body is the eye.

206. Hence arises the general rule, that in the simple sentence the Subject takes the article, the Predicate omits it.

The subject is definitely before the mind, the predicate generally denotes the class to which the subject is referred, or from which it is excluded, but the notion of the class is itself indeterminate.

Matt. xiii. 39: οί θερισταλ άγγελοί είσιν, the reapers are angels.

John iii. 6: τὸ γεγεννημένον ἐκ τῆς σαρκὸς σάρξ ἐστι, that which is born of the flesh is flesh, i.e., "partakes of that character."

John xvii. 17: ὁ λόγος ὁ σὸς ἀλήθειά ἐστι, thy word is truth.

John i. 1: Θεὸς ἦν ὁ λόγος, the Word was God.

1 John iv. 8: ὁ Θεὸς ἀγάπη ἐστι, God is love.

The Copula being frequently omitted (§ 166), the presence or absence of the Article with a nominative adjective will often decide whether it is a Predicate or an attribute of the Subject. Thus, πιστὸς ὁ λόγος, 2 Tim. ii. 11, must be rendered faithful is the word; ὁ πιστὸς λόγος would have been the faithful word.

Matt. v. 5: μακάριοι οἱ πραείς, blessed (are) the meek.

Rom. vii. 7: ὁ νόμος άμαρτία; is the law sin?

From an examination of these examples, it will appear that the use of the Article with the Subject, and its omission with the Predicate, is no grammatical expedient, but arises from their respective definiteness. Had the article been employed with the predicate in the above case, the sentences would have read thus: The reapers are the angels, the whole host; that which is born of the flesh is the flesh, i.e., is the part of human nature so denominated; Thy Word is the Truth, and nothing else can be so described; the Word was the entire Godhead, and God and Love are identical, so that in fact Love is God; the blessed are the meck, and one others; is the Law Sin? (see on the Article with abstracts, § 214) i.e., are Sin and Law the same thing? The meaning of every proposition would thus have been materially altered.

207. When the Article is found with the Predicate, an essential identity with the Subject is asserted.*

John i. 4: ή ζωὴ ἦν τὸ φῶς τῶν ἀνθρώπων, the life was the light of men, the only light.

2 Cor. iii. 17: ὁ Κύριος τὸ πνεῦμά ἐστιν, the Lord is the spirit, to which the passage relates.

^{*} This form of sentence answers to the affirmative proposition (in Sir W. Hamilton's Logic), in which the Predicate is "distributed."

1 John iii. 4: ἡ ἀμαρτία ἐστὶν ἡ ἀνομία, sin is transgression of law; and conversely, all transgression of law is sin.

Personal and other pronouns are very frequently the Subject when the Predicate is thus defined. (Matt. v. 13, xvi. 16, xxvi. 26, 28; Acts xxi. 38, &c.)

208. When a word is defined by some other expression occurring with it, the Article may be omitted. So in English, we may say, "The house of my father," or "My father's house," the word father's in the latter phrase rendering house definite.

This most frequently occurs in Greek when the qualifying word, being a substantive, omits the Article.

Matt. i. 1: βίβλος γενέσεως, the book of the generation.

1 Thess. iv. 15: ἐν λόγφ Κυρίου, in the word of the Lord.

But 1 Thess. i. 8: 6 doyos roû Kupiou, the word of the Lord.

In the four following cases, the Article, in conformity with the general rule, marks definiteness.

209. Monadic Nouns.—Objects of which there is but one of the kind, or only one of which is present to thought, are usually defined by the Article.

Thus, ὁ οὐρανός, heucen; ἡ γῆ, earth; ἡ θάλασσα, the sea; ὁ μέγας βασιλεύς, the great king.

Exceptions to this usage, and their reason, will be noted further on.

210. Individual Emphasis.—When some member of a class is singled out as bearing a distinctive character, the Article is employed.

Examples.—ή κρίσις, the judyment, i.e., the final judgment, as Matt. xii. 41, 42; Luke x. 14.

ή γραφή, αί γραφαί, the writing, writings, i.e., the Holy Scriptures, as Matt. xxii. 29; John x. 35; Rom. iv. 3, xv. 4.

- ή ἔρημος, the desert, i.e., that of Judæa, Matt. xi. 7; or that of Sinai, John iii. 14, vi. 31; Acts vii. 30; and perhaps Matt. iv. 1.*
 - ὁ πειράζων, the tempter (participle, according to § 200), i.e., Satan.
- δ έρχόμενος, the coming one (participle, present), i.e., the Messiah. Matt. xi. 3, xxi. 9, xxiii. 39; Heb. x. 37. Compare Rev. i. 4, 8, iv. 8.
- 211. Singular for Collective. A noun in the singular number with the Article occasionally stands for the whole class. Compare such English expressions as "he looked the king," "the good man is a law to himself."

Matt. xii. 35: ὁ ἀγαθὸς ἄνθρωπος, the good man, denoting good men generally.

Matt. xii. 29: τοῦ ἰσχυροῦ, of the strong man, any one who possesses that attribute.

Matt. xv. 11: τὸν ἄνθρωπον, the man, whoever he may be.

Matt. xviii. 17: δ έθνικὸς καὶ ὁ τελώνης, the heathen man and the publican.

Luke x. 7: δ ἐργάτης, the labourer, generally.

2 Cor. xii. 12: σημεία τοῦ ἀποστόλου, signs of the apostle, i.e., of any rightful claimant of that character.

Gal. iv. 1: 6 κληρονόμος, one who is heir.

James v. 6: τον δίκαιον, the righteous man, generally.

To this head also, perhaps, belongs John iii. 10, σδ εῖ δ διδάσκαλος; art thou the teacher? i.e., is that the position thou hast taken? Or, as in the preceding instances, the word may mark a special emphasis, Nicodemus having in some eminent way the character of Rabbi.

^{*} Strong reasons have been assigned for the belief that "the wilderness" of our Lord's temptation was the same as that through which the Israelites journeyed to Canaan. See Mark i. 13, and compare our Lord's quotations with their original reference. Note also the parallels between our Lord's history and those of Moses and Elijah. Webster and Wilkinson on Matt. iv. 1 may be usefully consulted on these points.

- 212. Renewed Mention.—A person or thing is often made definite by mention (without the Article) in a paragraph, the Article being employed in subsequent reference.
- Matt. ii. 1: there came wise men, μάγοι. Ver. 7, Herod having called the wise men, τοὺς μάγους.

Matt. xiii. 25: the enemy came and sowed tares, ζίζάνια. Ver. 26, then appeared the tares, τὰ ζίζάνια.

In like manner compare Luke ix. 16 with ver. 13; John iv. 43 with ver. 40; xx. 1 with xix. 41; Acts xi. 13 with x. 3, 22; James ii. 3 with ver. 2; 2 Thess. ii. 11, the falsehood, referring to ver. 9 (lit.), wonders of (in support of) a falsehood.

Sometimes the reference is implicit, the second expression, bearing the article, being equivalent to the former, though not identical.

Acts xx. 13: ἐπὶ τὸ πλοῖον, on board the ship, implied in ver. 6, "we sailed away."

- Heb. v. 4: τὴν τιμήν, the honour, referring to the first verse, "that he may offer gifts and sacrifices."
- 1 Pet. ii. 7: ἡ τιμὴ κ.τ.λ., the preciousness is for you who believe, i.e., that spoken of in the previous verse, "a corner-stone, elect, precious."
- 213. It is a remark of great importance (Winer) that "it is utterly impossible that the Article should be omitted where it is decidedly necessary, or employed where it is quite superfluous or preposterous." "It would be a revolution of the laws of thought to express as definite that which is conceived indefinitely." Attention to this will add vividness and suggestiveness to many a passage in which our Authorized Version has failed to reproduce the force of the original. From a great number of texts to which this remark applies, the following may be selected:—
- Matt. i. 23 (Isa. vii. 14): ή παρθένος, the virgin, i.e., the personage so denominated.

Matt. v. 1: τὸ ὄρος, the mountain; the high ground over-looking the spot. (See also Luke vi. 12.)

Matt. v. 15: τὸν μόδιον, τὴν λυχνίαν, the modius, the lamp-stand, recognised articles of furniture in every house.

Matt. ix. 1, xiii. 2: τὸ πλοῖον, the ship, belonging to the disciples, or hired for their use. (So John xxi. 3, &c.)

Matt. xv. 26: τοῖς κυναρίοις, to the little dogs, i.e., belonging to the household. (So Mark vii. 27.)

Matt. xvii. 24: τὰ δίδραχμα, the half-shekels, the well-known, customary payment.

Matt. xxi. 12: τὰς περιστερώς, the doves, the accustomed offerings of the poor.

Matt. xxiii. 24: τὸν κώνωπα, τὴν κάμηλον, the gnat, the camel, of some popular fable or proverb.

Luke xii. 54: τὴν νεφέλην, the cloud, "rising out of the west," of that peculiar character which foretells much rain. (1 Kings xviii. 44, 45.)

John iv. 22: ή σωτηρία, the salvation, expected by Israel.

John xiii. 5: τὸν νιπτῆρα, the basin, used en such occasions.

John xvi. 13: πᾶσαν τὴν ἀλήθααν, all the truth, in reference to this particular subject. (Compare Mark v. 33.)

John xviii. 3: τὴν σπεῖραν, the band, on duty at the time.

Acts xvii. 1: ή συναγωγή των 'Ιουδαίων, the synagogue of the Jews, i.e., the chief or only synagogue of that particular district.

Acts xx. 9: ἐπὶ τῆς θυρίδος, at the window, or open lattice of the apartment.

Acts xxi. 38: τους τετρακισχιλίους, the four thousand, the notorious band of desperadoes.

Acts xxiv. 23: τῷ ἐκατοντάρχη, the centurion, i.e., the captain of the cavalry who had sole charge of the Apostle when the infantry (xxiii. 32) had returned to Jerusalem.

1 Cor. i. 21: διὰ τῆς μωρίας τοῦ κηρύγματος, by means of the joulistness of the producedion, i.e., by the (so-called) folly of the preached Gospel.

1 Cor. iv. 5: 6 &mauvos, the praise, which is due, respectively, to each.

1 Cor. v. 2: ἐν τὰ ἐπιστολῆ, in the letter, referred to thus as well known by the Corinthians. Whether the Apostle speaks of the letter he is thus writing, or of some previous one, is a question of interpretation. (Compare 2 Cor. vii. 8.)

1 Cor. x. 13: τήν εκβασιν, the assume, the appropriate means of deliverance.

1 Cor. xiv. 16: τὸ Αμήν, the Alpen, the appointed and usual response in Christian worship.

1 Cor. xv. 8: Δστε, εξ τῷ ἐκτρώματε, as to the one "invo out ς due time," the one Apostle specially bearing that character.

2 Thess. ii. 3: $\dagger$ accordances, the fulling array, or $\alpha_i$ usfasy, which the Thessalonians had been taught to expect.

1 Tim. vi. 12: των καλών ἀγώνω τῆς πίστεως, the good flyhi of the faith, the Christian faith.

Heb. xi. 10: την τους θεμελίους έχουταν πόλω, the city which hath the foundations, i.e., the New Jerusalem.

Heb. xi. 35: at specification the another passe, we described the deliverance, proffered as the reward of apostacy.

James i. 11: vis to καίσων, with the intuing wise? from the east, fatal to vegetation. Compare Matt. xx. 12; Jonah iv. 8: Luke xii. 55.)

Rev. ii. 10: τον στέφανον της ζωής, the crosses of the life, the promised crown of the life immortal.

Rev. vii. 14: ἐκ τὴς ἐλίψεως τῆς μεγάλης, and φˆ the great tribulation (lit., the tribulation, the great one), the reference being to a special trial.

In ascriptions of praise, also, the Article is generally found.

Thus, Rev. iv. 11, τὴν δόξαν καὶ τὴν τιμήν, the glory and the homour, v. 12, 13; vii. 12.

- 214. Before abstract nouns the Article denotes that the conception is individualised, as an object of thought. It is often difficult to trace the distinction, and it may even be impossible to say in some instances whether the insertion or the omission of the Article before abstracts would give the better sense; but there are many cases in which the difference is clearly marked. For example, the Article is employed:
 - a. When the abstraction is personified.
 - 1 Cor. xiii. 4: ή ἀγάπη μακροθυμεί, κ.τ.λ., Love suffereth long, &c.

Acts xxviii. 4: ον ή δίκη ζην οὐκ εἴασεν, whom Justice permitted not to live.

1 Cor. xi. 14: οὐδὲ αὐτὴ ἡ φύσις διδάσκει; doth not Nature itself teach?

So when the abstract term is used for the whole mass of individuals.

Rom. xi. 7: ή δὲ ἐκλογὴ, the election, i.e., the mass of the elect.

Phil. iii. 3: ή περιτομή, the circumcision, i.e., the community of the circumcised.

- b. When the abstraction is made a separate object of thought.
- 1 John iv. 10: ἐν τούτφ ἐστὶν ἡ ἀγάπη, in this is love, i.e., not merely "this is an act of love," but, herein Love in its very essence stands revealed.
- 1 Cor. xv. 21: δι' ἀνθρώπου ὁ θάνατος, by man (came) death, the universal fact, apart from the consideration of special instances.

Matt. v. 6: πεινωντες καὶ διψωντες την δικαιοσύνην, hungering and thirsting after rightcourness, as in itself a good to be obtained.

In fact, the subtlety of this distinction has given rise to a large number of various readings.

c. But where the abstract word expresses merely a quality of some further object of thought, the article is omitted.

Matt. v. 10: οἱ δεδιωγμένοι ἔνεκεν δικαιοσύνης, the persecuted for righteousness' sake, such being an element in their character.

Romans v. 13: ἀμαρτία ἢν ἐν κόσμφ, sin was in the world, i.e., as an attribute of human conduct; illustrating the more general assertion of verse 12, that Sin, in the abstract, ἡ ἀμαρτία, entered into the world.

1 Cor. xiii. 1: ἀγάπην μἢ ἔχω, (If) I have not love, as a feature in my character.

In determining the reason of the omission or the insertion of the Article before abstract nouns in any given case, it should be considered whether there is any grammatical rule requiring it, apart from the meaning of the term. (See especially § 212.)

215. A definite attribute or property of an object is marked in Greek by the Article.

Thus, instead of saying, He has large eyes, the Greeks would say, He has the eyes large. But when the connexion was only accidental, the Article would be omitted; thus, He had a deep wound would be expressed without the Article, unless the would had been previously mentioned, when the case would come under § 212. The Article may, therefore, in such sentences as the following, be rendered by the possessive pronoun.

Acts xxvi. 24: ὁ Φῆστος μεγάλη τῆ φωνῆ ἔφη, Festus said with his voice upraised, or "with a loud voice," as E. V. So ch. xiv. 10.

1 Peter iv. 8: την είς έαυτους αγάπην έκτενη ἔχοντες, lit., having your love to one another fervent.

Heb. vii. 24: ἀπαράβατον ἔχει τὴν ἱερωσύνην, he has his priesthood unchangeable.

The Article, in effect, must often be rendered as an unemphatic possessive; the Greeks saying the, where we say his, her, its, their.

216. With proper names, the Article may or may not be employed. The only rule, probably, that can be safely laid down on the subject is that a name does not take the Article on its first mention, unless in the case of personages well known or specially distinguished. For the rest, the habit or taste of the writer seems to have decided his usage.

It may, however, be noted that indeclinable names in the oblique cases most frequently employ the Article. Thus we find τοῦ, τῷ, τὸν, Ἰσραήλ. So also in the genealogies.

When a name is followed by some title or descriptive word, the Article is generally inserted. So Mapia ή Μαγδαληνή, Mary the Magdalene; Ἰούδας ὁ Ισκαριώτης, Judas the Iscariot; Σωσθένης ὁ ἀδελφός (1 Cor. i. 1), Sosthenes the brother.

Of geographical names, those of countries, generally feminine in α, almost always take the Article. The probable reason is that they were originally adjectives, agreeing with γη, land. Thus, η Ιουδαία, Judæa, properly "the Judæan land," or "land of the Jews." Αϊγυπτος, Εμηρί, is always used without the Article.

Names of cities greatly vary in their use, most generally omitting the Article after prepositions. 'Ιερουσαλήμ (indecl.), 'Ιεροσόλυμα (neut. plur.), Jerusalem, is almost always anarthrous.

217. The DIVINE NAMES appear to be somewhat irregular in their use or rejection of the Article.

a. We find Θεός, God, almost interchangeably with δ Θεός. It is certain, however, that an explanation may very generally be found in the rules already given.

Apart from these, the general distinction seems to be that the name without the Article throws the stress rather upon the general conception of the Divine character—"One who is Omnipotent, All-holy, Infinite, &c."†—whereas the word with the Article (the ordinary use) specifies the revealed Deity, the God of the New Testament. Parts of the second and third chapters of the First Epistle to the Corinthians may be taken by way of illustration:—

^{*} Thus, in the Acts, the name of Paul almost always has the Article; that of Peter much more seldom, but still frequently. Both in the Gospels and the Acts, the names of the other Apostles usually omit the article.

[†] Compare a line of Dr. Watts's-

[&]quot;This was compassion like a God."

Chap. ii. 1: The testimony of God, τοῦ Θεοῦ.

Ver. 7: We speak the wisdom of God, Occo (without the Article), i.e., the wisdom of an Infinite and Perfect being, as contrasted with the world's wisdom, which God, & Occo (the God revealed in the Gospel), foreordained.

Chap. iii. 7-9: à Oèòs nöğavev (our) God caused the seed to grow... for we are God's fellow-workers, ye are God's husbandry, God's building. In these three clauses the word is used without the Article, as though the Apostle reasoned, "It is a God for whom * we are labouring, a God who is moulding you, training you for himself;" resuming, then, in verse 10 with the Article, "according to the grace of God, 700 Ocov, which is given me."

Thus, again, 2 Cor. v. 18, "All things are of God, τοῦ Θεοῦ, our God... who hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation, that God, Θεός—all we can understand by that Name—was in Christ... We are ambassadors, then, as though this God, τοῦ Θεοῦ, were beseeching... Be ye reconciled to this God, τῷ Θεῷ... Him who knew not sin, He made sin on our behalf, that we might become δικαιοσύνη Θεοῦ, God's righteousness," partakers of a Divine righteousness, "in Him."

b. The name Κύριος, Lord, generally prefixes the Article. The contrary usage, when not accounted for by ordinary rules, arises from this word having been adopted in the Septuagint as the Greek equivalent for the Hebrew name Jehovah. In the Gospels it usually signifies God; in the Epistles it commonly refers to Christ.† Instances of its occurrence without the article are (1) in direct renderings from the Old Testament, as 1 Cor. iii. 20, Κύριος γινώσκει τοὺς διαλογισμούς, κ.τ.λ., Jehovah knows the thoughts, &c. So 2 Tim. ii. 19; Heb. vii. 21, xiii. 6. In 1 Pet. i. 25, it is substituted for the other Hebrew Divine name (LXX., Θεοῦ); (2) after prepositions, as in the ordinary phrase, ἐν κυρίφ; or in the genitive case (very often) (3) preceding the appellation, Ἰησοῦς

^{*} Or, with whom, a less probable interpretation.

[†] The name above every name, Phil. ii. 9, is Κύριος, Jehovah.

Χριστός, Jesus Christ, as in the superscriptions (Rom. i. 7; 1 Cor. i. 3; Gal. i. 3). So in Eph. vi. 23, and strikingly Phil. iii. 20.

c. The title vios Ocov, a or the Son of God (more emphatically Θεοῦ νίός, God's Son), is found both with and without the Article. The usual form is & viòs τοῦ Θεοῦ, the Son of the (revealed) God (comp. under Θεός). Yibs τοῦ Θεοῦ occurs, as in the Tempter's interrogatory (Matt. iv. 3), where the supremacy of the revealed Deity is recognised, but the exclusive relationship of our Lord to the Father is at least left an open question; while νίὸς Θεοῦ expresses a view altogether less definite of our Lord's dignity. Thus, in their first confession, the disciples said, "Truly thou art son of God," Ocov viós. But afterwards Peter acknowledges, "Thou art the Son of the living God," & viòs τοῦ Θεοῦ, κ.τ.λ. (xvi. 16). The centurion amid the miracles of Calvary expresses a certain measure of faith: "Truly this man is Son of God," Ocov viós, without an Article to either (Matt. xxvii. 54; Mark xv. 39; compare Luke xxiii. 47). But we read of Saul, the convert, how he preached at once in the synagogues of Damascus that "this man is the Son of God," ὁ νίὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ (Acts xi. 20).*

d. The name 'Ιησοῦς, Jesus, when used alone, in the Gospels and Acts, almost always has the Article. The reason undoubtedly is that the word is strictly an appellative, being but the Greek form of the Hebrew for "Saviour." To the disciples, therefore, and the evangelists, the significance of the word was ever present: the Saviour. When others employed the name, or it was used in converse with them, the Article might be omitted. See John vi. 24 (where for the moment the point of view taken is that of the spectators). So viii. 59 (and, in critical edd., xi. 51, xviii. 8); Acts v. 30, xiii. 23, 33, and a few other passages. When the name stands in apposition with others, as Κύριος οr Χριστός, the article is generally omitted. In the Epistles, this combination is most usual. The Apostle Paul, for instance, only has δ Ίησοῦς alone four times, and Ἰησοῦς nine; his preference being for the ^{*} Apparent exceptions to this course of remark occur, Luke i. 35; Rom. i. 4, which may be left to the thoughtful reader.

e. The employment of the Article with Xp1στός, "the Anointed One," Christ, shows a remarkable difference between the Gospels and the Epistles. Strictly speaking, the name is a verbal appellative, the Greek equivalent of the Hebrew word Messiah, "Anointed." Hence in our Lord's time it was customary and natural to speak of the Christ. This, accordingly, is the almost invariable form of speech in the Gospels and the Acts. Thus, Matt. ii. 4, we should read, "where the Christ is born;" Matt. xi. 2, "the works of the Christ," i.e., such works as attested his possession of that character; Matt. xxii. 42, "what think ye of the Christ?" John xii. 34, "the Christ abideth for ever;" Acts xvii. 3, "that it behoved the Christ to suffer."

Already, however, the tendency was at work which in later days changed this appellative into a recognised proper name. Traces of this may be seen in Matt. i. 1; Mark i. 1, ix. 41; Acts ii. 38; and in the Epistles of Paul the usage appears entirely reversed, the omission of the Article being the rule (in the forms Χριστός alone, Ἰησοῦς Χριστός, and Χριστὸς Ἰησοῦς), and its retention the exception. The descriptive title, "THE ANOINTED," has not been wholly lost, but the personal name of Christ has laid a yet deeper hold on the mind and heart of the Church. Sometimes, again, the Apostle employs one form in close repeated recur-

^{*} Mr. Rose, in his edition of "Middleton on the Greek Article," gives a list of the appellations used by St. Paul, with the number of times they respectively occur. They are—δ'Ιησοῦς		4	times.	δ Κύριος Ἰησοῦς		10 1	times.

rence, as in Col. iii. 1-4: "If ye be risen with the Christ, seek the things that are above, where the Christ sitteth ... your life is hid with the Christ ... when the Christ shall appear." Without the Article, we have the name thus recurrent in Phil. i. 18-23. After speaking of those who preach the Christ out of envy and strife, the Apostle adds, as with a more personal love, "nevertheless Christ is preached" ... uttering then his earnest hope "that Christ shall be magnified ... for me to live is Christ ... yet to depart and to be with Christ is far better."

It is not asserted that the thoughtful reader will always discern the reason of the employment or the omission of the Article in connexion with these sacred names. Often, however, unquestionably, most interesting and valuable suggestions will arise; and the whole subject is worth the most painstaking investigation.*

f. The name of the Holy Spirit, Πνώμα άγων, requires the Article when he is spoken of in himself; but when the reference is to his operation, gifts, or manifestation in men, the Article is almost invariably omitted. In other words, "the Spirit" regarded objectively takes the Article, regarded subjectively is frequently anarthrous.

Apparent exceptions to this rule are but instances of more general grammatical laws, as, for instance, when the term, although definite, follows a preposition or precedes a genitive.

Accordingly, when disciples of Christ are said to be filled with the Spirit, to receive the Spirit, to walk in the Spirit, the Article is omitted. See, e. g., Luke i. 15, 41, 67, ii. 25, xi. 13; John iii. 5, xx. 22; Acts i. 5, ii. 4, iv. 8, vi. 3, viii. 15, 17 (the Article in 18 is a case of renewed mention), xi. 16; Romans viii. 9, ix. 1, xv. 13, 16; 1 Cor. ii. 4, 13, vii. 40; 2 Cor. iii. 3; Eph. v. 18, vi. 18; Col. i. 8; 2 Thess. ii. 13; 1 Pet. i. 2; 2 Pet. i. 21; Jude 19; Rev. i. 10, &c.

An instance of the force of the Article may be seen in John xiv. 17, 26, xv. 26, xvi. 13, in all of which passages we read τὸ Πνεῦμα. But when the Spirit is imparted, the Article disappears (xx. 22), λάβετε Πνεῦμα ἄγιον, "Receive ye (the) Holy Ghost."

[†] See a striking Essay on "the Greek Testament," in the Quarterly Review for January, 1863.

- 218. Some monadic nouns, (see § 209) being regarded as proper names, may be used with or without the Article. Such are ήλιος, sun; κόσμος, world; οὐρανός, οὐρανοί, heaven, or heavens; γῆ, earth or land; θάλασσα, sea; ἡμέρα, day; νύξ, night; ἐκκλησία, church, and some others. The Article, however, is most generally inserted.
- 219. Some prepositional phrases omit the Article; in most instances denoting time, place, or state. Compare the English expressions, at home, on land, by day, in church.

Examples.—ἀπ' ἀγροῦ, from the country (Mark xv. 21; Luke xxiii. 26); εἰs ἀγροῦ, into the country (Mark xvi. 12); ἐν ἀγρῷ, in the country (Luke xv. 25).

ἐν ἀρχῆ, in the beginning (John i. 1, 2; Acts xi. 15); ἀπ' ἀρχῆs (Matt. xix. 4, 8; Luke i. 2; John viii. 44; 1 John i. 1, &c.); ἐξ ἀρχῆs, from the beginning (John xvi. 4).

είς οἰκίαν, into the house (2 John 10).

έν ἐκκλησία, in (the) church (1 Cor. xiv. 19, 28, 35).

čπl πρόσωπον, on the face (1 Cor. xiv. 25).

άπὸ ἀνατολῶν, from the East (Matt. ii. 1, xxiv. 27); ἀπὸ δυσμῶν, from the West (Luke xii. 54; Rev. xxi. 13; both phrases combined, Matt. viii. 11; Luke xiii. 29); τως δυσμῶν, unto the West (Matt. xxiv. 27).

ἐκ νεκρῶν, from the dead. This phrase is of constant occurrence, as Matt. xvii. 9, &c. Occasionally, ἀπό is employed; very rarely the Article is found. Perhaps the omission is intended emphatically to mark the condition, "from dead persons"—those, indefinitely speaking, who are in that state.

Other instances of this idiom might be added. The student, however, must be cautioned against supposing that the preposition is itself a reason, to be applied promiscuously, for the omission of the Article before a term intended to be taken as definite.*

^{*} See, for instance, Alford on Matt. i. 18, $\epsilon \kappa \pi \nu \epsilon \dot{\nu} \mu \alpha \tau \sigma s \dot{\alpha} \gamma lov$. The Article is omitted, not account of the preposition, but according to the distinction illustrated, § 217, f.

220. Nouns defined by the demonstrative pronouns, οὖτος, this, ἐκείνος, that, directly agreeing with them, take the Article, which always immediately precedes the noun; the pronoun being placed indifferently, first or last. Thus we may have ὁ ἄνθρωπος οὖτος (Luke ii. 25), οτ οὖτος ὁ ἄνθρωπος (xiv. 30), this man, but never ὁ οὖτος ἄνθρωπος οτ οὖτος ἄνθρωπος, and scarcely ever ἄνθρωπος οὖτος.*

When the Article is omitted with the noun and demonstrative pronoun, the latter implies a predicate. Thus (Rom. ix. 8), οὐ ... ταῦτα τέκνα τοῦ Θεοῦ, these are not the children of God.

These rules apply for the most part to proper names, as Acts vix. 26, δ Παῦλος οὖτος, this Paul; Heb. vii. 1, οὖτος δ Μελχισεδέκ, this Melehisedek; John vi. 42, οὖχ οὖτος ἐστιν Ἰησοῦς, Is this not Jesus ?† Οὖτος after a name often implies contempt.

The pronoun τοιούτος, τοιαύτη, τοιούτο, such, is found with the Article when the person or thing which is the subject of comparison is definitely before the writer's mind; the omission of the Article shows that the reference is more general, to quality or attribute.

Matt. xix. 14: τῶν τοιούτων, κτ.λ., of such (as these children) is the kingdom of heaven.

2 Cor. ii. 6: ἰκανὸν τῷ τοιούτῳ, sufficient to such a man (as the offender of whom I write).

Matt. ix. 6: ἐξουσίαν τοιαύτην, such (kind of) power.

John ix. 16: τοιαῦτα σημεῖα, such (kind of) miracles.

It is observable, however, that the two forms of expression, being separated by so slight a shade of difference, may often be used indifferently. The Article is generally omitted in the Gospels, generally inserted in the Epistles, except that to the Hebrews.

221. The distributive pronominal adjective "kastos, each, never takes the Article in the New Testament.

^{*} The demonstrative εδε only once occurs in the adjective construction, and follows the same rule: James iv. 13, εἰς τήνδε τὴν πόλιν, into this city.

[†] The learner should be cautioned against rendering, "Is this Jesus not the son of Joseph?" which would have required δ Ἰησοῖς. The comma at Jesus in the E. V. conveys the proper stress.

Before τοσοῦτος, so much (plur. so many), the Article is not found in the New Testament, with the exception of Rev. xviii. 17, δ τοσοῦτος πλοῦτος, the wealth, which was so great.

222. The Article prefixed to the pronoun $a\tilde{v}\tau \delta s$ gives it the meaning of the same. (See § 57, d.)

2 Cor. iv. 13: τὸ αὐτὸ πνεῦμα, the same Spirit.

But Rom. viii. 26: αὐτὸ τὸ πνεθμα, the very Spirit, the Spirit himself.

The New Testament MSS, often vary between the contracted plural ταὐτά and ταῦτα (plur, neut. of οὖτος). See Luke vi. 23, vi. 26, xvii; 30; 1 Thess. ii. 14.

223. a. A possessive pronoun agreeing with a noun not a Predicate, invariably takes the Article.

John xvii. 10: τὰ ἐμὰ πάντα σά ἐστιν καὶ τὰ σὰ ἐμά, all (things) mine are thine, and thine are mine.

Acts xxiv. 6: κατὰ τὸν ἡμέτερον νόμον, according to our law

John vii. 6: à καίρος à ὑμέτερος, your opportunity.

b. The possessive sense is, however, generally given by the genitive of the personal pronoun; the article preceding the noun, as δ πατήρ μου, my father; οἱ πατήρες ὑμῶν, your fathers.

224. a. The adjective πâs, all, in the singular number, without the Article, signifies every; with the Article, it means the whole of the object which it qualifies. Thus, πâσα πόλις is every city; πâσα ἡ πόλις, or ἡ πᾶσα πόλις,* the whole of the city. ἡ πόλις πᾶσα would have a meaning slightly different—the city, all of it—"the city in every part." So with abstracts.

Iuke iv. 13: συντελέσας πάντα πειρασμόν, (the devil) having ended every temptation, i.e., every form of temptation.

2 Cor. iv. 2: πρὸς πᾶσαν συνείδησιν ἀνθρώπων, to every conscience of men, i.e., to every variety of human conscience.

^{*} A construction only twice found: Acts xx. 18, τὸν πάντα χρόνον; and 1 Tim. i. 16.

Eph. iii. 15: πᾶσα πατριὰ. κ.τ.λ., Every family in heaven and earth.

Some critics have questioned this translation on the authority of ch. ii. 21. where many critics read $\pi\hat{a}\sigma a$ olwoδομή, and render, the whole building. This, however, is quite contrary to usage

2 Tim. iii. 16: πάσα γραφή θεόπνευστος, κ.τ.λ., Every writing (i.e., of those just mentioned, v. 14) is divinely inspired,* &c., or Every divinely inspired writing is also profitable,† &c.

Luke ii. 10: παντί τῷ λαῷ, to all the people of Israel.

The phrase in ch. ii. 31 is different: "before the face of all the peoples," i.e., the nations of mankind.

1 Cor. xiii. 2: ἐἀν ἔχω πῶσαν τὴν πίστιν, κ.τ.λ., if I have all the faith requisite for such a task.

Col. i. 23: ἐν πάση τῆ κτίσει, in the whole of the creation; not "to every creature," as E.V. Compare ver. 15, πάσης κτίσεως, where the rendering is accurate, of every creature.

1 Tim. i. 16: τὴν πᾶσαν μακροθυμίαν, all the long suffering which belongs to the Divine character.

John v. 22: τὴν κρίσιν πᾶσαν, κ.τ.λ., the judgment (of men), all of it. The Father has committed this wholly to the Son.

With proper names, as of countries, cities, &c., the Article after was may be omitted by § 216; the signification being still the whole. (Matt. ii. 3; Acts ii. 36.)

b. The plural, πάντες, almost always has the Article when the substantive is expressed; almost always omits it when the substantive is implied. The few exceptions to the former are chiefly when the noun is ἄνθρωποι, men.‡ The exceptions to the latter are where the idea is collective. Thus, πάντα is all things, severally; τὰ πάντα, all things, as constituting a whole.

[‡] See also Acts xvii. 21, xix. 17; 1 Cor. x. 1; 1 Thess. v. 26; Heb. i. 6; 1 Pet. ii. 1.

Phil. iv. 13: πάντα ἰσχύω, I can do all things.

Col. i. 16: τὰ πάντα δι αὐτοῦ, All things are by Him (Christ). See also 1 Tim. vi. 13; Heb. ii. 8, &c.

The usual position of the plural, πάντες, is before the Article and substantive. Twice (Acts xix. 7, xxvii. 37) with a special meaning, it stands between them: οἱ πάντες ἄνδρες, the men in all; αἱ πᾶσαι ψυχαί, the souls (persons) in all. Occasionally, employed after the Article and substantive, it takes a strong emphasis: as John xvii. 10, τὰ ἐμὰ πάντα σά ἐστι, Mine are all thine.

225. The construction of δλos, whole, in respect of the Article, is similar to that of πâs. Generally the Article stands between it and its noun, as δλos δ κόσμος, the whole world (Rom. i. 8). Occasionally the noun and Article precede, with an added emphasis on δλos, as δ κόσμος δλos, the world, (year the whole (of it) (Matt. xvi. 26).* A few times it is found without the Article, and its force is expressed by the English indefinite, as John vii. 23, δλον ἄνθρωπον, a whole man I have restored to health. The other instances are Acts xi. 26, xxi. 31 (before a proper name), xxviii. 30; Titus i. 11.

226. The employment of the Article with the adjective pronouns άλλος, other (numerically), and έτερος, other properly implying some further distinction), is analogous to the English idiom.† Singular, the other; plural, the others (έτερος only once so used, Luke iv. 43).‡

John xx. 3: δ äλλος μαθητής, the other disciple.

John xx. 25: οι ἄλλοι μαθητάι, the other disciples.

Matt. vi. 24: rov erepor dyamnou, the other (master) he will love.

Luke iv. 43: rais erépais πόλεσιν, to the other cities.

^{*} The observant reader may trace the emphasis in the other passages where this order is found: Matt. xxvi. 50; Mark i. 33, viii. 36; Luke ix. 25, xi. 36; John iv. 53; Acts xix. 29, xxi. 30; Rom. xvi. 23; 1 Cor. xiv. 23; 1 John v. 19; Rev. iii. 10, xii. 9, xvi. 14.

[†] In classical Greek, & allos means the rest of.

[‡] Perhaps also Matt. xi. 16 (Tischendorf).

227. The Article with the neuter $\pi \circ \lambda \dot{\nu}$ ("the much") is equivalent to "the abundance." (See 1 Pet. i. 3.) More common, however, is its use with the plural, $\pi \circ \lambda \lambda \circ i$, $\pi \circ \lambda \lambda \circ i$, to which it gives the significance of the many, the generality, the whole mass of the particular objects of thought. The only instances are the following:—

Matt. xxiv. 12: ή ἀγάπη τῶν πολλῶν, the love of the many shall wax cold.

Luke vii. 47: at άμαρτία ... at πολλαί, her sins—the many, i.e., the whole of them—are forgiven.

Acts xxvi. 24: τὰ πολλὰ γράμματα, lit., the many letters; the mass, the quantity of thy learning.

Rom. xii. 5: οἱ πολλοί, the many of us—the whole mass—are one body in Christ. So 1 Cor. x. 17.

1 Cor. x. 33: τὸ τῶν πολλῶν, the (advantage) of the many.

2 Cor. ii. 17: ως οί πολλοί, (we are not) as the many.

Rev. xvii. 1: τῶν ὑδάτων τῶν πολλῶν, of the many waters.

Rom. v. 15-19: This most important passage, containing this idiom, has been thus translated *:—

[We have noted by italies the Articles which the English version omits.]

15 Howbeit not as the trespass, so also is the gift of grace. For if by the trespass of the one the many died, much more did the grace of God and his free gift abound unto the many by the grace of the one man Jesus Christ.

16 And not as through one that sinned, so is the gift; for the judgment came of one unto condemnation, but the gift of grace came of many trespasses unto justification.

17 For if by the trespass of the one death reigned through the one, much more shall they which receive the abundance of the grace and of the free gift of (the†) righteousness reign in life through the one, Jesus Christ.

^{* &}quot;The Epistle of St. Paul to the Romans, after the Authorized Version, newly compared with the original Greek, and revised. By Five Clergymen. Second edition. Parker & Son. 1858."

[†] In the Greek, but not in the "Five Clergymen's" translation.

18 Therefore as through one trespass, [the issue was] unto all men to condemnation, even so through one righteous act [the issue was] unto all even to justification of life.

19 For as through the disobedience of the one man the many were made sinners, even so through the obedience of the one shall the many be made righteous.

228. When the Nominative is used for the Vocative in direct address, the Article is prefixed. For an explanation of the idiom, see § 244.

Matt. xi. 26: να', ὁ πατήρ, Even so, Father /

Luke viii. 54: ή παις, έγείρου, Damsel, arise!

John xix. 3: xaîpe à Basileis, Hail, King !

John xx. 28: ὁ Κύριός μου καὶ ὁ Θεός μου, My Lord and my God!

Heb. i. 8: ὁ θρόνος σου ὁ Θεός, Thy Throne, O God! See also ver. 9, and x. 7.

- 229. The Article is often separated from its substantive by qualifying or explanatory words.
- a. These are, generally, a preposition with its case, other dependent words being sometimes added.

Matt. vii. $3: \tau \eta \nu$ δε εν τ $\hat{\varphi}$ σ $\hat{\varphi}$ δ φ θαλμ $\hat{\varphi}$ δοκόν, but the beam in thine own eye.

Luke xvi. 10: ὁ ἐν ἐλαχίστω ἄδικος, the (man) unjust in the least.

1 Pet. i. 14: ταις πρότερον εν τη αγνοία ύμων επιθυμίαις, the former (lit., formerly) lusts in your ignorance.

- b. Adverbs also are often thus employed:-
- 2 Tim. iv. 10: ἀγαπήσας τῶν νῦν αἰῶνα, having loved the present (lit., now) world.
- 230. a. The Article is very frequently repeated after its noun, to introduce some attributive word or phrase.

Clearly, this is a result of the original demonstrative force of the Article.

The phrase introduced may be an adjective or participle, a preposition with its case, or (rarely) an adverb.

The Article so employed gives the attributive a certain preminence or emphasis.

Matt. xvii. 5: ὁ νίός μου ὁ ἀγαπητός, my beloved Son.

Titus ii. 11: ἡ χάρις τοῦ Θεοῦ ἡ σωτήριος, the grace of God that bringeth salvation, lit., the grace ... the salvation-bringing.

Heb. xiii. 20: τον ποιμένα των προβάτων τον μέγαν, the great Shepherd of the sheep. See also Matt. v. 16; Luke xx. 35; 1 Pet. i. 25; Rev. xi. 2.

The absence of the Article before an attributive phrase is often significant. Thus Rom. viii. 3: κατέκρινε τὴν ἁμαρτίαν ἐν τῆ σαρκί, he condemned sin in the flesh. The phrase depends upon κατέκρινε. Had it been τὴν ἐν τῆ σαρκί, in the flesh would have qualified sin.

1 Pet. i. 25: τὸ ἡῆμα τὸ εὐαγγελισθέν, the word that was preached lit., the word, the spoken-as-glad-tidings.

Matt. v. 16: τὸν Πατέρα ὑμῶν τὸν ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς, your Father in the heavens.

Luke xx. 15: της ἀναστάσεως της ἐκ νεκρῶν, of the resurrection from the dead.

Rev. xi. 2: τὴν αὐλὴν τὴν ἔξωθεν, the outer court.

b. Occasionally, this emphatic form of expression is employed when the noun has no Article preceding.

Luke xxiii. 49: γυναῖκες αί συνακολουθήσασαι αὐτῷ, (there stood) women, those who had followed Him.

John xiv. 27: εἰρήνην τὴν ἐμὴν δίδωμι ὑμῖν, Peace (which is) mine, I give to you.

1 Tim. v. 3: χήρας τίμα τὰς ὅντως χήρας, honour widows, those who are widows indeed.

Rom. ix. 30: δικαιοσύνην δὲ τὴν ἐκ πίστεωs, (he obtained) righteousness, yea that (which is) by faith.

James i. 25: εὶς νόμον τέλειον τὸν τῆς ἐλευθερίας, (whoso looketh) into a perfect law, that of liberty.

In passages like these, the former clause contains the general description; the latter limits it to a particular case. See also Gal. ii. 20, iii. 21; 1 Pet. i. 10, "prophets, those who prophesied;" Jude 6, "Angels, (even) those namely that kept not their first estate."

231. The defining clause being frequently participial, it may be remarked, in anticipation of the account to be given of Participles (§§ 393–396), that with the Article the participle qualifies the noun, as a simple epithet, while without the Article it implies a predicate. Thus, δ Θεὸς ὁ ποιήσας τὸν κόσμον is, God who made the world; δ Θεὸς ποιήσας, κ.τ.λ., would be, God having made, or when He had made, &c. In 2 Pet. i. 18, again, we render, not "the voice which was borne from heaven," but "the voice as it was borne."

Sometimes it will be important to observe the force of the anarthrous participle.

Thus, in a much-controverted passage, 1 Pet. iii. 19, 20, τοῖς ἐν φυλακῆ πνεύμασι.. ἀπειθήσασί ποτε, whatever be the true interpretation, the words must be translated, not "the spirits in prison who were once disobedient," but "the spirits in prison when once they disobeyed."

This usage will be further discussed in the sections on Participles.

232. In the enumeration of several persons or things, joined by a connective particle, an Article before the first only intimates a connexion between the whole, as forming one object of thought. This is termed "combined enumeration." The repeated Article, on the other hand, implies a separation, in themselves, or in the view taken of them.

Sometimes, however, the separation seems to be chiefly grammatical, different genders requiring the repeated Article.

a. Combined enumeration.—Eph. ii. 20: ἐπὶ τῷ θεμελίῳ τῶν ἀποστόλων καί προφητῶν, upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, all together constituting but one basis.

Eph. iii. 18: τί τὸ πλάτος καὶ μῆκος καὶ βάθος καὶ τψος, what (is) the breadth and length and depth and height, one image of vast extension being before the mind.

Col. ii. 22: τὰ ἐντάλματα καὶ διδασκαλίας τῶν ἀνθρώπων (obs. the different genders), the commandments and teachings of men, together constituting one system.

2 Pet. i. 10: την κλησιν καὶ ἐκλογήν, (your) calling and election, each mutually implying the other.

Matt. xvii. 1: τὸν Πέτρον καὶ Ἰάκωβον καὶ Ἰωάννην, Peter and James and John, one inseparable group.

Titus ii. 13: τὴν μακαρίαν ἐλπίδα καὶ ἐπιφάνειαν τῆς δόξης τοῦ μεγάλου Θεοῦ καὶ σωτῆρος ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, the blessed hope and manifestation of the glory of our great God and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Here are two cases of enumeration, each with a single Article: (1) the "manifestation" is but another expression for the "hope;" and (2) the latter phrase may imply, on the above-stated principle, either that God (the Father) and Jesus Christ the Saviour are so inseparably conjoined, that the glory of each is the same; or else, as many of the best interpreters have it, and as Ellicott renders it in the translation above, that God in this passage is, like Saviour, an epithet of Christ. Comp. Eph. v. 5; 2 Thess. i. 12; 2 Pet. i. 1. See also the phrase, "the God and Futher of our Lord Jesus Christ," Eph. i. 3; 1 Pet. i. 3; Rom. xv. 6; 2 Cor. i. 3, xi. 31 (1 Cor. xv. 24): not God, even the Father, &c.

b. Separate enumeration.—Luke xii. 11: ἐπὶ τὰs συναγωγὰς καὶ τὰs ἀρχὰς καὶ τὰs ἐξουσίας, to the synayogues, and the magistrates, and the powers, three different classes of tribunal. The reader may compare Mark xv. 1, who re the elders and scribes are spoken of as constituting but one class, i.e., in the Sanhedrim.

James iii. 11: τὸ γλυκὺ καὶ τὸ πικρό, the sweet and the bitter, from their very nature separate.

2 Thess. i. 8: τοῖς μὴ εἰδόσι Θεὸν, καὶ τοῖς μὴ ὑπακούουσι, κ.τ.λ., to those who know not God, and those who obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ; two distinct classes, incurring different degrees of punishment.

Heb. xi. 20: εἰλόγησεν Ἰσαακ τὸν Ἰακὼβ καὶ τὸν Ἰπσαῦ, Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau. Both received a blessing, but not together, and not the same.

The same enumeration may be found in different places, with and without the separating Article. This arises from a difference in the writer's point of view in each particular case. So in 1 Thess. i. 7, the Apostle writes, τŷ Μακεδονία και τŷ Αχαΐα; but in ver. 8, τŷ Μακεδονία και Αχαΐα. In the former verse, he seems to contemplate the different directions in which the influence of Thessalonian Christianity spread; in the latter, the uniform spread of that influence.

Such distinctions may be slight, but they are real, and even where they seem, as Winer says of this passage, "indifferent," should at least be noted.

233. The omission of the Article marks indefiniteness, which in translation may be represented by our Indefinite Article in the singular, and by the anarthrous plural. This point, also, has occasionally been neglected in the Authorized Version.

Matt. xii. 41, 42: ἄνδρες Νινευίται ... βασίλισσα Νότου, men of Nineveh ... a queen of the South.

Luke ii. 12: εὐρήσετε βρέφος, ye shall find a babe, which shall be the sign that the promise is fulfilled.

Acts i. 7: χρόνους ή καιρούς, times or seasons, generally.

Acts xvii. 23: ἀγνώστω Θεώ, to an unknown God.

Acts xxvi. 2-7 (Tischendorf): ἐγκαλοῦμαι ὑπὸ Ἰονδαίων, I am accused by Jews; that they should bring such a charge being the wonderful feature in the case.

Rom. ii. 14: $\delta \tau a \nu \gamma \lambda \rho \in \theta \nu \eta$, $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$, For when Gentiles do the things contained in the law; not the Gentiles, as though the case were ordinary.

1 Cor. iii. 10: θεμέλιον ἔθηκα, I laid a foundation.

1 Cor. xiv. 4: ἐκκλησίαν οἰκοδομεῖ, edifies an assembly, antithetic to himself.

2 Cor. iii. 6: διακόνους καινης διαθήκης, ministers of a new covenant.

Gal. iv. 31 : οὐκ ἐσμὲν παιδίσκης τέκνα, we are not children of a bondwoman.

Phil. iii. 5: Έβραῖος ἐξ Ἑβραίων, a Hebrew of Hebrews, i.e., of Hebrew parents.

1 Thess. iv. 16: ἐν φωνη ἀρχαγγέλου, amid the voice of an archangel.

Heb. i. 2: ἐλάλησεν ἡμῖν ἐν ντῷ, God spake to us by (in) a Son, i.e., by one possessing that character, in contradistinction to the prophets of former ages.

234. The use of the word νόμος deserves special attention. With the Article, it invariably denotes the Mosaic law, except where its meaning is limited by accompanying words. Without the Article, in cases where the omission is not required by grammatical rule, the term appears to have a wider significance; sometimes referring to the Mosaic law as the type of law in general, and sometimes to law in the abstract, including every form of Divine command or moral obligation.

Rom. ii. 12: ὅσοι ἐν νόμφ ῆμαρτον, κ.τ.λ., As many as sinned under law shall be judged by law.

Rom. ii. 23: δς ἐν νόμφ καυχᾶσαι, κ.τ.λ., who makest thy boast of law, or of a law, through breaking the law, &c. (renewed mention.)

Rom. ii. 25: ἐὰν νόμον πράσσης, if thou keepest law, i.e., if thou dost obey, in general; so the verse continues, but if thou be a breaker of law, &c.

Rom. iii. 20: ἐξ ἔργων νόμου, κ.τ.λ., by deeds of law shall no flesh be justified, for by law is the knowledge of sin. The omission of the Article shows the truth to be universal, applicable to all men and to every form of law. Compare ver. 28, Gal. ii. 16, iii. 2, 5, 10, in all which passages the Article is consistently omitted.

A few passages further need only be mentioned.

Rom. iii. 31: "do we make law void?... yea we establish law."

Rom. v. 20: "there came in by the way a law."

Rom. vii. 9: "I was once alive without law,"

Rom. x. 4: "Christ is the end of law."

Rom. xiii. 10: "love is the fulfilment of law."

Gal. ii. 19: "I through law died to law that I might live to God."

Gal. iii. 18: "for if the inheritance is of law, it is no more of promise."

James iv. 11: "he that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of law and judgeth law; but if thou judgest law, thou art not a doer of law, but a judge."

These passages, taken in connexion with the numerous instances in which the Law is specifically spoken of, will illustrate the importance of a constant attention to the usage of Scripture in respect to the Article.

CHAPTER III.—THE NOUN SUBSTANTIVE.

NUMBER.

- 235. The ordinary usage of the Singular and Plural needs no detailed illustration. The following special rules must be noted.
- 236. A Masculine Singular Noun, with the Article, often represents a whole class.

Instances have been given already, § 211. The omission of the Article in passages like Rom. i. 16, ii. 9, 10, Ἰουδαίφ τε καὶ Ἦλληνι, to both Jew and Greek, is owing to the antithetic form. (See § 233.)

237. Some words, like σῶμα, body, καρδία, heart, when predicated of several individuals, are occasionally employed in the singular. The plural, however, is more common. Thus we read, τὸ σῶμα ὑμῶν and τὰ σώματα ὑμῶν, your body or bodies; ἡ καρδία or αἰ καρδίαι αὐτῶν, their heart or hearts.

The word $\pi\rho\delta\sigma\omega\pi\rho\nu$, face, is always singular in such phrases as they fell upon their face, except in the Revelation, vii. 11 (edd.), xi. 16.

238. Many abstract nouns are used in the plural, for repeated exemplifications of the quality denoted.

Mark vii. 22: πλεονεξίαι, πονηρίαι, covetousnesses, wickednesses.

James ii. 1: ἐν προσωποληψίαις, in regard (regards) to persons.

- 2 Pet. iii. 11: ἐν ἀγίαις ἀναστροφαῖς καὶ εὐσεβείαις, lit., in holy conducts and godlinesses.
- 239. The plural is occasionally used, like the English rhetorical we, by a speaker of himself. See especially the passage,

2 Cor. ii. 14, vii. 16, where the Apostle changes incessantly from singular to plural. The reason, however, may be that sometimes he is conscious of speaking on behalf of himself and his associates; sometimes, again, for himself alone. In any case, the idiom in question is not a common one.

240. In some instances, where only one agent or object is actually meant, the plural is employed.

Strictly speaking, these cannot be called instances of the plural put for the singular, but arise, either (a) from the object being regarded in its constituent parts, or (b) from the writer having formed the conception generally, without limitation.

a. A familiar instance of the former kind is in the plural names of cities, as 'Αθηναι, Athens, Κολοσσαί, Colossæ, where the words expressed in the first instance the several districts of the place, or the different tribes which formed its population. So, in Greek, Jerusalem is often 'Ιεροσόλυμα (neut. plur.)

Analogous words are ἀνατολαί, east; δυσμαί, west;* τὰ δεξιά, the right; τὰ ἀριστερά or εὐώνυμα, the left, where some such word as parts may be supplied. These words are also found in the singular.

Some miscellaneous terms to be explained in a similar way are—

Luke xvi. 23: Λάζαρον ἐν τοῖς κόλποις αὐτοῦ, Lazarus in his (Abraham's) bosom. In ver. 22 the singular had been used.

John i. 13: οὐκ ἐξ αἰμάτων, not of blood, lit., bloods—a peculiar phrase, with a reference perhaps to both parents.†

Hebrews ix. 12, &c.: εἰs τὰ ἄγια, unto the Sunctuary, "the Holies," sometimes, as in ver. 2, ἄγια ἁγίων, Holies of holies,‡ suggesting that every spot and every object there was consecrated.

Names of festivals are sometimes plural: ἐγκαίνια, feast of dedication

^{*} Or perhaps the plural in these words may denote repetition. The sun rises or sets there "again and again."

[†] The expression has no parallel in the Scriptures, and only one in the classics (Winer). The plural, nowever, is often found in the Old Testament (from the Hebrew), where violent bloodshedding is denoted.

In this expression (not in the other), some would read $\dot{\alpha}\gamma i\alpha$, fem., as referring to a noun, like $\chi \omega \rho \alpha$, place. This is, however, most unlikely.

(John x. 22); ἄζυμα, feast of unleavened bread (Matt. xxvi. 17, &c.); γενέσια, birthday feast (Matt. xiv. 6; Mark vi. 21). So γάμοι, marriage feast, from the various observances and festivities accompanying.

Alῶνes, ages, is plural, to mark the successive epochs of duration, especially of the Divine plan; the singular either referring to one such epoch, or including all as one mighty whole. Hence the phrase for ever may be represented either by εἰs τὸν αἰῶνα (Matt. xxi. 19; John vi. 51, 58; 1 Pet. i. 25, from Isa. xl. 8, &c.), or by εἰs τοὺν αἰῶναs (Luke i. 33; Rom. i. 25, ix. 5; Heb. xiii. 8, &c.); while the emphatic for ever and ever is expressed by εἰs τοὺν αἰῶναν τῶν αἰῶνων, to the ages of ages (Heb. xiii. 21; 1 Pet. iv. 11, v. 11; and Rev. often).

Odpavol, heavens, is found with meaning indistinguishable from obpdvos, heaven. The plural usage probably arose from the Hebrew, where the word is always dual: "the two parts of the firmament." There is also "the third heaven." Matthew almost always has the plural; Luke almost always * the singular; Mark most usually the singular; John, the singular always, except in Rev. xii. 12. The other parts of the New Testament vary between the two almost equally.

Other plurals of this kind will be sufficiently explained in the Vocabulary.

b. 1. In the second above-mentioned class may be included those cases where persons are said generally to do what was really done by one of their number. Thus, Matt. xxvi. 8, "his disciples said, To what purpose," &c.; while in John xii. 4 we read, "one of his disciples, Judas." Compare Mark vii. 17 with Matt. xvi. 14; Matt. xiv. 17 and Mark vi. 38 with John vi. 8, 9; Matt. xxiv. 1 with Mark xiii. 1; Matt. xxvii. 37 with John xix. 19; Matt. xxvii. 48 and Mark xv. 36 with John xix. 29. So in Luke xxii. 67, λέγοντες, when in all probability only one is meant. See also the same idiom in John xi. 8; Luke xx. 21, 39, xxiv. 5 (εἶπον); Matt. xv. 1, λέγοντες; xv. 12, εἶπον.†

These instances will help to explain apparent discrepancies. Thus it may be that only one of the crucified malefactors actually blasphemed, notwithstanding the plural in Matt. xxvii. 44; and the narrative of the cure of the blind men at Jericho (Matt. xx. 30-34; Mark x. 46-52;

^{*} Perhaps always, except xii. 33, with Acts ii. 34, vii. 56; the other passages where the recognised text gives the plural being all doubtful: x. 20, xi. 2, xxi. 26.

[†] Stuart's "New Testament Syntax."

Luke xviii. 35-43) may possibly be harmonized in a similar way, although the probability seems to be that two different transactions of the kind then took place.*

2. Somewhat different from the above, yet related under the same head, are those cases in which a general statement suffices, although a particular one might also have been made.

John vi. 45; Acts xiii. 40: The prophets is a general reference, as when we quote from "the Bible" without specifying a particular part.

Matt. ii. 20: τεθνήκασιν οἱ ζητοῦντες, κ.τ.λ., they are dead who seek, &c., when Herod specifically is meant. (See Exodus iv. 19.)

Matt. ix. 8: τὸν δόντα ἐξουσίαν τοιαύτην τοῖς ἀνθρώποις, who gave such power to men, i.e., as instanced in the case of Christ.

Rom. i. 4: ἐξ ἀναστάσεως νεκρῶν, by the resurrection of the dead; the context showing the reference to be to the one great illustration, in the case of Christ, of this general fact. It is, however, incorrect to interpret 1 Cor. xv. 29, on the authority of this passage, as referring to baptism "in the name of Him who was dead, i.e., Christ."

Heb. ix. 23: κρείττοσι θυσίαις, with better sacrifices, i.e., whatever those sacrifices might be; the question being, as it were, left open for a moment, although the aim was to show that in reality only one sacrifice could avail.

For the use of singular adjectives, pronouns, &c., in agreement or apposition with plural nouns, or the contrary, see § 317.

CASE.

THE NOMINATIVE AND VOCATIVE.

241. The Nominative is properly the case of the Subject; hence also of the Predicate after copulative Verbs.

See §§ 163–165.

^{*} Lee on Inspiration, p. 393; Burgon's "Inspiration and Interpretation," p. 67. See, however, "Bible Hand-book," Part II., § 148; Trench on the Miracles, p. 429.

242. In some passages a Nominative is found, unconnected with the grammatical structure of the sentence; calling attention, emphatically, to the thing or person spoken of. This is called a Suspended Nominative ("nominative pendens").

Matt. xii. 36: πῶν ἡῆμα ἀργὸν...ἀποδώσουσι περὶ αὐτοῦ λόγον, every idle word...they shall give account of it.

Acts vii. 40: ὁ Μωσῆς οὖτος...οὐκ οἴδαμ $\epsilon \nu$, κ.τ.λ., This Moses...we know not. &c.

Rev. ii. 26: δ νικῶν καὶ δ τηρῶν ... δώσω αὐτῷ ἐξουσίαν, he that overcometh, and that keepeth ... to him I will give authority. So iii. 12, 21.

See also Matt. x. 42; Luke xii. 10; John vii. 38, &c

A "suspended Nominative" is occasionally employed in expressions of time.

Matt. xv. 32: ὅτι, ἤδη ἡμέραι τρεῖς, προσμένουσί μοι, because they continue with me, now three days. So Mark viii. 2.*

Luke ix. 28: ἐγένετο... ὡσεὶ ἡμέραι ὀκτώ, it came to pass, about eight days after the sayings.

Such cases may possibly be resolved into ellipsis, as, in the former case, of the substantive verb; in the latter, of some such word as διάστημα, interval, the true Subject of ἐγένετο; and in apposition with ἡμέραι.

Some so-called "suspended Nominatives" are really instances of apposition. Thus (Mark vi. 40), πρασιαί πρασιαί, runk by runk, is in apposition with the Subject of ἀνέπεσον.†

In ver. 39, συμπόσια is in the Accusative in apposition with πάντας.

243. The Nominative is sometimes elliptically used, as in the cases following:—

a. The Nominative after the adverb idov, behold.

Matt. iii. 17: ἰδού, φωνὴ ἐκ τῶν οὐρανῶν, behold (there was heard) a voice from the heavens.

Heb. ii. 13: ίδοὐ ἐγὼ καὶ τὰ παιδία, κ.τ.λ., Behold (here am) I, and the children which thou hast given me.

^{*} In both passages the ordinary text has ἡμέρας, the usual case in such construction. (See § 286.) But all critical editions give the Nominative.

[†] See Rev. T. S. Green's "Greek Testament Grammar," p. 86.

b. The word ὄνομα, introducing the name of a person or place, is generally found in the Dative, ὀνόματι, by name. (See § 280.) Occasionally, however, it occurs in the Nominative, with the name as predicate and the copula omitted. So John i. 6, ἐγένετο ἄνθρωπος ... ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἰωάννης, there was a man ... his name (was) John.

Luke xxiv. 13: εἰς κώμην ... $\mathring{\eta}$ ὄνομα Ἐμμαούς, to a village ... whose name (was) Emmaus.

c. A peculiar Nominative phrase is used in the Revelation as an indeclinable noun, equivalent to the Hebrew name Jehovan (ch. i. 4), ἀπὸ ὁ ὧν καὶ ὁ ἦν καὶ ὁ ἔρχόμενος, from Him who is, and who was, and who cometh.

244. The use of the Nominative for the Vocative has been already noted, § 228, where see Examples.

The usage is in fact elliptical, the true Vocative being in the personal pronoun, $\sigma \hat{v}$ or $\hat{v}_{\mu}\hat{e}\hat{i}s$, omitted: Thou ... who art! or ye ... who are!

Matt. vii. 23: ἀποχωρείτε ... οἱ ἐργαζόμενοι τὴν ἀνομίαν, depart (ye who are) the workers of iniquity!

Mark xiv. 36: ἀββâ ὁ πατήρ, Abba (Thou, who art) the Father!

So when the Nominative adjective is in apposition with the Vocative case.

Rom. ii. 1: δ ἄνθρωπε, πᾶς ὁ κρίνων, Ο man! (thou) who judgest, (I mean) every one!

In Luke xii. 20, the Article is omitted, "Αφρων, and, accordingly, we must understand, not a direct address, as E.V., Thou fool! but an exclamation, "How foolish thou art!" A parallel instance is to be found in Romans vii. 24: ταλαίπωρος έγὼ ἄνθρωπος, O wretched man that I am! and xi. 33, ὧ βάθος πλούτου, O the depth of the riches!

245. With the Vocative proper, the interjection & is employed, chiefly in vehement expressions.

Matt. xv. 28: $\mathring{\omega}$ γύναι, μ εγάλη σου $\mathring{\eta}$ πίστις, O woman, great is thy faith!

Acts xiii. 10: ὧ πλήρης πάντος δόλου, O full of all deceit!
Gal, iii. 1: ὧ ἀνόητοι Γαλάται, O foolish Galatians!

Sometimes, however, the interjection is employed (as in classical Greek) where no special vehemence is intended. So Acts i. 1, xviii. 14. But in such cases & is more usually omitted (Luke xxii. 57; Acts i. 16, xxiii. 15, xxvii. 25).

THE GENITIVE.

- 246. The Genitive Case (see § 11) primarily signifies motion from, answering to our question, Whence? From this general meaning arise many modifications, including the several notions expressed in English by the prepositions of or from.
- 247. These modifications may be classed under the following heads:*

1. Origin.

4. Partition.

2. Separation.

5. Object.

3. Possession.

6. Relation.

7. The Genitive Absolute.

The Genitive with Prepositions will be treated of hereafter. (See § 291, seq.)

I. Origin.

- 248. The Genitive is often used after substantives, to mark the source or author.
- 1 Thess. i. 3: μνημονεύοντες ύμων τοῦ ἔργου τῆς πίστεως καὶ τοῦ κόπου τῆς ἀγάπης καὶ τῆς ὑπομονῆς τῆς ἐλπίδος, remembering your work

2. Partition.

3. Relation.

The name of the case, $\gamma \epsilon \nu \iota \kappa \dot{\eta}$, designates it as expressive of the genus to which anything is referred, whether as belonging to it or classed under it (Max Müller); or, according to others, the source from which it is generated, or supposed to spring.

^{*} These significations are again reduced, by Dr. Donaldson and others, to three:—

^{1.} Ablation.

of faith, and labour of love, and endurance of hope, i.e., the work springing from faith, the labour prompted by love, the endurance sustained by hope.

2 Cor. xi. 26: κινδύνοις ποταμών καὶ ληστών, in dangers of rivers and robbers, i.e., occasioned by them.

Romans iv. 13: διὰ δικαιοσύνης πίστεως, through the righteousness of faith.

Romans xv. 4: της παρακλήσεως τῶν γραφῶν, the comfort of the Scriptures.

('ol. i. 23: $d\pi \delta \tau \hat{\eta}s \epsilon \lambda \pi \delta \delta s \tau \delta s \epsilon \delta \alpha \gamma \epsilon \lambda \delta \delta s$ evaryelov, from the hope of the Gospel.

Col. ii. 12: διὰ τῆς πίστεως τῆς ἐνεργείας τοῦ Θεοῦ, through the faith of the mighty working of God, i.e., mightily wrought by him.

249. The Genitive, after many verbs expressive of sense or mental affections of various kinds, indicates the source from which the sensation or affection proceeds.

The full force of the Genitive is evident also in these cases. Thus, to smell a flower, really means to receive a certain impression from the flower. Compare the ordinary phrase, to taste of different viands. In another use, the object of sense itself becomes subject of the verb, and its quality is expressed by the following Genitive, as this rose smells of musk.

Again, to recollect is to remind myself of the object of thought; the influence being regarded as passing from the object to the person. In like manner may be explained the phrases denoting other mental affections.

a. Verbs of Sense. (1) ἀκούω, to hear:

Mark ix. 7; Luke ix. 35: αὐτοῦ ακούετε, Hear him!

John x. 3: $\tau a \pi \rho \delta \beta a \tau a \tau \eta s \phi \omega v \eta s a \delta \tau v o \delta \kappa o \delta \epsilon t, the sheep hear his voice.$

Luke xv. 25: ἤκουσε συμφωνίας καὶ χορῶν, he heard music and duncing.

It will be seen that this verb is construed with a Genitive either of the person or the thing. Generally, however, the thing is in the Accusative, as the immediate object (especially λόγον, λόγονs, Matt. vii. 24. xiii. 20, &c.) When both are expressed together, the thing is in the Accusative, and the person in the Genitive (Acts i. 4); sometimes with a preposition (2 Cor. xii. 6; Acts x. 22). The Genitive of the thing probably inclines to the partitive sense. Compare Acts ix. 7, where of Saul's companions it is said, ἀκούοντες της φωνης, hearing the voice, with ch. xxii. 9, την φωνην οὐκ ἤκουσαν, they heard not the voice. They heard of the voice, i.e., its sound, but not what it said.

(2) γεύομαι, to taste:

Luke xiv. 24: οὐδεὶς ... γεύσεταί μου τοῦ δείπνου, no one shall taste of my supper.

Mark ix. l: οὐ μὴ γεύσωνται θανάτου, shall by no means taste death. So Luke ix. 27; John viii. 52; Heb. ii. 9.

In Heb. vi. 4, 5, the Genitive and Accusative are used in successive clauses, γενσαμένους της δωρεάς, having tasted of the Gift; γενσαμένους Θεοῦ ἡῆμα, having tasted the word of God.*

(3) θιγγάνω, to touch:

Heb. xii. 20: $\kappa a \nu \theta \eta \rho (\omega \nu \theta \gamma \eta \tau \sigma \nu \theta \rho \sigma \nu s)$, and even if a beast touch the mountain. So xi. 28.

ψηλαφόω, to handle, to touch closely, governs the Accusative (Luke xxiv. 39; Acts xvii. 27; 1 John i. 1). "The mount that might be touched" (Heb. xii. 18), where this word is used, does not contradict v. 20, as it simply refers to the nature of the mountain, pulpable or "material."

b. Verbs expressive of mental affections; as desire, caring for, despising;

Acts xx. 33: ἀργυρίου ή χρυσίου ή ἱματισμοῦ οἰδενὸς ἐπεθύμησα, I desired no one's silver or gold or raiment.

^{*} Mr. Jelf (Kühner's Greek Grammar) explains the difference simply as a variation in the mode of expression; the Accusative calling attention rather to the action, the Genitive to the material, as in English, "He eats some meat" (Gen.); "He eats meat" (Acc.). Bengel's view of this passage is more subtle. "'The gift,'" he says, "can be only partially received in this life; while 'the Word' essentially belongs to us now." But see Alford's note, comparing the Accusative with that in John ii. 9.

Titus iii. 8: Γνα φροντίζωσι καλών ἔργων, that they may be zealous of (careful to maintain, E.V.) good works.

1 Tim. iii. 5: πῶς ἐκκλησίας Θεοῦ ἐπιμελήσεται, how shall he cure for the church of God?

Heb. xii. 5: μὴ ὀλιγώρει παιδείας Κυρίου, do not slight the chastisement of the Lord.

c. Verbs of remembrance and forgetting:

Luke xvii. 32: μνημονεύετε της γυναικός Λώτ, remember Lot's wife.

Heb. xii. 5: ϵ κλέλησθε τῆς παρακλήσεως, ye have forgotten the exhortation.

Many grammarians prefer to class the Genitive after all these verbs under the head of "Partition." (See § 261, seq.)

250. Verbs of accusing, condemning, &c., take a Genitive of the charge, i.e., of the source of the accusation.

Acts xix. 40: ἐγκαλεῖσθαι στάσεως, to be accused of sedition.

The Genitive of the person is used after κατηγορέω, to accuse, lit., "to assert against one."

Matt. xii. 10: ΐνα κατηγορήσωσιν αὐτοῦ, that they might accuse Him.

251. Adjectives and Verbs signifying plenty, want, fulness, and the like, are followed by a Genitive of that from which another is filled, &c

John i. 14: πλήρης χάριτος καὶ άληθείας, full of grace and truth.

John xxi. 11: τὸ δίκτυον ... μεστὸν ἰχθύων, the net .. full of fishes.

Luke i. 53: πεινῶντας ἐνέπλησεν ἀγαθῶν, He filled the hungry with good things.

John ii. 7: γεμίσατε τὰς ὑδρίας ὕδατος, fill the water-pots with water.

Romans iii. 23: πάντες ὑστεροῦνται τῆς δόξης τοῦ Θεοῦ, all come short of the glory of God.

James i. 5: εἴ τις ὑμῶν λείπεται σοφίας, if any of you lacketh wisdom.

This Genitive is referred by some to the head of "Separation;" by others to "Partition."

II. Separation, or Ablation.

252. Verbs of separation, as those denoting removal, difference, hindrance, and the like, take a Genitive as the case of their secondary object. (See § 186.)

Prepositions, however, are more generally inserted.

Luke xvi. 4: ὅταν μετασταθῶ τῆς οἰκονομίας, when I shall have been displaced from my stewardship.

Acts xxvii. 43: ἐκώλυσεν αὐτοὺς τοῦ βουλήματος, he hindered them from their purpose.

Eph. ii. 12: ἀπηλλοτριωμένοι τῆς πολιτείας τοῦ Ἰσραήλ, alienated from the commonwealth of Israel.

1 Tim. i. 6: ὧν τινες ἀστοχήσαντες, from which some having gone wide in aim.*

1 Pet. iv. 1: πέπαυται άμαρτίας, he hath ceased from sin.

253. Under this head may be placed the important rule, that the object of comparison is expressed by the Genitive, whether after verbs, or, more usually, after adjectives in the comparative degree.

See on the Comparative, § 320. This Genitive, also, is one of Separation; the two things compared being mentally set apart from each other. So in Latin, the Ablative case is employed.†

When the word than is expressed in Greek (by the conjunction $\check{\eta}$), the things compared are put in apposition.

i. Verbs:

1 Cor. xv. 41 · ἀστὴρ ἀστέρος διαφέρει, star differeth from star.

^{*} Ellicott.

[†] The Hebrew language yet more clearly identifies comparison and separation, by its use of the preposition from with the simple adjective. Thus, "greater than he" would be expressed by the phrase, "great from him;" the Hebrews "conceiving pre-eminence as a taking out, a designating from the multitude" (Gesenius). So is Homer, $i\kappa$ $\pi d\nu \tau \omega \nu$, more than all. In modern Greek, the preposition $i\kappa \sigma \delta$ is used after the comparative.

The verb διαφέρω often implies superiority.

Matt. x. 31 : πολλῶν στρουθίων διαφέρετε ύμεῖς, ye are better than many eparrows.

So vi. 26, xii. 12; Luke xii. 7, 24; Gal. iv. 1, "is no better than a slave."

ii. Adjectives in the Comparative degree:

John xiii. 16: οὐκ ἔστι δοῦλος μείζων τοῦ κυρίου, a servant is not greater than his master.

John xxi. 15: ἀγαπῷς με πλεῖου τούτων; lovest thou me more than these?

1 Tim. v. 8: ἔστιν ἀπίστου χείρων, he is worse than an unbeliever.

The subject of comparison is sometimes repeated by implication in the object.

Mark iv. 31: μικρότερος πάντων τῶν σπερμάτων, less than all the seeds, although itself a seed.

1 Cor. xiii. 13: μείζων τούτων ή ἀγάπη, love is greater than these; love, nevertheless, being one of the three.

A comparative and superlative are combined in Eph. iii. S, so that the following Genitive may be referred to this rule or to the partitive construction: ἐμοὶ τῷ ἐλαχιστοτέρῳ πάντων τῶν ἀγίων, to me, who am less than the least of all the saints.

III. Possession.

254. The most frequent use of the Cenitive is as the Possessive Case, generally with substantives.

Here, also, the fundamental meaning of the case as denoting whence is very apparent. From the notion of origination, by an easy transition, comes that of possession. Thus, "the sons of Zebedee" may be taken as "the sons begotten by Zebedee," or "the sons belonging to Zebedee;" "the kingdom of heaven" may mean "the kingdom set up by heavenly powers," or "the kingdom governed by these powers." So, again, the notion of "belonging to" attaches to the Genitive where that of "originated by" has disappeared.*

^{*} Compare Müller's "Lectures on the Science of Language," Vol. I., p. 105.

Mark i. 29: ηλθον είς, την ολκίαν Σίμωνος και 'Ανδρέου, they came into the house of Simon and Andrew.

Romans i. 1: Παίλος δούλος Ἰησού Χριστού, Paul a servant of Jesus Christ.

- 255. The Genitives of the personal pronouns are mostly employed in this sense intead of the possessive adjectival forms. So ή θυγάτηρ μου, my daughter; οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, his disciples. (See § 333.)
- 256. Words denoting kindred, &c., are often omitted before a Possessive Genitive, especially when they would stand in apposition with a proper name. Sometimes the Article of the omitted noun is inserted. (See §§ 194, 196.)
- νίός. Matt. iv. 21: Ἰάκωβον τὸν τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου, James the (son) of Zebedee.

John vi. 71: τὸν Ἰούδαν Σίμωνος, (the) Judas (son) of Simon.

John xxi. 15, 16, 17: Σίμων Ἰωνα, Simon (son) of Jonas.

- 2. πατήρ. Acts vii. 16: Ἐμμὸρ τοῦ Συχέμ, Hamor the (father) of Shechem.
- 3. μήτηρ. Luke xxiv. 10: Μαρία Ἰακώβου, Mary the (mother) of James. So Mark xv. 47, xvi. 1.
- 4. ἀδελφός. Luke vi. 16; Acts i. 13: Ἰούδας Ἰακώβου, Judas (the brother) of James; as expressed, Jude 1.
- γυνή. Matt. i. 6: ἐκ τῆς τοῦ Οὐρίου, from the (wife) of Uriah.
 So John xix. 25.
- 6. οἴκειοι. 1 Cor. i. 11: ὑπὸ τῶν Χλόης, by the (kinsfolk) of Chloe.
- 7. οἶκος or δῶμα. Mark v. 35: ἀπὸ τοῦ ἀρχισυναγώγου, from (the house) of the ruler of the synagogue. This is clear, as the ruler was himself with Jesus. So, perhaps, John xviii. 28.

Acts ii. 27, 31: els adov, "thou wilt not abandon my soul" to

(the habitations) of Hades; a classical phrase; or, "to (the power) of the unseen world." In Ps. xvi. 10, some copies of the LXX. read ἄδου, others ἄδην.

In Luke ii. 49, ἐν τοῖς τοῦ πατρός μου have been variously read, in my Father's business, or in my Father's house (plural, as in John xix. 27, τὰ ιδια). The former gives the wider significance: "among my Father's matters" (Alford). So all the versions of the English Hexapla, Luther, De Wette.

257. Attribute or quality is often expressed by the Possessive Genitive of an abstract substantive.

In such cases the person or thing is spoken of as belonging to the virtue, vice, or other abstraction. The phrase may often be idiomatically rendered by turning the Genitive into an adjective. Thus, Luke xvi. 8, τον οἰκόιομον τῆς ἀδικίας, the steward of injustice, may be read the unjust steward. But such renderings lose the force of the original.

Rom. i. 26: πάθη ἀτιμίας, lusts of dishonour.

Heb. ix. 10: δικαιώματα σάρκος, ordinances of flesh.

1 Pet. i. 2: ἐν άγιασμῷ πνεύματος, "in sanctification of spirit, "a spiritual sanctification."

James i. 25: ἀκροατὴς ἐπιλησμονῆς, α hearer of forgetfulness, "a forgetful hearer."

James ii. 4: κριταὶ διαλογισμῶν πονηρῶν, judges of evil thoughts, "evil-thinking judges."

258. To the strictly Possessive Genitive belong several phrases which have been otherwise interpreted—

2 Cor. iv. 6: της γνώσεως της δόξης τοῦ Θεοῦ, of the knowledge of the glory of God, i.e, the glory which belongs to God, and which He reveals in Christ; not, certainly, "the glorious God."

Eph. i. 6: εἰς ἔπαινον δόξης τῆς χάριτος αὐτοῦ, to the praise of the glory of His grace, i.e., the glory which characterizes Divine grace; not "glorious praise" or "glorious grace."

Col. i. 11: κατὰ τὸ κράτος τῆς δόξης, according to the power of His glory; "not 'his glorious power' (Auth., Beza, &c.), but 'the power which is the peculiar characteristic of His glory;' the Genitive belonging to the category of the Possessive Genitive" (Ellicott).

Heb. i. 3: τῶ ῥήματι τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ, hụ the word of His power; belonging to it, as its true utterance, "not," says Alford, "to be weakened into the comparatively unmeaning 'by His powerful word."

See also Rom. vii. 24; Col. i. 13; Rev. iii. 10.

259. The Genitive is occasionally used by way of apposition, as if with some such ellipsis as consisting of, or bearing the name of. Compare the English idiom, the City of Jerusalem, where Jerusalem is the city.

This rule is an exception to the ordinary construction. The usual idiom in Greek is the city, Jerusalem.

2 Pet. ii. 6: πόλεις Σοδόμων και Γομόρρας, (the) cities of Sodom and Gomorrah.

John ii. 21: $\pi\epsilon\rho$ τοῦ ναοῦ τοῦ σώματος αὐτοῦ, concerning the temple of his body.

Rom. iv. 11: σημείον έλαβε περιτομης, he received the sign of circumcision. So Acts iv. 22.

2 Cor. v. 1: ή οἰκία τοῦ σκήνους, the house of (our) tabernacle.

2 Cor. v. 5 : τὸν ἀβράβῶνα τοῦ Πνεύματος, the earnest of the Spirit.
So ch. i. 22. Compare Romans viii. 23.*

See also Eph. vi. 14-16; Heb. vi. 1; and many other passages.

The difficult phrase, Eph. iv. 9, $\epsilon is \ \tau \grave{\alpha} \ \kappa \alpha \tau \acute{\omega} \tau \epsilon \rho \alpha \ \tau \hat{\eta} s \ \gamma \hat{\eta} s$, has by many interpreters been regarded as an instance of the Genitive of Apposition: "to the Iower earth," "to earth beneath," contrasted with such phrases as "the height of heaven" (Isa. xiv. 14). See Pishop Ellicott's note, in which the opposite view (the descent into Hades) is maintained.

260. Position of the Genitive.

a. The Genitive is usually placed after the governing noun.

When both nouns have the Article, each is usually preceded by its own. In classic Greek, the Article of the governing noun usually stands first in the phrase; then the governed Article and Genitive; and lastly, ^{* &}quot;The first fruits (of our inheritance) consisting of the Holy Spirit" (Dr. Vaughan on Rom, viii, 23. So Winer,

- b. But the Genitive precedes—
 - When one Genitive belongs to more than one substantive— Acts iii. 7: αὐτοῦ αἱ βάσεις καὶ τὰ σφυρά, his feet and ankle-bones.
 - 2. When the word in the Genitive is emphatic. The emphasis may arise—
 - (a) From antithesis-

Phil. ii. 25: τὸν συστρατιώτην μου, ὑμῶν δε ἀπόστολον, my fellowsoldier, but your messenger. See also Eph. vi. 9; Heb. vii. 22, &c.

(b) From the Genitive containing the principal notion-

Rom. xi. 13: ἐθνῶν ἀπόστολος, apostle of Gentiles. See also 1 Cor. iii. 9; Titus i. 7; James i. 26, &c.

In Heb. vi. 2, βαπτισμῶν διδαχῆs, it has been questioned which word is the governing one, doctrine of baptisms, or, baptisms of doctrine. Winer favours the latter (Grammar, § xxx. 3, note 4).

IV. Partition.

- 261. Closely connected with the fundamental notion of the Genitive is that of participation. The part is taken from the whole.
- 1 Pet. i. 1: ἐκλεκτοῖς παρεπιδήμοις διασπορᾶς, to elect sojourners of (the) dispersion.

Matt. xv. 24: τὰ πρόβατα τὰ ἀπολωλότα οἴκου Ἰσραήλ, the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

262. This Genitive is most commonly found after partitive adjectives, the indefinite and interrogative pronouns, with the numerals, and adjectives in the superlative degree.

Partitive Adjectives.

Matt. iii. 7: π oλλούς τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων, many of the Pharisses and Sadducees.

Luke xix 8: τὰ ἡμίση τῶν ὑπαρχόντων the half (halves) of my goods.

Acts xvii. 12: ἀνδρῶν οὐκ ὀλίγοι, of men not a few.

Matt. xv. 37: τὸ περισσεῦον τών κλασμάτων, the remaining (part) of the broken pieces.

Pronouns.

Matt. ix. 3: τινές των γραμματέων, some of the Scribes.

Acts v. 15: ἐπισκιάση τινὶ αὐτῶν, might overshadow any of them.

Luke x. 36: τίς οὖν τούτων, which, then, of these?

Numerals-Cardinal, Ordinal, Negative.

Matt. v. 29: ἐν τῶν μελῶν σου, one of thy members.

Acts x. 7: φωνήσας δύο τῶν οἰκετῶν, having called two of the domestics.

Rev. viii. 7: τὸ τρίτον τῆs γῆs, the third of the land. So vv. 8-18.

Mark xi. 2: οὐδεὶς ἀνθρώπων, lit., no one of men.

But the preposition $\epsilon \kappa$ is more frequently used after numeral adjectives.

Superlatives.

1 Cor. xv. 9: ὁ ἐλάχιστος τῶν ἀποστόλων, the least of the apostles.

263. Verbs of partaking are followed by a Genitive.

1 Cor. x. 21: τραπέζης Κυρίου μετέχευ, to partake of the table of the Lord. Once this verb is found with έκ, ver. 17.

Heb. ii. 14: τὰ παιδία κεκοινώνηκε σαρκὸς καὶ αἴματος, the children are partakers of flesh and blood. This verb is found also with a Dative, Rom. xv. 27; 1 Tim. v. 22; 1 Pet. iv. 13; 2 John 11.

Heb. xii. 10: μεταλαβεῖν τῆς ἀγιότητος αὐτοῦ, to partake his holiness.

264. So also verbs which signify to take hold of, to attain, when a part is implied.

Luke xx. 35: τοῦ αἰῶνος ἐκείνου τυχεῖν, to attain that world.

Luke viii. 54: κρατήσας της χειρός αὐτης, having taken hold of her hand.

The strictly partitive sense is well illustrated by this verb. When the whole is grasped, $\kappa\rho\alpha\tau\epsilon\omega$ takes an Accusative, as in Matt. xiv. 3, &c.

Some verbs of this class are followed in the Middle voice by a partitive Genitive, whereas in the Active they would take an Accusative.

Matt. vi. 24: τοῦ ένὸς ἀνθέξεται, he will cleave to the one.

Matt. xiv. 31: ἐπελάβετο αὐτοῦ, he took hold of him.

For the force of the Middle, see § 355. "Holding one's self by the given object" is implied.

265. Adverbs of time are followed by a partitive Genitive.

Matt. xxviii. 1: ὀψὲ δὲ σαββάτων, and late upon the sabbath.

Mark xvi. 2: λίαν πρωί της μιας σαββάτων, very early on the first day of the week.

Heb. ix. $7: \tilde{a}\pi a \xi$ τοῦ ἐνιαυτοῦ, once in the year.

So Luke xvii. 4, xviii. 12. Compare the English colloquialism, late of an evening.

266. Certain Genitive phrases are used, in the partitive sense, to denote time or place.

So Matt. ii. 14: νυκτός, by night; Luke xviii. 7: ἡμέρας καὶ νυκτός, day and night; Gal. vi. 17: τοῦ λουποῦ, for the rest (future); Luke v. 19: ποίας (όδοῦ) εἰσενέγκωσιν αὐτόν, by what (way) they might bring him in.

Prepositions are, however, more generally employed to define these relations.

267. The verb to be is often followed by a Genitive in the partitive sense.

Heb. x. 39 : ημείς δὲ οὐκ ἐσμὲν ὑποστολῆς ... ἀλλὰ πίστεως, but we are not of a desertion (literally), but of faith.

Rom. ix. 9: ἐπαγγελίας γὰρ ὁ λόγος οὖτος, for this word (is) one of promise.

The Genitive in this connexion may, however, have other significations, as, e.g., that of Possession—

1 Cor. iii. 21 : πάντα ύμων ἐστιν, all things are yours.

1 Cor. vi. 19: οὐκ ἐστὰ ἑαυτῶν, ye are not your own.

In general, the verb to be, followed by a Genitive, implies an ellipsis, such as part, characteristic, property, &c.

V. Object.

268. The Genitive case is often objectively employed,* that is, it expresses the object of some feeling or action, and may be rendered by various prepositions, as below.

The fundamental meaning of the Genitive is here also very apparent, the object of a sentiment being, in another view of it, the source or occasion of its existence. Thus ἔχετε πίστιν Θεοῦ (Mark xi. 22), have faith in (or towards) God, really means, "have such faith as His character excites." Compare Col. ii. 12.

Luke vi. 12: ἐν τῷ προσευχῷ τοῦ Θεοῦ, in prayer to God.†

John ii. 17: ὁ ζῆλος τοῦ οἴκου σου, the zeal concerning thy house; compare Titus ii. 14.

John xvii. 2: ἐξουσίαν πάσης σαρκός, power over all flesh. For similar constructions of ἐξουσία, see Matt. x. 1; Mark vi. 7; 1 Cor. ix. 12.

Acts iv. 9: εὐεργεσία ἀνθρώπου ἀσθενοῦς, for a benefit conferred on an impotent man.

Heb. xi. 26: τὸν ὀνειδισμὸν τοῦ Χριστοῦ, the reproach in connexion with the Christ (as the hope of Israel).

1 Pet. ii. 19: διὰ συνείδησιν Θεοῦ, on account of conscience toward God.

^{*} Compare Angus's "Handbook to the English Language," § 384.

[†] Some, less naturally, interpret the phrase, in the place of prayer to God, comparing the passage with Acts xvi. 13, "where there was accustomed to be prayer," as E.V., Alford; a place of prayer, Neander, Meyer, Hackett, &c.

Rom. x. 2: ζήλον Θεοῦ ἔχουσιν, they have a zeal toward God.

2 Cor. x. 5: εἰς τὴν ὑπακοὴν τοῦ Χριστοῦ, to the obedience rendered to Christ. But ὑπακοὴ πίστεως, Rom. i. 5, is obedience springing from faith.

Col. ii. 18: θρησκεία τῶν ἀγγέλων, worship paid to angels. (See Ellicott, in loc.)

269. Some phrases are susceptible of either a possessive (attributive, subjective), or an objective signification. Thus, ή ἀγάπη Θεοῦ, the love of God, may mean, the love which God possesses as His attribute, that which He bears to us, or that which is borne towards Him. A few important passages may be subjoined by way of illustration.

Passages with ἀγάπη and a subjective Genitive—

2 Cor. xiii. 13: the love of God ... be with you.

Rom. viii. 35: what shall separate us from the love of Christ? So ver. 39.

Eph. iii. 19: to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge.

2 Cor. v. 14: the love of Christ constraineth us. Not our love to Christ, but His love to us.

In the following, the Genitive seems objectively used—

John v. 42: ye have not the love of God in you. So 1 John ii. 15.

1 John ii. 5: in him is the love of God perfected.

2 Thess. iii. 5: the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God.

In Romans v. 5, "the live of God is shed abroad in our hearts," Dr. Vaughan writes of the subjective and objective interpretations, that the two ideas may be included. See 1 John iv. 16, v. 3: "the two are but opposite aspects of the same love; the sense of God's love is not the cause only, but the essence of ours. 1 John iv. 19."

2 Cor. v. 11: εἶδότες τὸν φόβον τοῦ Κυρίου, knowing the fear of the Lord, generally taken as subjective, as E.V., "the terror of the Lord," belonging to Him as Judge; but everywhere else the phrase is objective—fear, i.e., reverence towards Him. So Alford renders here, conscious of the fear of the Lord; but doubtfully. For other passages, see Acts ix. 31; Rom. iii. 18; 2 Cor. vii. 1; Eph. v. 21.

VI. Relation.

270. Closely connected with the objective use of the Genitive are cases where a more general relation is signified; some such prepositional phrase as in respect of being applicable, while the context shows the kind of relation intended.

This general way of expressing relation is often not so much ambiguous as comprehensive. Thus, in the frequent phrase, τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τοῦ Χριστοῦ, the Gospel of Christ, it is needless to ask whether the meaning be the Gospel from Christ as its author, * about Christ as its subject, † or in the prerogative of Christ as its administrator, ‡ Each of these thoughts is but one element in the analysis of the phrase.

Mark i. 4: βάπτισμα μετανοίας, a baptism which had reference to repentance.

John v. 29: ἀνάστασων ζωῆς ... ἀνάστασων κρίσεως, resurrection in order to life ... in order to condemnation.

John vii. 35: τὴν διασπορὰν τῶν Ἑλλήνων, the dispersion (of the Jews) among the Greeks (Gentiles.)

Romans v. 18: δικαίωσιν ζωής, justification in order to life.

Romans viii. 36: πρόβατα σφαγήs, sheep doomed to slaughter.

Rom. vii. 2: ἀπὸ τοῦ νόμου τοῦ ἀνδρός, the law of the husband, i.e., that which defines the relation.§

Rom. xiii. 3: φόβος τῶν ἀγαθῶν ἔργων, a terror in respect to good works.

Ephes. iv. 16: διὰ πάσης άφης της ἐπιχορηγίας, through every joint (which is) for the purpose of the supply. See Ellicott, in loc., who compares the phrase with τὰ σκεύη τῆς λειτουργίας, Heb. ix. 21, the vessels of the ministering.

^{*} So the Gospel of God, Rom. i. 1, &c.

[†] Compare the phrase, Gospel of the Kingdom, Matt. iv. 23, ix. 35.

[‡] In the language of the Apostle Paul, my Gospel is evidently the Gospel entrusted to and preached by me, Rom. ii. 16; xvi. 25; 2 Tim. ii. 8.

[§] See Winer, who quotes Old Testament parallels, Lev. vii. 1; xiv. 2, xv. 32; Numb. vi. 13, 21.

Phil. iv. 9: δ Θεδς της εἰρήνης, the God who bestows peace, or perhaps a Genitive of quality.

In most of these instances, a preposition with its case would be an equally idiomatic usage.

271. The Genitive is also used after adjectives, as after nouns (§ 256), to denote various kinds of relation. Examples of this in the general sense are such as the following:—

Heb. v. 13: ἄπειρος λόγου δικαιοσύνης, unskilled in respect of the word of righteousness.

Heb. iii. 12: καρδία πονηρὰ ἀπιστίας, a heart wicked in respect to unbelief (Winer).

James i. 13: ἀπείραστος κακῶν, unversed in things evil (Alford).

272. Adjectives, especially, signifying worthiness, fitness, or their opposites, take a following Genitive. So also their adverbs.

Matt. iii. 8: καρπὸν ἄξιον τῆς μετανοίας, fruit meet for repentance.

Matt. x. 10: ἄξιος ὁ ἐργάτης τῆς τροφῆς αὐτοῦ, the workman is worthy of his maintenance.

1 Cor. vi. 2: ἀνάξιοί ἐστε κριτηρίων ἐλαχίστων, are ye unworthy of (incompetent for) the least decisions?

Rom. xvi. 2: ἀξίως τῶν ἀγίων, "worthily (in a manner becoming) the holy," "as becometh saints," E.V.

See also Eph. iv. 1; Phil. i. 27; Col. i. 10; 1 Thess. ii. 12; 3 John 6.

273. So, in general, price, equivalent, penalty, and the like, are expressed by the Genitive.

Matt. x. 29: οἰχὶ δύο στρούθια ἀσσαρίου πωλεῖται; are not two sparrows sold for a farthing?

Rev. vi. 6: χοῦνιξ σίτου δηναρίου καὶ τρεῖς χοίνικες κριθῶν δηναρίου, a measure of wheat for a denarius, and three measures of barley for a denarius.

274. In a few instances, one noun governs two Genitives in different relations.

Acts v. 32: ἡμεῖς ἐσμεν αὐτοῦ μάρτυρες τῶν ἡημάτων τούτων, we are his (possess.) witnesses of (remote obj.), or in respect to, these things.

2 Cor. v. 1: ή ἐπίγειος ἡμῶν οἰκία τοῦ σκήνους, our (possess.) earthly house of the tahernacle (appos.)

Phil. ii. 30 : τὸ ὑμῶν ὑστέρημα τῆς λειτουργίας, your lack in respect of the service.

2 Pet. iii. 2: τῆς τῶν ἀποστόλων ὑμῶν ἐντολῆς τοῦ Κυρίου, the commandment of the Lord (orig.), given by (remote obj.) your apostles. The ordinary reading has ἡμῶν, but even then the reading of E.V. is inadmissible.

The two Genitives in John vi. 1, $\hat{\eta}$ $\theta d\lambda a \sigma \sigma a \tau \hat{\eta} s$ $\Gamma a \lambda i \lambda a l a s$, $\tau \hat{\eta} s$ $\Gamma i \beta \epsilon - \rho i d \delta \sigma s$, are virtually in apposition, the sea of Galilee (as the Jews eall it), of Tiberias (as the Gentiles), one name denoting the country, the other the city. So we might say, "the Lake of the Four Cantons, of Lucerne."

The dependence of successive Genitives on each other is frequent, as many foregoing examples will show.

VII. The Genitive Absolute.

275. A Genitive noun, in agreement with a participle expressed or understood, often occurs in a subordinate sentence absolutely, i.e., without immediate dependence on any other words. The noun, in these cases, is to be translated first, without a preposition, then the participle. In idiomatic English, a conjunction must often be supplied.

It will be observed that the Genitive in this construction refers to some other than the Subject of the principal sentence.

Equivalent idioms are in English the nominative absolute, in Latin the ablative absolute.

Matt. i. 18: μνηστευθείσης ... Μαρίας, Mary having been betrothed.

Matt. i. 20: ταῦτα δὲ αὐτοῦ ἐνθυμηθέντος, and he having reflected on these things, i.e., when he reflected.

Matt. ii. 1: τοῦ Ἰησοῦ γεννηθέντος, Jesus having been born, i.e., when Jesus was born.

Matt. ii. 13: ἀναχωρησάντων δὲ αὐτῶν, and they having departed, i.e., when they departed.

Matt. xvii. 9: καταβαινόντων αὐτῶν ἐκ τοῦ ὄρους, they descending from the mountain, i.e., while they were descending.

Heb. iv. 1: καταλειπομένης ἐπαγγελίας, a promise being (still) left. (See Alford's note.)

The Genitive Absolute, says Dr. Donaldson, is originally causal, in conformity with the primary notion of the case. Hence arise, by way of analogy, its other uses as denoting accessories of time, manner, or circumstance. The tense of the participle greatly determines the force of the phrase. (See § 393.)

THE DATIVE.

276. In its primary local sense (see § 11), the Dative implies juxtaposition.* Hence the various modifications of its meaning, which may be classed as follows:—

1. Association.

3. Reference.

2. Transmission.

4. Accessory.

The Dative in a sentence is generally an indirect complement of the Predicate, or "remote object." (See § 186.)

T. Association.

277. a. Verbs signifying intercourse, companionship, and the like, are often followed by a Dative.

Matt. ix. 9: ἀκολούθει μοι, follow me.

Luke xv. 15: $\epsilon \kappa \delta \lambda \dot{\eta} \theta \eta \epsilon v \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \pi \delta \lambda \iota \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$, he attached himself to one of the citizens.

Acts xxiv. 26: ωμίλει αὐτω, he conversed with him.

^{*} The Greek Dative is therefore diametrically opposed to the Genitive, 1. The latter signifies separation, the former proximity. 2. The latter denotes subtraction, the former addition. 3. The latter expresses comparison of different things, the former equality, or sameness. — Dr. Donaldson.

Rom. vii. 2: avopt dédetai, she is bound to a husband.

James iv. 8: $\epsilon_{\gamma\gamma}i\sigma_{\alpha\tau\epsilon} + \tau_{\varphi} \Theta_{\epsilon\varphi}$, καὶ $\epsilon_{\gamma\gamma}i\epsilon$ î ὑμῖν, draw near to God, and he will draw near to you.

b. Likeness, fitness, equality, and their opposites, are marked by a Dative after adjectives and verbs.

Matt. xxiii. 27: όμοιάζετε τάφοις κεκονιαμένοις, ye are like unto whited sepulchres.

Luke xiii. 18: τίνι ὁμοιώσω αὐτήν; to what shall I liken it?

James i. 6: κοικε κλύδωνι θαλάσσης, he is like a wave of the sea.

Eph. v. 3: καθώς πρέπει άγίοις, as it becometh saints.

Matt. xx. 12: ἴσους ήμιν αὐτοὺς ἐποίησας, thou madest them equal with us.

c. After a substantive verb, the Dative often denotes possession or property.

Matt. xviii. 12: ἐαν γένηταί τινι ἀνθρώπω ἐκατὸν πρόβατα, if a man have (if there be to any man) a hundred sheep.

Acts viii. 21: οὐκ ἔστι σοι μερὶς ουδὲ κλῆρος ἐν τῷ λόγῳ τούτῳ, thou hast not (there is to thee) part nor lot in this matter.

The verb is sometimes omitted.

2 Cor. vi. 14: τίς γὰρ μετοχή δικαιοσύνη καὶ ἀνομία, for what participation have righteousness and iniquity?

II. Transmission.

278. a. Verbs of giving, whether active or passive, are followed by a Dative of the person.

After the active verb, the thing (Accusative) is the direct, the person (Dative) the indirect object. (See § 186.)

Matt. vii. 6: μὴ δῶτε τὸ ἄγιον τοις κυσί, give not that which is holy to the dogs.

Matt. vii. 7: αἰτεῖτε, καὶ δοθήσεται ὑμῖν, ask, and it shall be given unto you.

Rom. i. 11: ΐνα τι μεταδῶ χάρισμα ὑμῖν πνευματικόν, that I may impart to you some spiritual gift.

Heb. ii. 5: οὐ γὰρ ἀγγέλοις ὑπέταξε τὴν οἰκουμένην τὴν μελλουσαν, for he did not subject the world to come unto angels.

 The Dative also indicates the receiver of information, tidings, command.

So in the common λέγω ὑμῖν, I say unto you.

Matt. xiii. 3: ἐλάλησεν αὐτοι̂ς πολλά, he spake many things to them.

1 Cor. v. 9: ἔγραψα ὑμῖν ἐν τῆ ἐπιστολῆ, I wrote (or have written) to you in my letter.

Luke iv. 18: εὐαγγελίσασθαι πτωχοῖs, to preach glad tidings to the poor; LXX., Isa. lxi. 1 (also with Accusative).

Acts i. 2: ἐντειλάμενος τοις ἀποστόλοις, having given commandment to the apostles.

But κελεύω, to order, governs the Accusative.

c. Words denoting assistance, succour, &c., are followed by a Dative.

Matt. iv. 11: καὶ διηκόνουν αὐτῶ, and they ministered unto him.

Matt. xv. 25 : Κύριε, βοήθει μοι, Lord, help me!

d. The object of a mental affection, as esteem, anger, worship, &c., also obedience and faith, is often expressed by a Dative.

The Genitive in a similar connexion expresses the source of the feeling. (See § 249.)

But the construction with prepositions is generally preferred, as giving additional precision and emphasis.

Matt. vi. 25: μὴ μεριμνᾶτε τῆ ψυχῆ, care not for your life. So Luke xii. 22. But with π ερί, Matt. vi. 28, Luke xii. 26; with ν πέρ, 1 Cor. xii. 25; with Accusative, 1 Cor. vii. 32–34.

Matt. v. 22: ὁ ὀργιζόμενος τῷ ἀδελφῷ, he who is angry with his brother.* With ἐπί, Rev. xii. 17.

^{*} The following word eixî, without a cause, should probably be omitted. Lachmann, Tischendorf, &c.

Gal. i. 10: ζητῶ ἀνθρώποις ἀρέσκειν; do I seek to please men?

Matt. ii. 2: ἤλθομεν προσκυνῆσαι αὐτῷ, we are come to worship him; always with Dative in Matt., Mark, and Paul (except Matt. iv. 10, from LXX.), in other books with Dative or Accusative.

Matt. xxi. 25: οὐκ ἐπιστεύσατε αὐτῷ, ye believed him not; also with ἐπί (Dative), ἐπί (Accusative), and εἰs.

Acts v. 36, 37: ὅσοι ἐπείθοντο αὐτῷ, as many as obeyed him.

Rom. x. 16: οὐ πάντες ὑπήκουσαν τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ, they did not all obey the Gospel.

III. Reference.

279. The person or thing in respect of whom or which anything is done, whether to benefit or injure,* or in any other way, may be expressed by the Dative. This reference may generally be expressed in English by the preposition for.

Matt. iii. 16: ἀνεψίχθησαν αὐτῷ οἱ οἰρανοί, the heavens were opened for him.

Matt. xvii. 4: ποιήσω ωδε τρείς σκηνάς, σοι μίαν και Μωϋσει μίαν και Ήλια μίαν, let me make here three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

Rom. vi. 2: οἴτινες ἀπεθάνομεν τῆ ἀμαρτία, we who died to sin.

2 Cor. v. 13: εἴτε γὰρ ἐξέστημεν, Θεῷ, εἴτε σωφρονοίμεν, ὑμῖν, for whether we were beside ourselves, (it was) for God, whether we are sober, (it is) for you.

James iii. 18: καρπὸς ... σπειρεται τοις ποιούσιν εἰρήνην, the fruit of righteousness is sown for them that make peace.

Heb. iv. 9: ἄρα ἀπολείπεται σαββατισμὸς τῷ λαῷ τοῦ Θεοῦ, there remaineth therefore a sabbath-keeping for the people of God.

Matt. xxiii. 31: μαρτυρεῖτε ἐαυτοῖs, ye bear witness against yourselves. See also James v. 3; and compare 1 Cor. iv. 4.

Rom. vi. 20: ἐλεύθεροι ἦτε τῷ δικαιοσύνη, ye were free in regard to righteousness; not simply "from righteousness," which would have required the Genitive.

^{*} Latin, Dativus commodi vel incommodi.

To this use of the Dative may be attributed the phrase, $\tau \ell \stackrel{\cdot}{\epsilon}\mu o \iota$, what have I to do with thee ℓ lit., what is for me and thee ℓ i.e., what have we in common ℓ Mark v. 7 (Matt. viii. 29); John ii. 4, &c.

IV. Accessory Circumstance.

280. a. The mode of an action is expressed by the Dative.

Acts xi. 23: παρεκάλει πάντας τη προθέσει της καρδίας προσμένειν το Kwpio, he was exharting all to cleave to the Lord with the purpose of the heart.

1 Cor. x. 30: εὶ ἐγὼ χάριτι μετέχω, if I partake with thunkfulness.

Phil. i. 18: παντί τρόπω, είτε προφάσει, είτε άληθείς, Χριστός καταγγελλεται, in every way, whether in pretence or truth, Christ is preached.

See also Acts xv. 1; 2 Cor. iii. 18; Eph. v. 19, &c.

b. A modal Dative sometimes emphatically repeats the notion of the verb. See an analogous idiom with the Accusative (§ 282), and with the Predicate Participle (§ 394, i., 3, d.) This Dative may have a qualifying adjective.

James v. 17: προσευχή προσηύζατο, he prayed with prayer, i.e., he prayed earnestly.

Mark v. 42: ἐξέστησαν ἐκστάσει μεγάλη, they were astonished with a great astonishment, i.e., were greatly astonished. See also 1 Pet. i. 8.

For other examples, see Matt. xv. 4; Luke xxii. 15; John iii. 29; Acts iv. 17, v. 28, xxiii. 14.

For modal Datives that have become actual Adverbs, see § 400.

c. The Dative is used to denote the cause or motive.

Rom. iv. 20: οὐ διεκρίθη τῆ ἀπιστία ἀλλ' ἐνεθυναμώθη τῆ πίστει, he hesitated not through unbelief, but was strong through faith.

Gal. vi. 12: ΐνα μὴ τῷ σταυρῷ τοῦ Χριστοῦ διώκωνται, that they may not be persecuted for the cross of Christ.

- 1 Pet. iv. 12: μη ξενίζεσθε τῆ ἐν ὑμῶν πυρώσει, be not dismayed (lit., "be not as strangers") at the conflagration (which has broken out) among you.
 - d. The Dative is also the case of the Instrument.

Matt. iii. 12: τὸ δὲ ἄχυρον κατακαύσει πυρὶ ἀσβέστῳ, but the chajf he will burn with unquenchable fire.

Acts xii. 2: ἀνείλε δὲ Ἰάκωβον ... μαχαίρα, and he slew James with (the) sword.

Rom. i. 29: πεπληρωμένους πάση ἀδικία, πονηρία, πλεονεξία, κακία, being filled (utterly engrossed) by all iniquity, depravity, greed, baseness. "Filled with" would have required the Genitive. (See § 265, and compare 2 Cor. vii. 4.)*

Eph. ii. 5, 8: χάριτί ἐστε σεσωσμένοι, by grace ye have been saved. In Romans viii. 24, τῆ γὰρ ἐλπίδι ἐσώθημεν may be rendered, for we were saved by hope (instrumental), or in hope (modal).

2 Pet. i. 3: τοῦ καλέσαντος ἡμᾶς ἰδία δόξη και ἀρετῆ, ο΄ him who called us by his own glory and virtue. The reading is that of Lachmann and Tischendorf, but the received text gives the same meaning. "To glory and virtue" is manifestly incorrect. (See Alford's note.)

See further 1 Cor. xv. 10; Titus iii. 7; 1 Pet. i. 18; Eph. i. 13; and many other passages.

Hence the verb χράομαι, to use as an instrument, is followed by a Dative.

- 2 Cor. iii. 12: πολλή παβρησία χρώμεθα, we employ much boldness.
 - So Acts xxvii. 3, 17; 1 Cor. ix. 12, 15; 2 Cor. i. 17; 1 Tim. i. 8, v. 23. In 1 Cor. vii. 31, the best MSS. read the Accusative, $\tau \delta \nu$ $\kappa \sigma \sigma \mu \delta \nu$.
- e. From denoting the instrument, the Dative sometimes appears to take the signification of the agent, being used after Passive verbs where we might expect the more usual $i\pi\delta$ with a Genitive (which see, § 304).

^{*} In Eph. iii. 19, e's conveys a different notion again, "that ye may be filled up to all the fulness of God."

Luke xxiii. 15: οὐδὲν ἄξιον θανάτου ἐστὶ πεπραγμένον αὐτῷ, nothing worthy of death has been done by him.

2 Cor. xii. 20: κἀγὼ εὐρεθῶ ὑμῖν, and I should be found by you.
Compare 2 Pet. iii. 14, and Rom. x. 20, from LXX.; Isa. lxv. 1.

Luke xxiv. 35: ως ἐγνωσθη αὐτοῖς, how he was known by them. Compare Phil. iv. 5.

The passive Aorist of $\delta\rho\dot{\alpha}\omega$, to see ($\delta\phi\theta\eta\nu$, see §103, 4), is generally construed with the Dative, as 1 Tim. iii. 16, $\delta\phi\theta\eta$ à $\gamma\gamma\dot{\epsilon}\lambda\sigma$, he was seen by angels. Here, however, the notion is rather that of appearing to, so that the Dative is regular. And in some of the other instances a somewhat similar explanation may be given, as in the last: "he was made known to them."

In Matt. v. 21, $\epsilon \rho \rho \dot{\eta} \theta \eta$ rois departors, the best commentators render, it was said to the ancients, not "by them," as E.V.

f. That in which a quality inheres, "the sphere," is expressed by the Dative.

Acts xiv. 8: ἀδύνατος τοις ποσίν, impotent in his feet.

1 Cor. vii. 34: "να η άγία καὶ σώματι καὶ πνεύματι, thut she may be holy both in body and spirit.

1 Cor. xiv. 20: μὴ παιδία γίνεσθε ταις φρεσίν ἀλλὰ τῆ κακία νηπιάζετε, be not children in understanding, but be infants in malice (Dative of mode).

Eph. ii. $3: \tilde{\eta}_{\mu\epsilon\nu} \tau_{\epsilon\kappa\nu\alpha} \phi_{i}$ $\sigma_{\epsilon\kappa\nu} \delta_{\rho\gamma}$, we were in nature children of wrath.

This use of the Dative evidently springs from its original local import. The "local Dative" is not found in the New Testament, excepting (1) in the phrase by the way, or ways, δδφ, δδωîs, where the way is regarded as the instrument: James ii. 25; 2 Pet. ii. 15; and (2) connected with the figurative use of πορεύομαι, περιπατέω, to walk, as Acts ix. 31, xiv. 16; 2 Cor xii. 18, &c.

- g. Accessories of time are marked by the Dative, as—
- (1) A space of time, for.

Acts xiii. 20: ως ἔτεσι τετρακοσίοις καὶ πεντήκοντα έδωκε κριτάς, for about four hundred and fifty years he gave judges.

See also Luke viii. 29; John ii. 20; Acts viii. 11; Rom. xvi. 25. The Accusative is more frequently used. (See § 286; also under διά, § 299.)

(2) A point of time, at, on, when particularized or specified.

Mark vi. 21: Ἡρώδης τοις γενεσίοις αὐτοῦ δείπνον ἐποίησε, Herod on his birthday made a banquet.

But where the point is not specified, the Genitive is used. (See § 266.)

Matt. xx. 19: τη τρίτη ήμέρα έγερθήσεται, on the third day he shall be raised.

Luke xiv. 3: εὶ ἔξεστι τῷ σαββάτῳ θεραπεύειν; is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath?

The preposition èv is frequently inserted in this connexion. (See § 295.)

THE ACCUSATIVE.

281. The Accusative primarily denotes that towards which motion is directed. Hence its use to complete the notion of the Predicate.*

The Accusative expresses the immediate Object of a transitive verb.

Matt. iv. $21: \epsilon_t^2 \delta \epsilon_v$ allows δύο ἀδελφούς ... καὶ ἐκάλεσεν αὐτούς, he saw other two brothers... and called them (transitive active).

^{* &}quot;The Accusative," says Dr. Donaldson, "has the following applications in Greek Syntax:—It denotes (a) motion to an object; (b) distance in space; (c) duration in time; (d) the immediate object of a transitive verb; (e) the more remote object of any verb, whether it has another Accusative or not; (f) the Accusative of cognate signification, i.e., the secondary predication by way of emphasis of that which is already predicated by the verb itself; (g) an apposition to the object of the whole sentence; (h) the subject of the objective sentence, when this is expressed in the infinitive mood."—Greek Grammar, p. 497.

Acts i. 18: ἐκτήσατο χωρίον, he purchased a field (transitive deponent).

a. It should be noted that some verbs which in English are intransitive, i.e., complete in themselves as predicates, and which extend their meaning by the use of prepositions, are transitive in Greek, and therefore require an Accusative to complete their meaning.

Thus, English: "whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my works."

Greek: ός γὰρ ἐὰν ἐπαισχυνθῆ με καὶ τοὺς ἐμοὺς λόγους (Mark viii, 38).

Acts xiv. 21: εὐαγγελισάμενοί τε τὴν πόλιν ἐκείνην καὶ μαθητεύσαντες iκανούs, and having preached the Gospel in that city and made many disciples, lit., "having evangelized that city and discipled many."

The two verbs in this passage, however, with some others, vary in their use. (See Vocabulary.)

b. Generally, the employment of the same verb in different places as transitive and neuter may be explained by change of meaning, or a variation in emphasis.

So 1 Cor. vi. 18: φεύγετε την πορνείαν, flee fornication, avoid it.

1 Cor. x. 14: φείγειε ἀπὸ τῆς εἰδωλολατρείας, flee from idolatry, make good your escape from it.

Matt. x. 28: μ φοβεῖσθε ἀπὸ τῶν ἀποκτεινόντων τὸ σῶμα, κ.τ.λ... φοβήθητε δὲ μᾶλλον τὸν δυνάμενον, κ.τ.λ., be not afraid of those who kill the body...but fear him who is able to destroy, &c.

c. Some verbs, denoting the exercise of a faculty, may be read either transitively or intransitively, according to the nature of the expression. So in English we may say, "I see," or "I see you."

Matt. vi. 4: ὁ βλέπων ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ, he that seeth in secret.

Matt. vii. 3: τ ì δὲ β λέπεις τ ὸ κάρφος; but why seest thou the splinter?

Mark iv. 24: βλέπετε τί ἀκούετε, look to (take heed) what ye hear.

In Mark viii. 15, xii. 38, βλέπετε ἀπό—lit., "look away from!"—signifies beware of. But in Phil. iii. 2, βλέπετε τοὺς κύνας, κ.τ.λ., literally signifies "look to the dogs, look to the evil-workers, look to the concision!" caution being implied.*

d. The immediate Object is omitted after certain verbs, which are nevertheless strictly transitive.

So especially προσέχω, to apply (om. τον νοῦν, the mind), to give

Luke xvii. 3: προσέχετε έαυτοῖς, give heed to yourselves.

With ἀπό, to beware of, lit., to give heed (so as to turn) from.

Matt. vii. 15: προσέχετε δε ἀπὸ τῶν ψευδοπροφητῶν, but beware of false prophets.

For the usage of particular verbs, consult the Vocabulary or a Lexicon.

282. Any verb, whether transitive or intransitive, may extend its meaning by a "cognate Accusative," or "internal Object." This Accusative is always connected with the verb in signification, often in etymology.

For a similar use of the Dative, see § 280, b; and for the Participle, § 394, i., 3, d.

Matt. ii. 10: ἐχάρησαν χαρὰν μεγάλην, lit., they rejoiced a great joy, i.e., "rejoiced greatly."

Luke ii. 8: φυλάσσοντες φυλακάς της νυκτός, lit., watching watches by night, i.e., keeping watch.

Col. ii. 19: αὔξει τῆν αὕξησιν τοῦ Θεοῦ, increaseth the increase of God, i.e., yields the increase.

See also John vii. 24; 1 Tim. vi. 12; 1 Pet. iii. 14, &c.

Eph. iv. 8: ηχμαλώτευσεν αλχμαλωσίαν, he led captive a captivity, i.e., a train of captives. Ps. lxviii. 18.†

^{*} Ellicott.

[†] This passage is rather an instance of a cognate external object, the abstract noun representing a multitude (Numbers xxxi. 12, LXX., "they brought the captivity.") So Ostervald's translation, "il a mené captive une grande multitude de captives;" and De Wette's, "er führte Gefangene."

283. An Accusative is often used by way of more exact definition of the Predicate.*

John vi. 10: $\dot{a}\nu\acute{\epsilon}\pi\epsilon\sigma a\nu$ of $\ddot{a}\nu\delta\rho\epsilon s$, $\tau \delta\nu$ $\dot{a}\rho\iota\theta\mu\delta\nu$ $\dot{\omega}\sigma\epsilon\dot{\epsilon}$ $\pi\epsilon\nu\tau a\kappa\iota\sigma\chi\acute{\epsilon}\lambda\iotao\iota$, the men sat down, in number about five thousand.

Phil. i. 11: πεπληρωμένοι καρπον δικαιοσύνης, filled with the fruit of righteousness. So Col. i. 9. Compare under Genitive, § 251, and Dative, § 280, d. The Accusative strictly denotes the respect in which fulness is attained.

More generally, however, the Dative of accessory circumstance, § 280, is employed. In Acts xviii. 3, the approved reading is τῆ τέχνη (Lachmann, Tischendorf) for the received τὴν τέχνην, "by occupation they were tent-makers."

284. Many transitive verbs may have two objects, and be, therefore followed by two Accusatives; generally of a person ("the remoter object") and a thing ("the nearer object"). So verbs of asking, teaching, clothing and unclothing, anointing, with many others.

This Accusative of the thing is analogous to the "internal object" of the verb. (See § 282.)

Matt. vii. 9: δν αἰτήσει ὁ νίὸς αὐτοῦ ἀρτον, whom his son shall ask for a loaf. (Occasionally the person with prepp., παρά, ἀπό.)

John xiv. 26: ἐκεῖνος ὑμᾶς δίδαξει πάντα, he shall teach you all things. (Once with Dative of person, Rev. ii. 14.)

Mark xv. 17: ἐνδιδύσκουσιν αὐτὸν πορφύραν, they clothe him in purple. (The preposition ἐν sometimes found, as Matt. xi. 8.)

Heb. i. 9: ἔχρισέ σε ... ἐλαιον ἀγαλλιάσεως, he anointed thee with the oil of gladness, LXX.; Ps. xlv. 7. (But the Dative of material is sometimes used, Acts x. 38, and with ἀλείφω always.)

^{*} This Accusative is often said to be governed by κατά, in respect of, understood. "It is only a variety of the cognate Accusative. It defines more exactly the act or state described by a verb or adjective by referring it to a particular object, or part affected. It is the Accusative of an equivalent notion—the part wherein the act or state consists."—Dr. Jacob.

The Passive retains the Accusative of the nearer object.

Luke xvi. 19: ἐνεδιδύσκετο πορφύραν καλ βύσσον, he was clothed with purple and fine linen.

Acts xxviii. 20: την ἄλυσιν ταύτην περίκειμαι, I am bound with this chain. (See Heb. v. 2.)

2 Thess. ii. 15: κρατεῖτε τὰς παραδόσεις ας ἐδιδάχθητε, hold fast the traditions which ye were taught.

1 Tim. vi. 5: διεφθαρμένων ἀνθρώπων του νοῦν, of men corrupted in mind.

The same remark applies to verbs which in the Active express the remoter object by the Dative.

1 Cor. ix. 17: οἰκονομίαν πεπίστευμαι, I have been entrusted with a stewardship. So Rom. iii. 2; Gal. ii. 7; 1 Thess. ii. 4; 2 Thess. i. 10; 1 Tim. i. 11.

285. The Subject of an Infinitive Verb is put in the Accusative.

In translation, the Infinitive is generally to be rendered as a finite verb, and the Accusative as the nominative, with the conjunction that prefixed.

For the Infinitive, see § 387. It is really a verbal noun, and is used to complete the predication. The Accusative thus becomes an Accusative of definition* (§ 283).

1 Tim. ii. 8: βούλομαι ... προσεύχεσθαι, "I wish for ... a praying;" βούλομαι προσεύχεσθαι τοὺς ἄνδρας, "I wish for a praying on the part of men," I wish that men should pray.

Luke xxiv. 23: οἱ λέγουσιν αὐτὸν ζῆν, who say that he is alive.

Acts xiv. 19: νομίσαντες αὐτὸν τεθνηκέναι, thirking that he was dead.

1 Cor. vii. 10, 11: παραγγέλλω... γυναϊκα ἀπό ἀνδρὸς μὰ χωρισθῆναι ... καὶ ἄνδρα γυναίκα μὰ ἀφιέναι, I enjoin that a wife should not be separated from (her) husband, and that a man should not desert (his) wife.

Luke i. 75: τοῦ δοῦναι ἡμῖν ... ἡυσθέντας ... λατρεύειν αὐτῷ, to grant unto us that we being delivered (ἡμᾶς implied in ἡυσθέντας) should serve him.

^{*} Compare Dr. Donaldson's Grammar, § 584.

When the Subject of the Infinitive and of the principal verb is the same, it is not repeated except for emphasis, and adjectives, &c., in agreement with it are put in the nominative case.

Rom. xv. 24: $\epsilon \lambda \pi i \zeta \omega$ διαπορευόμενος θεάσασθαι ύμᾶς, I hope that when I pass through I shall see you. See also 2 Cor. x. 2.

But Phil. iii. 13: ἐγὰ ἐμαυτὸν οὐ λογίζομαι κατειληφέναι, I do not reckon that I myself have attained. So Romans ii. 19; Luke xx. 20.

When the Infinitive is substantivized (see § 201) by the Article, the relations expressed by the Genitive after nouns are denoted by the Accusative.

Inf. gen. Acts xxiii. 15: πρό τοῦ ἔγγισαι αὐτόν, before his approach.

Inf. dat. Matt. xiii. 4: $\partial v \tau \hat{\varphi} \sigma \pi \epsilon l \rho \epsilon i \nu \ a \hat{v} r \hat{v}$, in his sowing. So xxvii. 12.

Inf. acc. Matt. xxvi. 32: μετὰ τὸ ἐγερθηναί με, after my rising again.

286. Relations of time and space are denoted by the Accusative.

a. Space.—Luke xxii. 41: ἀπεσπάσθη ἀπ' αὐτῶν ὡσεὶ λίθου βολήν, he withdrew from them about a stone's cast.

John vi. 19: εληλακότες οὖν ώς σταδίους εἰκοσιπέντε ἡ τριάκοντα, having therefore rowed about twenty-five or thirty stadia.

b. Time.—(1) A point of time—

Acts x. 3: εἶδεν... ὡσεὶ ὥραν ἐννάτην, he saw, about the ninth hour. Some (Lachmann) read περί. But see John iv. 52; Rev. iii. 3.

(2) Duration of time—

Luke xv. 29 : τοσαῦτα ἔτη δουλεύω σοι, so many years do I serve thee.

See also Matt. xx. 6; John i. 39, ii. 12, v. 5, xi. 6; Acts xiii. 21, &c.

(3) Succession of time—

Matt. xx. 2: συμφωνήσας ... ἐκ δηναρίου τὴν ἡμέραν, having agreed for a denarius a day (or perhaps, rather, this is another instance of (2) the Accusative of duration—a denarius for the day's work).

287. The Accusative is sometimes found in elliptical or apparently irregular constructions.

Matt. iv. 15: δδὸν θάλασσης, the way of the sea, stands apparently without government. The regimen is to be sought in its Old Testament connexion, Isa, ix. 1, from which it is a citation.*

Luke xxiv. 47: ἀρξάμενον ἀπὸ Ἱερουσαλήμ, beginning at (from) Jerusalem, the Accusative neuter participle in apposition with the objective sentence.

Acts xxvi. 3: γνώστην όντα σε, κ.τ.λ. The Accusatives here seem to stand without any dependence. A verb is probably to be understood from Tynua, in the preceding verse; especially as I regard thee as being acquainted, &c.

Rom. viii. 3; τὸ ἀδύνατον τοῦ νόμου, the impossibility of the law. The phrase is here probably a nominative absolute (nominativus pendens). (See § 242.) Some, however, read it as Accusative, "in apposition to the object of the sentence, † or governed by ἐποίησεν understood, "hath wrought."

1 Tim. ii. 6: τὸ μαρτύριον καιροῖς ίδίοις, the testimony to be set forth in its own seasons, an Accusative, perhaps, in apposition with the preceding sentence. ±

ON THE CASES AS USED WITH PREPOSITIONS.

288. Prepositions, as already stated, § 118, govern the Genitive, Dative, or Accusative, and are auxiliary to the significance of these cases.

Sometimes a preposition is simply emphatic, i.e., it is used where the case alone would have expressed the same meaning, although with less force. More frequently, however, it denotes a relation which the case of itself would be insufficient to specify.

Two points must be considered in relation to the prepositions:

^{*} We often make similar quotations almost unconsciously: e.g., "'Christ and Him crucified' is the theme of the faithful minister." Him in that sentence appears plainly ungrammatical, until we turn to the connexion, 1 Cor. ii. 2.

⁺ Webster.

The difficulty here is that the preceding sentence is not † Ellicott. objective. It would seem better to take the Accusative as more directly dependent on δούs.

first, their own original force, and secondly, the significance of the case or cases to which they are severally applied.

Thus, $\pi ap\acute{a}$ is beside, denoting, with the Genitive from (from beside), with the Dative at or near (by the side of), with the Accusative towards or along (to or along the side of). From these meanings, again, others arise through the application of physical analogies to mental relations. Some prepositions from their meaning can govern only one case, as $\epsilon \kappa$, out of (Gen.); $\epsilon \nu$, in (Dat.); $\epsilon \nu$ s, into (Acc.). Others may govern two, as implying different directions of motion, but excluding the idea of rest, as $\kappa a \tau \acute{a}$, downwards; with the Gen., down from; with the Acc., down upon: others are found with all three cases.

Every preposition probably denoted at first a relation of place. (See the scheme in § 124.) Hence by an easy transition their reference to time, and their use for purely mental relations. It will be seen in the following sections that most have this threefold use.

- 289. Certain prepositions are very nearly allied in some of their significations. Hence it may be a matter of indifference which is employed, the same circumstance being regarded from slightly different points of view. Thus it might be said of a commission given to a servant, that the act was executed by him or through him. It will be seen, however, that there exists a real distinction in the notions, although they meet in one transaction. We could not, for instance, infer that the words through and by were synonymous, or that one was used for, or interchanged with, the other. Such mistakes, however, have often been made in New Testament criticism; and it is especially necessary, even where these important parts of speech appear most nearly alike in meaning, to observe their real distinction. (See further, § 308.)
 - 290. No mistake is so common with learners as that of supposing that the words of one language must correspond individually to those of another. The fact is, that every word, as it were, fences off a particular enclosure from the great domain of thought; and each language has its own method of division. The ways in which the English and the Greek, for example, have mapped out the vast territory do not mutually correspond. Perhaps, therefore, no one word of the former claims a province that has its precise counterpart in the latter. Or, to adopt another illustration, the words of two languages do not run in equal parallel lines, thus:—

G. ______ E. _____

Were it so, translation would be easy work. Rather may they be represented thus:—

where in each language there are words that overlap those of the other, sometimes containing more meaning, sometimes less; and a single word in one often including the significance or part of the significance of two or three in the other.

Prepositions governing the Genitive only.

'Αντί, ἀπό, ἐκ, πρό.

291. I. 'Αντί, OVER AGAINST,* containing the notion of opposition, as an equivalent: instead of, for.

Matt. v. 38: ἀφθαλμὸς ἀντὶ ἀφθαλμοῦ, eye for an eye.

Matt. xx. 28: λύτρον ἀντὶ πολλῶν, a ransom for many.

Heb. xii. 2: ἀντὶ τῆς προκειμένης αὐτῷ χαρᾶς, in return for the joy set before him.

John i. 16: ελάβομεν ... χάριν ἀντι χάριντος, we received grace for grace, i.e., grace within, as correspondent with grace without, the Divine gift being as the Divine source; or (with most commentators), one measure of grace to succeed and replace another: "grace upon grace." †

This preposition is employed with the neuter relative plural in the adverbial phrase, $\grave{\alpha}\nu\theta^* \& \nu$ (in return for which things) = because. (Luke i. 20, xii. 3, xix. 44; Acts xii. 23; 2 Thess. ii. 10.)

^{*} The primal significance of each preposition will be shown by SMALL CAPITALS.

^{† &}quot;Ununterbrochene, immer sich erneuernde Gnade."- Winer.

292. II. 'Aπό, FROM THE EXTERIOR.

1. Separation, the preposition expressing removal, the governed noun the point of departure in place or time: from.

Matt. i. 21: σώσει ... ἀπὸ τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν, he shall save ... from their sins.

Matt. iii. 13: ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, from Galilee.

Matt. ix. 22: ἀπὸ τῆς ώρας ἐκείνης, from that hour.

Matt. vi. 13: ρῦσαι ἡμᾶς ἀπὸ τοῦ πονηροῦ, deliver us from evil, or, the Evil one.

2. Derivation, source, descent: from, of.

Matt. vii. 16: ἀπὸ τριβόλων σῦκα, figs from thorns.

Matt. xi. 29 : μάθετε ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, learn of me.

3. Hence, especially, cause, occasion: from, on account of.

Matt. xiv. 26: ἀπὸ τοῦ φόβου ἔκραξαν, they cried out for fear.

Matt. xviii. 7: οὐαὶ ... ἀπὸ τῶν σκάνδαλων, Woe, on account of the offences!

So, according to some commentators, Heb. v. 7, εἰσακουσθεὶς ἀπὸ τῆς εὐλαβείας, heard on account of his fiar (godly fear, or piety). Others, however, understand "heard (and delivered) from his fear," i.e., from the calamity which he apprehended.*

4. This preposition is sometimes used (after transitive verbs) elliptically, a word like some (as the real object of the verb) being understood.

John xxi. 10: ἐνέγκατε ἀπὸ τῶν ὀψαρίων, bring of the fish.

Acts ii. 17: ἐκχεῶ ἀπὸ τοῦ Πνεύματος μου, I will pour out of my Spirit.

 'Από is frequently joined with adverbs, as ἀπὸ τότε, from then, Matt. iv. 17, &c.; ἀπ' ἄρτι, henceforth, Matt. xxiii. 39, &c.; ἀπὸ μακρόθεν, from afar; ἀπὸ ἄνωθεν, from above; ἀπὸ τοῦ νῦν, from now, &c. In all these cases, a substantive of place or time is really understood.

^{*} The verb εἰσακούω has a similar extended meaning in Ps. cxviii. 5, LXX. But see Alford in loc., who cites Luke xix. 3, xxiv. 41; John xxi. 6; Acts xii. 14, xx. 9, xxii. 11, as passages where ἀπὸ means on account of.

293. III. Ek, ¿E, FROM THE INTERIOR (opposite to els).

1. Out of, locally.

Matt. iii. 17: φωνή έκ τῶν οὐρανῶν, a voice out of heaven.

Matt. viii. 28: ἐκ τῶν μνημειῶν ἐξερχόμενοι, coming out of the tombs.

To this meaning may be assigned the phrase, ἐκ δεξιῶν, on the right hand, literally, "off from the right-hand parts" (Matt. xx. 21, &c. But ἐν δεξια is also employed.

2. Originating in, as place, parentage, from, of.

Matt. iii. 9: ἐκ τῶν λίθων τούτων, of these stones.

John iv. 7: γυνή ἐκ τῆς Σαμαρείας, a woman of Samaria.

Phil. iii. 5: 'Espaios & 'Espaiov, a Hebrew of Hebrews, i.e., of Hebrew descent.

3. Originating in, as the source, cause, or occasion, from, by.

Luke xvi. 9: ποιήσατε έαυτοις φίλους έκ του μαμωνά της άδικίας, make to yourselves friends by the mammon of unrighteousness, i.e., by (the proper use of) your wealth.

Rom. v. 1: δικαιωθέντες έκ πίστεως, being justified by faith. in many passages.

1 Cor. ix. 14: ἐκ τοῦ εὐαγγελίου ζην, to live from the Gospel.

4. The material or mass from which anything is made or taken, of.

Matt. xxvii. 29: στέφανον έξ άκανθων, α crown of thorns.

5. Belonging to a class, of; often with abstract nouns.

John xviii. 37: δ ων ἐκ τῆς ἀληθείας, he who is (on the side) of the truth.

Rom. ii. 8: οἱ ἐξ ἐριθείας, they who are of a self-seeking spirit.

Gal. iii. 9; Rom. iv. 12: οἱ ἐκ πίστεως · οἱ ἐκ περιτομῆς, they who are of faith—of circumcision, i.e., who range themselves under these opposite symbols. So Rom. iv. 14, οἱ ἐκ νόμου, they who are of law, &c.

This meaning is closely allied with (3).

- 6. Springing from: of the state of mind giving occasion to any action, from, out of.
- 2 Cor. ii. 4: ἐκ πολλῆs θλίψεως ἔγραψα, I wrote out of much affliction.
- 1 Thess. ii. 3: ή παράκλησις ήμων οὐκ ἐκ πλάνης, οὐδὲ ἐξ ἀκαθαρσίας, our exhortation was not from deceit nor from uncleanness.
- 7. Used of time, from, the future being infolded in, and springing out of the present.

John vi. 66: ἐκ τούτου, from this time.

Acts ix. 33: ἐξ ἐτῶν ὀκτώ, for eight years.

294. IV. Πρό, IN FRONT OF.

1. Before, in respect of place.

Acts xii. 6: φύλακές τε πρὸ τῆς θύρας, the guards before the door. So ch. xiv. 13; James v. 9.

Matt. xi. 10: πρὸ προσώπου σου, before thy face, from LXX. So Mark i. 2; Luke i. 76, &c.

2. Before, in respect of time.

John xvii. 24: πρὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου, before the foundation of the world.

- 1 Cor. iv. 5: μη πρό καιροῦ τι κρίνετε, judge nothing before the time.
- 2 Cor. xii. 2: πρὸ ἐτῶν δεκατεσσάρων, fourteen years ago (lit., before fourteen years, i.e., counted backward from the present time). See also John xii. 1.

3. Before, by way of superiority.

Only in the phrase πρὸ πάντων, before, or, above all things. Luke xxi. 12; Col. i. 17; James v. 12; 1 Pet. iv. 8.

Prepositions governing the Dative only.

Έν, σύν.

295. I. 'Ev, IN, correlative with els and ek.

1. Of place, in; so within, upon, at.

Matt. ii. 1: ἐν Βηθλεὲμ τῆς Ιουδαίας, in Bethlehem of Judwa.

Matt. xx. 3: ἐν τῆ ἀγορα, in the market.

John xv. 4 : ἐν τῆ ἀμπέλω, in the vine.

Heb. i. 3: ἐν δεξιῷ τῆς μεγαλωσύνης, on the right hand of the Majesty.*

Rev. iii. 21: ἐν τῷ θρόνῳ μου, on my throne.

2. Among, with plurals or collective nouns.

Matt. ii. 6: ἐν τοῖς ἡγεμόσιν Ιούδα, among the princes of Judah; LXX., Micah v. 2.

Luke xiv. 31: ἐν δέκα χιλιάσιν, among ten thousands, i.e., attended by such a troop. See Jude 14; also Acts vii. 14.

Acts ii. 29: ἐστὶν ἐν ἡμῶν ἄχρι τῆς ἡμέρας ταύτης, it (the sepulchre) is among us unto this day.

1 Pet. v. 1, 2: πρεσβυτέρους τοὺς ἐν ὑμιν ... τὸ ἐν ὑμιν ποίμνιον, the elders among you ... the flock among you.

3. "The ϵ_{ν} of investiture," in or with; as when we say, "The general came in his sword, the peers in their robes." The Greek of the New Testament extends this use of the preposition to accompaniments which do not literally invest.†

^{*} Compare the use of $\epsilon \kappa$ (1).

⁺ A usage infrequent in classic Greek, and probably due to the influence of the Hebrew preposition z, in, with, by, &c., for which the LXX. constantly uses $\delta \nu$.

.1 Cor. iv. 21: $\dot{\epsilon}v$ pá $\beta\delta\omega$ $\ddot{\epsilon}\lambda\theta\omega$ $\pi\rho\dot{\delta}s$ $\dot{\epsilon}\mu\hat{a}s$; am I to come to you with a rod?

1 Cor. v. 8: μὴ ἐν ζύμη παλαιὰ ... ἀλλ' ἐν ἀζύμοις, not in old leaven ... but in unleavened bread.

1 Tim. i. 18: τνα στρατεύη έν αὐταις, that thou mayest fight in them (prophesyings), i.e., armed with them.

Heb. ix. 25: ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς εἰσέρχεται ... ἐν αϊματι ἀλλοτρίω, the high priest enters ... in the blood of others. Compare ch. x. 19; xiii. 12.

So, perhaps, Eph. vi. 2: ἐντολὴ πρώτη ἐν ἐπαγγελία, the first commandment in, or with promise.

To this notion of investiture that of action is sometimes superadded (Luke i. 51). Hence "the èv instrumental."

Luke xxii. 49: εἰ πατάξομεν ἐν μαχαίρᾳ; shall we smite with the sword? See also Heb. xi. 37, and the Revelation frequently, as ii. 16, vi. 8, xiii. 10, xiv. 15. In Matt. v. 13, Mark ix. 50, ἐν τίνι; may be rendered wherewith?

4. The sphere in which the subject is concerned, as dwelling or acting, in.

So the phrases ἐν ἀμαρτία, in sin; ἐν πίστει, in faith; ἐν σοφία, in wisdom; ἐν ἀγάπη, in love; ἐν Πνεύματι, in spirit, or, in the Spirit. Matt. xxii. 43; Rev. i. 10 (Rom. vii. 5).

The frequent phrase, ἐν Χριστῷ (so ἐν Κυρίᾳ, &c.), means, not simply attached to Christ as a follower, but in Christ, in the most intimate abiding fellowship.* So "Christ in us," Gal. i. 16, &c. A similar phrase is used of the revelation of God himself.

2 Cor. v. 19; Θεδε ἡν Χριστῷ, κ.τ.λ., God in Christ was reconciling, &c. Eph. iv. 32: ὁ Θεδε ἐν Χριστῷ ἐχαρίσατο ὁμῖν, God in Christ foryuve you. See also Acts xvii. 31: "in a man whom he hath ordained."

5. In the power of, by.

Matt. ix. 34: ἐν τῷ ἄρχοντι τῶν δαιμονίων, by the prince of the demons.

^{* &}quot;Nicht blos durch Chr. beneficio Christi sondern in Chr., in geistig, kraftiger Gemeinschaft mit Chr."— Winer.

Matt. v. 34 : ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ ... ἐν τῆ γῆ, by heaven ... by earth. So elsewhere in asseverations.

In Matt. iv. 4, the best copies read ἐν πάντι ῥήματι, by every word of God. Compare 1 Thess. iv. 15.

'Eν ἐμοί, 1 Cor. ix. 15; Mark xiv. 6, must be rendered in my case; 1 Cor. xiv. 11, in my apprehension.

6. This preposition with its case is often equivalent to an adverb. Compare (4) preceding. So we may render èν δυνάμει, in power, or powerfully; èν δολφ, craftily; èν τάχει, speedily, &c. In John xviii. 20, èν κρυπτφ is in secret, secretly, different from èν τφ κρυπτφ, Matt. vi. 18.

7. Of time, in, upon.

Matt. ii. 1: ἐν ἡμέραις Ἡρώδου, in the days of Herod.

Matt. x. 15: ἐν ἡμέρα κρίσεως, in the day of judgment; xii. 36, &c.

Often with the infinitive treated as a noun.

Matt. xiii. 4 : ἐν τῷ σπείρειν αἰτόν, while he was sowing.

With the relative pronoun, $\epsilon \nu \, \hat{\phi}$, whilst, as Mark ii. 19; $\epsilon \nu \, \delta is$, whilst, as Luke xii. 1. The only difference between the singular and the plural is that the latter is more general.

8. Constructio pragnans.—This preposition seems occasionally to include the sense of ϵls , and so is used after verbs implying motion:—"into, so as to be in."

Matt. xxvi. 23: ὁ ἐμβάψας ... ἐν τῷ τρυβλίω, he who dipped ... in the dish.

Luke xxiii. 53 : ἔθηκεν αἰτὸ ἐν μνήματι λαξευτῷ, they laid it in a rock-hewn sepulchre.

Romans ii. 5: θησαυρίζεις σεαυτῷ ὀργὴν ἐν ἡμέρᾳ ὀργῆς, thou treasurest to thyself wrath (to be poured forth) upon a day of wrath.

296. II. Σὺν, CONJUNCTION WITH (union, or co-operation). With, together with.

Matt. xxvi. 35: σὺν σοὶ ἀποθανεῖν, to die with thee.

Luke viii. 45: Πέτρος καὶ οἱ σὺν αὐτῷ, Peter and those with him.

Not merely co-existence, but association is generally implied (see $\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{a}$). Hence, $\sigma\dot{v}\nu$ is used of the fellowship of believers with Christ, &c. (Rom. vi. 8; ('ol. ii. 13, 20, iii. 3; 1 Thess. iv. 17, v. 10). There is the further suggestion of co-operation in such passages as 1 Cor. v. 4, xv. 10.

In Luke xxiv. 21, together with becomes nearly equal to beside; ἀλλά γε καὶ σὺν πᾶσι τούτοιs, Moreover, beside all this. Compare Nehemiah v. 18, LXX., "yet for all this," E.V.

Prepositions governing the Accusative only.

'Avá, els.

297. 'Avá, UP TO, or, UP BY.*

This preposition is of infrequent occurrence in the New Testament, and always has a special meaning.

- ἀνὰ μέσον, in the midst of, Matt. xiii. 25; Mark vii. 31;
 Cor. vi. 5; Rev. vii. 17.
 - 2. ἀνὰ μέρος, by turn, 1 Cor. xiv. 27.
- 3. With numerals or measures of quantity or value, apiece, Matt. xx. 9, 10; ἀνὰ δηνάριον, a denarius apiece. Compare Mark vi. 40; Luke ix. 3, 14, x. 1 (ἀνὰ δύο, two by two); John ii. 6; Rev. iv. 8.
- 4. In Rev. xxi. 21, ἀνὰ εῖs εκαστος, the preposition must be rendered as an adverb, each one separately.
- 298. II. είς, το The Interior (opposite to έκ, and correlative with έν).†
 - 1. Of place, into; so, figuratively, of a state.
 - Matt. ii. 11: ἐλθόντες εἰς τῆν οἰκίαν, having come into the house.

Matt. v. 1: ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ ὄρος, he went up into the mountain.

^{*} In classical Greek, ava also with a Dative.

[†] In Latin, the preposition in includes the notions of ϵ is and $\epsilon \nu$, taking the Accusative and Ablative respectively; and ϵ is (really $\epsilon \nu s$), in fact, is only another form or $\epsilon \nu$, as $\epsilon \xi$ of $\epsilon \kappa$.

Matt. vi. 13 : $\mu \hat{\eta}$ elsevéyens $\hat{\eta} \mu \hat{a}s$ els $\pi \epsilon \iota \rho a \sigma \mu \acute{o}v$, lead us not into temptation.

So with collective words.

Acts xxii. 21: $\operatorname{els} \operatorname{\mathfrak{U}v\eta} \operatorname{\mathfrak{d}} \operatorname{\mathfrak{gano}\sigma\tau} \operatorname{\mathfrak{eh}} \widehat{\omega} \operatorname{\mathfrak{oe}}$, I will send thee forth into the community of Gentiles.

2. Unto, to, where the context or the nature of the case limits the movement to the exterior.

Matt. xvii. 27: πορευθείς είς θάλασσαν, having gone to sea.

John xi. 38: $\tilde{\epsilon}\rho\chi\epsilon\tau\alpha\iota$ els tò munmeson, he cometh to the tomb. So xx. 1, 3, 4 (ver. 5, "he went not in").

Matt. vi. 26: $\epsilon \mu \beta \lambda \epsilon \psi$ ate ϵ is tà heteina, look to the birds.

Luke vi. 20 : ἐπάρας τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς εἰς τοὺς μαθητάς, having lifted his eyes towards his disciples.

Rev. s. $5: \hat{\eta}_{\rho\epsilon} \tau \hat{\eta}_{\nu} \chi \hat{\epsilon} \hat{\iota}_{\rho a}$ aὐτοῦ εἰς τὸν οὐρανόν, he lifted his hand to heaven.

3. The meaning towards is especially found in relation to persons, marking direction of thought, speech, &c. Sometimes this implies hostility, against; sometimes mere reference, in regard to.

Rom. xii. 16: τὸ αὐτὸ εἰς ἀλλήλους φρονοῦντες, being of the same mind one towards another.

Inke xii. 10: πᾶς δς ἐρεῖ λόγον εἰς τὸν υίὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, whoever shall say a word against the Son of man.

Acts ii. 25 : $\Delta a\beta i\delta$ yàp $\lambda \acute{\epsilon} \gamma \acute{\epsilon} \iota$ es a $\mathring{\epsilon} \iota \circ \iota$, for David says in reference to him.

4. Towards, with respect to a certain result, in order to, for.

Matt. viii. 4, x. 18, &c.: εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς, for a testimony to them.

Matt. xxvi. 2: παραδίδοται είς τὸ σταυρωθήναι, he is surrendered to be crucified.

1 Cor. xi. 24: ποιείτε εἰς τὴν ἀνάμνησιν, do it for the remembrance of me.

- 2 Cor. ii. 12: ἐλθῶν εἰς τὴν Τρωάδα, εἰς τὸ εὐαγγέλιον, having come to Troas for (the preaching of) the Gospel.
- 5. Into, symbolically, as marking the entrance into a state or sphere (see under $\tilde{\epsilon}\nu$, 4).

So we enter els Χριστόν, into Christ, actually by faith, symbolically by baptism, Christians being ev Χριστῷ, in Christ.

Rom. vi. 3, 4: ὅσοι ἐβαπτίσθημεν εἰς Χριστὸν Ιησοῦν, εἰς τὸν θάνατον αὐτοῦ ἐβαπτίσθημεν, as many of us as were baptized into Christ Jesus, were baptized into his death.

Compare Matt. xxviii. 19, "into the name," &e; Acts xix. 3; 1 Cor. i. 13, x. 2, xii. 13; Gal. iii. 27. So Acts ii. 38, εἰς τὴν ἄφεσιν ἁμαρτιῶν, into the remission of sins, or, according to some interpreters, as (4).

6. This preposition is used in some important passages to denote equivalence,* and may be rendered for, or as.

Matt. nix. 5: ἔσονται...είς σάρκα μίαν, they shall become one flesh. So Mark x. 8; 1 Cor. vi. 16; Eph. v. 31; from LXX., Gen. ii. 24.

Matt. xxi. 42: ἐγενήθη εἰς κεφαλήν γωνίας, it became the head of the corner. So Mark xii. 10; Luke xx. 17; from LXX., Ps. exviii. 22.

Compare Luke iii. 5 (from Isa. xl. 4), xiii. 19; John xvi. 20; Acts vii. 21, xiii. 22; Rom. xi. 9; 1 Cor. xiv. 22, xv. 45 (see Gen. ii. 7, LXX.); 2 Cor. vi. 18, viii. 14; Heb. i. 5; James v. 3.

Acts xix. 27: τὸ ... ἱερὸν εἰς οὐδὲν λογισθῆναι, the temple to be esteemed as nothing.

Rom. ii. 26: οὐχὶ ἡ ἀκροβυστία αὐτοῦ εἰς περιτομὴν λογισθήσεται; shall not his uncircumcision be accounted as circumcision?

Rom. ix. 8: λογίζεται είς σπέρμα, it is accounted for a seed.

Rom. iv. 3, 5, 9, 22; Gal. iii. 6: ἐλογίσθη αὐτῷ εἰς δικαιοσύνην, it was accounted to him for righteousness.

^{*} This answers to a common Hebrew use of the preposition ; (equivalent to eis) after copulative verbs.

§ 298.7

- 7. When referring to time, ϵls may mark either (a) the interval up to a certain point, during; or (b) the point itself, regarded as the object of some aim or purpose, up to, for.
 - α. Luke i. 50: els γενεαs γενεων, to generations of generations.

Luke xxi. 19: els τὸν alῶνa, for ever, lit., "unto or during the age;" also in the Epistles of Paul (not in the Hebrews). els τοὺς alῶνas, lit., "unto the ages," in the later Epistles and the Revelation. els τοὺς alῶνas τῶν alῶνων, to the ages of the ages, "for ever and ever." 2 Pet. iii. 18, els ἡμέρων alῶνος, "to the day of eternity;" all with the same meaning.

So in the adverbial phrases, els to méddon, hereafter; els to sinvenés, perpetually.

b. Matt. vi. 34: μὴ οὖν μεριμνήσετε εἰς τὴν αἔριον, be not anxions for (lit., "project not your anxieties into") the morrow.

Phil. i. 10: εἰς ἡμέραν Χριστοῦ, unto the day of Christ. So 2 Tim. i. 12. Eph. iv. 30, is slightly different, expressing more prominently the intent of the Spirit's "sealing."

Rev. ix. 15: ήτοιμασμένοι εἰς τὴν ἄραν καὶ ἡμέραν καὶ μῆνα καὶ ἐνιαυτόν, prepared for (or unto) the hour and day, and month and year, i.e., for the precise time appointed.

Acts xiii. 42: εἰς τὸ μεταξὺ σάββατον presents a little difficulty, as "on the next Sabbath" would be rendering the preposition with undue licence. We must understand either "for the next Sabbath"—the Gospel being regarded as a treasure reserved for that time—or during the intervening week.

8. Construction pragnans.—See under $\ell\nu$ (8). As $\ell\nu$ in a similar double construction implies the previous ℓls , so ℓls here implies the following $\ell\nu$.

Mark xiii. 16: δ εἰς τὸν ἀγρὸν ἄν, "he who is into the field," i.e., who has gone into the field and is in it. Matt. xxiv. 18 has ἐν.

Acts viii. 40: Φίλιππος εύρέθη els "Αζωτον, Philip was found (to have been led) to Azotus.

Acts xxi. 13: ἀποθανεῖν εἰς Ἱερουσαλήμ, "to die into Jerusalem," i.e., to go into Jerusalem and die there.

Heb. xi. 9: παρώκησεν εἰς τὴν γῆν, "sojourned into the land," i.e., travelled into the land and sojourned in it.

In one passage, $\epsilon$ is apparently followed by a Genitive: Acts ii. 27, 31 (LXX., Ps. xvi. 10), $\epsilon$ is $\tilde{\alpha}\text{four}$, to Hades. The phrase contains a classical ellipsis; $\int \text{oldar}$, habitation being understood, and Hades being personified. "Thou wilt not abandon my soul to the realm of the Unseen."

Prepositions governing the Genitive and Accusative Cases.

Διά, κατά, μετά, περί, ὑπέρ, ὑπό.*

- 299. I. Διά, THROUGH, from the notion of separation, disjunction.
 - a. With the Genitive-
- 1. In reference to place: through, literally, i.e., "through and from."
- John iv. 4: ἔδει δὲ αὐτὸν διέρχεσθαι διὰ τῆς Σαμαρείας, and he must needs go through Samaria.
- John xiv. 6: οὐδεὶς ἔρχεται πρὸς τὸν πατίρα εἰ μὴ δι ἐμοῦ, no one cometh to the Father but through me—the Way.
- 1 Cor. iii. 15: σωθήσεται ... ως διὰ τοῦ πυρός, he shall be saved as (one who has passed) through the fire.
- 1 Cor. xiii. 12: βλέπομεν γὰρ ἄρτι δι' ἐσόπτρου, for we see now through a mirror (the image appearing on the opposite side).
 - 2. In reference to agency: through, by means of.
- Matt. i. 22: ρηθεν ύπὸ Κυρίου διὰ τοῦ προφήτου, spaken by Jehovah through the prophet. Here mark the distinction between ὑπό and διά, and compare ὑπό (a).
- 1 Cor. iii. 5 : διάκονοι δι' ων ἐπιστεύσατε, ministers through whom ye believed.
- 2 Thess. ii. 2: μήτε διὰ πνεύματος, μήτε διὰ λόγου, μήτε διὰ ἐπιστολής, ὡς δι' ἡμῶν, neither by Spirit, nor by word, nor by letter as from us (through us as the mediate authors).

^{*} In classic Greek, περί and ὑπό may take a Dative; also μετά in poets.

Eph. i. 1, &c.: διὰ θελήματος Θεοῦ, by the will of God.

Eph. ii. 8, &c.: σεσωσμένοι δια της πίστεως, saved by faith.

2 Cor. v. 10: τὰ διὰ τοῦ σώματος, the things (wrought) by means of the body.

3 John 13: οὐ θέλω διὰ μέλανος καὶ καλάμου γράφειν, I do not wish to write with ink and pen.

This preposition is used, especially in such phrases as διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, of Christ's mediatorial work in all its manifestations.* (Rom. ii. 16, v. 1; 2 Cor. i. 5; Gal. i. 1; Eph. i. 5; Phil. i. 11; Titus iii. 6; and perhaps 1 Peter ii. 14.)

Very rarely it seems to indicate the primary agent. 1 Cor. i. 9: πιστδε δ Θεδε δι' οὖ ἐκλήθητε, κ.τ.λ., God is faithful by whom ye were called, &c. Yet even here the proper force of διά is not lost. The Father is represented as acting on behalf of his Son, to bring Christians into fellowship with him.

- 3. In reference to time, it marks the passage through an interval: (a) during, or (b) after the lapse of.
 - (a) Luke v. 5 : δι' όλης της νυκτός, all night.

Heb. ii. 15: διὰ πάντος τοῦ ζῆν, all through his life.

The phrase διὰ (τῆs) νυκτός denotes by night, i.e., during its lapse, no particular hour or hours being specified, Acts v. 19, xvi. 9, xvii. 10, xxiii. 31. So Acts i. 3: δι' ήμερῶν τεσσαράκοντα, at intervals during forty days.

(b) Matt. xxvi. 61; Mark xiv. 58: διὰ τριῶν ἡμερῶν, three days afterwards.

Gal. ii. 1: διὰ δεκατεσσάρων ἐτῶν, fourteen years after.

Compare Mark ii. 1; Acts xxiv. 17.

β. With the Accusative—

On account of: as in the frequent phrase διὰ τοῦτο, "on this account." So "because of," "for the sake of."

"With the Genitive, διὰ notes the instrument of an action; with the Accusative, its ground, ratio."*

Matt. x. 22, &c.: διὰ τὸ ὄνομά μου, for my name's sake.

Matt. xxiv. 12: διὰ τὸ πληθυνθηναι τὴν ἀνομίαν, because of the abounding of the iniquity.

Eph. ii. 4: διὰ τὴν πολλήν ἀγάπην αὐτοῦ, on account of his great love.

John vi. 57: εγώ ζῶ διὰ τὸν Πατέρα, I live because of the Father, i.e., "because he liveth."

Heb. v. 12: Sià tòv xpóvov, on account of, i.e., considering the time that you have been Christians.

Rom. viii. 11: διὰ τὸ ἐνοικοῦν αἰτοῦ Πνεθμα, on account of his indwelling Spirit.

The distinction between the Genitive and the Accusative should be marked in such passages as Rom. xii. 3, xv. 15. "I say to you," writes the Apostle in the former, διὰ τῆς χάριτος, through the grace given to me, i.e., "the favour bestowed is the power by which I write;" but in the latter, διὰ τὴν χάριν, on account of the grace given me, "that I may worthily vindicate its bestowal."

An instance of a different kind is in Heb. ii. 10: δι' δν τὰ πάντα καὶ δι' οῦ τὰ πάντα, for whom are all things and by whom are all things, i.e., for his honour and by his agency. Compare also I Cor. xi. 9 and 12: διὰ την γυναικά, for the sake of the woman; διὰ της γυναικός, by the woman, i.e., in birth.

300. II. Κατά, DOWN.

- a. With the Genitive, "down from"-
- 1. Literally, of place, down.

Matt. viii. 32: ωρμησε κατά τοῦ κρημνοῦ, rushed down the steep. Mark v. 13; Luke viii. 33.

1 Cor. xi. 4: κατά κεφαλής έχων, having a covering on (depending from) the head.

See also Mark xiv. 3; Acts xxvii. 14; 2 Cor. viii. 2.

2. Hence the more usual signification, against, in opposition to (the reverse of $i\pi\epsilon\rho$, which see).

Mark xi. 25: «" τι «χετε κατά τινος, if ye have anything against any one.

Acts xiv. 2: ἐπήγειραν κατά τῶν ἀδελφῶν, they rose up against the brethren.

3. Occasionally in asseverations, by-

Matt. xxvi. 63: έξορκίζω σε κατά τοῦ Θεοῦ, I adjure thee by God.

So Heb. vi. 13-16. 1 Cor. xv. 15, is probably to be referred to the same rule. "We have called God to witness," though the rendering against might be admissible. "Of God" is plainly incorrect.

4. As with the Accusative, over, throughout, a usage confined to Luke, and to the following passages—

Luke iv. 14: καθ' όλης της περιχώρου, through all the region round about.

Luke xxiii. 5: Acts ix. 31, 42, x. 37.

- β. With the Accusative, down upon, or along -
- 1. Throughout (see a, 4), with singular or plural.

Luke viii. 39: καθ' έλην την πόλιν, through the whole city.

Acts viii. 1: κατὰ τὰς χώρας τῆς Ιουδαίας, throughout the regions of Judæa.

Acts xxvi. $3: \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ κατὰ Ἰουδαίους $\hat{\epsilon} \theta \hat{\omega} \nu$, of the customs among the Jews.

2. Over against, locally—

Luke ii. 31: κατά πρόσωπον πάντων τῶν λαῶν, before the face of all the peoples.

So Acts ii. 10; Gal. ii. 11, iii. 1, &c.

3. In reference to time, at or in, "correspondent with," "at the period of" ("over against")—

Matt. i. 20, &c.: κατ' ὄναρ, in a dream.

Acts xvi. 25: κατά τὸ μεσονύκτιον, at midnight.

Rom. v. 6: κατὰ καιρὸν, in due time.

4. Of place or time, distributively, from one to another—

Mark xiii. 8: - σμοί κατὰ τόπους. earthquakes in divers places.

Luke viii. 1: διώδευε κατὰ πόλιν, he was journeying from city to city.

So κατ' έτος, year by year, Luke ii. 41; κατ' οῖκον, at different houses, Acts ii. 46, v. 42; κατὰ πῶν σάββατον, every Sabbuth, Acts xv. 21; καθ' ἡμέραν, duily, Matt. xxvi. 25, &c. (and the phrase καθ' εἶs, or καθεῖς, one by one, Mark xiv. 19; John viii. 9; Rom. xii. 5.)

5. From the meaning "over against" arises that of according to, in reference to some standard of comparison, stated or implied.

Matt. ix. 29: κατὰ τὴν πίστιν ὑμῶν γενηθήτω, according to your faith let it be.

Luke ii. 39: τὰ κατὰ τόν νόμον Κυρίου, the things according to the law of Jehovah.

So in the phrases κατ' ἄνθρωπον, as a man; κατ' ἔμε, according to my ability or view; κατὰ χάριν, according to favour; κατὰ ἐξοχήν, by way of pre-eminence, Acts xxv. 23, &c. The phrase κατὰ Θεόν means, in accordance with the character of God, "divinely," as 2 Cor. vii. 9, 10, 11. Thus also, Rom. viii. 27, He (the Spirit) divinely intercedes;* Rom. xiv. 15, κατ' ἀγάπην, according to love.

Heb. xi. 13: κατὰ πίστιν ὰπέθανον, they died according to faith, i.e., in a way consistent with, corresponding to the spirit of faith; contented, though they had not seen the blessing.

6. Phrases like the foregoing often pass into an adverbial meaning—

Matt. xiv. 13, &c.: κατ' ὶδίαν, alone.

Acts xxviii. 16: καθ' ἐαυτόν, by himself.

301. III. Μετά, IN ASSOCIATION WITH (locally), distinguished from σύν, which implies co-operation, and is not necessarily local.

a. With the Genitive, "with and from," or separable connexion. †

1. With, amidst, among.

Matt. i. 23: 'Εμμανουήλ ... μεθ' ήμῶν ὁ Θεός, Emmanuel, God with us. Matt. xii. 3, &c.: οί μετ' αὐτοῦ, those with him, his companions.

^{*} Winer here prefers the rendering before, as (2) above, but, as it seems, without sufficient reason.

[†] Donaldson. Μετά is connected with μέσος, midst.

So of two parties to a conversation or controversy—

John iv. 27 : μετὰ γυναικὸς ἐλάλει, he was talking with a woman. See also Matt. xii. 41, 42, &c.

2. Of attendant circumstances, objects, states of mind (not instrumental), together with—

Matt. xxv. 4: μετὰ τῶν λαμπάδων αὐτῶν, with their lamps.

Mark vi. 25 : εἰσελθοῦσα μετὰ σπουδῆς, coming in with haste.

Heb. xii. 17: μετὰ δακρύων ἐκζητήσας, having sought with tears.

1 Tim. iv. 14: μετ' ἐπιθέσεως τῶν χειρῶν, with (not by) the laying on of the hands.

Matt. xxvii. 66: μετὰ τῆς κουστωδίας, together with the watch.

3. The object of a deed of love, mercy, or the like, is sometimes spoken of, by this preposition, as associated with the agent—

Luke x. 37: ὁ ποιήσας τὸ ἔλεος μετ' αὐτοῦ, he who wrought the compassionate deed with him, i.e., "who showed mercy towards him."

So also in Acts xiv. 27, xv. 4; 1 John iv. 17.

β. With the Accusative, after.

Matt. xxvi. 2: μετὰ δύο ἡμέρας, after two days.

Luke v. 27, &c.: μετά ταῦτα, after these things.

Imke xxii. 20: μετὰ τὸ δειπνησαι, after supper; 1 Cor. xi. 25.

Once only of place, beyond; to be explained, however, in the same way, the observer arriving at the second point subsequently to the first. Heb. ix. 3: μετὰ τὸ δεύτερον καταπέτασμα, beyond the second veil.

302. IV. $\Pi \epsilon \rho i$, AROUND.

a. With the Genitive, "around and separate from."

About, concerning; chiefly as the object of thought, emotion, knowledge, discourse, &c.

Acts viii. 12: τὰ περί τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Θεοῦ, the things concerning the kingdom of God.

Matt. vi. 28: περλ ἐνδύματος τί μεριμνᾶτε; why are ye anxious about raiment?

Luke ii. 18: ¿θαύμασαν περί τῶν λαληθέντων, they wondered about the things that were spoken (this verb generally has ἐπὶ, "to wonder at").

Matt. ix. 36: ἐσπλαγχνίσθη περί αὐτῶν, he was compassionate about them (also generally with ἐπὶ, Dative or Accusative).

1 Thess. v. 25, &c.: προσεύχεσθε περί ήμῶν, pray for us.

Rom. viii. 3: ὁ Θεὸς τὸν ἐαυτοῦ νίὸν πέμψας... πεολ ἀμαρτίας, God having sent his own Son for sin. Compare Gal. i. 4 (Tischendorf, Lachmann, &c.); Heb. x. 6, 8, 18, 26; 1 John ii. 2, iv. 10. (See under ὑπερ, a, 2.)

- β. With the Accusative, "around and towards."
- 1. Around, of place.

Matt. viii. 18: ιδων ... σχλους περί αὐτὸν, seeing multitudes around him.

Used of dress, &c., Matt. iii. 4: περλ τὴν ὀσφὰν αὐτοῦ, about his loins. So xviii. 6; Rev. xv. 6.

For the idiomatic expression, οί περί Παῦλον, see § 197.

2. About, of time.

Matt. xx. 3: περλ τρίτην ώραν, about the third hour.

3. In reference to, about, of any object of thought.

Luke x. 40: περιεσπάτο περί πολλήν διακονίαν, she was cumbered about much serving (ver. 41).

1 Tim. i. 19: περι την πίστιν έναυάγησαν, they made shipwreck in reference to the faith.

See also Mark iv. 19; Acts xix. 25; 1 Tim. vi. 4, &c.

303. V. Υπέρ, OVER.

- a. With the Genitive, "over and separate from."
- 1. On behalf of, as though bending "over" to protect (the opposite of κατά). Of persons.

Matt. v. 44: προσεύχεσθε ὑπὲρ τῶν διωκόντων ὑμᾶς, pray for* those who persecute you.

Mark ix. 40: ος γὰρ οὐκ ἔστι καθ' ὑμῶν ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν ἐστιν, he who is not against us is for us. Compare Rom. viii. 31.

2 Cor. v. 14, 15: ὑπὲρ πάντων ἀπεθανεν, he died for all. So Rom. v. 6, 7, 8; Gal. ii. 20, iii. 10; Eph. v. 25; Heb. ii. 9; 1 Pet. ii. 21, &c.

Philemon 13: "va $\dot{v}\pi\dot{\epsilon}\rho$ $\sigma o \hat{v}$ $\mu o i$ $\delta \iota a \kappa o v \hat{q}$, that he might minister to me for thee.

As a service is often rendered on behalf of another by being offered in his stead, the notion of $\delta\pi\epsilon\rho$ may become interchangeable with that of $\delta\nu\tau l$, as in the last passage. The distinction is, that $\delta\pi\epsilon\rho$ of itself leaves undetermined the way in which the service is performed, simply affirming the fact; $\delta\nu\tau l$, on the other hand, is definite. See Winer, § 47, l, n. 2.

2. Of things: for their sake, in various ways.

John xi. 4: ὑπὲρ τῆς δόξης τοῦ Θεοῦ, for the glory of God, i.e., to promote it.

Rom. xv. 8: ὑπὲρ ἀληθείας Θεοῦ, for the truth of God, i.e., "to confirm his promises."

2 Cor. xii. 19: ὑπὲρ τῆς ὑμῶν οἰκοδομῆς, for your edification, i.e., to minister to it.

Phil. ii. 13: ὑπὲρ τῆς εὐδοκίας, for (his) good pleasure, i.e. to accomplish it.

Acts v. 41: ὑπὲρ τοῦ ὀνόματος, on behalf of the Name of Christ, i.e., to glorify it. Compare ix. 16; 3 John 7, &c.

1 Cor. xv. 3: $a\pi \epsilon \theta a\nu \epsilon \nu$ ύπερ των άμαρτίων ήμων, he died for our sins, i.e., to take them away. Compare Heb. v. 1, &c.; and see under $\pi \epsilon \rho i$, a.

3. About, "in reference to," simply; the notion of benefit or service having disappeared.

2 Cor. viii. 23: εἴτε ὑπὲρ Τίτου, whether (you enquire) about Titus.

^{*} More emphatic than $\pi \epsilon \rho i$ in the same connexion.

2 Thess. ii. 1: ὑπὶρ τῆς παρουσίας τοῦ Κυρίου, with respect to the coming of the Lord.

The passage, 1 Cor. xv. 29, βαπτιζόμενοι ύπερ των νεκρων, baptized for, or on behalf of, or in reference to the dead, possibly refers to some observance (perhaps local) in connexion with the act of baptism, of which the trace is lost.

β. With the Accusative, "over and towards."

Beyond, above, used in comparison.

Matt. x. 24 : οὐκ ἔστι μαθητής ὑπὲρ τὸν διδάσκαλον, a disciple is not above his teacher.

2 Cor. i. 8: ¿βαρήθημεν ὑπὲρ δύναμιν, we were oppressed beyond our strength.

So occasionally after a comparative adjective to add emphasis (Luke xvi. 8; Heb. iv. 12.)

Here, too, may be referred the use of ὑπέρ with adverbs, as 2 Cor. xi. 5, xii. 11, ὑπὲρ λίαν or ὑπερλίαν, beyond measure; also the "improper preposition" ὑπεράνω (from ἀπά), up over, governing the Genitive (Eph. i. 21, iv. 10; Heb. ix. 5). See under ὑπό (β, 1, note).

304. VI. Υπό, UNDER.

a. With the Genitive, "beneath and separate from."

This preposition marks that from which a fact, event, or action springs, i.e., the agent; hence its meaning, by, especially after passive verbs.

Matt. iv. 1: $\partial v_{1} \chi \partial \eta$ ύπο τοῦ Πνεύματος πειρασθήναι ύπο τοῦ Διαβόλου, he was led up by the Spirit to be tempted by the devil.

Matt. v. 13: καταπατεῖσθαι ὑπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων, to be trodden underfoot by men.

Note.—The Agent is signified by δπό.

The Instrument, by the Dative alone.

The Minister of another's will, by did, with the Gentive.

The Motive or Cause, by διά, with the Accusative.

The Occasion may be signified by ἀπό.

B. With the Accusative, "under and towards."

1. Under, locally or figuratively—

Matt. v. 15: τιθέασιν αὐτὸν ὑπὸ τὸν μόδιον, they put it under the modius.

Rom. vi. 14: οὐ γὰρ ἐστε ὑπὸ νόμον ἀλλ' ὑπὸ χάριν, for ye are not under law, but under grace.

In this sense, joined with the adverb κάτω (from κατά), ὑπό forms the "improper preposition" ὑποκάτω, down under, followed always by a Genitive, as Mark vi. 11, &c.

2. Close upon ("under," as, e.g., under a wall, hill, &c.), like the Latin sub, applied in the New Testament to time only, and in one passage.

Acts v. 21: ὑπὸ τὸν ὄρθρον, close upon the dawn, "very early in the morning."

Prepositions governing the Genitive, Dative, and Accusative.

'Επί, παρά, πρός.

305. I. 'Eπί, UPON.

a. With the Cenitive, "upon, and proceeding from," as, e.g., a pillar upon the ground.

1. On, upon, locally-

Matt. vi. 10, &c.: ἐπὶ τῆs γῆs, on the earth.

Luke viii. 13: of de int the metrous, and those upon the rock.

John xix. 19: ent toû staupoû, upon the cross.

Acts xii. 21: καθίσας ἐπὶ τοῦ βήματος, sitting upon the throne (lit., bema, or tribunal). So xxv. 6. Compare Rev. iv. 9, 10, v. 13, vi. 16, &c. In Matt. xix. 28, ἐπί in this sense has both the Genitive and the Accusative.

2. Over, of superintendence, government, &c.

Acts vi. 3: οδς καταστήσομεν ἐπὶ τῆς χρείας ταύτης, whom we shall set over this business.

Rom. ix. 5: δ ων ἐπὶ πάντων, who is over all things.

3. On the basis of, figuratively, upon.

John vi. 2: τὰ σημεία â ἐποίει ἐπὶ τῶν ἀσθενούντων, the miracles which he wrought upon the infirm.

Compare Gal. in. 16, &c.

Here, too, may be referred the phrase, ἐπ' ἀληθείας, in truth (Mark xii. 14; Luke iv. 25, &c.), i.e., "on a basis of truth."

4. In the presence of, especially before a tribunal.

1 Cor. vi. 1: κρίνεσθαι ἐπὶ τῶν ἀδίκων καὶ οὐχὶ ἐπὶ τῶν ἀγίων, to be judged before the unjust, and not before the holy.

So Acts xxiii. 30, xxiv. 19, xxv. 9, 26, xxvi. 2; 1 Tim. vi. 13.

1 Tim. v. 19: ἐπὶ δύο ἢ τριῶν μαρτύρων, before two or three witnesses. But see 2 Cor. xiii. 1: ἐπὶ στόματος, κ.τ.λ., upon the testimony (mouth) where the preposition, from the LXX., denotes basis.

5. In the time of, or under.

Luke iii. 2: ἐπὶ ἀρχιερέως "Αννα, under Annas, the high priest.

Acts xi. 28: ¿ml Khavblov, under Claudius.

Matt. i. 11: ἐπὶ τῆs μετοικεσίαs Βαβυλώνος, at the time of the deportation to Babylon.

Romans i. 10: ἐπὶ τῶν προσευχῶν μου, at the time of my prayers, 1 Thess. i. 2; Philemon 4.

1 Peter i. 20: ἐπ' ἐσχάτων τῶν χρόνων, in the last times, Heb. i. 2; 2 Peter iii. 3; Jude 18 (Tischendorf, Lachmann).

In Mark xii. 26: ἐπὶ βάπου, at the Bush, means, "at the Old Testament section entitled 'The Bush."

6. Constructio pragnans.—This preposition with the Genitive sometimes (see under $\dot{\epsilon}\nu$, 8) implies the foregoing motion.

Matt. xxvi. 12: βαλοθσα ... τὸ μύρον τοθτο ἐπὶ τοθ σώματός μου, having cast this ointment on my body.

Mark xiv. 35: ἐπεσαν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, they fell upon the ground.

- β. With the Dative, "resting upon"
- 1. On, upon, locally; like the Genitive, except that the point of view is different. (See γ , 1.)

Inke xix. 44: οὐκ ἀφήσουσιν ... λίθον ἐπὶ λίθφ, they will not leave stone resting upon stone.

2. Over, of superintendence, &c. (See a, 2.)

Luke xii. 44: ἐπὶ τοῖς ὑπάρχουσι, over the goods.

3. On (at), as the groundwork of any fact or circumstance.

Matt. iv. 4: οἰκ ἐπ' ἄρτφ μόνφ ζήσεται, shall not live on bread alone.

Luke v. 5: ἐπὶ τῷ ῥήματί σου χαλάσω τὸ δίκτυου, at thy word I will let down the net.

Acts xi. 19: $\tau \hat{\eta} s$ $\theta \lambda i \psi \epsilon \omega s$ $\tau \hat{\eta} s$ $\gamma \epsilon \nu o \mu \epsilon \nu \eta s$ $\epsilon \pi \iota \Sigma \tau \epsilon \phi \dot{\omega} \nu \phi$, the affliction that arose upon Stephen.

Mark ix. 37, &c.: ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου, in my name. (Compare Matt. xxviii. 19, with Acts ii. 38.)

Rom. viii. 20: ἐπ' ἐλπίδι, in hope, i.e., "resting on the basis of a hope that," &c.

2 Cor. ix. 6: è π ' eùlogíais, on a groundwork of blessings, i.e., "bountifully."

1 Thess. iv. 7: οὐ γὰρ ἐκάλεσεν ἡμᾶς ὁ Θεὸς ἐπὶ ἀκαθαρσία, for God did not call us on the ground of impurity, or perhaps as (5).

So the phrase $\hat{\epsilon}\phi^*\hat{\varphi}$, "on the condition being realized that," wherefore, because (Rom. v. 12, &c.)

4. Over and above, in addition to; as by one fact resting upon another.

Luke xvi. 26: ¿ml mâsı τοίτοις, beside all these.

- 2 Cor. vii. 13: ἐπὶ τῆ παρακλήσει ἡμῶν (Tischendorf, Lachmann), in addition to our comfort.
- 5. Constructio pragnans.—(See a, 6.) The force of the Accusative also is sometimes implied.

Matt. ix. 16: οὐδεὶς δὲ ἐπιβάλλει ... ἐπὶ ἰματίφ παλαιῷ, no one putteth ... upon an old garment.

- γ. With the Accusative, "upon, by direction towards."
- 1. Upon, with motion implied.

Matt. v. 15; τιθέασιν ἐπὶ τὴν λυχνίαν, they put (it) upon the lampstand.

Matt. vii. 24: ωκοδόμησε επί την πέτραν, he built upon the rock.

Matt. xiv. 29: περιεπάτησεν ἐπὶ τὰ ὕδατα, he walked upon the waters.

Matt. xxiv. 2: $\lambda i \theta_{05} \in \mathcal{M} \lambda i \theta_{00}$. See the Dative in the same connexion, β , 1. The notion there is of rest, simply; here, of downward pressure.

So after the verb $\epsilon \lambda \pi i \zeta \omega$, to hope; $\epsilon \pi i$, with the Dat., 1 Tim. iv. 10; with the Acc., v. 5. In the one case, the hope is said to rest upon, as a fact; in the other, to be placed upon, as an act. So after $\pi \epsilon i \theta \omega$, 2 Cor. i. 9, compared with ii. 3. The difference is so slight, that the expressions are easily interchangeable.

Constructio pragnans.—In Matt. xix. 28; 2 Cor. iii. 15, and some other passages.

2. Over, of authority, superintendence.

Luke i. 33: βασιλεύσει ἐπλ τὸν οἶκον Ἰακώβ, he shall reign over the house of Jacob.

Heb. ii. 7: κατέστησας αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὰ ἔργα, κ.τ.λ., thou didst set him over the works of thy hands.

The three cases in this connexion seem "interchangeable," i.e., the notions which they respectively express are so nearly allied that any of them may be employed without materially altering the sense. The Dative, however, and not the Accusative, is used when the preposition follows a verb of existence; the Accusative, and not the Dative, when the verb is transitive. The Examples (a, 2) show that the Genitive may be with either.

3. To, implying an intention (for, against).

Matt. iii. 7: ἐρχομένους ἐπὶ τὸ βάπτισμα αὐτοῦ, coming for his baptism.

Mark v. 21 : συνήχθη ὄχλος πολὺς ἐπ' αὐτόν, a great multitude was gathered together to him.

Matt. xxvi. 55: ως ἐπὶ ληστὴν ἐξήλθετε, are ye come out as against a robber?

So Luke xxiii. 48.

4. Towards, the direction of thought, feeling, speech.

Luke vi. 35: αὐτὸς χρηστός ἐστιν ἐπὶ τοὺς ἀχαρίστους καὶ πονηρούς, he is good to the ungrateful and wicked.

2 Cor. ii. 3: πεποιθώς ἐπὶ πάντας ὑμᾶς, having confidence with regard to you all.

Mark ix. 12: $\gamma \acute{\epsilon} \gamma \rho a \pi \tau a \acute{\epsilon} \pi l \tau \acute{o} \nu \iota \acute{o} \nu \tau \circ \hat{o} \dot{a} \nu \theta \rho \acute{\omega} \pi o \nu$, it is written with regard to the Son of man.

Matt. xv. 32: $\sigma\pi\lambda\alpha\chi\nu i\zeta$ ομαι ἐπὶ τὸν ὅχλον, I have compassion on the multitude. This verb and preposition are also found with the Dative (see β , 3); i.e., the compassion may be conceived as moving towards, or as resting on, the multitude.

5. Of number or quantity, up to.

Acts iv. 17: ἐπὶ πλείον, to a further point, "any further."

Rev. xxi. 16: ἐπὶ σταδίους δώδεκα χιλιάδων, to twelve thousands of stadia.

Matt. xxv. 40, &c.: ἐφ' ὅσον, inasmuch as. So of time, as long as, Matt. ix. 15.

With numeral adverbs, Acts x. 16, xi. 10. So in the compound adverb, $\partial \phi d\pi a \xi$, once for all, at once (Rom. vi. 10; 1 Cor. xv. 6; Heb. vii. 27, ix. 12, x. 10).

6. Of time, over, during on.

Luke x. 35: ἐπὶ τὴν αἴριον, in the course of the morrow.

Luke xviii. 4: οὐκ ἠθέλησεν ἐπὶ χρόνον, he would not for a time.

Acts xiii. 31: ωφθη ἐπὶ ἡμέρας πλείους, he was seen during several days.

So in the phrase, ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτό, at the same place or time, "together" (Luke xvii. 35; Acts ii. 1; 1 Cor. vii. 5, &c.)

306. II. Пара́, BESIDE (of juxtaposition).

a. With the Genitive: "Beside and proceeding from."

With persons only: from, generally with the notion of something imparted.

Matt. ii. 4: ἐπυνθάνετο παρ' αὐτῶν, he enquired of them.

Phil. iv. 8: δεξάμενος παρ' Έπαφροδίτου τὰ παρ' ὑμῶν, having received of Epaphroditus the things from you.

John xvi. 27: παρὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐξῆλθον, I came forth from God. Compare John i. 14.

Matt. xxi. 42: παρὰ Κυρίου ἐγένετο αῦτη, this was from Jehovah—
"his doing," from LXX., Ps. exviii. 23.

Mark iii. 21: οἱ παρ' αὐτοῦ, those from him, i.e., from his home or family.

B. With the Dative, "beside and at."

1. With, near, of persons only, except John xix. 25.

John xiv. 17: παρ' ὑμιν μένει, he remains with you.

Acts x. 6: ξενίζεται παρά τινι Σίμωνι, he lodges with one Simon.

John xix. 25: παρά τῷ σταυρῷ, near the cross.

2. With, in the estimation or power of.

Matt. xix. 26: παρὰ ἀνθρώποις ... ἀδύνατον, παρὰ δὲ Θεῷ πάντα δυνατά, with men ... impossible; but with God all things are possible.

Rom. ii. 13: δίκαιοι παρὰ τῷ Θεῷ, just with God.

Rom. xii. 16: φρόνιμοι παρ' έαυτοις, wise in your own esteem.

y. With the Accusative, "to or along the side of."

1. By, near, after verbs implying motion; also rest by an extended object, as the sea.

Matt. xiii. 4: ἔπεσε παρὰ τὴν ὁδόν, it fell by the wayside.

Matt. xv. 30: ἐρριψαν αἰτοὺς παρὰ τοὺς πόδας, they cast them at his feet.

Acts x. 6: & ἐστιν οἰκία παρὰ θίλασσαν, whose house is by the seaside.

2. Beside, as not coinciding with, hence contrary to.

Acts xviii. 13: παρὰ νόμον, contrary to law.

Rom. i. 26: παρὰ φύσιν, contrary to nature.

Rom. iv. 18: παρὰ ἐλπίδα, contrary to expectation.

Rom. i. 25: παρὰ τὸν κτίσαντα, instead of the Creator; or possibly, rather than, as (3).

3. Beside, with the notion of comparison, superiority, above.*

Luke xiii. 2: άμαρτωλοὶ παρὰ πάντας, sinners above all.

Romans xiv. 5: κρίνει ἡμέραν παρ' ἡμέραν, esteems day above day, i.e., one above another.

Heb. ix. 23: κρείττοσι θυσίαις παρὰ ταύτας, better sacrifices than these. So i. 4, iii. 3, xi. 4, xii. 24; Luke iii. 13.

4. From juxtaposition arises the notion of consequence, † in the phrase παρὰ τοῦτο, 1 Cor. xii. 15, 16, therefore.

307. III. Πρός, TOWARDS.

a. With Genitive, "hitherwards."

Belonging to the part or character of, toonducive to, in one instance only—

Acts xxvii. 31: τοῦτο γὰρ πρὸς τῆς ὑμετέρας σωτηρίας ὑπάρχει, for this is for your deliverance.

β. With Dative, "resting in a direction towards."

Near, hard by-

Luke ix. 37: πρὸς τῆ κατάβασει, close to the descent.

^{*} See ὑπέρ. The difference is, that ὑπέρ affirms superiority, παρά institutes comparison, and leaves the reader to infer superiority.

⁺ So in Latin, propter, because of, from prope, near.

[‡] So in classical Greek, πρδς κακοῦ ἀνδρός.

John xviii. 16: πρὸς τῆ θύρα ἔξω, close by the door outside.

John xx. 12: ἔνα πρὸς τῆ κεφαλῆ καὶ ἔνα πρὸς τοῖς ποσίν, one at the head and one at the feet.

Rev. i. 13: πρὸς τοῖς μαστοῖς, about the breast.

These are the only undoubted instances in the New Testament. Some copies add Mark v. 11, John xx. 11, in the same sense.

y. With the Accusative, "hitherwards."

1. To, of literal direction.

Matt. xi. 28: δεῦτε πρός με, come hither to me!

Matt. xxiii. 34 : ἀποστέλλω πρὸς ὑμᾶς προφήτας, I senil to you prophets.

Luke i. 19: λαλησαι πρός σε, to speak to thee.

1 Cor. xiii. 12: πρόσωπον πρὸς πρόσωπον, fuce to face. 2 John 12; 3 John 14.

2. After the substantive verb (constructio pragnans), with.

Matt. xiii. 56: οὐχὶ πᾶσαι πρὸς ἡμᾶς εἰσι; are they not all with us? John i. 1: ὁ Λόγος ἦν πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν, ΤΗΕ WORD WAS WITH GOD.

3. Of mental direction, towards, against.

Luke xxiii. 12: $\dot{\epsilon}\nu$ $\tilde{\epsilon}\chi\theta\rho\alpha$ $\tilde{\epsilon}\nu\tau\epsilon\varsigma$ $\pi\rho\delta\varsigma$ $\dot{\epsilon}\alpha\nu\tau\delta\varsigma$, being in enmity towards themselves.

1 Thess. v. 14: μακροθυμεῖτε πρὸς πάντας, be long suffering towards all.

Acts vi. 1: γογγυσμὸς πρὸς τοὺς Ἑβραίους, a murmuring against the Hebrews.

In Heb. i. 7, simple reference is denoted: πρὸς τοὺς ἀγγέλους λέγει, in regard to the angels he saith.

4. From the general notion of mental direction arises (i) that of estimation or proportion, in consideration of.

Matt. xix. 8: πρὸς τὴν σκληροκαρδίαν ὑμών, in consideration of the hardness of your hearts.

Luke xii. 47: πρὸς τὸ θέλημα αὐτοῦ, in consideration of (in accordance with) his will.

Rom. viii 18: οὐκ ἄξια ... πρὸς τὴν μελλουσαν δόξαν ἀποκαλυφθῆναι, unworthy (of thought) ... in consideration of the glory that is to be revealed.

- 5. Also (ii) that of intention, in order to, especially with the Infinitive.
- 1 Cor. x. 11: ἐγράφη δὲ πρὸς νουθεσίαν ἡμῶν, they were written for our admonition.

Matt. vi. 1: πρὸς τὸ θεαθῆναι αὐτοῖς, in order to be seen by them.

ON THE INTERCHANGE OF CERTAIN PREPOSITIONS.

308. Although no two prepositions are synonymous, they often approach one another so nearly in meaning as to be apparently interchangeable. It is sometimes important to notice the distinction, however subtle; at other times it appears immaterial to the sense.

Yet it is always safer to look for a real difference in meaning. Compare what has been said on the meaning of $\epsilon \pi i$ in the government of the three cases. (See also § 289.)

The subject is one which often calls for the most delicate criticism. It must suffice here to cite some of the principal instances of real or seeming interchange, with such brief explanations as may indicate the general principles on which these cases are to be judged.

- 309. Διά, with the Genitive, is especially subject to these alternations of expression.
- 1. With έκ. Rom. iii. 30: εἶs ὁ Θεός, δε δικαιώσει περιτομήν ἐκ πίστεως, καὶ ἀκροβυστίαν διὰ τῆς πίστεως, God is one, who will justify the circumcision by faith, and the uncircumcision by means of the (same) faith. In the former case the source of the justification is more distinctly marked; in the latter, the means.

See also 2 Pet. iii. 5, &c.

- 2. With ἀπό. Gal. i. 1: Παῦλος ἀπόστολος οὐκ ἀπ' ἀνθρώπων οὐδὲ δι' ἀνθρώπου, Paul an apostle neither (originally commissioned) from men, nor through (the intervention of) any man; the latter particular being added to show how absolutely independent his designation had been even of human instrumentality. The ordination to the ministry is ἀπὸ Θεοῦ, but δι' ἀνθρώπων.
- 3. With ἐν. 2 Cor. iii. 11: εὶ γὰρ τὸ καταργούμενον διὰ δόξης πολλῷ μᾶλλον τὸ μένον ἐν δίξη, for if that which vanisheth (was) by means ο/ (through the intervention of) glory (i.e., a glorious display), much more that which abideth (is) in glory.

Other instances are in Heb. xi. 2 (compare with 39); Rom. iv. 11, v. 10; 1 John v. 6. In 1 Cor. i. 21, the distinction is plain: in the wisdom of God, i.e., according to the wise appointment of Him who left mankind to make the effort, the world by $(\delta \cdot a)$ its wisdom, i.e., by the exercise of its reason, knew not God (including both fail are and perversion).

4. In Romans xi. 36, the respective meaning of ἐκ, διά, εἰς (the starting-point, the course, the goal), are finely marked: ἐξ αὐτοῦ καὶ δι' αὐτοῦ καὶ εἰς αὐτοῦ τὰ πάντα, all things are from him as their author, through him as their controller, to him as their end.

"Him first, Him last, Him midst, Him without end."

See also 2 Cor. i. 16.

Eph. iv. 6, presents a somewhat different antithesis: δ ἐπὶ πάντων καὶ διὰ πάντων καὶ ἐν πὰσιν,* who is over all and through all and in all. 1 Cor. xii. 8, 9, has another combination: διὰ τοῦ Πνεύματος... κατὰ τὸ αὐτὸ Πνεύμα... ἐν τῷ αὐτῷ Πνεύματι,— the word of wisdom is given by the Spirit; the word of knowledge according to the same Spirit; faith, in the same Spirit: the Spirit bestowing the gift, in a degree commensurate with his own might and love, while He himself becomes the element of the Christian life.

^{*} Omit by according to the best authorities, Lachmann and Tischendorf.

310. Ex and $\delta\delta\delta$ may sometimes be interchanged without injury to the sense.

Matt. vii. 16: μήτι συλλέγουσιν ἀπὸ ἀκανθῶν σταφυλήν; surely they do not gather grapes of thorns?

Luke vi. 44: οὐ γὰρ ἐξ ἀκανθῶν συλλέγουσι σῦκα, for they do not gather figs of thorns.

Heb. vii. 2: δεκάτην ἀπὸ πάντων, a tithe of all. Ver. 4: δεκάτην ... ἐκ τῶν ἀκροθινίων, a tithe of the spoils.

1 Thess..ii. 6: οὔτε ζητοῦντες ἐξ ἀνθρώπων δύξαν, οὔτε ἀφ' ὑμῶν οὔτε ἀπ' ἄλλων, nor secking glory from men, either of you or of others.

See also John xi. 1. In these passages it is immaterial whether the phrase "out of a thing" or "from a thing" be employed; but in the following there is an evident distinction:—

John vii. 42: ἐκ τοῦ σπέρματος Δαβίδ καὶ ἀπὸ Βηθλεέμ, from the seed of David and from Bethlehem.

2 Cor. iii. 5: οὐχ ὅτι ἱκανοί ἐσμεν ἀφ' ἐαυτῶν λογίσασθαί τι, ὡς ἐξ ἑαυτῶν, not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything, as from ourselves.

311. 'Ev is occasionally interchanged with a simple Dative.

So Col. ii. 13: νεκροὶ ἐν τοῖς παραπτώμασι, dead in transgressions; Eph. ii. 1: νεκροὶ τοῖς παραπτώμασι. So Matt. vii. 2: ἐν ῷ μέτρῷ μετρεῖτε, in what measure ye metc; Luke vi. 38: τῷ γὰρ αὐτῷ μέτρῷ ῷ μετρεῖτε, with the same measure with which ye mete. Again, Luke iii. 16: ὕδατι βαπτίζω, I baptize with water; so Acts i. 5, xi. 16; but ἐν ὕδατι, in water, Matt. iii. 11; John i. 26, 33. The expressions are evidently equivalent, however the act be understood.

The opposites $\hat{\epsilon}\nu$ and $\hat{\epsilon}\xi$ may in some cases be even interchanged. Thus, Matthew (xxii. 37) gives "the great commandment" as, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God in ($\hat{\epsilon}\nu$) all thy heart, &c.; Mark (xii. 30), out of ($\hat{\epsilon}\xi$) all thy heart; the love being regarded in one case as abiding in the heart, in the other as manifested by it. The LXX. (Deut. vi. 5) has $\hat{\epsilon}\xi$.

312. Els may often be interchanged with other forms of expression.

1. With πρόs. Rom. iii. 25: εἰς ἔνδειξιν ... ver. 26: πρὸς ἔνδειξιν τῆς δικαιοσύνης αὐτοῦ, in order to the manifestation ... tending to the manifestation of his righteousness. The former expression refers to a completed manifestation, the latter to one still in progress.

Philemon 5: "thy love and thy faith," ην έχεις πρὸς τὸν Κύριον 'Ἰησοῦν καὶ εἰς πάντας τοὺς άγίους, towards the Lord Jesus and unto all the saints.

This seems nothing more than a variation in expression, although by some it is explained on the principle of reverted parallelism:

"thy love and thy faith towards the Lord Jesus and to all the saints," i.e., love to the saints, and faith towards the Lord Jesus.

 With ἐπί. These instances are very frequent, and need no special remark.

Matt. xxiv. 16: φευγέτωσαν ἐπὶ τὰ ὅρη, let them flee up to the mountains. Mark xiii. 14: φευγέτωσαν εἰς τὰ ὅρη, let them flee into the mountains.*

Rom. iii. 22: δικαιοσύνη Θεοῦ ... εἰς πάντας καὶ ἐπὶ πάντας τοὺς πιστεύοντας, the righteousness of God unto all and upon all who believe, i.e., "so communicated to as to abide upon."

3. Interchanged with a simple Dative.

Matt. v. 21, 22: ἔνοχος τῆ κρίσει ... ἔνοχος εἰς τὴν γίενναν τοῦ πυρός, liable to the judgment ... liable to (up to the point of) the Gehenna of fire.

Rom. xi. 24: ἐνεκεντρίσθης εἰς καλλιέλαιον ... ἐγκεντρισθήσονται τῆ lδία ελαία, thou wast grafted into a good olive tree ... they shall be grafted on their own olive.

4. The remarkable phrase, 2 Cor. iv. 17, in which είς is combined with κατὰ in one rhetorical expression, claims a reference ^{*} Lachmann, however, reads $\epsilon$s in the former passage; so also Dr. Tregelles. The similarity between different prepositions has occasioned many various readings.

here: καθ' ὑπερβολήν εἰς ὑπερβολήν, Ε.V., "far more exceeding," literally, according to abundance (on a scale of vastness) unto an abundance (to the realization of that which is immeasurable).

- 5. The many instances in which εἰs seems to be used for ἐν, and vice versα, may be explained by constructio prægnans. (See § 295, 8.) The two prepositions are found in the same connection: Matt. iv. 18, compared with Mark i. 16; Mark xi. 8, with Matt. xxi. 8; Mark xiii. 16, with Matt. xxiv. 18.
- 313. Περί, about (with Genitive), may be substituted for a more definite preposition, and the converse, e.g.—
- For διά (with Accusative). John x. 32: our Lord asks, διὰ ποῖον αὐτῶν ἔργον λιθάζετέ με; for which work of these do ye stone me? The answer is, ver. 33: περὶ καλοῦ ἔργου οὐ λιθάζομέν σε ἀλλὰ περὶ βλασφημίαs, for a good work we stone thee not, but for blusphemy.
 - 2. For $i\pi\epsilon\rho$. See under $i\pi\epsilon\rho$ and $\pi\epsilon\rho i$, §§ 302, 303.

Verbs signifying prayer, thanksgiving, &c., may be followed by either indifferently. I pray about you, $\pi\epsilon\rho$, "you are the subject of my prayers; or, I pray for you, $i\pi\epsilon\rho$, "your welfare is the object of my prayers."

So in the many passages in respect of the death of Christ, which theological inquirers will do well to examine. In some, as in Gal. i. 4, the reading of good MSS, varies between ὑπέρ and περί.

314. A preposition governing several words in one regimen is repeated before each of them if a distinction, severally, between them is to be marked; but if they are combined in one notion, the preposition is not repeated.

This rule is analogous to that respecting the repetition of the article (§ 232). Yet the article is often repeated where the preposition is not.

Thus with the repeated preposition—

Matt. xxii. 37: ϵv $\delta \lambda \eta + \tau \hat{\eta}$ $\epsilon a \rho \delta \hat{\eta}$ $\epsilon o v$, $\epsilon a \hat{\epsilon} v$ $\delta \lambda \eta + \tau \hat{\eta}$ $\psi v \chi \hat{\eta}$ $\sigma o v$, $\epsilon a \hat{\epsilon} v$ $\delta \lambda \hat{\eta} + \tau \hat{\eta}$ $\delta a v o i q$ $\delta v o v$, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy understanding. Compare Mark xii. 30 (¿ξ, see § 311, note).

For other instances, see Mark vi. 4 $(\hat{\epsilon}\nu)$; Luke xxiv. 27 $(\hat{\alpha}\pi\delta)$; 1 Thess. i. 5 $(\hat{\epsilon}\nu)$; John xx. 2 $(\pi\rho\delta s)$, &c.

With the preposition not repeated—

John iv. 23: ἐν πνεύματι καὶ ἀληθεία, in spirit and truth, one state of mind, viewed under a twofold aspect. In like manner we interpret iii. 5, ἐξ ἔδατος καὶ Πνεύματος, of one spiritual baptism, not of two things (as the outward and the inward). So Matt. iii. 11.

For other instances, see Luke xxi. 26 ($\delta \pi \delta$); Phil. i. 15 ($\delta \epsilon d$); and very frequently with proper names when closely connected, as Phil. i. 2 Acts vi. 9, &c.

Where the nouns after the preposition are connected by the disjunctive or, the preposition is always repeated; as also where they stand in antithesis. Acts iv. 7: ἐν ποία δυνάμει ἡ ἐν ποίφ ὀνόματι ἐποίησατε τοῦτο ὑμεῖς; in what name or in what power did ye this ? John vii. 22: οἰχ ὅτι ἐκ τοῦ Μωυσέως ἐστίν, ἀλλ' ἐκ τῶν πατέρων, not that it is from Moses, but from the fathers. But where the antithesis is formed by two adjectives agreeing with the same noun, the preposition need not be repeated. 1 Pet. i. 23: οὐκ ἐκ σπορᾶς ἀφθαρτῆς, ἀλλὰ φθάρτον, not of corruptible, but of incorruptible seed.

CHAPTER IV.—ADJECTIVES.

315. According to the Second Concord, § 178, Adjectives, as also Participles and Adjective Pronouns, agree with their Substantives in Gender, Number, and Case.

An adjective may be an Epithet or a Predicate, the rule applying in both cases. For the adjective as predicate, see §§ 178–180.

- 316. Where the reference of the Adjective is plain, the Substantive is often omitted. Compare § 199.
- Matt. xi. 5: τυφλοι ἀναβλέπουσι καὶ χωλοι περιπατοῦσι, λεπροι καθαρίζονται καὶ κωφοι ἀκούουσι, νεκροι ἐγείρονται καὶ πτωχοι εὐαγγελίζονται, blind (men) are restored to sight and lame (men) walk, leprous (men) are cleansed and deaf (men) hear, the dead are raised and destitute (men) have glad tidings brought to them.
- Rom. v. 7: μόλις γὰρ ὑπὲρ δικαίου τις ἀποθανεῖται, ὑπὲρ γὰρ τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ τάχα τις καὶ τολμῷ ἀποθανεῖν, for scarcely for a righteous (man) will one die, for on behalf of the good (man) one perchance even dares to die."
- 1 Cor. iii. 13: πνευματικοῖς πνευματικὰ συγκρίνοντες, putting together spirituals with spirituals, i.e., "attaching spiritual words to spiritual things," Alford; or, "interpreting spiritual things by spiritual;" or, "explaining spiritual things to spiritual men," Stanley; or, "adapting spiritual language to spiritual matters," Beza.

The last example shows how an occasional ambiguity will arise. Such cases can only be decided by a careful study of the context and of the words employed. In general, however, the application of the adjective will be perfectly plain. See further, Eph. i. 3, &c.

Among the substantives most frequently omitted after Adjectives, beside the words for man, woman, thing, with the three genders respectively, are the following—χείρ, hand, as ή δεξία, "the right."

 $\gamma \hat{\eta}$, land, as ή οἰκουμένη, the inhabited, "the world." (Luke ii. 1, &c.)

ήμέρα, day, as τῆ ἐπιούση, " on the morrow."

ύδωρ, water, as ποτήριον ψυχροῦ, "a cup of cold." (Matt. x. 42; compare James iii. 11.)

Acts xix. 35, is peculiar: τοῦ Διοπετοῦς, of that which fell from Zeus: not precisely "an image," probably a great meteoric stone.

For the neuter article, especially, as substantivizing the Adjective, i.e., making it an abstract noun, see § 199.

Matt. vi. 13: ρῦσαι ἡμᾶς ἀπὸ τοῦ πονηροῦ, deliver us from evil. So v. 37, 39; John xvii. 15. Some with less appropriateness render "the Evil one." In 1 John ii. 13, 14, the adjective (Accusative) is certainly masculine; in Rom. xii. 9 (Accusative), certainly neuter; but as the Genitive and Dative of both genders are alike, passages like Eph. vi. 16; 2 Thess. iii. 3; 1 John iii. 12, v. 19, can only be determined by the context.

In Matt. xix. 17, the best editors concur in the remarkable reading, τί με ἐρωτῷς περὶ τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ; Why dost thou ask me concerning the good? instead of Why callest thou me good? In Mark x. 18, the received reading stands without any variation.

317. The number and gender of adjectives, participles, and pronouns are often determined (according to Synesis, or Rational Concord) by the sense rather than the form of their substantives. Compare §§ 175, 179.

Acts iii. 11: συνέδραμε πᾶς ὁ λαὸς ... ἔκθαμβοι, all the people ran together, greatly wondering.

Acts v. 16: συνήρχετο...τὸ πλῆθος... φέροντες, κ.τ.λ., the multitude came together, bringing, &c. So Luke xix. 37, &c.

Eph. iv. 17, 18: τὰ λοιπὰ ἔθνη περιπατεί ... ἐσκοτωμένοι ... ὅντες άπηλλοτριωμένοι, the rest of the Gentiles walk ... darkened ... being estranged.

Luke ii. 13: $\pi \lambda \hat{\eta} \theta$ os στρατιάs ουρανίου, αινούντων τὸν Θεὸν και λεγόντων, a multitude of a heavenly host, praising God and saying.

Rev. xi. 15: ἐγένοντο φωναλ μεγάλαι ... λέγοντες,* there were great voices, saying.

In Matt. xxi. 42, παρὰ Κυρίου ἐγένετο αὕτη καὶ ἔστι θαυμαστή, this (thing) was from the Lord, and it is wonderful, the feminine gender is to be explained by the Hebrew idiom. That language, having no neuter, employs the feminine for abstract notions. See Ps. cxviii. 23 (LXX., cxvii.)

For Synesis with Pronouns, see §§ 335, 345.

318. An Adjective referring to two or more substantives, if an epithet, commonly agrees with the nearest, or is repeated before each; if a predicate, is properly in the plural number, and follows the rule, § 179.

Luke x. 1: εἰς πῶσαν πόλιν καὶ τόπον, into every city and place (different genders, agreeing with nearest).

James i. 17: πᾶσα δόσις ἀγαθή καὶ πᾶν δώρημα τέλειον, every good and perfect gift. So Mark xiii. 1; Acts iv. 7 (different genders, repeated).

Matt. ix. 35: θεραπεύων πᾶσαν νόσον καὶ πᾶσαν μαλακίαν, healing every (kind of) discusse, and every (kind of) infirmity (same gender, repeated).

Matt. iv. 24: ποικίλαις νόσοις και βασάνοις, with divers diseases and torments (same gender, not repeated).

When two adjectives stand as epithets to one substantive, a conjunction generally stands between them. Thus, for "many other," the Greeks say, "many and other." This rule, however, is not invariable in the New Testament.

John xx. 30: πολλὰ μὰν οὖν καὶ ἄλλα σημεῖα, many other miracles therefore. Acts xxv. 7: πολλὰ καὶ βαρέα αἰτιώματα, many heavy charges.

See also Luke iii. 18; Titus i. 10; and on the contrary, Acts xv. 35.

^{*} Tischendorf, Lachmann.

319. An Adjective is often employed in Greek where the English idiom requires an Adverb.

Mark iv. 28: αὐτομάτη ή γη καρποφορεί, the earth yields fruit spontaneously.

Luke ii. 2: αὖτη ἡ ἀπογραφὴ πρώτη ἐγένετο, κ.τ.λ., this enrolment was first made* (compare John xx. 4).

For the adverbial use of adjective forms, see § 399.

THE DEGREES OF COMPARISON.

The Comparative.

320. An Adjective in the Comparative degree usually takes the object of comparison in the Genitive case. In English the conjunction than is to be supplied.

See § 253, with observations and examples.

The object, as expressed by the Genitive, sometimes corresponds, not with the precise subject of the comparison, but with the general notion of the sentence.

Matt. v. 20: πλεῖον τῶν γραμματέων καὶ Φαρισαίων (your righteousness), lit., more than the Scribes and Pharisees.

John v. 36: $\epsilon \gamma \omega$ δ ϵ $\epsilon \chi \omega$ την μαρτυρίαν μείζω τοῦ Ἰωάννου, the witness which I have is greater than John.

1 Cor. i. 25: τὸ μωρὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ σοφώτερον τῶν ἀνθρώπων ἐστί, κ.τ.λ., the foolishness of God is wiser than men, &c.

The beginner must beware of translating these genitives as possessives governed by an understood object of the comparative: "than John's (testimony)," "than men's (wisdom)," &c. This the construction will not admit. The form of expression is one of the utmost generality: "God's 'foolishness' is wiser," not only than men's wisdom, but "than men" themselves, with all that they are or can do. So of the other passages.*

^{*} Other translations have been proposed to escape the chronological difficulty. Thus, the enrolment first took effect, when, &c., it having been originated some years before; or the enrolment was made before Quirinius was governor (compare πρῶτός μου, John i. 15). But Dr. Zumpt has recently shown the great probability of Quirinius having been governor of Syria at this early date, as well as A.D. 6, on the deposition of Archelaus. (See Smith's "Dictionary of the Bible," Art. "Cyrenius").

321. The comparative particle "i, than, may also be employed; the object then being in the same case with the subject of comparison.

Luke ix. 13: οἰκ εἰσὶν ἡμῖν πλεῖον ἡ πέντε ἄρτοι καὶ ἰχθύες δύο, we have no more than five loaves and two fishes.

1 Cor. xiv. 5: μείζων δὲ ὁ προφητεύων ἡ ὁ λαλῶν γλώσσαις, greater is he who prophesies than he who speaks with tongues.

This particle is specially employed (1) after the comparative adverb $\mu \hat{a} \lambda \lambda o \nu$, more.

Acts iv. 19: $\dot{v}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$ $\dot{\alpha}\kappa o\dot{v}\epsilon\nu$ $\mu\hat{a}\lambda\lambda o\nu$ $\dot{\eta}$ $\tau o\hat{v}$ $\Theta\epsilon o\hat{v}$, to hear you rather than God.

It may be hardly necessary to remind the learner that $\Theta \epsilon o \hat{\nu}$ is in the Genitive, not because it is the object of comparison, but because coupled by $\mathring{\eta}$ with $\mathring{\nu} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$, Gen. after $\mathring{\alpha} \kappa o \mathring{\nu} \epsilon \nu$, by § 249, α .

So Matt. xviii. 13; John xii. 43 ($n\pi\epsilon\rho$), &c. Mâ $\lambda\lambda\rho\nu$ nmay connect two adjectives, as 2 Tim. iii. 4, where a Greek classical idiom, of which there is no instance in the New Testament, would have admitted two comparatives.

(2) When the object of comparison is a clause.

Rom. xiii. 11: ἐγγύτερον ... ἡ ὅτε ἐπιστεύσαμεν, nearer (our salvation) than when we believed.

(3) When a Comparative governs, as an adjective, words other than its object.

Matt. x. 15: dvektierov $egin{a}{c}$ $egin{a}{c}$ egi

After πλείων, πλείον, more, and ἐλάττων, ἔλαττον, less, the particle may be omitted before numerals.

Acts xxiv. 11: οὐ πλείους εἰσί μοι ἡμέραι δεκαδύο, κ τ.λ., lit., there are to me no more days (than) twelve. So iv. 22, xxiii. 13.

Matt. xxvi. 53: πλείους δώδεκα λεγεώνας, more than twelve legions.

In some of these passages the received text inserts n.

A peculiar comparative is occasionally made by μᾶλλον after the positive.

Mark ix. 42: καλόν ἐστιν αἰτῷ μᾶλλον, κ.τ.λ., it is better for him.

Acts xx. 35: μακάριον ἐστι μάλλον διδόναι ἡ λαμβάνειν, it is more blessed to give than to receive.

Sometimes μᾶλλον is omitted.

Matt. xviii. 8, 9: καλόν σοι ἐστὶν εἰσελθεῖν ... ἢ ... βληθῆναι, it is better for thee to enter ... than ... to be cast, lit., "it is good ... rather than." So Mark ix. 43-47. Compare also Luke xviii. 14 (rec., but the reading is probably παρ' ἐκεῖνον; § 306, γ, 3).

Hence also a comparative notion may be expressed by $\ddot{\eta}$ after a noun or verb.

Luke xv. 7: χαρὰ ἔσται ... ἐπὶ ἐνὶ ... ἡ ἐπὶ ἐννενήκοντα ἐννέα, there shall be joy ... over one ... (rather) than over ninety and nine.

Luke xvii. 2: λυσιτελεῦ αὐτῷ ... ἢ ἵνα σκανδαλίση, lit., it is profitable for him ... (rather) than that he should offend.

1 Cor. xiv. 19: θέλω πέντε λόγους διὰ τοῦ νοός μου λαλῆσαι... $\mathring{\eta}$ μυρίους λόγους ἐν γλώσση, I would (rather) speak five words with my understanding, than ten thousand words in a tongue.

322. For the Comparative as strengthened by the prepositions $i\pi\epsilon\rho$ and $\pi\alpha\rho\dot{\alpha}$, see §§ 303, 306.

Other emphatic modes of comparison are specified, § 47.

323. A Comparative is often found without any expressed object of comparison.

a. The object may be supplied by the context, as Acts xvii. 20: ἀκριβέστερον αὐτῷ ἐξέθεντο τὴν τοῦ Θεοῦ ὁδόν they expounded to him the way of God more perfectly, i.e., than he had known before (ver. 25). Compare John xix. 11; Rom. xv. 15; 1 Cor. xii. 31; Phil. ii. 28; Heb. ii. 1, &c. So in correlative expressions, Rom. ix. 12; Heb. i. 4.

b. The Comparative may be a familiar phrase, as of πλείονες, the majority, Acts xix. 32; 1 Cor. xv. 6; 2 Cor. ii. 6 (not simply "many," as E.V.), &c.

c. The object is to be supplied mentally, according to the general sense of the passage.*

Matt. xviii. 1: τίς ἄρα μείζων ἐστὶν ἐν τῆ βασιλεία τῶν οἰρανῶν; who then is greater (than the rest) in the kingdom of heaven?

So Mark ix. 34; Luke ix. 46, xxii. 24. In Matt. xi. 11, δ μικρότερος may be rendered, he that is less than all others, i.e., "he that is least," as E.V., or he that is less than John (in fame and outward honour), i.e., Christ himself; the sentiment being that of John i. 15.†

The following examples further illustrate this usage of the comparative:—

John xiii. 27: that thou doest do more quickly, τάχιον, i.e., than you seem disposed to do.

Acts xvii. 21: to tell or to hear some newer thing, τι καινότερον, than the last things that they had heard, "the later news."

Acts xvii. 22: ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are more addicted to worship, δασιδαιμονεστέρους, i.e., than heathen nations generally (not merely, like them, worshipping recognised deities, but even the "unknown.")‡

Acts xxiv. 22: the matters pertaining to the way (the Christian doctrine) more accurately, δκριβίστερον, than to need detailed information.

Acts xxv. 10: to the Jews I have done no wrong, as also thou

^{*} See Winer, § 35, 4.

⁺ This latter is the interpretation of many of the Fathers, but is disallowed by most modern critics. (See Alford's note.)

I "Too superstitious," therefore, misses the true meaning both of the word and the grammatical form.

knowest better, kállov, than thou choosest to confess. Alford compares our current phrase, to know better. So 2 Tim. i. 18, better even than I do.

Acts xxvii. 13: they steered closer by Crete, ἀσσον παρελέγοντο τὴν Κρήτην, i.e., than they had done before; ver. 8.

On Eph. iv. 9, see § 259.

- Phil. i. 12: rather, μῶλλον, for the furtherance of the Gospel than for its hindrance as we feared.
- 1 Tim. iii. 14: hoping to come unto thee more quickly. τάχιον, than to make such injunctions needful. Compare Heb. xiii. 19, 23.
- 2 Tim. i. 17: he sought me out more diligently, σπουδαιότερον, than if I had not been in captivity.
- 2 Pet. i. 19: καὶ ἔχομεν βεβαιότερον τὸν προψητικὸν λόγον, lit., and we have more sure the prophetic word, i.e., we hold that word with a surer confidence even than before, inasmuch as we received a confirmation of its testimony "upon the holy mount."
- 2 Pet. ii. 11: angels which are greater in power and might, peifoves, either greater than other angels,* as the archangel, Jude 9, or greater than these presumptuous, self-willed men.†

From the above explanations it will be seen that the Comparative in such cases is not to be explained as "put for the Superlative," or as expressing the notions of "too" or "very," but retains its true and proper force.

The Superlative.

- 324. The Superlative denotes the highest quality of any kind, and may be used when the objects of comparison are not explicitly intimated.
- 2 Pet. i. 4: τὰ μέγιστα καὶ τίμια ἐπαγγέλματα, the greatest and precious promises, or as E.V. happily, "exceeding great and precious."

In Luke i. 3, we read κράτιστε Θεόφιλε, most excellent Theophilus; ^{*} Huther.

⁺ Winer, Alford, &c.

but in Acts xxiii. 26, xxiv. 3, the same title is applied to Felix, and in xxvi. 25, to Festus. It was simply a designation of rank.

325. For the Superlative followed by a partitive Genitive, see § 262. An emphatic Superlative is made by the addition of πάντων, Mark xii. 28, the first commandment of all (not πασῶν, as received text).

The particle ωs (ὅτι), with a Superlative, means "in as great a degree as possible." Acts xvii. 15: τνα ως τάχιστα ἔλθωσι πρὸς αἰτὸν, that they would come to him as speedily as possible.

326. The Superlative $\pi\rho\hat{\omega}\tau os$, first, may be used where but two things are compared.

Acts i. 1: τὸν μὲν πρῶτον λόγον ἐποιησάμην, the first (former) treatise I made. So 1 Cor. xiv. 30; * Heb. x. 9.

So the expression πρῶτός μου, before me, John i. 15, 30; πρῶτος ὑμῶν, before you, xv. 18. The Genitive is analogous to the Genitive after the Comparative. On Luke ii. 2, see note, § 319.

327. In Hebrew there are two principal ways of expressing the Superlative;—(i.) by the use of the preposition in, among, after the simple adjective, as Prov. xxv. 30, a lion, strong among beasts, i.e., the strongest of beasts; † (ii.) by the repetition of an adjective or noun in the Genitive relation, as in the common appellation of the holiest part of the Temple, the holy of holies, and Gen. ix. 25, a servant of servants, i.e., utterly enslaved.‡

The New Testament has instances of both these idioms. (i.) Luke i. 42: εὐλογημένη σὺ ἐν γυναίξιν, blessed art thou among women,

+ Compare the use of a Hebrew preposition to give the force of the comparative.

^{*} But perhaps here the mental comparison might be, not simply with the second speaker, but with the rest of the assembly.

[†] There is yet a third method, i.e., the emphatic use of the adjective with the article, as Gen. ix. 24, his son, the young, i.e., his youngest. But perhaps there us no example of this in the New Testament, though see Luke x. 42.

i.e., most blessed. (ii.) Heb. ix. 3: ἄγια άγίων, the holy of holies. Compare 1 Tim. vi. 15; Rev. xix. 16.

Neither of these constructions is confined to the Hebrew, although their occurrence in the New Testament may fairly be assigned to Hebrew influence. Other so-called Hebraisms must be rejected.* Thus, Acts vii. 20, $d\sigma\tau\epsilon los$ $\tau \hat{\varphi} \otimes \epsilon \hat{\varphi}$, must not be rendered, as in E.V., "exceeding fair," but beautiful before God, in his eyes. Much less must the Divine name be taken as giving a simple superlative force in such passages as Luke i. 15; 2 Cor. i. 12; Col. ii. 19; Rev. xv. 2, &c.

NUMERALS.

328. The Cardinal $\epsilon_{\text{is}}$, besides its ordinary use, is employed in the following ways.

i. As an indefinite pronoun, + nearly equal to Tis.

Matt. viii. 19: είς γραμματεύς είπεν αὐτῷ, a scribe said unto him.

Matt. xxvi. 69: προσήλθεν αὐτῷ μία παιδίσκη, there came to him a maidservant.

John vi. 9: ἔστι παιδάριον εν ωδε, there is a lad here.

So Matt. xviii. 24, xix. 16; Mark x. 17, xii. 42; Rev. viii. 13, &c. Often with a Genitive following, as Matt. xvi. 14; Mark v. 22. Sometimes with λα, as Matt. xxii. 35, xxvii. 48. Occasionally, λîs τις combined, as Luke xxii. 50.

ii. For the correlatives, one ... the other, είς is sometimes employed in both clauses.

Matt. xx. 21; Mark x. 37: $\epsilon \hat{s} = \hat{\epsilon} \hat{s} = \hat{\epsilon} \hat{\epsilon} \hat{\omega} \hat{\nu} = \hat{\sigma} \hat{\sigma} \hat{\nu}$, one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left.

John xx. 12; 1 Cor. iv. 6; Gal. iv. 22; 1 Thess. v. 11. But ἄλλος, ε̃τερος are more frequently used in the second clause, as Matt. vi. 24; Rev. xvii. 10.

^{*} See Winer and others.

[†] The indefinite article in the European languages is but a form of the numeral "one." We say "a or an;" we should rather say "an or a," the longer being the original form, and an = Scottish ane = one. So French, un; German, ein, &c.

iii. For not one (oddsis, $\mu\eta\delta\epsilon$ is), the New Testament writers, following the Hebrew idiom, sometimes say one ... not, combining the negative with the predicate.

Matt. x. 29: εν εξ αὐτῶν οὐ πεσεῖται, one of them shall not fall, i.e., not one of them shall fall. So ch. v. 18; Luke xii. 6.

But the adjective $\pi \hat{a}s$, every, is still more frequently employed in such expressions. Thus, "everything is not ..." means "nothing is."

Inke i. 37: οὐκ ἀδυνατήσει παρὰ τῷ. Θεῷ πῶν ῥῆμα, everything is not-impossible with God, i.e., nothing is impossible.

So Matt. xxiv. 22; Mark xiii. 20; John iii. 15, 16, vi. 39, xii. 46: Rom. iii. 20; 1 Cor. i. 29; Gal. ii. 16; 1 John ii. 21; Rev. xviii. 22. "Forget not all his benefits" (Ps. ciii. 2), of course means "forget not any." But when ob is connected with πâs, the meaning is simply not all. So Matt. vii. 21, οb πâs λέγων ... εἰσελεύσεται, not every one ... shall enter. Had the reading been πᾶs λέγων ... οὐκ εἰσελεύσεται, it would have meant "no one ... shall enter." (See Matt. xix. 11; 1 Cor. xv. 39; Rom. x. 16: οὐ πάντες ὑπήκουσαν, not all obeyed. πάντες οὐχ ὑπήκουσαν would have been, "they all disobeyed."

iv. Instead of the ordinal $\pi\rho\hat{\omega}\tau$ os, the cardinal $\epsilon \hat{i}s$ is used in the designation of the first day of the week (again a Hebraism).

Matt. xxviii. 1: είς μίαν σαββάτων, lit., on the day one of the week.

So Mark xvi. 2 (but ver. 9, πρώτη); Luke xxiv. 1; John xx. 1, 19; Acts xx. 7; 1 Cor. xvi. 2. In Titus iii. 10; Rev. vi. 1, 3, ix. 12, we find one and the second as correlatives.

329. The particles ώs, ώσει, about, &c., are used with numerals adverbially, i.e., without affecting the case. Matt. xiv. 21; Mark v. 13; Rom. iv. 19, &c. So with ἐπάνω, above, which in other connexions is followed by a Genitive.

1 Cor. xv. 6: ἄφθη ἐπάνω πεντακοσίοις ἀδελφοῖς, he was seen by above five hundred brethren. So Mark xiv. 5 (where the Genitive is that of price).

330. The names of measures and coins may be omitted after numeral designations. Acts xix. 19: ἀργυρίου μυριάδας πέντε (five myriads), fifty thousands of silver, i.e., $\delta \rho a \chi \mu \hat{\omega} \nu = \text{denarii.}$ Elsewhere the plural ἀργύρια (pieces of silver) is used, as Matt. xxvi. 16, &c.

331. The Greeks used the phrase "himself third," for "he and two others," αὐτὸς τρίτος. So αὐτὸς τέταρτος, he and three others, &c. Sometimes αὐτός was omitted. This idiom occurs once in the New Testament. 2 Pet. ii. 5: ὄγδοον Νῶς ... ἐφύλαξς, he preserved Noah, and seven others.

The Distributive Numerals have been sufficiently explained, § 52.

CHAPTER V.—PRONOUNS.

THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

332. The rules respecting the cases of nouns, and their employment with prepositions, for the most part apply to the personal and other substantive Pronouns also.

For the oblique cases of the third personal pronoun, in both numbers and all genders, forms of the adjective pronoun autós are employed.

For the other uses of avtos, see § 335.

The Nominative of the personal pronoun, when the subject of a verb, is omitted, except where emphasis is required. (See § 169.)

333. The Generive is very frequently used in a possessive sense; the adjective possessive pronoun being comparatively rare. (See § 255.)

Matt. vi. 9, 10: Πάτερ ήμῶν ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς, ἀγιασθήτω τὸ ἄνομά σου, ἐλθέτω ή βασιλεία σου, κ.τ.λ., Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name, &c.

Matt. vii. 3: τί δὲ βλέπεις τὸ κάρφος τὸ ἐν τῷ ὀφθαλμῷ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ σου (personal pronoun), τὴν δὲ ἐν τῷ σῷ ὀφθαλμῷ (adjective possessive) δοκὸν οὖ κατανοεῖς; and why seest thou the mote in the eye of thy brother, but discernest not the beam in thine own eye?

The only possessive for the third person in the New Testament is the Genitive of αὐτός.

Conversely, an objective genitive may be expressed by the possessive adjective pronoun.

Luke xxii. 19; 1 Cor. xi. 25: τοῦτο ποιεῖτε εἰς τὴν ἐμὴν ἀνάμνησιν, this do for my remembrance, i.e., "for remembrance of me." So Rom. xi. 31, "through mercy shown to you;" xv. 4; 1 Cor. xv. 31, "by my glorying in you;" xvi. 17, "the lack of you."

John xv. 9: μείνατε ἐν τῆ ἀγάπη τῆ ἐμῆ, abide in my love, has sometimes been taken in a similar sense; but it seems better to take the pronoun there as a true possessive. (Compare § 269.)

In one striking passage, Eph. iii. 18, there seems the omission of a genitive pronoun, "what is the breadth?" &c., i.e., "of the love of Christ."*

334. Occasionally in a lengthened sentence, a seemingly redundant personal pronoun is found.

Matt. viii. 1: καταβάντι δὲ αὐτῷ ἀπὸ τοῦ ὄρους ἦκολούθησαν αὐτῷ ὅχλοι πολλοί, and when he had come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him.

Acts vii. 21: ἐκτεθέντα δὲ αὐτὸν ἀνείλετο αὐτὸν ἡ θυγάτηρ Φαραώ, and when he was cast out, the daughter of Pharach took him up.

Where the object of a verb is expressed in the nominative absolutely, for the sake of emphasis, its place in the sentence is supplied by a pronoun. (See § 242.)

Rev. 1ii. 12: δ νικών ποιήσω αὐτον στύλον, He that overcometh, I will make him a pillar.

335. As að rós properly means very, self, it is used in apposition with nouns of both numbers and of all cases and genders, as well as with the personal pronouns of the first and second persons. When employed in the nominative for the third person, it is always emphatic, ti.e., not He simply, but He himself.

Rom. vii. 25 : αὐτὸς ἐγὰ ... δουλεύω, I myself serve.

John iv. 42: αὐτοὶ γὰρ ἀκηκόαμεν, for we ourselves have heard.

1 Thess. iv. 9: αὐτοὶ γὰρ ὑμεῖς θεοδίδακτοί ἐστε, for ye yourselves are taught by God.

^{*} See Ellicott.

- (1) The reflexive pronoun of the third person may be used for that of the other persons where no ambiguity would be likely to occur.
 - a. Singular (never for ἐμαυτοῦ).

John xviii. 34: ἀφ' ἐαυτοῦ σὐ τοῦτο λέγεις; sayest thou this of thyself?

So in some other passages where the reading varies; as in quotations of Lev. xix. 18 (Matt. xix. 19; Mark xii. 31; Luke x. 27; Rom. xiii. 9). The approved reading, however, is σεαυτόν.

- b. Plural (more frequently).
- 2 Cor. iii. 1: ἀρχόμεθα πάλιν ἐαυτοὺς συνιστάνειν; are we beginning again to commend ourselves?
- 2 Cor. xiii. 5: ἐαυτοὺς πειράζετε ... ἐαυτοὺς δοκιμάζετε, try yourselves ... test yourselves.

So in the frequent phrase προσέχετε (or βλέπετε) έαυτοῖs, take heed to yourselves. Mark xiii. 9; Luke xii. 1, xvii. 3, xxi. 34; Acts v. 35; 2 John 8. Also Eph. v. 19; James ii. 4: one with another.

For the use of αὐτός with the Article, see § 222.

- (2) In respect of gender and number, αὐτός often follows the rule of rational concord (synesis). (See § 317, and for a similar usage with the relative pronoun, compare § 345.)
 - a. Gender.

Matt. xxviii. 19: μαθητεύσατε πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, βαπτίζοντες αἰτούς, disciple all the nations, baptizing them.

Col. ii. 15: $d\pi \epsilon \kappa \delta v \sigma d\mu \epsilon v \sigma s$ $d\rho \chi ds$ $\kappa a \tau ds$ $d \xi o v \sigma (as ... \theta \rho \iota a\mu \beta \epsilon v \sigma as$ $a v \sigma v \sigma s$, stripping away from himself the principalities and the powers ... triumphing over them.

Mark v. 41: κρατήσας της χειρός τοῦ παιδίου, λέγει αἰτῆ, taking the child by the hand, he saith unto her.

b. Number.

Matt. i. 21: σώσει τὸν λαὸν αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν ὑμαρτιῶν αἰτῶν, he shall save his people from their sins.

3 John 9: ἔγραψά τι τῆ ἐκκλησία, ἀλλ' ὁ φιλοπρωτεύων αὐτῶν Δ ιοτρέφης, κ.τ.λ., I wrote somewhat to the church, but Diotrephes who loves pre-eminence over them.

So in reference to ὄχλος, πληθος, &c.

(3) This pronoun may also refer to a substantive implied in some previous word or phrase.

Matt. xix. 13: of δè μαθηταὶ ἐπετίμησαν αὐτοῖs, but the disciples rebuked them, i.e., those that brought the children; Mark x. 13.

John viii. 44: ψεύστης ἐστὶ καὶ ὁ πατὴρ αὐτοῦ, he is a liar and the father of it, i.e., of lying.

So Matt. iv. 23; Acts viii. 5; 2 Cor. v. 19, "to them," i.e., the inhabitants of the world. Rom. ii. 26, the concrete implied in the abstract, ἀκροβυστία; Eph. v. 12, "by those who walk in the darkness," or (Ellicott) "the children of disobedience," ver. 6.

Possessive Pronouns.

336. On the possessive use of the Genitive of Personal Pronouns, and the employment of the Possessives as equivalent to the objective genitive, see § 333. For the Article with possessive pronouns, see § 223.

The various use of the Possessives as Adjectives, epithetic and predicative, may be exemplified by the following phrases:—

John v. 30 : ή κρίσις ή ἐμὴ δικαία ἐστίν, my judgment is just.

Rom. x. 1: ή εὐδοκία τῆς ἐμῆς καρδίας, the desire (goodwill) of my heart,

Phil. iii. 9: μὴ ἔχων ἐμὴν δικαιοσύνην τὴν ἐκ νόμου, not having a righteousness of my own, viz., that from law.

John xvii. 10: τὰ ἐμὰ πάντα σά ἐστι, καὶ τὰ σὰ ἐμά, all mine are thine, and thine are mine.

The possessive adjective pronoun appears to have a greater emphasis than the genitive of the personal. Thus (1 John ii. 2), "he is the propitation for our sins," ἡμῶν, a general declaration; but in the next clause this is thrown into strong antithesis—not for ours alone, but, &c.; and here, accordingly, the adjective pronoun is employed, οὐ περὶ τῶν ἡμετέρων δε μόνον.

The genitive of a noun is sometimes found in apposition with the genitive notion in the possessive pronoun.

1 Cor. xvi. 21: τη ἐμη χειρὶ Παύλου, by my hand (that is) of me, Paul. Col. iv. 18; 2 Thess. iii. 17.

337. For a possessive pronoun, entirely unemphatic, the Article is often employed (see § 215), and on the other hand an emphatic possessive is expressed by the Adjective "bios, own.

John i. 42: είρίσκει οὖτος πρῶτος τὸν ἀδελφὸν τὸν ἴδιον Σίμωνα, this man findeth first his own brother Simon.

See also Matt. ix. 1, xxv. 15; Luke vi. 44; John iv. 44, v. 18; "said that God was his own father;" Acts xx. 28; Gal. vi. 9: "its own season;" also 1 Tim. ii. 6; Titus i. 3; 2 Pet. i. 20, and many other passages.*

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

338. The demonstratives οὖτος, αὕτη, τοῦτο, this (the nearer, connected with the second person), and ἐκεῖνος, ἐκείνη, ἐκεῖνο, that (the more remote, connected with the third person), with the correlatives (see § 62), obey the laws of adjective concord).

For the use of the demonstratives with the article, see § 220. °Outos generally precedes its substantive, $\epsilon\kappa\epsilon\hat{\nu}\nu\sigma$ follows; but to this rule there are many exceptions.

Luke xviii. 14: κατέβη οὖτος δεδικαιωμένος εὶς τὸν οἶκον αὐτοῦ ἡ ἐκείνος, this man (the latter) went down justified to his house rather than that (the former).

339. The demonstrative öδε, this ("this, here," connected with the first person), is found only Luke x. 39; James iv. 13; and in the phrase τάδε λέγε, thus (these things) saith, Acts xxi. 11, and the beginnings of the letters to the seven churches; Rev. ii., iii.

"Οδε marks a closer relation than οῦτος. In Greek narrative generally, ἔλεξε ταῦτα is, he said this that precedes; ἔλεξε τάδε, he said this that follows.

^{*} Winer notes the following passages as without emphasis (but query?): Matt. xxii. 5, xxv. 14; Titus ii. 9; John i. 42; Eph. iv. 22; Titus ii. 5; 1 Pet. iii. 1, 5.

There are a few other passages in which the received text has εδε, but where the best editors adopt other readings, as Acts xv. 23; 2 Cor. xii. 19; Luke xvi. 25, where we should read, he is comforted here.

340. In some passages, otros seems to refer to the remoter subject.

Acts viii. 26: αῦτη ἐστὶν ἔρημος, it, the road, not the city of Gaza, is desert.

2 John 7: οὖτος ἐστὶν ὁ πλάνος καὶ ὁ ἀντίχριστος, this is the deceiver and the antichrist, i.e., he who bears the character described at the commencement of the verse.

So exervos may refer to the nearer.

John vii. 45: καὶ εἶπον αὐτοῖς ἐκεῖνοι, and they (the chief priests and Pharisees just mentioned) said to them, the officers spoken of before.

'Eκεῖνος is employed as an emphatic demonstrative, and sometimes on that account seems applied to the nearer antecedent. Thus 2 Cor. viii. 9: "Ye know the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, that for your sakes he became poor, rich as he was, that ye, through H1s (ἐκείνου) poverty might be enriched." So Titus iii. 7. Compare Acts iii. 13.

2 Tim. ii. 26 is difficult: εζωγρημένοι ὑπ' αὐτοῦ, εἰς τὸ ἐκείνου θέλημα. The two pronouns can hardly refer to the same subject (compare iii. 9); and it seems best to connect the clause beginning with εἰς with ὰιανή,ψωσυ, taking εξωγρημένοι ὑπ' αὐτοῦ as parenthetical. Ellicott: "and that they may return to soberness out of the snare of the devil (though holden captive by him) to do His will," i.e., God's. For other explanations, see Alford, Ellicott, &c.

341. A Demonstrative often repeats the notion already expressed by a substantive. The pronoun thus occasionally seems redundant, but perhaps was always intended to convey some additional emphasis,

Matt. xiii. 20-23: δ δè ... σπαρείς ... οῦτός ἐστιν, that which was sown ... this is he, &c.

So x. 22, xiii. 38, xv. 11, xxvi. 23; John vi. 46; John i. 18, 33 (¿κείνος), v. 11, x. 1, &c.

1 Cor. vi. 4, τυύτους; Rom. vii. 10: compare Acts i. 22; 1 Cor. v. 5; 2 Cor. xii. 2.

The Demonstrative itself may be repeated in a sentence. John vi. 42: οὐχ οὖτός ἐστιν Ἰησοῦς ὁ υἰὸς Ἰωσήφ ... πῶς οὖν λέγει οὖτος; κ.τ.λ., Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, how then sayeth this man? &c. (See also Acts vii. 35–38.)

342. The Neuter Demonstrative sometimes stands as equivalent to a clause.

Acts xxiv. 14: $\delta\mu$ $\delta \lambda$ δ

So xxvi. 16; Eph. iv. 17, &c.

The neuter plural may be employed for a single object of thought.

John xv. 17: ταθτα ἐντέλλομαι ὑμῖν, ἵνα ἀγαπᾶτε ἀλλήλους, this I command you, that ye love one another.

3 John 4: μειζοτέραν τούτων οὐκ ἔχω χαράν, α more surpassing joy than this I have not. Compare 1 Cor. vi. 11: καὶ ταῦτά τινες ἦτε, and such were some of you, or, "such were you in some degree." (See § 352, iii.)

In Heb. xi. 12, the phrase $\kappa a \approx \tau a \tilde{v} \tau a$, $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$., must be rendered, and that, too, when he was as good as dead. Compare 1 Cor. vi. 8, received text.

In Rom. xiii. 11; 1 Cor. vi. 6; Phil. i. 28; 3 John, 5 (Lachmann and Tischendorf), καὶ τοῦτο is similarly resumptive.

On Eph. ii. 8, τῆ γὰρ χὰριτί ἐστε σεσωσμένοι διὰ πίστεως, καὶ τοῦτο οὐκ $\xi \xi$ ὑμῶν, κ.τ.λ., see \S 403, d.

For the ellipsis of the Demonstrative before the Relative, see § 347.

THE RELATIVE PRONOUN.

343. The Relative Pronoun agrees with its Antecedent in gender, number, and person. This rule is termed the Third Concord.

The clause in which the Relative stands is called the Relative Clause, and is Adjectival (see § 190), as qualifying the Antecedent.

The Case of the Relative is determined by the structure of its own clause.

Matt. ii. 9: ὁ ἀστήρ ὅν εἶδον ἐν τῆ ἀνατολῆ προῆγεν αὐτούs, the star which they had seen in the East, quided them forward.

344. A clause, or clauses, may form a neuter antecedent to the Relative. So with the Demonstrative (see § 342).

Acts. xi. 29, 30: ὅρισαν ἔκαστος αὐτῶν εἰς διακονίαν πέμψαι τοῖς κατοικοῦσιν ἐν τῷ Ἰουδαία ἀδελφοῖς: ὁ καὶ ἐποίησαν, they determined, each of them, to send to the brethren dwelling in Jerusalem for their relief; which they also did.

See also Gal. ii. 10; Col. i. 29; Heb. v. 11, &c.; and with plural relative, Acts xxiv. 18 (èv oîs), xxvi. 12; Col. ii. 22.

345. Synesis, or rational concord, is very frequent with the Relative. (See § 317.)

a. Gender.

Acts xv. 17: πάντα τὰ ἔθνη ἐφ' οῦς, κ.τ.λ., all the Gentiles, upon whom, &c. So xxvi. 17; Gal. iv. 19; 2 John 1; 2 Pet. iii. 16.

b. Number.

Phil. ii. 15: γενεαs σκολιαs και διεστραμμένης, εν οιs φαίνεσθε, κ.τ.λ., of a crooked and perverted generation, among whom ye appear, &c.

A plural may be implied in a singular phrase; hence sometimes a plural relative with a singular antecedent. Acts xv. 36: κατὰ πᾶσαν πόλιν, ἐν αἶs, through every city, in which (cities). So 2 Peter iii. 1.

On the contrary, a singular may be implied in a plural phrase. Acts xxiv. 11: ἡμέραι δεκαδύο ἀφ' ἦs, twelve days from that on which; Phil. iii. 20: οὐρανοῖς ... ἐξ οὖ. But here ἐξ οὖ may be adverbially taken, whence.

In John i. 42, 5 agrees with ovopa, name, implied.

346. The Relative is often drawn, or "attracted," out of its proper gender or case by some other word.

Attraction is of two kinds.

a. Attraction of the Relative to the Predicate .-- The Relative Subject may take the gender of its own Predicate rather than that of the Antecedent.

Mark xv. 16: ἔσω τῆς αὐλῆς ὅ ἐστι πραιτώριον, within the hall which is the Prætorium.

1 Cor. iii. 17: ὁ ναὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ ᾶγιός ἐστιν, οἴτινες ἐστε ὑμεῖς, the temple of God is holy, which (temple) ye are.

Gal. iii. 16: τῷ σπέρματί σου ὅς ἐστι Χριστός, "to thy seed" which is Christ.

Col. i. 27: τοῦ μυστηρίου τούτου ... ὅς ἐστι Χριστὸς ἐν ὑμῦν, κ.τ.λ., of this mystery ... which is Christ in you, &c. This text explains the meaning of 1 Tim. iii. 16, provided the reading of most modern editions be adopted. "Confessedly great is the mystery of Godliness, ὅς ἐφανερώθη ἐν σαρκί, κ.τ.λ., who was manifested in the flesh, i.e., the Mystery is Christ.

b. Attraction of the Relative to the Antecedent.—A Relative which would properly, by the rules of its own clause, be in the Accusative case, conforms to a Genitive or Dative Antecedent.

Luke ii. 20: ἐπὶ πᾶσιν οις ήκουσαν, for all things which they heard.

Luke iii. 19: περὶ πάντων ων ἐποίησε πονηρων, for all the evil things which he had done.

John iv. 14: ἐκ τοῦ ὕδατος οὖ ἐγὼ δώσω αὐτῷ, of the water which I will give to him.

Acts i. 1: περὶ πάντων ὧν ἤρξατο ὁ Ἰησοῦς ποιεῖν τε καὶ διδάσκειν, concerning all things which Jesus began both to do and to teach.

Acts ii. 22: δυνάμεσι καὶ τέρασι καὶ σημείοις, οίς ἐποίησε, κ.π.λ., by mighty deeds and wonders, and signs which (God) wrought, &c.

So in a great number of passages. The Relative is occasionally "attracted" out of other cases than the Accusative. See Acts i. 22; 2 Cor. i. 4.

Sometimes the Antecedent is put in the case of the Relative. This is called inverse attraction.

In other words, the noun to which the Relative belongs is understood in the antecedent clause, and expressed in the relative, instead of being (as usual) expressed in the former and understood in the latter. Mark vi. 16: δν ἐγὼ ἀπεκεφάλισα Ἰωάννην, οὖτος ἢγέρθη, this John whom I beheaded arose, instead of ὃν ... οὖτος Ἰωάννης.

Rom. vi. 17: $i\pi\eta\kappa\omega\dot{\sigma}\sigma\tau\epsilon...\epsilon$ is δv $\pi a\rho\epsilon\delta\dot{\sigma}\theta\eta\tau\epsilon$ $\tau\dot{\nu}\pi\sigma v$ $\delta\iota\delta a\chi\eta\hat{s}$, ye obeyed the form of doctrine into which ye were delivered, for $i\pi\eta\kappa...$ $\tau\dot{\varphi}$ $\tau\dot{\nu}\pi\dot{\varphi}...\epsilon$ is δv .

See also Luke xii. 48; Acts xxi. 16, xxvi. 7; 1 Cor. x. 16, &c.; and the repeated quotation from Ps. exviii. 22. λ ίθον δ ν ἀπεδοκίμασαν ... οδτος εγενήθη, κ.τ.λ., Matt. xxi. 42; Mark xii. 10; Luke xx. 17; 1 Pet. ii. 7 (in this last passage Lachmann has λ ίθος).

347. When the Antecedent would be a demonstrative pronoun, it is very often omitted, being implied in the Relative.

So in English, for "he gave me that which I asked for," we say "he gave me what I asked for;" the relative form "what" implying both words. But in Greek the same form is used whether the demonstrative antecedent is expressed or implied.

Matt. x. 27: 3 $\lambda \epsilon_{\gamma \omega}$ $\delta_{\mu \nu} = \delta_{\nu \nu} + \delta_{\nu \nu}$

The Relative and the implied Antecedent may be in different cases.

Luke vii. 47: ὧ δὲ ὀλίγον ἀφίεται, ὀλίγον ἀγαπῷ, (he) to whom little is forgiven, loveth little.

John iv. 18: δν ἔχεις οὐκ ἔστι σου ἀνήρ, (he) whom thou now hust is not thy husband.

Heb. v. 8: $\tilde{\epsilon}_{\mu\alpha}\theta\epsilon_{\nu}$ $\tilde{\epsilon}_{\phi}$ $\tilde{\epsilon}_{\sigma}$ $\tilde{$

348. The pronoun artós is occasionally inserted in apposition with the Relative, as a kind of complement to it.

This is a Hebrew idiom; the relative in that language being indeclinable, and requiring to be complemented by a pronoun.

Matt. iii. 12: οῦ τὸ πτύον ἐν τῆ χειρὶ αὐτοῦ, whose fan is in his hand.

Mark vii. 25: ἡs ϵἶχϵ τὸ θυγάτριον αὐτῆs πνεῦμα ἀκάθαρτον, whose little daughter had an unclean spirit.

Acts xv. 17: ἐφ' οὖs ἐπικέκληται τὸ ὄνομά μου ἐπ' αὐτούs, upon whom my name has been called; LXX.; Amos ix. 12.

So also Mark i. 7; Luke iii. 16; 1 Pet. ii. 24 (not Lachmann), &c.

349. The Compound Relative, δστις, is strictly indefinite. Thus πας δς ἀκούει, every one who hears, would denote "every one who is now hearing;" but πας ὅστις ἀκούει, as Matt. vii. 21, is "every one, whoever he be that hears."

Matt. v. 39 : δστις ρ΄απίσει ... δστις ἀγγαρεύσει, whosoever shall smite ... whosoever shall impress.

Luke x. 35: 8, τι αν προσδαπανήσης, whatsoever thou shalt have spent more. John ii. 5, xiv. 13, xv. 16, &c.*

From the indefinite meaning of 5071s arises a suggestion of character, kind, reason, as marking the class to which this Relative is applied.

For example, ὅστις, and not ὅς, is used in the following passages:—

Matt. vii. 15: "beware of false prophets, who come to you," i.e., such as come.

Matt. vii. 24, 26: "a wise man who built his house upon the rock, a foolish man who built his house upon the sand;" in each case the kind of man who did what is described.

Matt. xxv. 1: "ten virgins who took their lamps and went forth to meet the bridegroom," i.e., who acted in accordance with their function.

In this way the compound Relative acquires a kind of logical force. Romans vi. 2: "we who died to sin, how shall we longer live therein," i.e., inasmuch as we died. Compare Phil. iv. 3.

^{*} The instances of δ, τι, neuter, are very few; and there is much variation of reading, ὅτι, conj., being often preferred (as, e.g., in 2 Cor. iv. 14).

With proper names, ὅστις is frequently preferred to ὕς. See Luke ii. 4, ix. 30, xxiii. 19; John viii. 53; Acts viii. 15, xvi. 12 (on the attraction, see § 346), xvii. 10, xxviii. 18; Rom. xvi. 6, 12; Gal. iv. 26; 2 Tim. ii. 18. In all these passages there is an implied reference to character, position, calling.

INTERROGATIVE AND INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

350. The interrogative pronoun τis ; τi ; is used in various ways.

i. Simply, with or without a Substantive-

Nominative. Matt. iii. 7: τίς ὑπέδειξεν ὑμῖν; who warned you? Genitive. Matt. xxii. 20: τίνος ἡ εἰκὼν αῦτη καὶ ἡ ἐπιγραφὴ; whose is this image and superscription?

Dative. Luke xii. 20: â δὲ ἡτοίμασας τίνι ἔσται; the riches which thou didst amass, for whom shall they be?

Accusative. Matt. v. 46, 47: τίνα μισθὸν ἔχετε; ... τι περισσὸν ποιείτε; what reward have ye? ... what do ye over and above?

With Prepositions. Matt. v. 13: ἐν τίνι ἀλισθήσεται; wherewith shall it be salted?

Matt. ix. 11: διατί (διὰ τί) μετὰ τῶν τελωνῶν καὶ ἀμαρτωλῶν ἐσθίει; wherefore eateth he with the publicans and sinners ? So Matt. xiv. 31; Mark xiv. 4; John xiii. 28.

ii. Elliptically, with τνα, that ("that what may happen?" or wherefore?)—

Matt. ix. 4: $\forall va \tau l \ \dot{e}v\theta v\mu \dot{e}i\sigma\theta \epsilon \pi ov\eta \rho \dot{a}$; wherefore are ye imagining malignant things?

1 Cor. x. 29 : "να τί γὰρ ἡ ἐλευθερία μου κρίνεται; for wherefore is my liberty judged?

In quotations from the Old Testament, written ivari; Matt. xxvii. 40; Acts iv. 25, vii. 26.

iii. Adverbially, neuter, τί; why? (or as an exclamation, How!) τί ὅτι; how (is it) that?—

Matt. vi. 28: περὶ ἐνδύματος τι μεριμνᾶτε; why are ye anxious about raiment?

So vii. 3, viii. 26, xvi. 8, &c.

Matt. vii. 14 (Lachmann, &c.): τι στενή ή πύλη! how narrow is the gate! But this rendering is doubtful, as well as the reading itself.

Luke ii. 49: τι ὅτι ἐζητεῖτέ με; how is it that ye were seeking me? See also Acts v. 4, 9.

iv. In alternative questions, where the classical idiom requires πότερος, a, ov; whether of the two? the New Testament employs τίς.

Matt. ix. 5: τι γάρ ἐστιν εὐκοπώτερον, for which is easier ? (of the two).

Matt. xxi. 31: τ's ἐκ τῶν δύο ἐποίησε τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πατρός; which of the two did the will of his father?

So xxiii. 17, 19, xxvii. 17, 21; 1 Cor. iv. 21; Phil. i. 22 (see § 382).

351. The simple interrogative, τis , τi , is also used in indirect questions, and after verbs of knowing, thinking, &c., in objective sentences.

See § 382. The classic Greek idiom requires $3\sigma\tau\iota s$, 5, $\tau\iota$, though not without exceptions.

Matt. xx. 22: οὐκ οἴδατε τί αἰτεῖσθε, ye know not what ye ask.

Luke vi. 47: $i\pi o\delta\epsilon i\xi\omega$ $i\mu \hat{\imath}\nu$ $\tau i\nu \hat{\iota}$ $\epsilon\sigma\tau i\nu$ $\tilde{\iota}$ $\mu o ios, I$ wii' shew you to whom he is like.

John xviii. 21: ἐρώτησον τοὺς ἀκηκοότας τί ελάλησα αὐτοῖς, ask those who have heard what I said to them.

So in many other passages.

352. The transition from the interrogative to the indefinite pronoun can easily be traced. It comes to almost the same thing whether we say, "What man is there among you who will give his child a stone for bread?" or, "Is there any man among you who will?" &c.

So the only difference between the forms of the two is in accent and the position in the sentence.

The indefinite, τις, τι, may be used (i.) simply, with or without Substantive expressed—

Nom. Matt. xii. 47: εἶπε δέ τις αὐτῷ, and one said unto him.

Luke i. 5 : ἐγένετο ... ἱερεύς τις, there was ... a certain priest. So very often, ἄνθρωπός τις, a certain man.

Gen. Luke xxii. 35: μή τινος ὑστερήσατε; did ye lack anything?

Dat. Mark viii. 26: μηδὲ εἴπης τινὶ ἐν τῆ κωμῆ, nor speak to any one in the village.

Acc. Acts iii. 5: προσδοκῶν τι παρ' αὐτῶν λαβείν, expecting to receive something from them.

Luke xvii. 12: εἰσερχομένου αὐτοῦ εἴς τινα κώμην, as he was entering into a certain village.

Acts xv. 36 : μετὰ δέ τινας ἡμέρας, And after certain days.

Phil. iii. 15: καὶ ϵἴ τι ἐτέρως φρονεῖτε, and if in anything ye be otherwise minded (for Acc., see § 283). So βραχύ τι, for some short time, Acts v. 34; Heb. ii. 7; μέρος τι, in some part, partly, 1 Cor. xi. 18.

With a Genitive following—

1 Cor. vi. 1: τολμά τις ὑμῶν; Dares any of you?

Acts iv. 32: π των ὑπαρχόντων αὐτῷ, any of his goods.

So v. 15, &c. With àπ6, Luke xvi. 30; with èκ, Heb. iii. 13.

(ii.) Emphatically; "somebody important," "something great," "anything"—

Acts v. 36 : λέγων είναί τινα εἀυτόν, saying that he was somebody. Compare viii. 9.

Gal. vi. 3: εὶ γὰρ δοκεῖ τις εἶναί τι, μηδὲν το, φρεναπατὰ εἰντόν, for if any one thinks he is anything, being nothing, he deceives himself.

See also 1 Cor. iii. 7; Gal. ii. 6 and (of things) 1 Cor. x. 19; Gal. vi. 15. Compare Heb. x. 7.

(iii.) "A kind of"-

James i. 18: εὶς τὸ εἶναι ἡμᾶς ἀπαρχήν τινα, that we might be a kind of first fruits.

See also Rom. i. 11, 13; and in the opinion of some interpreters, 1 Cor. vi. 11, "such in some degree were you." * But see § 342.

(iv.) With numbers, "some," approximately (or perhaps simply redundant)—

Luke vii. 19: προσκαλεσάμενος δύο τινας των μαθητών, having called some two of his disciples.

Acts xxiii. 23: προσκαλεσάμενος δύο τινάς των έκατονάρχων, having called some two of the centurions.

These are the only instances; for the construction in Acts xix. 14 is different. For $\epsilon \bar{t}s$, one, instead of $\tau \iota s$, and in conjunction with it, see § 328, i.

(v.) In alternative expressions we find both τινες ... τινες and τις ... ἔτερος—

Phil. i. 15: τινès μὲν καὶ διὰ φθόνον ... τινès δὲ καὶ δι' εὐδοκίαν, some indeed even from envy ... but others also from goodwill.

Compare Luke ix. 7, 8; 1 Tim. v. 24.

1 Cor. iii. 4: ὅταν γὰρ λέγη τις ... ετερος δέ, for when one saith ... and another.

(vi.) The negatives of τ_{is} are oddsis, $\mu\eta\delta$ sis, no one. For their construction, and for the Hebraistic negative, od π as, see § 328, iii.

The compounds, οὐτις, μήτις, are not found in the New Testament For interrogative μήτι, see § 370.

CHAPTER VI.—THE VERB.

VOICE.

353. The distinction of "voices," in respect of form (Active, Middle, and Passive), belongs to Etymology. The Verb in Syntax is considered as transitive, intransitive, reflexive, or passive.

Transitive verbs may be of Active or Middle form. A transitive Active verb may in its middle voice retain the transitive meaning with certain modifications, or may become intransitive or reflexive. The passive sense is conveyed by the Passive form.

Intransitive, or "neuter" verbs, in like manner, may be Active or Middle in form.

THE ACTIVE VOICE.

354. An intransitive Active verb sometimes takes a transitive meaning.

Matt. v. 45: τὸν ἥλιον αἰτοῦ ἀνατέλλει, he causes his sun to arise; ἀνατέλλω being properly to arise, as 2 Pet. i. 19, &c.*

Matt. xxvii. 57: ἐμαθήτευσε is intransitive, he was a disciple. Some editors, however, read ἐμαθητεύθη; and elsewhere the verb is transitive, ch. xiii. 52, xxviii. 19; Acts xiv. 21.

Aὐξάνω, to grow, is generally intransitive, Matt. vi. 28; but in 1 Cor. iii. 6, 7, 2 Cor. ix. 10, is transitive. The English verb is similarly used ("wheat grows;" "he grows wheat"). So of many others.

^{*} In this change of intransitive to transitive, we mark the influence of the Hebrew, which language attaches to neuter verbs a causative conjugation (Hiphil). In the LXX., both the neuter and the Hiphil are often rendered by the simple verb. So 1 Kings i. 43, ἐβασίλευσε, he made (Solomon) king: although βασιλεύω properly means to be a king.

Στρέφω, to turn, generally intransitive in the Middle, but sometimes in the Active also. Compare Matt. v. 39 with Acts vii. 42.

Some verbs vary between the transitive and intransitive meaning according to form. Thus, ἴστημι, a regularly transitive or causative verb, has (with some few others) an intransitive sense in the Perfect (with Pluperfect) and the Second Aorist. (See § 108, 3.) ἄγω, to lead, has imperative, ἄγε, go; subjunctive, ἄγωμεν, let us go. The intransitive imperative only occurs in the New Testament interjectionally, go to! (James iv. 13, v. 1).

The verb ξχω, to have, becomes neuter before an adverb, through the ellipsis of a pronominal object, "to have one's self in such a manner;" hence "to be so," the adverb being often translated as an adjective. Matt. iv. 24: τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας (those having themselves evilly), those who were ill; Mark v. 23: θυγάτριόν μου ἐσχάτως ἔχω, my little daughter is at an extremity. So Acts xv. 36: πῶς ἔχουσι, how they do. (See also John xi. 17; Acts vii. 1; 1 Pet. iv. 5, &c.) So in the participle, τὸ νῦν ἔχον, the present time (that which has itself now).

For variations in other verbs, see Vocabulary.

THE MIDDLE VOICE.

- 355. As compared with the Active Voice, the Middle generally expresses one of three things:—
 - 1. Action upon one's self: the reflexive sense.
 - 2. Action for one's self: the appropriative sense.
 - 3. Action, as caused or permitted: the causative sense.*
- 1. The reflexive sense of the Middle is comparatively rare; reflexive pronouns being generally employed with the Active.

A.ct. Matt. viii. 25: ἤγειραν αὐτόν, they aroused him.

Mid. Matt. xxvi. 46: ἐγείρεσθε, ἄγωμεν, rise, let us be going.

^{*} Dr. Donaldson, § 432. (1) May be called the Accusative middle; (2) the Dative middle. (See 2.)

Act. 1 Pet. iii. 10 (LXX.): παυσάτω τὴν γλῶσσαν ἀπὸ κακοῦ, let him refrain his tongue from evil.

Mid. 1 Cor. xiii. 8: εἴτε γλῶσσαι, παύσονται, whether (there be) tongues they shall cease.

See also Matt. xxvii. 5; Mark vii. 4; Luke xiii. 29; 1 Pet. iv. 1. In this sense the Active is transitive, the Middle intransitive.

2. As the reflexive sense is equivalent to the Active with the immediate (Acc.) pronominal Object, so the appropriative sense corresponds with the Active and the remote (Dat.) Object. Thus, Luke xvi. 9, ποιήσατε έαυτοῖs might have been fully expressed by the one word, ποιήσασθε.

Act. John xvi. 24: αἰτεῖτε καὶ λήψεσθε, ask, and ye shall receive.

Mid. Matt. xx. 22: οὐκ οἴδατε τί αἰτεῖσθε, ye know not what ye ask (for yourselves).

Act. Acts xxii. 20: φυλάσσων τὰ ἰμάτια, watching the clothes (of Stephen's murderers).

Mid. 2 Tim. iv. 15: ον καὶ σὰ φυλάσσου, of whom do thou also beware, i.e., watch him with a view to thy own safety.

Act. and Mid. 2 Pet. i. 10: σπουδάσατε βεβαίαν ὑμῶν τὴν κλῆσιν καὶ ἐκλογὴν ποιεῖσθαι ταῦτα γὰρ ποιοῦντες, κ.τ.λ., give diligence to make your calling and election sure for yourselves; for if ye do these things, &c.

For other instances of the Middle of $\pi oleo$, see Luke v. 33, xiii. 22; Acts i. 1, xx. 24, xxv. 17, xxvii. 18; Rom. i. 9, xiii. 14, xv. 26; Eph. iv. 16; Phil. i. 4; Heb. i. 3, and a few other passages.

In this sense, the Middle is transitive, retaining the direct Object of the verb. Hence the difficulty of always distinguishing between the Active and the Middle signification; as to perform an action, and to perform it for one's self, are notions that may approach so as almost coincide. Compare, for instance, παρείχει (Acts xvi. 16) with παρείχειο (xix. 24). The same object, ἐργασίαν, gain, follows in both cases. Demetrius had undoubtedly a more direct interest in his gains than the damsel in hers.

It is doubtful whether the Middle is ever to be taken as simply conveying an intensive force. Compare John i. 5, the darkness comprehended it not (act., κατέλαβεν), with Eph. iii. 18, that ye may comprehend (mid., καταλαβέσθω) with all saints, what is the breadth, &c. The appropriative sense is here very decided. The careful student may note the middle verbs in Matt. xxi. 16 (LXX.); John xiii. 10 (compared with the rest of the passage); Matt. vi. 17; Luke x. 42; Acts ii. 39, v. 2, ix. 39 (ἐπιδεικνύμεναι); Rom. iii. 25; Acts xx. 28; Gal. iv. 10; Eph. v. 16; Phil. i. 22; 2 Thess. iii. 14, and many other passages. In 1 Tim. iii. 13, the dative pronoun is redundant.

3. The causative Middle expresses the interest of the Subject in the result, and yet implies a mediate agency; "to allow a thing to be done," "to have it done," "to provide for its being done." Here the Middle partakes more nearly of the nature of the Passive.*

Luke ii. 5 : ἀπογράψασθαι σὺν Μαριάμ, to get enrolled with Mary.

So Mid., 1 Cor. x. 2: ἐβαπτίσαντο, they got baptized. Compare Mark vii. 4, and especially Acts xxii. 16.

Hence, too, in some words a change of signification; both voices taking the accusative Object. ἀποδίδωμι, to give off, or away; ἀποδίδομαι, mid., to sell, i.e., give off or away for one's self, i.e., to get money by the act. Compare Matt. xviii. 26–34 with Acts v. 8, vii. 9. δανείζω, to borrow; δανείζομαι, to lend, Matt. v. 42; Luke vi. 34, 35.

The causative meaning in some cases becomes reciprocal: "to do... and cause others to do."

John ix. 22: συνετέθειντο οί 'Ιουδαΐοι, the Jews had agreed amongst themselves.

See also Matt. v. 40 and 1 Cor. vi. 1: κρίνεσθαι, to contend at law, Rom. iii. 4: καὶ πικήσης ἐν τῷ κρίνεσθαί σε, and that thou mayest overcome when thou comest into trial, i.e., with the children of men; the image being that of two parties to a suit—not, when thou judgest, as E.V., Ps. li. 4, nor when thou art judged, as in the New Testament quotation.

For the special meanings of different verbs, the Vocabulary must be consulted. The threefold division now given covers most of the relations of the Middle with the Active.

^{*} Lat. curare; Germ., sich lassen. So Winer, xxxviii. 3.

THE PASSIVE VOICE.

356. As in other languages, the direct Object of the Active verb becomes the Subject of the Passive.

But in Greek, the remoter Object of the Active may also become the Subject of the Passive.

Genitive. Acts xxii. 30: κατηγορείται παρὰ τῶν Ἰουδαίων, he is accused by the Jews (for the gen. with κατηγορέω, see § 250).

Dative. Rom. iii. 2: ἐπιστεύθησαν τὰ λόγια τοῦ Θεοῦ, they were entrusted with the oracles of God.

So 1 Cor. ix. 17; Gal. ii. 7; 1 Thess. ii. 4, &c.

Heb. xi. 2: ἐμαρτυρήθησαν οἱ πρεσβύτεροι, the elders obtained a good report (lit., were attested to).

So Acts xvi. 2, xxii. 12, &c.

Heb. viii. 5: καθώς κεχρημάτισται Μωσης, according as Moses has been divinely commanded.

For the dative after the Active of such verbs, see § 278.

Where the Active governs two Accusatives (person and thing), or a Dative of the person and an Accusative of the thing, the Passive may take also the Accusative of the thing. (See § 284.)

2 Thess. ii. 15: κρατείτε τὰς παραδόσεις ds ἐδιδάχθητε, hold fast the traditions which ye were taught.

See also Mark xvi. 5; Acts xviii. 25, &c., for verbs of the former class.

For verbs of the latter class, note Rom. iii. 2, quoted above, with the connected passages.

- 357. After Passive verbs, the agent is marked by $i\pi\delta$ with the Genitive; occasionally by other prepositions, as $i\pi\delta$, $i\pi\delta$
- 358. As many forms of the Middle and Passive are alike, it is sometimes difficult to decide which is intended. In considering this question, regard must chiefly be had to the usage of the particular verbs, and to the general construction of the sentence.

The following is a selection of instances:-

Matt. xi. 5: πτωχοὶ εὐαγγελίζονται, poor men preach the Gospel, or have the Gospel preached to them. The verb may be middle or passive,* but the sense of the passage seems decisively for the latter.

Rom. iii. 9: τί οὖν; προεχόμεθα; What then, are we superior? (mid.), or, are we surpassed? (pass.) The context requires the former meaning. Some, however (see Dr. Vaughan), prefer the passive, but render are we preferred? a sense without authority elsewhere. For other suggested renderings, see Alford's note.

1 Cor. i. 2: σὺν πᾶσι τοῖς ἐπικαλουμένοις τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ Κυρίου, with all who call upon the name of the Lord, or who are called by the name. The usage of the word clearly pronounces for the former. Compare Acts vii. 59, ix. 14, 21; Rom. x. 13 (Acts ii. 21), compared with ver. 14; 1 Pet. i. 17, &c. Acts xv. 17 (from LXX., Amos ix. 12) is quite different.

2 Cor. ii. 10: καὶ γὰρ ἐγὰ ὁ κεχάρισμαι, εἴ τι κεχάρισμαι, δι' ὑμᾶs. Some render the verb here, I have been forgiven; but χαρίζομαι nowhere else means "to be forgiven," and the ordinary rendering gives a sense harmonious with the context.

Eph. vi. 10: ἐνδυναμοῦσθε ἐν Κυρίφ. This verb is always passive in the New Testament: "be strengthened." (See Ellicott.)

THE MOODS AND TENSES.

359. The Indicative Mood is objective, describing that which is; the Subjunctive and Optative are subjective, describing that which is conceived to be. Hence the various uses of the three Moods in independent and subordinate sentences.

^{*} For the middle, see Luke i. 19, ii. 10, iii. 18, iv. 18, 43, and many other passages; for the passive (with a personal subject), Heb. iv. 2, 6. The passive is also found, Luke xvi. 16; Gal. i. 11; 1 Pet. i. 25, iv. 6, the subject being that which was preached.

THE INDICATIVE.

The Indicative Mood is used in declaration, whether affirmative or negative, and in interrogation.

360. As the force of the Tenses will be best seen in the first instance by their use in the Indicative, an account of them is here introduced.

See the Table of Tenses, § 65. Let it be remembered that Tense expresses both time and state. Time is present, past, and future; state is imperfect, perfect, and indefinite.

The Tenses to be considered are-

- 1. The present imperfect, or "Present."
- 2. The past imperfect, or "Imperfect."
- 3. The future indefinite, or "Future."
- 4. The past indefinite, or "Aorist."
- 5. The present perfect, or "Perfect."
- 6. The past perfect, or "Pluperfect."

The future imperfect, the present indefinite, and the future perfect, are expressed in other ways.

The three past tenses are termed "historical," the others "principal."

THE PRESENT TENSE.

361. a. The Present expresses a state or action as now existing; as λέγω ὑμῦν, I say unto you.

Matt. iii. 10: ἡ ἀξίνη πρὸς τὴν ῥίζαν τῶν δένδρων κεῖται, the axe is lying at the foot of the trees, i.e., it is already there.

John iii. 36: ό πιστεύων είς τὸν υίὸν ἔχει ζωὴι αἰώνιον, he that believeth on the Son hath life eternal.

Matt. xxv. S: ai λαμπάδες ήμῶν σβέννυνται, our lumps are going out; not "are gone out," as E.V.

Gal. i. 6: θαυμάζω ὅτι οὕτω ταχέως μετατίθεσθε, I marvel that ye are so soon changing.

b. It is also used to denote an habitual or usual act.

Matt. vi. 2: ωσπερ οἱ ὑποκριταὶ ποιοῦσιν, as the hypocrites do.

Matt. vii. 8: πâs ὁ alτῶν λαμβάνει, καὶ ὁ ζητῶν εὐρίσκει, every one who asks receives, and he who seeks finds.

c. In vivid narration, the Present is employed of past time (the Historic Present).

Matt. iii. 1: ἐν δὲ ταῖς ἡμέραις ἐκείναις παραγίνεται Ἰωάννης, and in those days cometh John.

John i. 29 : $\tau \hat{\eta}$ έπαύριον βλέπει τὸν Ἰησοῦν ... καὶ λέγει, on the next day he seeth Jesus, and saith.

Sometimes the Historic Present is used with Aorists in the same narration.

Mark v. 14, 15: ἔφυγον καὶ ἀπήγγειλαν ... καὶ ἦλθον ... καὶ ἔρχονται ... καὶ θεωροῦσι ... καὶ ἐφοβήθησαν, they fled, and related ... and came ... and they come ... and behold ... and they feared.

Variations may here be noted in the comparison of different evangelists in the same narrative. Thus, Matt. xxi. 23, xxii. 23, we read, προσῆλθον, they came to him; Mark xi. 27, xii. 18, ἔρχονται, they come.* Compare also Matt. xxiv. 40; Luke xvii. 34.

d. The Present is employed to express certain futurity, as when we say, "To-morrow is Sunday."

Matt. xxvi. 2: μετὰ δύο ἡμέρας τὸ πάσχα γίνεται ... καὶ ὁ υίὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοται, after two days is the passover, and the Son of man is betrayed.

Luke xix. 8: τὰ ἡμίση μου τῶν ὑπαρχόντων κύριε τοῖς πτωχοῖς δίδωμι, the half of my goods, Lord, I give to the poor; not "I am in the habit of giving" now; but "I will give," immediately.

John xx. 17: ἀναβαίνω, I ascend. Compare xvi. 16.

John xxi. 23: ὅτι ὁ μαθητὴς ἐκεῖνος οὐκ ἀποθνήσκε, that that disciple dieth not, i.e., "is now and will be exempt from death."

^{*} As a rule, the narrations of Mark are more vivid than those of the other evangelists.

1 Cor. xv. 25: ἔσχατος ἐχθρὸς καταργεῖται ὁ θάνατος, death the last enemy is destroyed, or more lit., is being destroyed. In this case, and in some others, the notion of futurity is perhaps associated with that of the process now being conducted.

The verb ξρχομαι, because of its meaning, carries with the present tense a future reference. So in English, "I am coming." (See Luke xii. 54; 1 Cor. xiii. 11.) So Matt. xvii. 11: 'Ηλίας ξρχεται, Elijah is coming; and especially John xiv. 3: πάλιν ξρχομαι καὶ παραλήψομαι ὑμᾶς, I am coming again, and will receive you. 1 Cor. xvi. 5: Μακεδονίαν διέρχομαι must be rendered, I (am about to) pass through Macedonia, not "I am passing through," which would be contrary to fact. The participle of this verb, δ ἐρχόμενος, the Coming one, is a frequent title of the Messiah (see § 210), and in the Revelation denotes the eternal self-existence of Deity, "who wast, and art, and art to come," lit., "who comest."

Con the other hand, the verb ηκω, in the present, has a perfect signification: I am come. Luke xv. 27: δ ἀδελφός σου ηκει, thy brother is come! John ii. 4; Heb. x. 9 (not simply "Lo, I come," but Lo, I am come!); 1 John v. 2.

THE IMPERFECT TENSE.

362. a. The Imperfect expresses what was in progress at a past time; as ἐκήρυσσε τὸ εὐαγγέλιον, he was preaching the gospel; βαπτίζοντο, they were being baptized.

b. Hence the Imperfect may refer to an action not continuous, but statedly repeated; also to anything customary.

Acts iii. 2: ον ἐτίθουν καθ' ἡμέραν, whom they used to lay day by day.

Mark xv. 6: κατὰ δὲ ἐορτὴν ἀπέλυεν αὐτοῖς ενα δέσμιον, and at each passover he used to release to them one prisoner.

See also 1 Cor. xiii. 11.

c. The Imperfect should carefully be distinguished from the Aorist, or simple Past, although our translators have generally rendered the two tenses alike.

So Luke xxiv. 32: "while he was talking with us by the way, and opening to us the Scriptures."

Matt. ii. 4: Herod was enquiring of the priests and scribes, not once for all, but repeatedly; and when they had replied, he ascertained (Aorist, one act) of the Magi what they had seen.

Matt. ix. 35: Jesus was traversing all the cities and villages; and on one occasion, being touched, he said (ver. 36), the harvest is great, &c.

Luke vi. 19: the whole multitude were seeking to touch him, for power was going forth from him, and was healing all.

Luke xiv. 7: how they were selecting the chief seats.

John v. 16: the Jews were persecuting Jesus, and were seeking to kill him, because he was doing (used to do) these things.

Acts xvi. 4: as they were going through the cities they were delivering the decrees to the churches.

The above are but a few instances, and the reader should always note the special force of the tense. Probably the Imperfect is never really equivalent to the Aorist, or used for it; though, undoubtedly, the distinction is often slight. In such cases as the following, where both tenses are used, the difference is very marked. The Aorist, it will be seen, often marks a single occurrence; the Imperfect its continuous result.

Matt. iv. 11: ἄγγελοι προσήλθον καὶ διηκόνουν αὐτῷ, angels came and were ministering to him.

Matt. xiii. 8: other seed fell (ξπεσεν) upon the good ground, and was yielding (ξδίδου) fruit.

Matt. xxv. 5: they all fell asleep (ἐνύσταξαν), and were slumbering (ἐκάθευδον).

Mark vii. 35: his ears were opened (διηνοίχθησαν), and the bond of his tongue was loosed (ἐλύθη), and he was speaking (ἐλάλει) plainly.

Luke viii. 23: a whirlwind came down (κατέβη), and they were filling (συνεπλήρουντο) and were in danger (ἐκινδύνευον).

1 Cor. iii. 6: I planted, Apollos watered, God was giving the increase. The transitory acts of human teachers are expressed by Aorists, the continual bestowal of Divine grace by the Imperfect. So 1 Pet. ii. 23, 24, we have three Imperfects to denote continual and repeated acts; but an Aorist to denote an act ("he bare our sins") once for all."*

See further, Matt. xxi. 8-11; Mark xi. 18; John vii. 14, xi. 13, xx. 3-5; Acts xi. 6; 1 Cor. x. 3, 4, xi. 23 (the night on which he was being betrayed); Gal. ii. 12; James ii. 22, and many other passages.

In parallel passages we occasionally find different tenses (compare Matt. xix. 13 and Mark x. 13). From the latter passage we might gather that the incident was a repeated one. In such cases, the conceptions of the two writers are slightly different: one regarding the action as momentary, the other as continuous. \dagger But in narrative some common verbs, as $\lambda \acute{\epsilon} \gamma \omega$, are generally used in the Imperfect rather than in the Aorist.

d. The Imperfect sometimes denotes an inchoative act, i.e., one begun, but not carried out.

Matt. iii. 14: διεκώλυεν αὐτόν, he was hindering him, i.e., was doing so until checked by our Lord's words.

Luke i. 59: καὶ ἐκάλουν αὐτὸ ... Ζαχαρίαν, and they began to call him Zacharias.

Luke v. 6: διέβήγνυτο δὲ τὸ δίκτυον αὐτῶν, and their net was breaking, began to give way.

Luke xxiv. 27: διηρμήνευεν, began to interpret, entered upon the explanation, rather than "expounded" all, as E.V.

Heb. xi. 17: τὸν μονογενη προσέφερεν, he was affering up his only begotten, when the angel's voice arrested him.‡

e. A compound (or "resolved") Imperfect (imperf. of elui, and pres. part. of the verb) throws emphasis on the continuity of the action.

Matt. vii. 29: ἢν γὰρ διδάσκων αὐτούς, for he was teaching them.

Matt. xix. 22; Mark i. 39; Luke i. 10, 21, ii. 23; John iii. 23; Acts i. 10, x. 24; Gal. i. 23; Phil. ii. 26, &c. (See § 394, i. 1.)

For the Imperfect in conditional expressions, see § 383.

^{*} Webster.

⁺ See Jelf's "Kühner," § 401; Winer, xl. 3, d, note.

[‡] Winer objects to the incheative sense in this passage. The offering was already completed in will. But had this been meant, the Aorist would have been needed.

THE FUTURE TENSE.

363. a. The Future expresses, in general, indefinite futurity; as δώσω, I will give; and is employed in prophecies, promises, &c.

Matt. v. 5: αὐτοὶ παρακληθήσονται. So in all the Beatitudes, save vers. 3, 10.

Phil. iii. 21: δς μετασχηματίσει τὸ σῶμα τῆς ταπεινώσεως ἡμῶν, who will transform the body of our humiliation.

Rom. vi. 14: άμαρτία γὰρ ὑμῶν οὐ κυριεύσει, for sin shall not have dominion over you. Not a command, but a promise.

2 John 3: ἐσται μεθ' ὑμῶν χάρις, grace shall be with you, as marg., E.V.

In Matt. xxvii. 4, 24, Acts xviii. 15, the second person future has the force of a threat: "you shall see to that." But compare next paragraph.

b. Commands are often expressed by the Future second person (by the third, if speaking of the person commanded).

Matt. i. 21: καλέσεις τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἰησοῦν, thou shalt call his name Jesus. Luke i. 13, 31.

So Matt. v. 48, xxii. 37, 39 (and parallels, as Rom. xiii. 9; Gal. v. 14); 1 Cor. v. 13, rec. text; but Lachmann, Tischendorf, &c., read imperative.

In 1 Tim. vi. 8, the expression of a resolution as to the future is indirectly a command: τούτοις ἀρκεσθησόμεθα, we will be content with these things.

Especially in prohibitions (from Old Testament, but not only so).

Matt. vi. 5: οὐκ ἔσεσθε ὥσπερ οἱ ὑποκριταί, ye chall not be as the hypocrites.

So ch. iv. 7, v. 21, 27, 33; Acts xxiii. 5; Rom. vii. 7, &c.*

c. The Future sometimes denotes what is usual, and is employed in maxims, expressions of general truths, and the like ("ethical future").

^{*} The difference between this and the classic idiom is, that in the latter the future, with ot, is the mildest form of prohibition. In Hebrew, and so in New Testament Greek, it is the special language of legislative authority. So Winer.

Eph. v. 31: καταλείψει ἄνθρωπος πατέρα καὶ μητέρα, κ.τ.λ., α man shall leave father and mother, &c.

Gal. vi. 5: ἔκαστος γὰρ ἴδιον φορτίον βαστάσει, for each man shall bear his own load.

So with a negative. Rom. iii. 20: ἐξ ἔργων νόμου οὐ δικαιωθήσεται πάσα σάρξ, by works of law will no flesh be justified.

d. A strong negative is expressed by the Future with the double negative or $\mu \dot{\eta}$. The Subjunctive, however, is more generally employed; and the idiom will be found explained, § 377.

Instances with the Future are, Matt. xvi. 22: this shall never be! Mark xiv. 31: I will never deny thee! Luke x. 19: nothing shall ever harm you.

e. A Future imperfect ("resolved future") is formed by the Future of the verb to be with the Present participle.

Luke i. 20: ἔση σιωπῶν, thou shalt be silent.

So Matt. x. 22, xxiv. 9; Mark xiii. 25; Luke v. 10, xvii. 35; 1 Cor. xiv. 9. (See § 394, 1.)

The Future Perfect has been sufficiently explained, § 101, i.

f. Auxiliary Future Verbs are $\mu \lambda \lambda \omega$, to be about to; and $\theta \lambda \omega$, to will. The former, which is scarcely ever represented in the E.V., gives emphasis to the notion that the thing is to happen, and hence is often used of fixed and appointed purpose.* The reader may study the following passages in which $\mu \delta \lambda \lambda \omega$ occurs—

Matt. ii. 13, xvii. 12, 22, xx. 22, xxiv. 6; Mark xiii. 4; Luke vii. 2 (was at the point of death), ix. 31, 44, x. 1; John vi. 6, xiv. 22, xviii. 32; Acts v. 35 (what are we to do?), xvii. 31; Rom. viii. 13 (you are sure to die); 1 Thess. iii. 4; Heb. xi. 8 (which he was to receive), and many other passages. τὸ μέλλον, part. neut., is the future. Once the verb is used in the sense of delay, τί μέλλως; why tarriest thou? Acts xxii. 16.

Still more important is it to mark the use of $\theta \lambda \omega$, as implying conscious volition. The English auxiliary, will, ought here to be read as emphatic.

^{*} See Ellicott on 1 Thess. iii. 4.

Matt. v. 40 (if any man wills to do so), xi. 14, xvi. 24, 25: "if any man wills to come after me... for whosoever wills to save his life will (future) lose it... but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake will find it (simple futurity). So exactly Mark viii. 34, 35; Luke ix. 23, 24; John v. 6, 40, vii. 17: if any man wills to do his will, he shall know of the doctrine; viii. 44: the lusts of your father ye choose to do; Acts xvii. 18: what does this babbler want to say? Rom. xiii. 3; 1 Cor. xiv. 35: if they wish to, or, as in other passages, if they would learn anything; 1 Tim. v. 11: they want to marry; James ii. 20: willest thou to know? 3 John 13, &c.

THE AORIST TENSES.

364. a. The Aorist denotes what is absolutely past, and answers to the English Preterite, as ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ ὅρος, he went up into the mountain.

The First and Second Aorists have precisely the same meaning, except in the few cases specified, §§ 100, 108, 3.

The distinction between the Aorist and the Imperfect is noted, § 362, c; between the Aorist and the Perfect, § 365, b.

When the past time is not strongly marked, the English idiom often includes a past act in a period reaching to the present time, and bence uses the Perfect, where in Greek the Aorist is the usual tense.

Luke i. 1: ἐπειδήπερ πολλοὶ ἐπεχείρησαν ... εδοξε καμοὶ, forasmuch as many undertook, it seemed good also to me ("have undertaken," "it has seemed good)."

Luke i. 19: ἀπεστάλην λαλησαι πρός σε, I (Gabriel) was sent to speak unto thee ("have been sent").

Luke ii. 48: τέκνον, τί ἐποίησας ἡμῖν οὕτως; child, why didst thou thus deal with us? ("hast thou dealt").

Matt. xxiii. 2: the Scribes and the Pharisees seated themselves in the chair of Moses (not "sit," simply). "They found the seat virtually empty, and occupied it."*

1 John iv. 8: he who loves not, never got a knowledge of (ἔγνω) God; experimentally, by having at any time known what love is."*

See also Luke xiv. 18, 19; John viii. 29, xvii. 4; Rom. iii. 23, all sinned, and so are coming short, &c.; 1 Cor. vi. 11.

2 Cor. v. 15: εἰ εἶς ὑπὲρ πάντων ἀπέθανεν ἄρα οἱ πάντες ἀπέθανον, if one died for all, then they all died. Compare 2 Tim. ii. 11.

Phil. iii. 8: I suffered the loss of all things, i.e., at the crisis of his life, ver. 12. James i. 11 (a vivid, descriptive delineation). So ver. 24 (a Perfect interposed).

2 Pet. i. 14: knowing that I must shortly put off this my tabernacle, even as the Lord Jesus Christ showed unto me. By the hath showed me (of E.V.) we lose altogether the special allusion to an historic moment in the Apostle's life, to John xxi. 18, 19, which would at once come out if ἐδήλωσέ μοι had been rendered "showed me." †

b. In narration, an Aorist that starts from a time already past may be translated by the Pluperfect.

Matt. xxviii. 2: σεισμὸς ἐγένετο μέγας, there had been a great earthquake.

Luke ii. 39: ως ἐτέλεσαν ἄπαντα, when they had accomplished all things.

See also Matt. xiv. 3; John vi. 22, xi. 30, xviii. 24, &c.

c. The Epistolary Aorist, so called (as ἔγραψα), takes the reader's point of view, in which the writing of the letter is viewed as past. Our idiom requires us to take the writer's point of view, "I have written."

Rom. xv. 15; 1 Pet. v. 12 (referring to the whole letter); 1 Cor. ix. 15; 1 John ii. 21, and perhaps 1 Cor. v. 9, referring to a part of it.; Gal. vi. 11, referring either to the whole or to part, according to the interpretation adopted.

^{*} Other passages in which ἔγνων has been regarded as standing for the Present may be explained in a similar way.

[†] Archbishop Trench on the Authorized Version of the New Testament, p. 146.

[‡] See Ellicott on Gal. vi. 11.

But ἔγραψα has, in other cases, its ordinary Aorist force, referring to a former letter, "I wrote," 2 Cor. ii. 3, 4, 9, vii. 12; probably 3 John 9; and perhaps 1 Cor. v. 9.

The word ἔπεμψα also exemplifies the Epistolary Aorist, "I have sent," 1 Cor. iv. 17; 2 Cor. ix. 3; Eph. vi. 22; Rev. xxii. 16.

d. In classical Greek, the Aorist is frequently used to describe an act which has taken place in time past, and may take place at any time again. Here in English the Present is the usual tense. Accordingly, in the New Testament there are a few passages where the Aorist may best be translated by the Present.

Matt. iii. 17: ἐν ῷ εὐδόκησα, in whom I am well pleased, i.e., "I was, and am." So in parallel passages.

Rom. viii. 30: ἐκάλεσε... ἐδικαίωσε... ἐδόξασε, he calls... justifies... glorifies; "he did, and does."*

e. The completeness of an act is occasionally marked by the Aorist.

John xiii. 31: νῦν ἐδοξάσθη ὁ νίὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, now is the Son of man glorified; the whole series of events being brought to a crisis.

1 Cor. vii. 28: thou didst not, she did not commit a sin.

So in several of the parables: ωμοιώθη, is likened (Matt. xiii. 24, xviii. 23, xxii. 2), "as if the mould had already received its shape, though the cast was yet to issue."†

Compare Luke i. 51-53; John viii. 29.

THE PERFECT AND PLUPERFECT TENSES.

365. a. The Perfect denotes an action or event as now complete; its point of view is, therefore, in the present, as δ γέγραφα, γέγραφα, what I have written, I have written. It denotes also a past act whose consequences remain, as γέγραπται, "it has been written, and abides;" "it is written.";

^{*} Alford interprets differently. See his note.

[†] T. S. Green.

[‡] Luther, steht geschrieben.

b. The distinction between the Aorist and Perfect is thus very marked: τεθνήκασι (Matt. ii. 20), they are dead. ἔθανον (ἀπέθανον) would have been, they died. Compare Mark xv. 44. Even where either tense would be suitable, the proper force must be given to the one employed.

Matt. ix. 13: οὐ γὰρ ἦλθον καλέσαι δικαίους, for I came not to call righteous persons.

Luke v. 32: οὐκ ἐλήλυθα καλέσαι δικαίους, I am not come, &c.

In the following passages, among many others, the distinction of tenses is strikingly apparent:—

Mark iii. 26: εἰ ὁ Σατανᾶς ἀνέστη ἐφ' εἀντὸν, καὶ μεμέρισται, for if Satan rose up against himself, and has become divided.

Acts xxi. 28: he brought (εἰσήγαγεν) Greeks into the temple, and has profaned (κεκοίνωκε) this holy place; the single act, the abiding result.

- 1 Cor. xv. 4: καὶ ὅτι ἐτάφη, καὶ ὅτι ἐγήγερται, and that he was buried, and that he is risen again. So all through this chapter. The simple historical fact is announced by the acrist, ἠγέρθη, Matt. xxviii. 6, 7; Mark xvi. 6; Luke xxiv. 6, 34 (John xxi. 14); Rom. vi. 4, &c. For the perf. part., see 2 Tim. ii. 8, compared with the acr. part., 2 Cor. v. 15.
- Col. i. 16: ὅτι ἐν αὐτῷ ἐκτίσθη τὰ πάντα ... τὰ πάντα δι' αὐτοῦ καὶ εἰs αὐτὸν ἔκτισται, because in him were all things created ... all things have been created by him and for him.
- Col. iii. 3: ἀπεθάνετε γὰρ καὶ ἡ ζωὴ ὑμῶν κέκρυπται ... for ye died, and your life remains hidden.
- Rev. v. 7: ἡλθε καὶ είληφε, he came, and he hath taken the book (which he still retains, as Lord of human destiny).

See also Luke iv. 18; John viii. 40; Heb. ii. 14; 1 John i. 1.

366. The Pluperfect, or Past Perfect, is but rarely used in the New Testament. It denotes that which was completed at some past time; as, τεθεμελίωτο έπὶ τὴν πέτραν, it had been founded on the rock.

Acts xiv. 23: παρέθεντο αὐτοὺς τῷ Κυρίφ εἰς δν πεπιστεύκεισαν, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they had believed.

367. The Perfects of many verbs are used as Presents; and correspondingly the Pluperfect takes a Past signification. This arises in each case from the simple meaning of the verb, as coming into a state; Perf., being in (having come into) that state.

So κτάομαι, to gain; κέκτημαι, to possess, which does not, however, occur in the New Testament. See Luke xviii. 12: πάντα ὅσα κτῶμαι, not of all that I possess, but of all that I gain—the income, not the capital. So xxi. 19, "win your souls."

For example, καθίζω, κάθημαι. Mark xi. 7: ἐκάθισεν, he mounted. Luke xviii. 35, &c.: ἐκάθητο, he was sitting. κοιμάομαι, I fall asleep; κεκοίμημαι, I am asleep. 1 Cor. xi. 30: κοιμώνται ίκανοί, many are falling asleep. John xi. 11: Λάζαρος... κεκοίμηται, Lazarus sleepeth. Οίδα, I have seen; hence I know. (See § 163.)

"Ιστημι and its compounds especially exhibit this "Present Perfect." "Εστηκα, I stand, as Acts xxvi. 6. So ἐνέστηκε, is imminent 2 Thess. ii. 2; ἀνθέστηκε (trans.), resisteth, Rom. ix. 19, xiii. 2; ἐφέστηκε, is at hand, 2 Tim. iv. 6. From ἔστηκα comes a new Present (intrans.), στήκω, Rom. xiv. 4, &c.

For other words used in a similar sense, see Vocabulary.

Interrogative Forms.

- 368. The several tenses of the Indicative are employed interrogatively, each with its proper force. The interrogative may be indicated by the appropriate pronouns or particles, or simply by the order of the words, or the general sense of the passage.
 - a. With interrogative words—

Matt. xxv. 37: πότε σε εἴδομεν πεινῶντα; when saw we thee hungry?

John i. 19: σὸ τίς εἶ; who art thou?

John v. 47 : πῶs τοῖς ἐμοῖς ῥήμασι πιστεύσετε ; how will ye believe my words ?

John xi. 34: ποῦ τεθείκατε αὐτόν; where have ye laid him?

Acts viii. 30: ἀρά γε γινώσκεις â ἀναγινώσκεις, understandest thou then what thou readest?

Luke xviii. 8; Gal. ii. 17.

b. Without interrogative words—

Matt. ix. 28: πιστεύετε ὅτι δύναμαι τοῦτο ποιῆσαι; believe ye that I am able to do this?

Rom. vii. 7: ὁ νόμος άμαρτία; is the law sin?

So John xiii. 6; Aets xxi. 37; Rom. ii. 21-23.

Hence arises occasional ambiguity.

1 Cor. i. 13: μεμέρισται ὁ Χριστός; is Christ divided? Lachmann reads this as an assertion: Christ is divided, i.e., by your dissensions, which rend asunder his body.

Rom. viii. 33, 34. Many critics read this as a series of questions, not question and answer, as E.V. "Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? Shall God who justifieth? Who is he that condemneth? Is it Christ who died?" &c. (See Alford's note on the passage.)

An elliptic question is made by the use of the particle ϵl , if, some such phrase as, Say, or Tell~us, being understood. In this case the sentence is really dependent. (See § 383.)

Matt. xii. 10: εἰ ἔξεστι τοῖς σάββασι θεραπεύειν; is it lawful to heal upon the sabbath? (tell us if—).

Acts xix. 2 : ϵ t Πνεθμα "Αγιον ελάβετε πιστεύσαντες; received ye the Holy Ghost when ye believed?

So Acts vii. 1; xxi. 37; xxii. 25.

- 369. An affirmative answer is given, in three passages, by the formula σὺ λέγως, thou sayest, with or without addition: Matt. xxvii. 11; Luke xxii. 70; John xviii. 37. σὺ εἶπως, thou didst say, is similarly used, Matt. xxvi. 25, 64.
- 370. Negative questions are framed according to the answer expected.

a. of presumes an affirmative reply.

Matt. vii. 22: οὐ τῶ σω ὀνόματι προεφητεύσαμεν; did we not prophesy in thy name?

1 Cor. ix. 1: οὐκ εἰμὶ ἐλεύθερος; οὐκ εἰμὶ ἀπόστολος; κ.τ.λ., $am\ I$ not free? am I not an apostle? &c.

Acts xiii. 10: οὐ παύση διαστρέφων; wilt thou not cease from perverting? the affirmative answer being intimated as that which ought to be given. So Mark xiv. 60: dost thou not answer anything?

Once οὐκοῦν is found. John xviii. 37: thou art not then a king, art thou?

b. μή expects a negative answer.

Matt. vii. 9 : μη λίθον ἐπιδώσει αὐτῷ, will he give him a stone?

Rom. ix. 14: $\mu \eta$ άδικία παρὰ $\tau \hat{\omega}$ $\Theta \epsilon \hat{\omega}$, is there unrighteousness with God? .

c. μήτι suggests an emphatic negative.

Matt. vii. 16: μήτι συλλέγουσιν ἀπὸ ἀκανθῶν σταφυλάς, ἡ ἀπὸ τριβόλων σῦκα; men do not gather grape-clusters of thorns, or figs of thistles, do they?

Matt. xxvi. 22, 25: μήτι εγώ είμι, κύριε; (from the disciples), μήτι έγω είμι, ραββί; (from Judas), it is not I, is it, Lord?—is it, Rabbi?

See also Mark iv. 21: John xviii. 35 ("I a Jew!")

It would sometimes appear as though dawning conviction would fortify resistance by a strong negative. So Matt. xii. 23 may be understood: μήτι οδτός έστιν ὁ viòs Δαβίδ; This is never the Son of David?

The Imperative Mood.

371. The Imperative is used for command or entreaty.

Matt. v. 44: ἀγαπᾶτε τοὺς ἐχθροὺς ὑμῶν, love your enemies.

Matt. viii. 25: Κύριε σῶσον, ἀπολλύμεθα, save, Lord, we perish!

The negative with imperative forms is always un.

John vi. 20: ἐγώ εἰμι· μη φοβεῖσθε, it is I, be not afraid.

372. The form of command is sometimes employed where simple permission is intended.*

Matt. xxvi. 45: καθεύδετε τὸ λοιπὸν καὶ ἀναπαύεσθε, sleep on now, and take your rest.†

See also 1 Cor. vii. 15, xiv. 38. "Rev. xxii. 11 is a summons (Aufforderung): 'the fate of all is as good as already determined.'" +

373. Of the Imperative tenses, the Present expresses a command generally, or implies continuance or repetition.

The Aorist implies that the action is instantaneous, or complete.

The Perfect (very rare) refers to an action complete in itself, yet continuous in its effect. Its meaning coincides with that of the Present in verbs where the Perfect indicative has a Present meaning.

a. The Present.

Matt. vii. 1: μη κρίνετε, judge not.

1 Cor. ix. 24: οῦτω τρέχετε ῖνα καταλάβητε, so run that ye may obtain.

1 Thess. v. 16-22: πάντοτε χαίρετε, ἀδιαλείπτως προσεύχεσθε, εν παντὶ εὐχαριστεῖτε, κ.τ.λ, rejoice evermore; pray without ceasing; in everything give thanks, &c.

b. The Aorist.

Matt. vi. 6: εἴσελθε εἰς τὸ ταμιεῖόν σου καὶ ... πρόσευξαι, enter into thy chamber ... and pray.

Matt. vi. 9-11: in the Lord's prayer, άγιασθήτω ... γενηθήτω ... δός ... ἄφες.

John xi. 44: λύσατε αὐτὸν, καὶ ἄφετε αὐτὸν ὑπάγειν, loose him, and let him go.

c. The Perfect.

Mark iv. 39: σιώπα! πεφίμωσο! peace / be still /

^{*} Winer, xliii. 1.

[†] Bengel. "Sleep, if you feel at liberty to do so;" not in irony, not (as some) a question.

The contrasted force of the Present and Aorist is shown where both are used in the same passage.

John v. 8 : ἀρον τὸν κράββατόν σου καὶ περιπάτει, take up thy bed and walk:

Rom. vi. 13: μηδὲ παριστάνετε τὰ μέλη ὑμῶν ὅπλα ἀδικίας τῆ ἁμαρτία, ἀλλὰ παραστήσατε ἐαυτοὺς τῷ Θεῷ, yield not your members (as the habit of your lives) as instruments of unrighteousness, unto sin, but yield yourselves (a single act, once for all) unto God.

For the employment of the Future Indicative in commands and prohibitions, see \S 363, b.

For the similar use of the Subjunctive, especially in prohibitions, see § 375.

The Infinitive may also be employed. (See § 392.)

In many instances, the force of the Aorist and that of the Present seem nearly identical. The former is the more vigorous expression, "set about it at once."

Matt. v. 16: οὖτω λαμψάτω τὸ φῶς ὑμων, κ.τ.λ. Here the Present might have been employed:—"let your light beam continuously." The Aorist means, let your light shine forth at once.

John xiv. 15: ἐὰν ἀγαπᾶτέ με, τὰς ἐντολὰς τὰς ἐμὰς τηρήσατε, if ye love me, keep my commandments: adopt this as the law of your lives.

Romans xv. 11: alveite τον Κύριον πάντα τὰ ἔθνη καὶ ἐπαινεσάτωσαν αὐτὸν πάντες οἱ λαοί, praise the Lord, all the nations: and let all the peoples burst into a song of praise to him.

See also John ii. 8, 16; 1 Cor. xv. 34.

The consideration of such examples will bring to light many subtle beauties of expression, which no translation, perhaps, could accurately represent.

THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

374. The Subjunctive, strictly speaking, cannot stand in an independent sentence. Where it appears to do so, there is in reality an ellipsis. Thus ἴωμεν, let us go, is really a final clause (ἴνα understood) dependent on some implied verb or phrase. In such cases as the following, however, this distinction may be disregarded, and the sentences taken as to all intents and purposes independent.

The tenses in the Subjunctive and Optative are distinguished as in § 373. Compare also § 386. The Present implies continuity, the Aorist completion.

375. The Subjunctive is used as a hortatory Imperative of the first person.

John xix. 24: μὴ σχίσωμεν αὐτὸν, ἀλλὰ λάχωμεν, let us not rend it, but let us cast lots.

Rom. v. 1 (according to many): * εἰρήνην ἔχωμεν πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν, let us have peace with God; and ver. 2, 3: καυχώμεθα, let us glory.

So 1 Cor. xv. 32; 1 Thess. v. 6.

The Subjunctive Aorist is used instead of the Imperative in prohibitions.†

Matt. i. 20: μη φοβήθης, fear not.

Matt. v. 17: μη νομίσητε, think not.

Matt. vi. 2: μη σαλπίσης, sound not a trumpet.

This usage also depends upon the ellipsis of some phrase like "see," "take heed," &c., with "\u03c4\u03c4. In a few instances, a positive command is expressed by "\u03c4\u03c4 with the subjunctive (Mark v. 23; 2 Cor. viii. 7;

^{*} The MS. evidence for this reading is very strong; indeed, in any ordinary case would be overwhelming. On internal grounds, however, Tischendorf and others prefer the rec. text, we have peace. In such a case, even the testimony of MSS. must be taken with great caution; as it seems to have been a practice with some ancient transcribers to make Scripture, as they thought, more emphatic by turning a declaration or a promise into an exhortation. It could easily be done, as nothing more was needed than to change the o of the indicative into the ω of the subjunctive. So John iv. 42, "let us believe;" Rom. v. 10, "let us be saved;" Rom. vi. 8, "let us believe;" I Cor. xiv. 15, "let me pray;" I Cor. xv. 49, "let us bear the image of the heavenly" (so Lachmann); Heb. vi. 3, "this let us do;" James iv. 13, "let us go," &c., and many similar passages. (See Alford's note on Rom. v. 1.) Mr. Westcott adopts the reading, $\xi \chi \omega \mu \epsilon \nu$.

[†] This is the regular classical idiom.

Eph. v. 33). For the complete phrase, see l Cor. xvi. 10; and with ellipsis of 1να, Matt. viii. 4.

But the third person of the Aor. Imp. may be used with μή (Matt.

vi. 3; Mark xiii. 16).

376. The Subjunctive is used in questions expressive of deliberation or doubt; thus, τί ποιῶμεν; (John vi. 28) what are we to do? but τί ποιοῦμεν; (John xi. 47) what are we doing? "what are we about?" and τί ποιόρει; (Matt. xxi. 40) what will he do?

Mark xii. 14: δώμεν ή μή δώμεν; are we to give, or not to give?

Matt. xxvi. 54: πῶς οὖν πληρωθῶσιν ai γραφαί, how then should the Scriptures be fulfilled?

1 Cor. xi. 22: τί εξπω ύμιν; ἐπαινέσω ύμας; what am I to say to you? Am I to praise you?

The second of these verbs might be the fut. indic., the connexion only showing it to be aor. subj. As the two tenses are alike in the first pers. sing., it is often doubtful which is meant. So in the pres. of contracted verbs, $\tau \ell \pi o \iota \hat{\omega}$;

377. A strong denial is expressed by the Subjunctive Aorist with οὐ μή, as οὐ μή σε ἀνῶ, οὐδ' οὐ μή σε ἐγκαταλίπω (Heb. xiii. 5), I will assuredly not leave thee, nor will I at all forsake thee.

This idiom arises from a combination of two phrases; $\mu \dot{\eta}$, with the subjunctive elliptical, "fear lest" (see § 384); preceded by ob, with the word (understood) on which $\mu \dot{\eta}$ depends. "There is not any fear or possibility lest I should."

Matt. v. 18: ὶῶτα ἐν ἡ μία κεραία οὐ μὴ παρέλθη, one iota (the smallest letter of the alphabet), or one tittle (the fragment of a letter*) shall by no means pass.

Matt. v. 20: củ μη εἰσέλθητε, ye shall in no wise enter.

Mark xiv. 25: οὐκέτι οὐ μὴ πίω, never will I drink at all.+

See also Matt. xxiv. 2, xxvi. 35; Mark ix. 41; Luke vi. 37 (twice), xviii. 17, xxii. 67, 68; John vi. 37, viii. 51, x. 28, xiii. 8; Acts

^{*} As, for instance, that which distinguishes A from Λ , or in Hebrew, n from π .

[†] The additional negative adds strength to the negation.

xxviii. 26 (twice, from the LXX.; so elsewhere); 1 Cor. viii. 13; 1 Thess, iv. 15 (shall by no means precede), v. 3; Heb. viii. 11, 12 (LXX.); 2 Pet. i. 10; Rev. xviii. 21-23; with many other passages. The study of these emphatic negatives of Scripture is fraught with interest.

In the following passages only (in the best MSS, and edd.), the future is found (see § 363, d):—Matt. xvi. 22, xxvi. 35; Mark xiv. 31; Luke x. 19; John iv. 14, x. 5, xx. 25 (qy?)*

For the Aorist Subjunctive in a Future-perfect sense, see § 383, β .

THE OPTATIVE MOOD.

378. a. The Optative is used in independent sentences to express a wish, as 2 Pet. i. 2: χάρις ὑμῖν καὶ εἰρήνη πληθυνθείη, grace and peace be multiplied unto you!

As stated with regard to the Subjunctive (§ 374), the independence of the sentence is seeming only, a verbal notion on which the Optative depends being implied, as desire, pray. The Optative is in fact only another form of the Subjective mood, "the Subjunctive of the historical tenses." But this characteristic is almost lost in the New Testament, where the Optative is comparatively rare.

Rom. xv. 5: ό δὲ Θεὸς ... δψη ὑμῶν, now may God grant unto you!

Philemon 20: ναὶ, ἀδελφὲ, ἐγώ σου ὀναίμην ἐν Κυρίω, yea, brother, let me have joy of thee in the Lord!

So Acts viii. 20; 1 Thess. iii. 11, 12; 2 Thess. iii. 5, &c.

So with the negative, μή.

Mark xi. 14: μηκέτι έκ σοῦ ... μηδείς καρπὸν φάγοι, let no one ever eat fruit of thee.

2 Tim. iv. 16: μη αὐτοῖς λογισθείη, may it not be laid to their charge!

The formula μη γένοιτο! may it not come to pass! rendered in E.V. "God forbid!" illustrates the same usage. Luke xx. 16; Rom. vi. 2, 15, vii. 13, &c.

^{*} The future indic. with οὐ μή has no perceptible difference of meaning from that of the aor. subj.—Madvig, § 124, α, 3.

But a wish respecting something past is sometimes expressed by τφελον (really representing an old Second Aorist of a verb, I ought, and in classic Greek followed by an infinitive) used in the New Testament as a particle with the Indicative. 1 Cor. iv. 8; 2 Cor. xi. 1; Gal. v. 12; Rev. iii. 15.

b. The particle a gives a potential sense to the Optative, toth in affirmations and in questions.

Acts xxvi. 29 : εὐξαίμην ἄν τῷ Θεῷ, I could wish to God. Acts viii. 31 : πῶς γὰρ ἄν δυναίμην ; nay, for how could I?

The Moods in Dependent Clauses.

379. A Compound Sentence (see § 187) consists of co-ordinate clauses, or of a principal clause with subordinate ones.

Subordinate clauses may be infinitive or participial, or they may be connected with the principal sentence by relatives or conjunctions.

For the Infinitive and Participle, see §§ 385-397. For the Relative, see §§ 343-349. For the Conjunctions uniting co-ordinate clauses, see §§ 403-407.

380. As a general rule, the moods and tenses in subordinate clauses are used as in principal ones.

It must be especially noted that relatives or conjunctions, with $\tilde{a}\nu$ ($\tilde{\epsilon}\hat{a}\nu$), the hypothetical particle, generally take the Subjunctive.

Matt. v. 19: δς ἐὰν οὖν λύση, whosoever therefore shall break.

Matt. v. 20: ἐἀν (εἰ ἀν) μὴ περισσεύση, if it shall not surpass.

Matt. vi. 2: ὅταν (ὅτε ἄν) ποιῆς ἐλεημοσύνην, when thou doest alms. For ὅτε with Indicative, see ch. vii. 28.

Matt. xvi. 28: Ews av Bwor, until they shall have seen.

So with many other passages.

But the Imperfect Indicative is occasionally found when a matter of fact is spoken of. Mark vi. 56; Acts ii. 45, iv. 35 1 Cor. xii. 2.

The use of the moods in object-sentences, in conditional expres sions, and in intentional clauses, demands separate consideration.

Object-Sentences.

381. When the dependent clause expresses the object of any of the senses, or the matter of knowledge, thought, belief, &c.,* it is often introduced by őn with the Indicative; although the Infinitive is more usual.

Luke xvii. 15: ίδων ὅτι ἰάθη, seeing that he was healed.

Matt. ix. 28: πιστεύετε στι δύναμαι τοῦτο ποιῆσαι; believe ye that I am able to do this?

Mark v. 29: ἔγνω ... ὅτι ταται, she perceived that she is healed. So John xi. 13, xx. 14.

When the verb in the principal clause is in past time, the subordinate verb is either put in present time (Indicative), or else in the Optative.

382. a. In the New Testament, quotation is generally direct, and is introduced without any conjunctive particle.

Matt. viii. 3: ήψατο αὐτοῦ, λέγων Θέλω, καθαρίσθητι, he touched him, saying, "I will, be thou clean."

The particle 571, however, is often used to introduce the quoted words, and is not to be translated, as it answers exactly to our inverted commas ("").

Matt. vii. 23: όμολογήσω αὐτοῖς, ὅτι οὐδέποτε ἔγνων ὑμᾶς, I will avow unto them, "I never knew you."

Inke viii. 49: ἔρχεταί τις παρὰ τοῦ ἀρχισυναγώγου ... λέγων αὐτῷ, ὅτι τέθνηκεν ἡ θυγάτηρ σου, μὴ σκύλλε τὸν διδάσκαλον, then cometh one from the house of the ruler of the synagogue, saying unto him, "Thy daughter is dead, trouble not the Master."

b. In indirect quotation (oratio obliqua) the substance of the speech is given, not the words. Here, also, the Indicative is generally employed.

Mark iii. 21: ἔλεγον γὰρ ὅτι ἐξέστη, for they said that he was beside himself. It is, however, possible that the verb here is a direct quotation (Aorist, see § 364), as E.V., they said, "he is mad."

^{* &}quot;Verba sentiendi et declarandi."

Of the Optative in the oratio obliqua, so common in Greek classics, there is no example in the New Testament except in indirect interrogatives, as in the following paragraph, c, γ .

c. Indirect interrogations, another form of the oratio obliqua, may be connected with the principal clause by interrogative pronouns or adverbs, or by the particle & f, whether.

In such clauses, (a) the Indicative shows that the inquiry concerns matter of fact; (β) the Subjunctive expresses objective possibility—what may or should take place—and always has respect to present or to future time; (γ) the Optative denotes subjective possibility—that which may be conceived to exist—and refers especially to the past.

 a. Mark xv. 44: ἐθαύμασεν εἰ ἤδη τέθνηκε, he wondered whether he were already dead.

Acts xii. 18: ἦν τάραχος οὐκ ὀλίγος ἐν τοῖς στρατιώταις τί ἄρα ὁ Πέτρος ἐγένετο, there was no small stir among the soldiers—whatever had become of Peter.

Acts x. 18 (Pres. after Imperf.): ἐπυνθάνοντο εὶ Σίμων ... ἐνθάδε ξενίζεται, they were asking whether Simon ... lodges here.

Luke xxiii. 6 (Pres. after Aor.): ἐπερώτησεν εἰ ὁ ἄνθρωπος Γαλιλαῖός ἐστι, he asked if the man is a Galilean.

For the Future in the dependent clause, see Mark iii. 2; 1 Cor. vii. 16; Phil. i. 22.

β. Matt. vi. 25: μὴ μεριμνᾶτε ... τί φάγητε καὶ τί πίητε, be not anxious ... what you are to eat and what you are to drink. Compare Luke xii. 22.

Inke xix. 48: οὐχ εῦρισκον τὸ τι ποιήσωσιν, they found not what they should do. Compare Mark xv. 24.

In Rom. viii. 26, the reading varies between προσευξώμεθα (rec., Lachmann) and προσευξόμεθα (Tischendorf).

γ. Luke i. 29: διελογίζετο ποταπός είη ὁ ἀσπασμὸς οδτος, she was discussing with herself of what kind this salutation might be.

Acts xvii. 11: ἀνακρίνοντες τὰς γραφάς, εἰ ἔχοι ταῦτα οὖτως, searching the Scriptures if these things were so.

Acts xvii. 27: ζητεῖν τὸν Θεόν, εἰ ἄρα γε ψηλαφήσειαν αὐτὸν καὶ εῦροιεν, to seek God,* if by any chance they might feel after him and find him.

The Indicative and Optative constructions are combined in Acts xxi. 33: ἐπύνθανετο τίς ἀν εἴη καὶ τί ἐστι πεποιηκώς, he asked who he might be, and what he had done. He must have done something, this was clear; but who he was seemed altogether uncertain.

d. After verbs of perceiving, knowing, declaring, and the like, both an object and an objective sentence are often found.

Luke xix. 3: ἐζήτει ἰδεῖν τὸν Ἰησοῦν, τίς ἐστι, he was seeking to see Jesus, who he was (is).

1 Cor. iii. 20: Κύριος γινώσκει τους διαλογισμούς των σοφών ότι είσι μάταιοι (LXX.), Jehovah knoweth the reasonings of the wise, that they are vain.

See also Mark xi. 32, xii. 34; John iv. 35, v. 42, vii. 27; Acts iii. 10, xv. 36; 2 Cor. xii. 3, 4, xiii. 5; 1 Thess. ii. 1, &c. Compare 1 Cor. xv. 12. A similar construction is occasionally found with "intentional" clauses, as Col. iv. 17; Gal. iv. 11.

Conditional Sentences.

383. A conditional or "hypothetical" sentence contains two clauses, often called "protasis," or condition, and "apodosis," or consequence. The former expresses the condition; the latter, the thing conditioned. Of these two the protasis is really the dependent sentence, though the apodosis contains the dependent fact.

Protasis (condition).	Apodosis (consequence).
a. If he speaks,	I always listen.
β. If he speak,	I will listen.
y. If he should speak,	I should listen.
(If he spoke,	I would listen.
8. If he spoke, If he had spoken,	I would have listened.

^{*} Unquestionably the true reading, not τον Κύριον, as rec.

These four sentences illustrate four kinds of hypothesis-

a. The supposition of a fact.

β. ,, of a possibility.

γ. ,, of uncertainty. δ. ,, of something unfulfilled.

Hence arise four distinct forms-

a. The conditional particle ϵi , if, with the Indicative, in the protasis, assumes the hypothesis as a fact. The apodosis may have the Indicative or Imperative. [So the Subjunctive with $\epsilon i \nu n$, equivalent to future Indicative; or in exhortations, equivalent to Imperative.]

Matt. iv. 3: $\epsilon i \ viòs \ \epsilon \hat{i} \ \tau o \hat{v} \ \Theta \epsilon o \hat{v}$, $\epsilon \hat{i} \pi \epsilon$, $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$, if thou art the Son of God, command, &c., i.e., assuming that thou art.

Acts xix. 39: ε δε περαιτέρω επιζητείτε, εν τη εννόμω εκκλησία επιλυθήσεται, but if ye enquire further, it shall be determined in the legal assembly.

1 Cor. xv. 16: εἰ γὰρ νεκροὶ οὐκ ἐγείρονται, οὐδὲ Χριστὸς ἐγήγερται, for if the dead arise not, neither has Christ arisen.

Romans iv. 2: ε Αβραὰμ ἐξ ἔργων ἐδικαιώθη ἔχει καύχημα, if Abraham was justified by works (assuming that he was so), he hath a ground of boasting.

See also many other passages, e.g., Matt. xix. 17; John vii. 4 (present, condition; imperative, consequence); Rom. viii. 25; 1 Cor. vi. 2 (pres. pres.); John v. 47 (pres. fut.); 2 Pet. ii. 20 (pres. perf.): Matt. xii. 26 (pres. aor.); Matt. xxvi. 33 (fut. fut.); Acts xvi. 15 (perf. imperf.); 2 Cor. v. 16 (perf. pres.); John xi. 12; Rom. vi. 5 (perf. fut.); 2 Cor. ii. 5 (perf. perf.), vii. 14 (perf. aor.); Rom. xi. 17, 18 (aor. imper.); 1 John iv. 11 (aor. pres.); John xv. 20 (aor. fut.); Rom. v. 15 (aor. aor.) [1 Cor. viii. 13, has pres. and aor. subj. with ob μή; Gal. v. 25, pres. ind., pres. subj.]

β. Possibility, or uncertainty with the prospect of decision, is expressed by $\epsilon i a \nu = \epsilon i a \nu$ (very rarely by ϵi alone*) with the Subjunctive in the conditional clause, and the Indicative or Imperative in the apodosis.

The condition hence refers to future time. The Subj. Aor., with $\epsilon \acute{a}\nu$, may be rendered in most cases by the Future Perfect.

Matt. xvii. 20: ἐἀν ἔχητε πίστιν ὡς κόκκον σινάπεως, ἐρεῖτε, κ.τ.λ., if ye have faith as a grain of mustard-seed, ye shall say, &c.

John iii. 3, 5: ἐἀν μή τις γεννηθῆ ἄνωθεν, οὐ δύναται ἰδεῖν τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ, excepting one shall have been born from above, he cannot see the kingdom of God.

2 Tim. ii. 5: ἐὰν δὲ καὶ ἀθλῆ τις, οὐ στεφανοῦται ἐὰν μὴ νομίμως ἀθλήση, and if any one strive in a contest, he is not crowned except he shall have striven according to the rules of the game.

γ. The Optative in a conditional sentence expresses entire uncertainty—a supposed case. Here the particle ε is always used.

1 Cor. xiv. 10: εἰ τύχοι, if it should chance. So xv. 37.

1 Pet. iii. 14: εἰ καὶ πάσχοιτε διὰ δικαιοσύνην, μακάριοι, if ye even should suffer for rightrousness' sake, happy (are ye). See ver. 17.

Acts xxiv. 19, xxvii. 39: et δύναιντο, if (by any possibility) they could.

- δ. When the condition is spoken of as unfulfilled, the Indicative is used in both clauses, with the particle ϵl in the protasis, and $\tilde{a}\nu$ in the apodosis.
- 1. The Imperfect (in the apodosis) with \tilde{a}_{ν} points to present time, "If this were so now" (which it is not).
- 2. The Aorist with "" points to the past, "If this had been so then" (which it was not). Sometimes the Pluperfect is used, more emphatically, in the same sense.
- Luke vii. 39: οὖτος, εἰ ἢν προφήτης, ἐγίνωσκεν ἀν τίς καὶ ποταπὴ ἡ γυνή, this man, if he were a prophet, would know who and what the woman is.

John v. 46: εἰ γὰρ ἐπιστεύετε Μῶση, ἐπιστεύετε ἀν ἐμοί, for if ye believed Moses, ye would believe me.

Heb. iv. S: εἰ γὰρ αὐτοῦς Ἰησοῦς κατέπαυσεν, οὐκ ἀν περὶ ἄλλης ελάλει, for if Joshua had given them rest, he would not speak of another day.

So (with Impf. in the protasis) John viii. 42, ix. 41; Acts xviii. 14; 1 Cor. xi. 31; Heb. xi. 15 (with Aor. in the protasis); Gal. iii. 21, &c. Sometimes & is omitted. See John ix. 33, xv. 22, &c.

John xiv. 28: εἰ ἡγαπᾶτέ με, ἐχάρητε ἄν, if ye loved me, y² would have rejoiced. "Ye would rejoice" would have been expressed by ἐχαίρετε.

So with the Impf. in protasis: Luke xii. 39; John xviii. 30; Acts xviii. 14.

1 Cor. ii. 8: εἰ γὰρ ἔγνωσαν, οὐκ ἂν τὸν Κύριον τῆς δόξης ἐσταύρωσαν, for had they known, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

So with the Aor. in protasis: Matt. xi. 21; Mark xiii. 20; Romans ix. 29 (Matt. xii. 7 has plup.)

John xi. 21: Κύριε, εἰ ἢς ὧθε, οὐκ ἃν ὁ ἀθελφός μου ἐτεθνήκει, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother would not have been dead. Mary, ver. 32, uses the Aorist.

See 1 John ii. 19.

John xiv. 7: εὶ ἐγνώκειτέ με, καὶ τὸν πατέρα μου ἐγνώκειτε ἄν, if ye had known me, ye would have known my Father also.

Intentional Clauses.

- 384. Intentional clauses are those which express a purpose or design, following the particles wa, to the end that (with emphasis on result); ὅπως, in order that (emphasis on method); μή, (that) not or lest.
- a. (1) In intentional clauses, the Subjunctive is employed in its general meaning, to signify objective possibility or intention.

Matt. xix. 13: προσηνέχθησαν... ενα τὰς χείρας ἐπιθῆ αὐτοῖς καὶ προσεύξητω, they were brought ... that he might put his hands upon them and pray.

Luke vi. 34: δανείζουσω ϊνα ἀπολάβωσω, they lend that they may receive back.

Matt. ii. 8: ἀπαγγείλατε μοι, ὅπως κὰγὼ ελθὼν προσκυνήσω, bring me back word, that I also may come and worship.

Matt. vi. 16: ἀφανίζουσι ... ὅπως φανῶσι, they disfigure ... that they may appear.

So in a great number of passages.

The final intentional clause with a particle of design must be distinguished from the objective clause with ότι. So λέγω υμίν ότι, I say to you that, introduces the matter of the communication; but elme "Iva (Matt. iv. 3), say that, specifies the purpose of what is said, and therefore implies command. Now, after verbs expressive of desire, prayer, and the like, where the matter is coincident with the purpose, the final and the objective particles seem equally appropriate. As a matter of fact, however, it will be found that while hope has gri, prayer has graοπως. Ελπίζω ότι, I hope that, i.e., "such is the object presented to my hope: " εξχυμαι τνα, I pray that, i.e., "such is the purpose to be secured by my prayer" (2 Cor. i. 13; Philemon 22; Phil. i. 9; 2 Thess. iii. 1, &c.) In 2 Thess. i. 11, 12, "να marks the primary, and "πω, the secondary result. In 1 Cor. xiv. 13, it is not meant that the disciple is to pray for the power to interpret, but that his gift of prayer is to be so exercised as to involve the power of interpretation. Again, 2 Cor. xiii. 7, the matter of the prayer is expressed by an infinitive clause; the intention by two clauses with Iva.

The Evangelist John often (with, occasionally, others of the New Testament writers) seems to employ "να simply as explanatory. Thus, ch. xvii. 3: "this is life eternal, that they should know thee," &c. So xv. 8; 1 John iv. 17, v. 3, &c. (often epexegetic of οὖτος); but in other passages the usual meaning of the particle may be taken, as 1 John iii. 1.

Compare Matt. x. 25; Luke xvii. 2; even Phil. ii. 2. ("Fill up my joy by being of the same mind."—T. S. Green.)

(2) It has been a question with grammarians whether we ever means merely so that, expressing event without any reference to purpose. The former presumed use of the particle has been called its eventual (or ecbatic) sense, the latter its final (or telic*). Most, however, now agree that the final significance is generally, ^{* &}quot;Ινα ἐκβατικόν (from ἐκβαίνω, to issue from); ἵνα τελικόν (from τέλος, end).

if not always, discernible. Mr. Webster quotes 1 Thess. v. 4, as a passage in which "the notion of finality seems lost in the eventual sense:" Ye are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you as a thief. But it would seem appropriate enough to represent it as the intention of darkness that those surrounded with it should be suddenly surprised. Again, in John xii. 23, xvi. 2, 32, Meyer justly remarks, "that which shall happen in the \(\varphi_p\) a is regarded as the object of its coming." On Galatians v. 17, Professor Lightfoot says, "in here seems to denote simply the result, whereas in classical writers it always expresses the purpose." But surely this is unnecessary. Bishop Ellicott renders, "to the end that ye may not," not 'so that ye cannot," Auth.; but with the usual and proper telic force of in. The object and end of the τὸ ἀντικάσθαι (the antagonism) on the part of each principle is to prevent a man doing what the other principle would lead him to."

For other passages in which the final sense has been questioned, but where Winer and most modern critics maintain it, see Luke ix. 45 (purposely hidden, as a part of the Divine plan); John iv. 36, vii. 23, ix. 2, xi. 15; Romans ix. 11, xi. 31; 2 Cor. i. 9, v. 4; Eph. ii. 9, iii. 10. In these, and in many similar texts, sound criticism seems to require the meaning, not so that it was, but in order that it might be.*

The importance of the discussion is chiefly seen, in relation to the passages which speak of a Divine purpose, in prophecy or otherwise. For instance, the words of Old Testament prediction, Isa. vi. 10, are quoted, Matt. xiii. 14; Mark iv. 12; Luke viii. 10; John xii. 40; Acts xxviii. 27 (Matt. and Acts have from the LXX. μήποτε, the rest, ίνα ... μή). Is the passage to be read, in order that seeing they may not see, &c., or, so that seeing they see not; or even, because seeing they see not? We believe that the former interpretation is the only one admissible. The blindness was judicial—a punishment inflicted by God on disobedience and hardness of heart.

Again, in the phrase, "να (ὅπως) πληρώθη, that it (the Old ^{*} Undoubtedly in the later forms of the language the eclutic sense became established. Thus, in modern Greek the Infinitive itself has become superseded by a form of the verb with the particle νά for ἵνα.

Testament prophecy) might be fulfilled (Matt. i. 22, ii. 15, 23, iv. 14, viii. 17, xii. 17, xiii. 35, xxi. 4, xxvi. 56; Mark xiv. 49; John xiii. 18, xv. 25, xvii. 12, xviii. 9, xix. 24, 36), are we to understand the statement to be that so the words were fulfilled, sometimes, as it would seem, by an accommodation of their meaning, or that the occurrence took place in order that they might be fulfilled? To answer this question fully, would lead into a discussion of the whole scope and meaning of prophecy. But, as a point of grammar, there seems every reason why the usual meaning of the telic particles should be retained. It is the expositor's business to translate in order to interpret; not to interpret in order to translate. In some cases, at least, the words quoted could not primarily have had the meaning attached to them in the New Testament; but in their original acceptation they fell into the line of the "increasing purpose" which runs through the ages, and so revealed their highest significance in Messiah's day. The true key to the passage is not to be found in a perverted use of the particle, but in an accurate comprehension of the verb.*

See, especially, the transaction recorded John xix. 28-30.

Acts iii. 19: μετανοήσατε οὖν καὶ ἐπιστρέψατε, εἰς τὸ ἐξαλειφθῆναι ὑμῶν τὰς ἁμαρτίας, ὅπως ἀν ἔλθωσι καιροὶ ἀναψύξεως, κ.τ.λ., can only be translated, repent then, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, in order that seasons of refreshment may come, &c. The meaning when, as E.V., cannot be sustained. Whatever be the special reference of καιροὶ ἀναψύξεως, they are set forth as the purposed result of the people's repentance, and denote in some way the blessings of Messiah's kingdom.

(3) As a negative final particle, standing alone after verbs expressing fear, caution, anxiety, μή has the force of ἴνα μή, ὅπως μή.

Matt. xviii. 10: δράτε μη καταφρονήσητε ένδι των μικρών τούτων, see that ye do not despise one of these little ones.

So 2 Cor. viii. 20; Gal. vi. 1; Heb. xii. 15, 16.

^{*} See Olshausen on Matt. i. 22. Grotius, and those who have followed his criticisms, attach to the verb some such meaning as consummated.

After verbs of fearing, $\mu \dot{\eta}$ may be translated lest, or that.

2 Cor. xii. 20, 21: φοβοῦμαι γὰρ, μή πως ἐλθῶν οὖχ οἵους θέλω εὕρω ὑμᾶς, κ.τ.λ., for I fear that when I come I shall not find you such as I desire, &c.

Acts xxiii. 10, xxvii. 17.

b. A particle of intention may be followed by an Indicative Future (never with $\delta\pi\omega_s$. In Mark v. 23, read $\zeta\eta\sigma\eta$).

The instances of this idiom are few, and most of them are contested readings. The Future, where admitted, must be taken as conveying the idea of duration more vividly than the Aorist Subjunctive.

Gal. ii. 4: "να ήμας καταδουλώσουσιν, that they should enslave us.

Rev. xxii. 14: μακάριοι οἱ πλύνοντες τὰς στολὰς αἰτῶν, ἴνα ἔσται ἡ ἐξουσία αἰτῶν, κ.τ.λ., blessed are they who wash their robes,* that theirs may be the access, &c. John xvii. 2; 1 Cor. xiii. 3; 1 Pet. iii. 1; Rev. iii. 9, xiv. 13. In all these cases the received text has Subjunctive Aorist.

μή (ποτε) is found with the Indicative Future, Heb. iii. 12: βλέπετε, ἀδελφοί, μή ποτε ἔσται ἔν τινι ὑμῶν καρδία πονηρὰ ἀπιστίας, take heed, brethren, lest there should (shall) be in any one of you an evil heart of unbelief.

Col. ii. 8.

The Indicative present or perfect after μh shows the ellipsis, not of va, but of $\delta \tau i$; i.e., the sentence is not intentional, but objective. Luke xi. 35: "lest the light is darkness." Gal. iv. 11: "lest I have laboured."

There are three passages in which the Indicative present seems to be used in intentional clauses:—

1 Cor. iv. 6: Ίνα μὴ εἶς ὑπὲρ ἐνὸς φυσιοῦσθε κατὰ τοῦ ἐτέρου, that ye be not puffed up one for another against yet another.

Col. iv. 17: Ίνα αὐτὴν πληροῖς, that thou fulfil it (the ministry).

Gal. iv. 17: Ίνα αὐτοὺς ζηλοῦτε, in order that ye may zealously affect them.

It will, however, be noted that all these verbs are of the contracted conjugation in $-\delta\omega$; and it is easier to suppose them examples of an irregularly formed Subjunctive than of a syntax so anomalous as an Indicative would be.

^{*} Note here the various reading, accepted by the best critics.

THE INFINITIVE.

385. a. The Infinitive Mood is a Verbal Substantive, and expresses the abstract notion of the verb.

Like the verb in other moods, it admits the modifications of tense and voice. It may have a subject, or may govern an object, near or remote; and it is qualified by adverbs. Like a substantive, it may be the subject or object of a verb; it is often defined by the article, and is employed in the different cases.

b. The Negative Adverb with the Infinitive may be οὐ or μή.

Since of denies as matter of fact, $\mu \hat{\eta}$ as matter of thought, and since the Infinitive generally depends on some verb or clause implying thought, will, design, the latter will generally be the appropriate particle.

Matt. ii. 12: χρηματισθέντες ... μὴ ἀνακάμψαι πρὸς Ἡρώδην, being divinely warned not to return to Herod.

Matt. v. 34: λέγω ὑμῖν μὴ ὀμόσαι ὅλως, I enjoin you not to swear at all.

So viii. 28, and many other passages. Where ob is found, it may generally be connected with the principal verb. (See John xxi. 25.)

c. The Infinitive governs the same case as the other parts of the verb.

Matt. vii. 11: οἴδατε δόματα ἀγαθὰ διδόναι τοῖς τέκνοις ὑμῶν, ye know how to give good gifts unto your children.

Luke xx. 35: of $\delta \hat{\epsilon}$ καταξιωθέντες τοῦ αλώνος ἐκείνου τυχεῖν, καὶ τῆς ἀναστάσεως τῆς ἐκ νεκρῶν, they who are deemed worthy to obtain that life and the resurrection from the dead.

Compare the rules on the use of the cases after verbs.

386. The distinction between the Tenses of the Infinitive is analogous to that in the Imperative and Subjunctive. The Present marks continuity; the Aorist, a single act; the Future (very rare in the New Testament), intention or futurity; and the Perfect, a completed act.

Matt. xiv. 22: ἢνάγκασε τοὺς μαθητὰς ἐμβῆναι ... καὶ προάγειν αὐτόν, he made the disciples embark (a single act), and go before him (continuous).

Acts xxvii. 10:: μέλλειν ἔσεσθαι τὸν πλοῦν, that the voyage is going to be.

Acts xxvi. 32: ἀπολελύσθαι ἐδύνατο ὁ ἄνθρωπος οὖτος, this man could have been set at liberty.

The Present Infinitive might more properly be called the Imperfect, referring, like the Perfect, to state rather than to time. The time is fixed by the principal verb.

387. The Subject of the Infinitive, when expressed, is always in the Accusative case.

For the explanation of this rule, with examples, see § 285.

But the Subject of the Infinitive, when the same with that of the preceding verb, is generally omitted, words agreeing with it being in the nominative.

Rom. xv. 24: ελπίζω διαπορευόμενος θεάσασθαι ύμᾶς, I hope to see you (in) passing through.

2 Cor. x. 2: δέομαι δὲ, τὸ μὴ παρών, but I pray that I may not (when) present be bold.

388. The Infinitive, with or without the Article, may form the Subject of a sentence.

Rom. vii. 18: τὸ γὰρ θέλειν παράκειταί μοι, τὸ δὲ κατεργάζεσθαι τὸ καλὸν οὕ, for to will is present with me, but to accomplish the good is not.

Gal. vi. 14: ἐμοὶ δὲ μὴ γένοιτο καυχᾶσθαι, but far be it from me to glory!

Eph. v. 12: αλσχρόν ἐστι καὶ λέγειν, even to mention... is disgraceful.

A peculiar kind of extended subject is formed by the Infinitive with εγένετο, it came to pass that... Thus, Acts ix. 3: εγένετο αὐτὸν εγγίζειν τῷ Δαμασκῷ, it came to pass that he was approaching Damascus, lit., "His approach to Damascus occurred." So Mark ii 23; Luke vi. 1, 6; Acts iv. 5, xvi. 16, &c. Acts xxii. 17 has a combination of construction: It happened to me when I had returned (μοι ὑποστρέψαντι) to Jerusalem, and as I was praying (προσευχομένου μου, gen. abs.) in the temple that I was (γενέσθαι με) in an ecstasy, &c.

The Subject Infinitive may have its own Accusative Subject.

Matt. xvii. 4: καλόν ἐστιν ἡμας ὧδε είναι, it is good for us to be here.

1 Cor. xi. 13: πρέπον ἐστὶ γυναϊκα ἀκατακάλυπτον τῷ Θεῷ προσεύχεσθαι, it is becoming for a woman to pray to God uncovered.

Matt. xviii. 8: καλόν σοί ἐστιν εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν ζωὴν χωλὸν ἡ κυλλόν, it is good for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, the pronoun σέ being understood from σοι before εἰσελθεῖν.

389. a. The Infinitive regularly stands as the Object of verbs denoting a mental faculty, impression, or act—such as to be able, to hear, see, believe, know, wish, hope, endeavour, &c.; and an assertion of thought or will, as to say, announce, proclaim, command, forbid, &c.*

In this connection also the Infinitive may have its own Subject, and may take or omit the Article.

Matt. vi. 24: οίδεὶς δύναται δυσὶ κυρίοις δουλεύειν, no man is able to serve two masters.

Rom. i. 22: φάσκοντες είναι σοφοί εμωράνθησαν, professing to be wise they became fools.

Phil. ii. $6: \overrightarrow{ov}\chi$ άρπαγμὸν ήγήσατο το είναι ἴσα Θ ε $\widehat{\wp}$, he esteemed not his being on an equality with God a prize to be seized on.

Here the object Infinitive is defined by the article; $7\sigma\alpha$ Θ - is the predicate of the Infinitive in apposition with the subject ($7\sigma\alpha$ is adverbial); and $\delta\rho\pi\alpha\gamma\mu\delta\nu$ is in predicative apposition with the Infinitive itself.

b. The Infinitive may be employed, for the expression of intention or result, as an adjunct (1) to a verbal predicate.

Matt. ii. 2: ἤλθομεν προσκυνῆσαι αὐτῷ, we came to worship him. Matt. xx. 28; 1 Cor. i. 17; Rev. xvi. 9, &c.

^{* &}quot;Verba sentiendi vei declarandi," &c.

- (2) An Infinitive in this sense may depend upon a Substantive, as in the frequent phrase ὁ ἔχων ὧτα ἀκούειν, he that hath ears to hear. So Acts xiv. 5; Heb. xi. 15, &c.
- (3) It may depend upon an Adjective, as Luke xv. 19: οἰκέτι εἰμὶ ἔξιος κληθῆναι νίός σου, I am no longer worthy to be called thy son.

So with δυνατός, Acts ii. 24; 2 Tim. i. 12; κανός, Mark i. 7; λλεύθερος, 1 Cor. vii. 39; ετοιμος, Luke xxii. 33, &c. Once with ἄδικος, Heb. vi. 10, "God is not unjust to forget."

- 390. The Infinitive with the oblique cases of the Article (substantivized, §§ 201, 204) is employed as follows:
 - a. Genitive.
 - 1. Dependent upon nouns—

Inke x. 19: $\delta(\delta\omega\mu)$ $\delta(\mu)$ $\tau \dot{\eta} \nu$ $\dot{\xi}$ $\delta(\delta\omega)$ $\tau \dot{\eta} \nu$ $\dot{\xi}$ $\delta(\delta\omega)$ $\delta(\delta\omega$

Acts xx. 3: ἐγένετο γνώμη τοῦ ὑποστρέφειν, he had an intention of returning.

Acts xxvii. 20: $\pi \hat{a} \sigma a$ $\hat{\epsilon} \lambda \pi \hat{s}$ $\tau o \hat{\nu}$ $\sigma \omega \hat{s} \epsilon \sigma \theta a i \eta \mu \hat{a} s$, all hove of our being saved.

Acts xiv. 9; 2 Cor. viii. 11; Phil. iii. 21, &c. So with words signifying time (time for), Luke i. 57, ii. 6, 21, xxi. 22; 1 Pet. iv. 17; Rev. xiv. 15.

- 2. Dependent upon verbs that usually take a genitive--
- Luke i. 9: thaxε τοῦ θυμιάσαι, he had obtained the lot of sacrificing.
- 2 Cor. i. 8: ὅστε ἐξαπορηθῆναι ἡμᾶς καὶ τοῦ ζῆν, so that we despaired even of life.
 - 1 Pet. iii. 10 (LXX.) So after adjectives, Luke xxiv. 25; Acts xxiii. 15. Especially, with verbs signifying hindrance, Luke iv. 42; Rom. xv. 22.
- 3. Expressive of design, like τνα with Subjunctive, or ενεκα with Genitive—

Matt. ii. 13: μέλλει γὰρ Ἡρώδης ζητεῖν τὸ παιδίον τοῦ ἀπολέσαι αὐτό, for Herod will seek the young child to destroy it.

So Matt. iii. 13, xxi. 32, xxiv. 45; Luke xxiv. 29; Acts xiii. 47 (LXX.); Heb. x. 7 (LXX.), &c.

But sometimes the notion of design seems almost or entirely lost in that of result. See also under $\tau_{\nu a}$ (§ 384).

Acts vii. 19: οὖτος ... ἐκάκωσεν τοὺς πατέρας ἡμῶν τοῦ ποιεῖν τὰ βρέφη ἔκθετα αὐτῶν, this man ... ill-treated our fathers, so that they caused their babes to be exposed.

Compare Acts iii. 12; Rom. i. 24, vii. 3.

b. Dative.

The Dative of Cause. (See § 280 c.)

2 Cor. ii. 13: οὐκ ἔσχηκα ἄνεσιν ... τῷ μὴ εὐρεῖν με Τίτον τὸν ἀδελφόν μου, I had no rest through my not having found Titus my brother.

In 1 Thess. iii. 3, $\tau \hat{\varphi}$, rec., should be $\tau \delta$. The above instance is the only one.

c. The Genitive, Dative, or Accusative, with Prepositions.

A few illustrations of this usage will be sufficient, as the prepositions are taken in their ordinary meaning. (See §§ 288-307).

διά, with Genitive, "through."

Heb. ii. 15: διὰ παντὸς τοῦ ζῆν, through all their lifetime.

διά, with Accusative, "on account of."

Matt. xiii. 5: διὰ τὸ μὴ ἔχειν βάθος... διὰ τὸ μὴ ἔχειν βίζαν, οπ account of its having no depth ... on account of its having no root.

So, with acc. subject, Matt. xxiv. 12; Mark v. 4; Luke ii. 4, xi. 8, &c.

els, "to the end that."

Matt. xx. 19: εἰς τὸ ἐμπαῖξαι καὶ μαστιγῶσαι καὶ σταυρῶσαι, to mock and scourge and crucify.

So Mark xiv. 55; Luke v. 17, with subject, &c. Both εis and πρόs express purpose, but πρόs the more emphatically.

¿v, "in, during," especially of time.

Matt. xiii. 25: ἐν δὲ καθεύδειν τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, and while men slept.

So also Matt. xxvii. 12; Mark ii. 15; Luke i. 21, &c.

μετά, with Accusative, "after."

Matt. xxvi. 32: μετὰ δὲ τὸ ἐγερθῆναί με, but after I have risen.

So Luke xii. 5, xxii. 20; Acts i. 3, &c.

πρό, "before," opposed to μετά.

Matt. vi. 8: πρὸ τοῦ ύμᾶς αἰτῆσαι αὐτόν, before ye ask him.

So Luke ii. 21, xxii. 15; John i. 49, &c.

πρός, with Accusative, "in order to."

Matt. vi. 1: πρὸς τὸ θεαθήναι αὐτοῖς, in order to be gazed at by them.

So Matt. xiii. 30, xxvi. 12; Mark xiii. 22, &c. Once, in reference to, Luke xviii, 1.

Once avit is found, James iv. 15, instead of your saying; and Eveka, 2 Cor. vii. 12, for the sake of your zeal being made manifest. "Ews, "until," occurs with Gen. inf., Acts viii. 40, until he came.

391. To express result, the particle ωστε is often prefixed to the Infinitive. It should be noted that ωστε is properly echatic, as distinguished from telic particles. Compare § 384.

Matt. viii. 24: σεισμὸς μέγας ἐγένετο ... ἄστε τὸ πλοῖον καλύπτεσθαι, there arose a great storm, so that the vessel was being covered.

Matt. xiii. 32: ωστε έλθειν τὰ πετεινά, so that the birds came.

Luke viii. 52: ωστε ετοιμάσαι αὐτῷ, so as to make ready for him.

Acts xvi. 26: ωστε σαλευθήναι τὰ θεμέλια, so that the foundations were shaken.

So in a great number of passages. Twice only $\omega_{\sigma\tau\epsilon}$ is found in this meaning with the Indicative.

John ini. 16: οῦτως γὰρ ἡγάπησεν ὁ Θεὸς τὸν κόσμον ώστε τὸν υίὸν αὐτοῦ τὸν μονογενῆ ἔδωκεν, κ.τ.λ., God so loved the world that he gave his only-begotten Son, &c.

So also Gal. ii. 13.

The proper distinction between the Infinitive and Indicative in this connection is, that the former expresses the result as the natural and logical consequence of what has been previously enunciated the latter states it simply as a fact which occurs or has occurred.*

392. In Phil. iii. 16, we find the Infinitive employed for the Imperative: εἰς ὁ ἐφθάσαμεν, τῷ αὐτῷ στοιχεῖν, whereto we have attained, in the same direction walk ye onward.†

The use of χαίρειν in salutation is similar, "greeting," Acts xv. 23, xxiii. 26; James i. 1 (2 John 10, 11, suggests an ellipsis here). This habitual phrase reappears as a more decided Imperative, Rom. xii. 15, with an antithetic verb: χαίρειν μετὰ χαιρύντων, κλαίειν μετα κλαιόντων, rejoice with the rejoicing, weep with the weeping.

Participles.

393. The Participles "partake" the nature of Verbs and of Adjectives.

Like verbs, they have the modifications of Voice and Tense; and may have an object, immediate or remote. Like adjectives, they agree with substantives, expressed or understood; and are subject to the exceptional constructions of Synesis, or "rational concord."

On these points, therefore, nothing need be added to the rules already given.

The tenses of the Participle conform in meaning to those of the Indicative. Their various use will be seen in the examples given under the following sections.

The negatives used with Participles follow the general law. Thus, οὐκ εἰδότες, "not knowing," as a matter of fact; μἢ εἰδότες, "not knowing," as a matter of supposition, such ignorance being presumed as the ground of any further assertion respecting them.

^{*} See Bishop Ellicott on Gal. ii. 13. He adds, "The distinction is not always observed."

[†] Ellicott. The rest of the verse (rec.) is omitted by the best critics.

Compare Gal. iv. 8, with 1 Thess. iv. 5; 2 Thess. i. 8. As, however, the Participle is generally expressive of some condition, the negative employed is in most cases $\mu\dot{\eta}$.

When a Participle has a Subject of its own in a separate clause, the construction is the Genitive Absolute, for which see § 275 The following rules give the use of Participles referring to the Subject or Object of another verb.

- 394. Participles are predicative or attributive. Their predicative uses may be classified as follows:—
- 1. After the forms of the substantive verb, a Participle may be used as a simple or "primary" predicate.

This construction is confined to the present and perfect Participles, With the latter, certain parts of the verb to be make regular compound tense-forms, as the third person plur, perf. and plup. Passive. (See Paradigms.) The usage is extended, however, to the singular number and to other persons. Luke iv. 16: οδ ἢν τεθραμμένος, where he had been brought up. John iii. 28: ἀπεσταλμένος εἰμί, I have been sent. With the present Participle, the substantive verb gives a continuous sense, forming what are called the "resolved tenses." (See §§ 362, e, 363, e.)

The resolved tense must be distinguished from the use of the Participle as secondary predicate. For example, 2 Cor. v. 19 is not to be read, God was reconciling the world in Christ, but as E.V., God was in Christ reconciling, &c.

Luke xxiv. 32: οὐχὶ ἡ καρδία ἡμῶν καιομένη ἦν ἐν ἡμῖν; was not our heart burning within us ?.

Sometimes this construction appears very nearly equivalent to the simple verb, as Mark xiii. 25 (compare Matt. xxiv. 23.) So Acts ii. 2; James i. 17, iii. 15. In other cases, there is a greater stress upon the notion of state or duration: Pres., Acts xxv. 10; Rev. i. 18; Matt. x. 26; Luke vi. 43; 2 Cor. ix. 12; Gal. iv. 24 (not "which things are an allegory," but are allegorized, i.e., susceptible of allegorical application; arma being used, not a, see § 349.); Col. ii. 23; 1 Cor. xv. 19; 2 Cor. ii. 17; Impf., Matt. vii. 29, xix. 22; Mark i. 39; Luke i. 22, xv. 1, xxiii. 8; Acts xxi. 3; Gal. i. 22, 23; Fut., Matt. x. 22; Luke i. 20, v. 10, xxi. 24.

In Luke iii. 23, αὐτὸς ἦν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ὡσεὶ ἐτῶν τριάκοντα ἀρχόμενος, we must understand, Jesus himself was commencing (his ministry) at about the age of thirty (for gen., see § 266), not "began to be about thirty."

2. Certain verbs, expressive of perception, or the conditions of an action, are complemented by a Participle, instead of an Infinitive.

If the verb is neuter or passive, the Participle agrees with the Subject; if active, with the Object.

Such verbs in the New Testament are (1) neuter; παύομαι, τελέω (διαλείπω, ἐγκακέω), all variously signifying desistence from a thing; φαίνομαι, to be manifest, and λανθάνω, to be secret, in doing anything (2) active; ἀκούω, γινώσκω, ὁράω, βλέπω, &c.

Luke v. 4: ws emaioato hadwv, when he ceased speaking.

Acts v. 42, vi. 13, xiii. 10, xx. 31, xxi. 32; Eph. i. 16; Col. i. 9; Heb. x. 2.

Matt. vi. 18: μὴ φανῆς τοῖς ἀνθρώποις νηστεύων, that thou appear not to men as fasting; ver. 16.

Matt. xi. 1: ὅτε ἐτέλεσεν ... διατάσσων, when he made an end of commanding.

Luke vii. 45; Gal. vi. 9; Matt. i. 18 (pass.)

Heb. xiii. 2: ἔλαθόν τινες ξενίσαντες ἀγγέλους, some unawares entertained (were secret in entertaining) angels.

Luke iv. 23: ὅσα ἡκούσαμεν γενόμενα ἐν τῆ Καπερναούμ, whatever things we heard of as done in Capernaum.

Mark xiv. 58; Acts ii. 11, vii. 12; 2 Thess. iii. 11, &c.

Heb. xiii. 23: γινώσκετε τον άδελφον Τιμόθεον απολελύμενον, know that our brother Timothy has been liberated.

Acts viii. 23; Heb. x. 25.

Some of these verbs may also be followed by an inf. or by a finite verb with 57. Thus compare 2 Thess. iii. 11, with John xii. 18 and 34.

When the predicative Participle is used, the real Object of the verb is in the noun. In the infinitive construction, the Infinitive contains the Object, and 371 reduces the thing heard to the form of a proposition.

^{*} A very common classic idiom.

So 3 John 4: ἀκούω τὰ ἐμὰ τέκνα ἐν ἀληθεία περιπατοῦντα is I hear of my children, that they walk in truth.

περιπατείν would have been, "I hear of the conduct of my children, that they walk," &c.

δτι περιπατούσιν would have meant, The tidings brought to me are these, that, &c.

Again: 1 John iv. 2: δμολογεῖ Ἰησοῦν Χριστὸν ἐν σαρκὶ ἐληλύθοτα, confesses Jesus Christ come in the flesh (not who came, which would have required τὸν ἐλ...). ἐληλυθέναι would have signified, that Jesus Christ has come. (Comp. 2 John 7.)

So with neuter verbs: ὅπως φανῶσι τοῖς ἀνθρώποις νηστεύοντες, that they may appear unto men fasting, i.e., the fasting was real. νηστεύειν would have implied that the fasting was only apparent. On the contrary, ἐπαιτεῖν αἰσχύνομαι, Luke xvi. 3, means I am ashamed to beg; ἐπαιτῶν would have meant, I am ashamed of begging.*

 A Participle without the Article, and in grammatical concord with the Subject of the verb, may stand as adjunct to the verbal Predicate.

These adjuncts may be of various kinds, asa. Modal, setting forth the manner in which the given action was performed.

Matt. v. 2: ἐδίδασκεν αὐτοὺς λέγων, he taught them, saying.

Matt. xix. 22: $d\pi \hat{\eta} \lambda \theta \epsilon \lambda \nu \pi o \nu \nu event away sorrowful.$

Matt. xi. 25, &c.: ἀποκριθείς εἶπεν, he said, having addressed himself to reply, "he answered and said."

Matt. xxviii. 19; Acts iii. 8, xiii. 45; 1 Tim. i. 13. For the acr. Part. marking the commencement of the action, see Acts i. 24; Rom. iv. 20.

- b. Temporal, denoting (i) a contemporaneous, (ii) preceding, or (iii) consequent fact.
- (i) Pres. Acts v. 4: οὐχὶ μένον σοὶ ἔμενε; while it remained did it not remain thine?

Matt. vi. 7; Acts xxi. 28; 1 Tim. i. 3, when I was on my way; †

^{*} See Rev. T. S. Green's "Greek Testament Grammar," p. 183.

[†] There is here a strong argument for an apostolic journey after Paul's Roman imprisonment, as no part of the history in the Acts corresponds with this mission of Timothy.

Heb. xi. 21; Rom. xv. 25 (ministering; he had already entered on his errand of ministry); 1 Pet. i. 8, 9 (while ye see not ... yet believe ... while (also) ye receive).

(ii) Aor. Acts ix. 39: ἀναστὰς δὲ Πέτρος συνῆλθεν αὐτοῖς, and Peter having arisen went with them, i.e., "arose and went with them," as E.V.

This use of the Aor. Part is one of the most common idioms in the New Testament, and may be continually represented in translation by two verbs—the action of the one (the Participle) preceding that of the other. Or we may render by some such preposition as after, upon, with the verbal noun; or by a temporal clause with when.

Acts iii. 3: δs ίδων ... ήρωτα, who saw ... and asked; or, on seeing ... asked; or, when he saw ... asked.

So ver. 4, 7, 12, iv. 7, 8, 13 (while beholding (pres.) and having ascertained), 15, 18, 19, 21, 23, 36, 37, &c. In fact, there is scarcely any usage more common in the New Testament.

(iii) Fut. Acts viii. 27: ôs ἐληλύθει προσκυνήσων εἰς Ἰερουσαλημ, who had come to Jerusalem to worship.

This idiom (the Fut. Part. to express a purpose) is rare in the New Testament. (See Acts xxiv. 11.)

c. A Participle often expresses some relation of cause, condition, &c., to the principal verb. This relation the general sense of the passage will show.

Cansal. Acts iv. 21: $d\pi$ έλυσαν $a\dot{v}$ τοὺς, μηδὲν εύρίσκοντες, κ.τ.λ., they released them, as they found nothing, &c.

Concessive. Rom. i. 32: οἶτινες τὸ δικαίωμα τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐπίγνοντες ... αὐτὰ ποιοῦσιν, κ.τ.λ., who, though made aware of the righteous decree of God ... do these things, &c.

Conditional. Rom. ii. 27: καὶ κρινεῖ ἡ ἐκ φύσεως ἀκροβυστία τὸν νόμον τελοῦσα, κ.τ.λ., and (shall not) that which naturally is uncircumcision, if it fulfil the law, judge thee, &c.

Matt. vi. 27 (by anxious care); Rom. viii. 23; 2 Cor. v. 2 (because we desire).

d. Intensive, a Hebraism. (Compare § 280, b.) Like the cognate dative noun, a Participle of the same verb may be employed.

Heb. vi. 14: εὐλογῶν εὐλογήσω σε, καὶ πληθύνων πληθυνῶ σε, blessing I will bless thee, and multiplying I will multiply thee. (LXX.; Gen. xxii. 17.)

So Matt. xiii. 14; Acts vii. 34.

A predicative Participle may be qualified by ús, as, as if, declaring the alleged ground of an assertion.

Luke xvi. 1: $\delta\iota\epsilon\beta\lambda\dot{\eta}\theta\eta$... ώς διασκορπίζων, κ.τ.λ., he was accused, as though wasting, &c.

Luke xxiii. 14: προσηνέγκατέ μοι τὸν ἄνθρωπον τοῦτον ώς ἀποστρέφοντα τὸν λαόν, ye brought before me this man on the charge of perverting the people.

1 Cor. vii. 25.

In like manner, the particles $\kappa \alpha i \pi \epsilon \rho$, $\kappa \alpha i \tau \sigma \iota$, although, may be employed.

Heb. v. 8: καίπερ ών viós, although he was a son.

So Heb. iv. 3, with gen. abs.; vii. 5, $\xi\xi\epsilon\lambda\eta\lambda\nu\theta\delta\tau\alpha s$, in apposition with obj.; 2 Pet. i. 12.

395. Participles as epithets are used like adjectives.

Acts xxi. 26: τη ἐχομένη ἡμέρα, on the next day.

1 Tim. i. 10: εἴ τι ἔτερον τῆ ὑγιαινούση διδασκαλία ἀντίκειται, if anything else is opposed to the healthful teaching (of the faith). For other instances of this participle, see vi. 3; 2 Tim. i. 13, iv. 3; Titus i. 9, ii. 1.

396. With the Article, the Participle is equivalent to the relative with the finite verb.

It may thus stand in apposition with a noun in any relation to the sentence, or may be used alone, the substantive being understood.

Matt. i. 16: 'Ιησοῦς ὁ λεγόμενος Χριστός, Jesus who is called Christ.

Mark vi. 2: $\hat{\eta}$ σοφία $\hat{\eta}$ δοθώσα αὐτ $\hat{\varphi}$, the wisdom which is given unto him.

Luke xxi. 37: τὸ ὅρος τὸ καλούμενον Ἐλαιῶν, to the mount that is called "of Olives."

1 Cor. ii. 7: λαλοῦμεν Θεοῦ σοφίαν ... την ἀποκεκρυμμένην, we speak the wisdom of God ... that hath been hidden.

1 Thess. iii. 15: τῶν καὶ τὸν Κύριον ἀποκτεινάντων ... καὶ ἡμᾶς ἐκδιωξάντων καὶ Θεῷ μὴ ἀρεσκόντων, (of the Jews) who both slew the Lord ... and drove us out, and do not please God.

By a comparison of examples, the distinction between the use of the Participle with and without the Article will be clearly seen. ὁ διδάσκων is he who teaches; ὁ διδάξαs, he who taught; whereas διδάσκων alone would mean while he was teaching, and διδάξαs, when he had taught.

The Participle and Article often form a substantive phrase. See §§ 200, 204: δ σπείρων, he who sows, a sower.

In some cases the substantivized participle appears to have lost all temporal reference.

Eph. iv. 28: ὁ κλέπτων μηκέτι κλεπτέτω, let him that stealeth, steal no more. Here ὁ κλέψας, he who stole (once), would be too weak in meaning, while ὁ κλέπτης would be too strong.*

So Heb. xi. 28. With an Object we find the same construction.

Gal. i. 23: δ διώκων ἡμᾶς ποτέ, our former persecutor.

1 Thess. i. 10: Ἰησοῦν τὸν ῥυόμενον ἡμῶς, Jesus our deliverer.

Winer quotes also Matt. xxvii. 40; John xii. 20; Acts iii. 2; Gal. ii. 2; Romans v. 17; 1 Thess. v. 24; 1 Pet. i. 17. But in some of these passages there may well be a special reference to the time then present. So John xiii. 11: He knew τον παραδίδοντα αὐτόν, the man then betraying him, i.e., who was then at work for that purpose.

The Present may occasionally be explained according to § 361 (d).

Matt. xxvi. 28: τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ αἶμά μου ... τὸ περὶ πολλῶν ἐκχυνόμενον, this is my blood which is being shed (i.e., to be shed) for many. So διδόμενον, being given, Luke xxii. 19; κλώμενον, 1 Cor. xi. 24.

In other cases, the ordinary meaning of the Present is to be taken. Acts ii. 47: "the Lord was adding daily to the church," τοὺς σωζομένους, those who were being saved, i.e., in the course or way of salvation. 2 Cor. ii. 15: "we are of Christ a sweet savour unto God, in those who are being saved, and in the perishing" (τοῖς σωζομένοις καὶ ἐν τοῖς ἀπολλυμένοις). 2 Cor. iii. 13: "so that the children of Israel could not look to the end of that which was vanishing away" (τοῦ καταργουμένου), viz., the glory on the countenance of Moses.

397. In some cases, a participle seems to stand alone, the verb to which it is an adjunct being at a distance from it, or the construction of the sentence being broken.*

Rom. v. 11: καυχώμενοι must be connected with σωθησόμεθα, ver. 9, we shall be saved—and not only that, but saved with joyful consciousness of the blessing.

1 Pet. ii. 18-iii. 7: ὑποτασσόμενοι, ὑποτασσόμεναι, ἀγαθοποιοῦσαι, μὴ φοβούμεναι, συνοικοῦντες, are not for imperatives, as has been supposed, but are adjuncts to τιμήσατε, ii. 17: render due honour to all ... ye servants by subjection ... ye wives by subjection, well-doing, fearlessness, ye husbands by dwelling with them, &c.

2 Pet. i. 20: γινώσκοντες continues the thought of προσέχοντες, dependent on καλώς ποιείτε, ver. 19, ye do well in taking heed, knowing this first. So ch. iii. 3; read with μνησθήναι, ver. 2.

Instances of broken structure (anacolouthon) may be found in Acts xxiv. 5: having found this man, &c., who also endeavoured to profine the temple, whom also we laid hold of, instead of "we laid hold of him." 2 Cor. v. 6, 8: being confident—yea, we are confident and well pleased; the sentence, but for the parenthesis of ver. 7, being evidently intended as "we, being confident, are well pleased." 2 Cor. vii. 5: where θλιβόμενοι is really in apposition with the ἡμεῖs implied in ἡ σὰρξ ἡμῶν. Heb. viii. 10, where καὶ interrupts the structure of the sentence: Eph. iv. 1–3; Col. iii. 16, &c.

^{*} See Winer's collection and explanation of instances, § 45, 6.

CHAPTER VII.—ADVERBS.

398. Adverbs qualify verbs and adjectives as in other languages.

The rules for the formation of derivative Adverbs, with lists of the Adverbs most in use, are given, §§ 126-134.

The use of Adverbs with the Article is shown, § 198.

399. Adverbial phrases are very frequent in the New Testament, and are of various kinds.

a. A substantive, with or without a preposition, may be adverbially used. (Compare § 126.) The modal dative is adverbial (§ 280, a). So sometimes the accusative, as τὴν ἀρχήν, John viii. 25, essentially (Alford). Many phrases with κατά are adverbial (see § 300, 6). Special adverbial combinations are: ἀπὸ μέρους, partially, Rom. xi. 25; 2 Cor. i. 14, ii. 5. ἐκ μέρους, individually, 1 Cor. xii. 27; partially, 1 Cor. xiii. 9, 10, 12. κατὰ μέρους, particularly, Heb. ix. 5. ἀπὸ μιᾶς (γνώμης), "with one consent," unanimously, Luke xiv. 18. εἰς τὸ παντελές, "in any wise," Luke xiii. 11; "to the uttermost," Heb. vii. 25; utterly. ἐν ἀληθεία, "in truth," truly, Matt. xxii. 16, &c. ἐν δικαιοσύνη, righteously, Acts xvii. 31. ἐν ἐκτενεία, instantly, "in earnestness," Acts xxvi. 7. επ' ἀληθείας, "of a truth," truly, Luke xxii. 59.

For the force of these and similar phrases, see under the respective prepositions.

James iv. 5: Πρὸς φθόνον ἐπιποθεῖ τὸ πνεῦμα ὁ κατῷκισεν (Lachmann) ἐν ἡμῖν. This difficult passage should probably be rendered, Jealously does the Spirit which he placed in us desire (us for his own, Alford). This adverbial force of the substantive with πρός is common in classical Greek, though elsewhere without parallel in the New Testament.

b. For the adjective used adverbially, see § 319.

ADVERBS. 369

c. For adverbial notions conveyed by means of participles, see § 394, 3.

d. An adverbial phrase is sometimes formed by a combination of two verbs. So in the Old Testament often, "He added and spake," or, "He added to speak," for "He spake again," an idiom copied by the LXX. from the Hebrew.

Luke xx. 11, 12: προσέθετο πέμψαι, he added to send; where Mark xii. 4, reads πάλιν ἀπέστειλε, he sent again. Acts xii. 3: προσέθετο συλλαβεῖν, he proceeded to apprehend, or, "further apprehended." But Luke xix. 11, προσθείς είπεν is the participial construction, he added and spake.

Some expositors have unnecessarily interpreted other verbal combinations as adverbial; e. g., Luke vi. 48: ἔσκαψε καὶ ἐβάθυνε, "he digged deep," E.V., but rather, he dug and deepened, the second verb being an advance upon the first. So Rom. x. 20: Isaiah is very bold, and saith, not "very boldly saith;" Col. ii. 5: rejoicing (over you) and seeing, not "seeing with joy" (comp. Ellicott's note); James iv. 2: ye murder and envy, not "envy murderously," or "murder enviously" (see Alford). So in many other passages.

400. For a list of the Adverbs used as prepositions governing cases, see § 133. These may enter into combination with other adverbs, as Matt. xi. 12: τως τρτι, until now. So John ii. 10, v. 17, &c. Matt. xvii. 17: τως πότε; how long? lit., "until when?" So Mark ix. 19; Luke ix. 41; John x. 24: how long dost thou keep our minds in suspense? (Alford). Matt. xviii. 21, 22: τως έπτάκις, κ.τ.λ., until seven times, &c. See also Matt. xxiv. 21 (art.), xxvii. 8 (art.) Mark xiv. 54: τως τως. Luke xxiii. 5: τως ωδε. Acts xxi. 5: τως τως ξω, &c. So Rom. i. 13: αχρι τοῦ δεῦρο, until now, lit., "until the (time) hitherto," viii. 22; 1 Cor. iii. 14; Phil. i. 5.

The use of the Article with the latter Adverb, however, renders it simply equivalent to a Substantive.

401. Repeated reference has already been made to the distinction between the negative Adverbs οὐ and μή. Generally speaking, οὐ denies as matter of fact, $\mu\dot{\eta}$ as matter of thought, supposition, &c. The former, therefore, is the usual negative with the Indicative mood, the latter the usual negative with the other parts of the verb. Deviations from this rule are to be explained by the primary sense of the two adverbs. Thus, John iii. 18: ὁ πιστεύων εἰς αὐτὸν οὐ κρίνεται, he that believeth on him is not condemned (the statement of a fact); ὁ δὲ μὴ πιστεύων, but he that believeth not (whoever he may be) has already been condemned; ὅτι μὴ πεπιστεύκεν, κ.τ.λ., because he hath not believed (according to the supposition made).

The same distinction applies to the compounds of οὐ and μή, as οὕδε, μήδε, οὐκέτι, μηκέτι, &c.

Two, or even three, negatives in the same clause do not contradict one another,* but serve to strengthen the negation.

Luke iv. 2: οὐκ ἔφαγεν οὐδέν, he ate not anything.

Luke xxiii. 53: οδ οὐκ ἦν οὐδεὶς οὕπω κείμενος, where no one at all had yet ever lain.

For special forms of strengthened negation, see §§ 363, 377. For the use of negatives in interrogations, see § 369.

When one of two contrasted statements is intended to qualify the other, it is sometimes forcibly expressed as an actual denial.

Thus, in Hosea vi. 6, the Hebrew reads, "I will have mercy and not sacrifice." The LXX. translates ἔλεος θέλω ἢ θυσίαν, "I will have mercy rather than sacrifice," so conveying the general meaning. Matt. ix. 13, in quoting the passage, returns to the Hebrew expression, καὶ οὐ θυσίαν. Compare Jeremiah vii. 22.

In this idiom, the negatived thought, though not absolutely contradicted, is excluded from view, that its antithesis may make its full impression. Compare Matt. x. 20; Mark ix. 37; Luke x. 20 (omit μᾶλλον); John vii. 16, + xii. 44; Acts v. 4; 1 Thess. iv. 8, &c.

^{*} The usage is thus directly opposed to the English and Latin, where "two negatives make an affirmative."

[†] Winer holds, as it would appear without sufficient reason, that this passage and Matt. ix. 13 above intend absolute contradiction.

Only the context in such cases will show whether the negative is absolute or comparative. In some instances, where an exposition similar to the above has been adopted, the meaning of particular words has been mistaken. Thus, in John vi. 27, ἐργάζεσθε μὴ τὴν βρῶσιν τὴν ἀπολλυμένην, ε.τ.λ., "labour not for the meat that perisheth," &c., the verb ἐργ. does not mean "labour" generally, but busy yourselves, referring to the present excitement of the people. 1 Tim. v. 23: μηκέτι ὑδροπότει is not "drink no longer water," but be no longer a water-drinker, the verb not being precisely equal to ὑδωρ πίνε, but pointing to the regular habit.*

^{*} Ellicott.

CHAPTER VIII.—CONJUNCTIONS.

402. For a classified list of the Conjunctions, see Etymology, § 136.

Conjunctions are, with respect to their place in the sentence, either prepositive, i.e., placed at the beginning of the clause, as κal , $\lambda \lambda \lambda d$, $\delta \tau \iota$, or postpositive, i.e., placed after some other word or words, as δi , $\gamma d \rho$.

Words connected by Conjunctions are in the same grammatical regimen.

A clause connected with another by a Conjunction is either coordinate or subordinate. The rules for the chief kinds of subordinate clauses have been given, §§ 379-384. The following rules, therefore, imply Co-ordination.

Conjunctions of Annexation, kal, Te.

403. The proper copulative Conjunction, employed as in other languages, is καί, and.

Of the special uses of the Conjunction, the following may be enumerated.

a. Sometimes it appears to convey a kind of rhetorical emphasis.

Matt. iii. 14: και σὰ ἔρχη πρός με; and comest thou unto me?

Matt. vi. 26: καὶ ὁ πατὴρ ὑμῶν, κ.τ.λ., and (yet) your heavenly Father feedeth them!

John i. 10: και ό κόσμος αὐτὸν οὐκ ἔγνω, and (yet) the world knew him not.

See Bruder's Concordance, p. 453, for an interesting collection of instances. The logical connection of the clauses being strongly apparent in their signification, it is sufficient to place the simple copulative between them, the reader's mind supplying the additional links.

b. In the enumeration of particulars, both ... and may be expressed by καl ... καl, by the postpositive τέ with καl, or (rarely) by τε ... τε.

Acts ii. 29: καὶ ἐτελεύτησε καὶ ἐτάφη, he both died and was buried.

Matt. xxii. 10: συνήγαγον ... πονηρούς τε καὶ ἀγαθούς, they collected ... both bad and good.

Acts i. 1: ὧν ἤρξατο Ἰησοῦς ποιεῖν τε καλ διδάσκειν, which Jesus began both to do and to teach.

Acts xvii. 4: $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu \tau \epsilon \sigma \epsilon \beta o \mu \hat{\epsilon} \nu \omega \nu$ Eλλήνων $\pi \lambda \hat{\eta} \theta o s \pi \delta \lambda \nu \gamma \nu \nu \alpha \iota \kappa \hat{\omega} \nu \tau \epsilon \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \pi \rho \hat{\omega} \tau \omega \nu \hat{\omega} \kappa \hat{\omega} \hat{\lambda} i \gamma \alpha \iota$, both a great multitude of the devout Greeks, and not a few of the chief women.

John iv. 11: οὕτε ἄντλημα ἔχεις καὶ τὸ φρέαρ ἐστὶ βαθύ, thou both hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep. So 3 John 10.

The difference* between $\kappa \alpha i$ and $\tau \epsilon$ is that $\kappa \alpha i$ unites things strictly coordinate; $\tau \epsilon$ annexes, often with implied relation or distinction. Hence it may sometimes be read as implying "and this as well as the other," with ascensive force, although generally it adds a less important particular.

c. The points of transition in a narrative are frequently marked by kat, rendered into English, for rhetorical variety, by then, now, &c.

Luke x. 29: and who is my neighbour? Luke xviii. 26: and who can be saved? John ix. 36 (Tischendorf): and who is he, Lord, that I should believe? Kat dramatically connects the question with what has just been said.

Matt. viii. 8. (See Mark iii. 13-26, viii. 10-18, and many other passages.)

d. This conjunction has also an explanatory or "epexegetic" use, repeating (in thought, or by the aid of a pronoun) something that has been said, in order to introduce some additional particular.

Luke viii. 41 (pronoun and verb in the epexegetic clause), xxiii. 41; John i. 16 (neither verb nor pronoun); 1 Cor. i. 2, ii. 2, vi. 8 (read $\tau o \hat{v} \tau o$).

Eph. ii. 8: $\tau \hat{\eta}$ γὰρ χάριτί ἐστε σεσωσμένοι διὰ τῆς πίστεως και τοῦτο οἰκ ἐξ ὑμῶν, Θεοῦ τὸ δῶρον, for by grace ye are saved through faith, ^{*} Winer. "Kal conjungit, $\tau\epsilon$ adjungit."—Hermann.

and this not of yourselves, it (i.e., your being saved, is) the gift of God. "You must not suppose, because your salvation was conditioned by your faith, that therefore you saved yourselves."*

e. Without direct connective force, καί often takes the meaning of also, even.

Matt. v. 39: στρέψον αὐτῷ και τὴν ἄλλην, turn to him also the other cheek.

Mark i. 27 : και τοῖς πνεύμασι τοῖς ἀκαθάρτοις ἐπιτάσσει, he lays his command even upon the unclean spirits.

It is evident that the emphasis in such passages arises from the tacit connection and comparison with other objects of thought. The conjunction, therefore, is virtually still copulative.

This use of kal is frequent in comparisons.

Matt. vi. 10 : $\gamma \epsilon \nu \eta \theta \dot{\eta} \tau \omega \tau \dot{\sigma} \theta \dot{\epsilon} \lambda \eta \mu \dot{\alpha} \sigma \sigma \omega \dot{\omega} s \dot{\epsilon} \nu \sigma \dot{\nu} \rho a \nu \dot{\varphi} \kappa \alpha \dot{\epsilon} \dot{\tau} \dot{\tau} \dot{\gamma} \dot{\eta} s$, thy will be done as in heaven so also upon earth.

John vi. 57: καθὸς ἀπέστειλέ με ὁ ζῶν πατήρ, κ.τ.λ., as the living Father sent me, &c. There are two following clauses with καί, either of which might supply the second member of comparison: "so I live ... and," or (as E.V.) "and I live ... so."

Gal. i. 9: ω s προειρήκαμεν και άρτι πάλιν λέγω, as we have said before, so now also I say again.

Hence the use of κal to introduce the apodosis after hypothetical and temporal clauses. Luke ii. 21: then also his name was called Jesus; 2 Cor. ii. 2: for if I grieve you, then who is he that gladdens me? often with isov, then behold! as Matt. xxviii. 9; Acts i. 10, &c.

In the rising climax, οὐ μόνον is generally found in the former clause, ἀλλὰ καί in the latter.

Acts xxi. 13: $\epsilon \gamma \hat{\omega}$ $\gamma \hat{\alpha} \rho$ où $\mu \hat{o} \nu o \nu$ $\delta \epsilon \theta \hat{\eta} \nu a \iota$ $\delta \lambda \lambda \hat{\alpha}$ $\kappa \alpha l$ $\delta \pi o \theta a \nu \epsilon \hat{\iota} \nu$... $\epsilon \tau o i \mu \omega s$ $\epsilon \chi \omega$, for I am ready not only to be bound, but also to die.

Rom. xiii. 5: οὐ μόνον διὰ τὴν ἐργήν ἀλλὰ καὶ διὰ τὴν συνείδησιν, not only on account of the wrath, but also on account of conscience.

For the combination $\kappa a n \gamma d\rho$, see § 407, d.

^{*} Some still refer τοῦτο to πίστεωs (quite allowable on the score of gender, by synesis); but this seems against the Apostle's argument. (See Ellicott, Eadie, Alford.)

Conjunctions of Antithesis, alla, &é.

404. i. 'Αλλά, but (emphatic as contrasted with δέ), is used to mark opposition, interruption, transition.

a. Opposition, simply. John xvi. 20: ὑμεῖς δὲ λυπήσεσθε, ἀλλ' ἡ λύπη ὑμῶν εἰς χαρὰν γενήσεται, ye shall grieve, but your grief shall be turned into joy.

Frequently after negatives-

Matt. v. 17: οὐκ ήλθον καταλῦσαι, ἀλλὰ πληρῶσαι, I came not to destroy, but to fulfil.

Rom. iii. 31 : μὴ γένοιτο · ἀλλὰ νόμον ἱστῶμεν, assuredly not ; but we establish law.

b. Interruption. When a train of thought is broken, by some limitation, modification, correction.

John xii. 27: Πάτερ, σῶσόν με ἐκ τῆς ὥρας ταύτης · ἀλλὰ διὰ τοῦτο, κ.τ.λ., Father, save me from this hour! but for this cause came I unto this hour.

Often in such connections the conjunction carries with it the force of Nay, especially after questions (Matt. xi. 8, 9; Luke vii. 25).

c. Transition: the point of contrast being that the succeeding phrase is a new subject, or the same in a different aspect; like our Well, then; Moreover; Luke vi. 27, xi. 42; Gal. ii. 14, &c.

Special uses of this conjunction are (1) to throw emphasis on the following clause.

John xvi. 2: ἀποσυναγώγους ποιήσουσιν ύμας · ἀλλ' ἔρχεται ώρα, κ.τ.λ., they shall cast you out of the synagogues—yea, the hour cometh, &c.

So with a negative—

Luke xxiii. 15: οὐδὲν εὖρον ἐν τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ ... ἀλλ' οὐδὲ 'Ηρώδης, I found no blame in the man ... no, nor yet Herod.

(2) In a conditional sentence, ἀλλά may stand in the apodosis with the meaning, yet, nevertheless.

1 Cor. ix. 2: εὶ ἄλλοις οὐκ εἰμὶ ἀπόστολος, ἀλλὰ γε ὑμῦν εἰμί, if I am not an apostle to others, yet at least I am so to you. So Rom. vi. 5, &c.

(3) After the interrogative, ἀλλ' ή means other than, except.

1 Cor. iii. 5: τίς οὖν ἐστι Παίλος, τίς δὲ ᾿Απολλώς, άλλ᾽ ἡ διάκονοι, κ.τ.λ., who then is Paul, and who Apollos, but ministers, &c.

In 2 Cor. i. 13 we find the combination, ἄλλα ... àλλ' ή, other things,—than.

ii. $\Delta \epsilon$ (postpositive) is also most properly adversative, though less emphatic than $\partial \lambda \lambda a$. It is to be carefully distinguished, on the other hand, from the copulatives $\kappa a i$, $\tau \epsilon$, with the latter of which it is, however, often interchanged in MSS.

Thus, the frequent phrase, ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῶν, marks either a contrast with what has been said before, or an addition to it; the antithesis lying in the thought, "the foregoing is not all, but I add," &c.

It is generally difficult to exhibit the exact adversative force of this conjunction, and in translation it is often taken as a mere adjunctive. Thus, in the English version it is very frequently rendered and, or then (Matt. xix. 23), now (xxi. 18), so (xx. 8), or left entirely untranslated (xxviii. 1). The " $\delta\epsilon$ resumptive" is especially, perhaps unavoidably, so treated.

A close attention to this particle in the innumerable instances of its occurrence will repay the student, who will often by its means mark an otherwise concealed antithesis. The following illustrations are from Winer:—

Matt. xxi. 3: but he will straightway send them, i.e., not cavil or hesitate, but—.

Acts xxiv. 17: but I pass on to another part of my history.

1 Cor. xiv. 1: yet desire spiritual gifts, notwithstanding the supremacy of love.

2 Cor. ii. 12: but when I came to Troas; δè resumptive, from ver. 4.

1 Cor. xi. 2: but I praise you, even while I exhort, as ver. 1.

Rom. iv. 3: but Abraham believed God, so far was he from being justified by works (James ii. 23).

Kal... 86, together imply yea... moreover, assuming what has been said, and passing on to something more.*

Matt. x. 18, xvi. 18 (and not only so, but I say unto thee); John vi. 51, viii. 16, 17, xv. 27; Acts iii. 24, xxii. 29; 2 Pet. i. 5; 1 John i. 3.

The full form of antithesis with $\mu \ell \nu$ and $\delta \ell$ is frequent in the New Testament. † Compare § 136, b, 4.

Matt. ix. 37: ό μὲν θερισμὸς πολύς, οἱ δὲ ἐργάται ὀλίγοι, the harvest is plenteous, but the labourers are few.

Matt. xvi. 3, xx. 23, xxii. 8, xxiii. 27, 28, xxvi. 41, &c.

Sometimes μέν is followed by the emphatic adversative ἀλλά: Mark ix. 12; Acts iv. 16; Rom. xiv. 20; also πλήν, Luke xxii. 22; καί, Acts xxvi. 4, &c.

In several passages $\mu \acute{e} \nu$ is found without any antithetic particle. This is to be explained by an interrupted construction of the sentence, or by virtual antithesis. According to Winer, these cases may be classed in a threefold way:—

- 1. The suppressed parallel member of the antithesis is implied in the clause with μέν. Rom. x. 1; Col. ii. 23.
- 2. It is plainly indicated under another turn of expression. Rom. xi. 13.
- 3. The construction is entirely broken, and the parallel clause is to be supplied by the general sense of the sequel. Acts i. 1; Rom. i. 8, iii. 2, vii. 12; 1 Cor. xi. 18, &c.

THE DISJUNCTIVES.

405. The disjunctives are η, or (after a comparative, than); η, either ... or; εἴτε ... εἴτε, whether ... whether. Once ητοι ... η, whether ... or (there being no other alternative), Rom. vi. 16.

Matt. v. 17: μη νομίσητε ότι ηλθον καταλύσαι τον νόμον η τους προφήτας, think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets.

^{*} See Alford, Matt. x. 18.

[†] Far less frequent, however, than in classic Greek.

Matt. xii. 33; η ποιήσατε τὸ δένδρον καλὸν ... η ποιήσατε τὸ δένδρον σαπρόν, κ.τ.λ., either make the tree good ... or make the tree corrupt, &c.

Luke xx. 2: ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῖτα ποιεῖς, ἢ τίς ἐστιν ὁ δούς σοι τὴν ἐξουσίαν ταύτην; in what authority doest thou these things, or who is he that gave thee this authority ? Matt. xxi. 23, has καί. Either conjunction evidently gives equally good sense.

1 Cer. xi. 27: δς ἀν ἐσθίη τὸν ἄρτον ἢ πίνη τὸ ποτήριον τοῦ Κυρίον, whoever shall eat the bread or drink the cap of the Lord (whichever he does, not by any means implying that he is not to do both). The previous verse has καί, which is also a var. read. here.

1 Cor. x. 31: εἴτε οὖν ἐσθίετε εἴτε πίνετε εἴτε τι ποιεῖτε, whether then ye are eating or drinking, or doing anything (at all).

The combination & kat, or even, occurs Luke xviii. 11; Rom. ii. 15; 2 Cor. i. 13.

The "interrogative" %, so called, is no more than the disjunctive with the former clause understood.*

Rom. iii. 29: ἢ 'Ιουδαίων ὁ Θεὸς μόνον, οὐχὶ καὶ ἐθνῶν; or is he the God of Jews only, not of Gentiles also? Such, the Apostle suggests, is the alternative of denying the statement made, ver. 28.

See Rom. vi. 3, vii. 1, &c. In 1 Cor. xiv. 36, the former $\mathring{\eta}$ is not correlative with the latter, but refers to the previous train of thought: Or, was it that the word of God, &c., as must be supposed if you deny my authority in these matters. Dean Stanley renders, What! went the word? &c.

INFERENTIAL CONJUNCTIONS.

406. The chief particles of inference are oùv, therefore, postpositive, and ἄρα, accordingly, postpositive, or, with emphasis, prepositive.

οδν is properly the particle of formal inference, kindred to the participle of $\epsilon i\mu$, $\check{\omega}\nu$, $\check{\upsilon}\nu$ ($i\mu$ cum ita sint). $\check{\omega}\rho$ a, cognate with $\check{\omega}\rho\omega$, to fit, marks a correspondence in point of fact (ergo).

^{*} See Viger's "Greek Idioms," and Hartung, Partikellehre, sub voc. 7.

Matt. iii. 8: ποιήσατε οθν καρπόν ἄξιον τῆς μετανοίας, yield, therefore, fruit worthy of your repentance.

Gal. ii. 21: εὶ γὰρ διὰ νόμου δικαιοσύνη, ἄρα Χριστὸς δωρεὰν ἀπέθανεν, for if righteousness is by law, then Christ died in vain.

Both these particles, however, are often used with slighter meaning, as in our use of the words Then, Well then, in the continuance of narrative or speech. "Αραγε (Matt. vii. 20, xvii. 26; Acts xi. 18; xvii. 27) is emphatic. The combination, ἄρα οὖν, is found repeatedly in the Epistles of St. Paul. as Rom. v. 18: So. therefore, the οὖν marking the logical inference, and the ἄρα intimating the harmony between premises and conclusion.

For apa interrogative, see 137, b.

Other inferential particles occasionally found are perovvy, yes, indeed, but, Luke xi. 28; Rom. ix. 20, x. 18; τοιγαρούν, wherefore then, 1 Thess. iv. 8; Heb. xii. 1; τοίνυν (surely now), therefore, Luke xx. 25; 1 Cor ix. 26; Heb. xiii. 13.

CAUSAL CONJUNCTIONS, ESPECIALLY Yáp.

407. a. The causal conjunctions are demonstrative and relative. Of these the latter occur in subordinate clauses, the rules of which have already been given.

The relative causal particles are ὅτι, because; διότι, because (not in the Evv. or Rev.) Similarly used is ἐπεί (properly temporal, when), sine, with its emphatic compounds ἐπειδή, since none; ἐπείπερ (once, Rom. iii. 30), since indeed; and ἐπειδήπερ (only Luke i. 1), forasmuch as. (See § 137, a.)

For the relative phrases, with prepositions, used as conjunctions—e.g., ἐφ' ῷ, ἀνθ' ὧν—see under the Prepositions, §§ 305, 291.

b. The demonstrative causal conjunction, γάρ, always postpositive, is a contraction of γè ἄρα, "verily then;" hence, in fact, and, when the fact is given as a reason or explanation, for.

Matt. i. 21; ii. 2, 5, 6, 13, 20; iii. 2, 3, 9; 15, &c.

Generally, the explanation introduced by $\gamma \dot{a} \rho$ is also a direct reason. But this need not be always the case. See Matt. i. 18:

"Mary, as the fact was, being betrothed." Mark v. 42: "She arose and walked, for she was twelve years old; xvi. 4: "They saw that the stone was rolled away, for it was very great" (an explanation, not of the fact that it was rolled away, but of the necessity for this being done). Compare Ps. xxv. 11: "For thy name's sake, O Lord, pardon mine iniquity, for it is great (the reason, not why pardon is to be bestowed, but why it is sought).

The student must beware of translating $\gamma \acute{a}p$ by such words as but, although, yet peradventure, &c.* Romans v. 7 reads, for scarcely on behalf of a righteous man will one die; for on behalf of the good man one even dares to die. "The second for," says Alford, "is exceptive, and answers to 'I do not press this without exception,' understood." The good man and the righteous are not contrasted as different classes of persons, but the "good" (as the article also shows) are classed under the "righteous."

c. In questions and answers especially, $\gamma \delta \rho$ is often used in reference to the words or thought of the other party.

Matt. xxvii. 23: τί γὰρ κακὸν ἐποίησε; Why, what evil hath he done?

John vii. 41; Acts viii. 31, xix. 35 (Be calm! for what man is there? &c.)

John ix. 30: ἐν τούτῷ γὰρ θαυμαστόν ἐστιν! Why, herein is a wonderful thing! In 1 Thess. ii. 20, the Apostle thus answers his own question: "Yes, ye are our glory and our joy."

d. In the combination, και γάρ, the true connective is generally καί, which resumes in thought the topic of the previous clause; while γάρ appends the explanation or the reason (etenim).

Matt. viii. 9: και γὰρ ἐγὼ ἄνθρωπός εἰμι, κ.τ.λ., and (this I say) for I am u man under authority, &c.

So Matt. xxvi. 73; Mark x. 45; Luke vi. 32, 34; Jonn iv. 23 (and (that,) because the Father, &c.); Acts xix. 40 (this advice I press,) seeing that, &c.); 1 Cor. v. 7, xii. 13, 14; 2 Cor. v. 4, xiii. 4; 1 Thess. iv. 10; 2 Thess. iii. 10; Heb. v. 12, x. 34, &c. In these cases, καὶ γάρ must generally be rendered simply for (or for, indeed), except when it is desired by paraphrase to bring out its full meaning.

^{*} See Winer, § 53, 10, 3.

But sometimes $\gamma \acute{a}\rho$ is the connective, and κai belongs to the second clause, with the sense of a/so, even ($\gamma \acute{a}\rho$, of course, being placed after it as a postpositive conjunction.) (See Ellicott's note on 2 Thess. iii. 10).

Rom. xi. 1: και γέρ έγω Ἰσραηλίτης είμι, for I also am an Israelite.

Rom. xv. 3: και γὰρ ὁ Χριστὸς οὐχ ἐαυτῷ ἤρεσεν, for even Christ pleased not himself.

So perhaps Heb. xii. 29: καl γαρ ό Θεὸς ήμων πίρ καταναλίσκου, for even our God is a consuming fire.

ASYNDETON.

- 408. The omission of conjunctions, or asyndeton,* often heightens the effect of a paragraph.
- a. The copulative may be omitted, as Gal. v. 22: ό δὲ καρπὸς τοῦ πνεύματός ἐστιν ἀγάπη, χαρά, εἰρήνη, μακροθυμία, χρηστότης, ἀγαθωσύνη, πίστις, πραότης, ἐγκράτεια, But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness, goodness, faith, meekness, self-control.
- b. Kat epexegetic is sometimes dropped. Col. i. 14: ἐν ῷ ἔχομεν τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν, τὴν ἄφεσιν τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν, in whom we have the redemption, the remission of our sins.
- c. The omission of the antithetic may be marked in passages like 1 Cor. xv. 43, 44:—

σπείρεται ἐν φθορᾳ, ἐγείρεται ἐν ἀφθαρσίᾳ. σπείρεται ἐν ἀτιμίᾳ, ἐγείρεται ἐν δόξῃ. σπείρεται ἐν ἀσθενείᾳ, ἐγείρεται ἐν δυνάμει. σπείρεται σῶμα ψυχικόν, ἐγείρεται σῶμα πνευματικόν.

d. The causal particle is occasionally dropped. Rev. xxii. 10; μη σφραγίσης τοὺς λύγους τῆς προφητείας τοῦ βιβλίου τούτου ὁ καιρὸς ἐγγύς ἐστιν, Seal not the words of the prophecy of this book; the time is near. (The rec. text supplies ετι.)

^{* &#}x27;Ασύνδετον, from à, not, and συνδέω, to bind together.

CHAPTER IX.—ON SOME PECULIARITIES IN THE STRUCTURE OF SENTENCES.

409. a. The Arrangement of words in a sentence indicates the order of thought. Hence naturally, the Subject with the words connected takes the leading place, then the Predicate with its adjuncts. Words connected in sense are mostly kept together. The Object usually follows the governing verb; a Genitive or Dative, the word on which it depends; and an Adjective, the substantive with which it agrees.

The opposite constructions are emphatic, as (1) when the Predicate stands first. See the Beatitudes, Matt. v. 3-11; also Matt. vii. 13-15; John i. 1, iv. 19, 24, vi. 60; Rom. viii. 18, unworthy are the suffirings! 2 Tim. ii. 11; (2) the Object before the verb. Luke xvi. 11, the true riches who will entrust to you? John ix. 31; Rom. xiv. 1, &c.; (3) an oblique case before the governing noun. Rom. xi. 13, of Gentiles an apostle; Rom. xii. 19 (Heb. x. 30); 1 Cor. iii. 9; Heb. vi. 16; 1 Pet. iii. 21, &c.; (4) an Adjective before its noun. Matt. vii. 13, through the strait gate (the emphasis being on the narrowness); 1 Tim. vi. 12, 14, where good (καλόs) is repeatedly and strikingly emphatic; James iii. 5.

The usual arrangement of Adverbs, Prepositions, and the Particles generally, has already been sufficiently illustrated.

b. Since, in an inflected language like the Greek, it is unnecessary to indicate the grammatical dependence of words by their order, the arrangement of a sentence may be indefinitely varied for purposes of emphasis; and there is, perhaps, not a paragraph in the New Testament in which the collocation of words does not indicate some subtle meaning or shade of thought, scarcely to be reproduced in the most accurate translation.

Generally speaking, the emphatic positions are at the beginning and the end of a clause, especially the former.

c. Constructions that apparently violate the simplicity of speech may generally also suggest some special emphasis.

1 Cor. xiii. 1: If with the tongues of men I speak ... and of the angels.

Heb. vii. 4: to whom also Abraham gave tithe of the spoils ... the patriarch, i.e., though he bore that sacred character.

1 Pet. ii. 7: for you, then, is the preciousness ... who believe, i.e., on the condition that you are believers.

See also Heb. ii. 9.

The displacement of a word or phrase, as in the above instances, for the sake of greater effect, is sometimes termed Hyperbaton, from $b\pi\epsilon\rho\beta\alpha\ell\nu\omega$.

- 410. Elliptical constructions are not infrequent. Many have already been noticed in their place; as the ellipsis of the Copula, § 166; of the Subject, § 169; of Substantives, § 256, 316. Two important elliptical forms of expression are the following:—
- (1) Aposiopesis, or expressive pause: some look or gesture, or the mind of the hearer, being supposed to supply the rest.

Luke xiii. 9: κῶν μὲν ποιήση καρπόν ... εἰ δὲ μήγε, κ.τ.λ., and if it bear fruit ... but if not, &c.

Acts xxiii. 9: εὶ δὲ πνεῖμα ἐλάλησεν αὐτῷ ἡ ἄγγελος ..., but if a spirit spoke to him, or an angel ... (The following words, let us not fight against God, are regarded by the best editors as an interpolation.)

See also Luke xix. 42, xxii. 42; John vi. 62.

- (2) Zeugma: a construction in which a verb is joined to two or more different objects, though only applicable in strictness to one.
- 1 Cor. iii. 2 : γάλα ὑμᾶς ἐπότισα, οὐ βρῶμα, I gave you milk to drink, not meat.

See also Luke i. 64; Acts iv. 28; 1 Tim. iv. 3 (where the antithetic verb must be understood).

b. In accordance with the primitive simplicity of language, the links between different clauses are sometimes omitted, being left to the reader to supply in thought.

Thus, Rom. vi. 17: Thanks be to God that ye were the servants of sin, but ye obeyed, &c., i.e, "that although ye were once the servants of sin, ye have now obeyed."

So I Tim. i. 13, 14: I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief, but the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant, i.e., "I obtained mercy, because (while I acted thus) the grace of the Lord abounded."

Compare also Matt. xi. 25 · John iii. 19.

411. a. Some forms of expression are apparently redundant. In these cases, a special emphasis may generally be marked.

Instead, therefore, of assuming pleonasm, the careful student will note the emphatic meaning. Frequent cases are the following:-(1) Simple repetition of a phrase. Rom. viii. 15: "ye received not the spirit of bondage, but ye received the spirit of adoption;" Col. i. 28: "warning every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus;" Heb. ii. 16: "he taketh not hold of angels, but he taketh hold of the seed of Abraham." (2) Repetition in a contrasted form. John i. 20: "he confessed, and denied not;" Acts xviii. 9: "Speak, and be not silent;" Rom. ix. 1 (1 Tim. ii. 7): "I speak the truth in Christ, I lie not." (3) The mention of accompanying circumstances, as Matt. v. 2: "he opened his mouth, and said" (comp. Acts viii. 35); John xxi. 13: "Jesus cometh, and taketh the bread, and giveth to them;" where "every separate act of the wonderful occurrence is designedly specified, and, as it were, placed before the eye." * The verbs, come, arise, take, stretch forth (the hand), are frequently found in such connection.

b. An idiom to be especially noticed is that in which an Accusative object and an Object-sentence are both appended to the verb.

In this case also the double expression conveys an emphasis; the attention being first called to the Object, and then to that which is said about it. For examples of this idiom, see § 382, d. Other instances are John xi. 31; Acts iv. 13, ix. 20, xvi. 3; 1 Cor. xvi. 15; Gal. vi. 1.

412. Anacolouthon (ἀνακόλουθον) is literally a breach in the continuity of a sentence, and is a term applied to those numerous instances in which the construction is changed in the course of the same period.

Many so-called anacoloutha are, however, to be explained by laws of construction already laid down. The deviations from strict grammatical construction, excepting in the book of Revelation, are comparatively few, and are generally to be paralleled from classic authors.

The most frequent cases of anacolouthon may be classed as follows:—

a. The transition from the indirect to the direct form of speech—

Luke v. 14: he charged him to tell no man $(\mu\eta\delta\epsilon\nu)$ $\epsilon i\pi\epsilon\hat{\imath}\nu)$, but go and show thyself, &c. $(i\pi\epsilon\lambda\theta)\nu$ $\delta\epsilon\hat{\imath}\xi\nu$, $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$.)

See also Mark vi. 9, xi. 32; Acts i. 4, xvii. 3.

b. The transition from a participial construction to a finite verb—

Eph. i. 20 : $\epsilon \gamma \epsilon i \rho as$ að $\epsilon \delta \nu \dots \kappa a \delta \epsilon \kappa i \delta \delta i \sigma \epsilon \nu$, having raised him ... and he set him.

See also John v. 44; 1 Cor. vii. 37; 2 Cor. v. 6, 8; Col. i. 6, 26; 2 John 2.

c. The use of nominative participles in reference to substantives of any case, standing at a distance in the sentence—

Phil. i. 29, 30: ὑμῖν ἐχαρίσθη τὸ ὑπὲρ Χριστοῦ ... πάσχειν, τὸν αὐτὸν ἀγῶνα ἔχοντες, to you it was granted to suffer for Christ, having the same conflict.

Compare § 397.

d. A change of structure in the course of the sentence—

Luke xi. 11: τίνα ἐξ ὑμῶν τὸν πατέρα αἰτήσει ὁ υίὸς ἄρτον, μὴ λίθον ἐπιδώσει αὐτόν; lit., jrom which of you, the father, shall his son ask bread ... will he give him a stone?

Compare Mark ix. 20; John vi. 22-24; Acts xix. 34.

e. The non-completion of a compound sentence; the second member of a comparison, for instance, being omitted, or only suggested by the general sense of the passage—

1 Tim. i. 3: καθώς παρεκάλεσά σε προσμείναι ἐν Ἐφέσφ, as I exhorted thee to abide in Ephesus (where the E.V. supplies so do at the end of ver. 4, without anything corresponding in the original.)

Rom. v. 12: As by one man sin entered into the world. The antithesis, Winer thinks, is completed in sense, though not in form, in ver. 15. Others suppose a long parenthesis from ver. 13-17, inclusive; the parallel being resumed and completed in ver. 18.

See also 2 Pet, ii. 4.

To this head may be referred the frequent occurrence of $\mu \acute{e}\nu$ without the corresponding $\delta \acute{e}$. (See § 404.)

413. An attention to sound and rhythm in the structure of sentences is sometimes observable.

a. Paronomasia, or alliteration, was a common ornament of speech with Oriental writers. Hence its employment in the New Testament.

Luke xxi. 11: λιμοί καὶ λοιμοί ἔσονται.

Acts xvii. 25 : ζωήν καὶ πνοήν.

Heb. v. 8: ἔμαθεν ἀφ' ὧν ἔπαθε.

Rom. i. 29 : μεστούς φθόνου, φόνου.

These are instances of alliteration proper, there being no connection between the words in meaning. Where such a connection exists, the effect of the sentence is rather in the sense than in the sound.

Matt. xvi. 18: σὺ εἶ Πέτρος, καὶ ἐπὶ ταύτη τῆ πέτρα, κ.τ.λ.

Acts viii. 30 : ἀρά γε γινώσκεις à ἀναγινώσκεις ;

Rom. xii. $3: \mu \dot{\eta}$ ύπερφρονεῖν $\pi a \rho$ ο δεῖ φρονεῖν, ἀλλὰ φρονεῖν εἰς τὸ σωφρονεῖν.

1 Tim. i. 8: καλὸς ὁ νόμος, ἐάν τις αὐτῷ νομίμως χρῆται.

In the Epistle to Philemon there are probably allusions to the name of Onesimus, δνήσιμος, profitable. (See ver. 11, and δναίμην, ver. 20.)

b. As the characteristic of Hebrew poetry is to run in parallel clauses, it might naturally be expected that in passages of strong and sustained feeling, the same peculiarity would be found in the New Testament.* There are some decided instances, as 1 Tim. iii. 16:

> έφανερώθη έν σαρκί ... έδικαιώθη έν πνεύματι. ἄφθη ἀγγέλοις ... έκηρύχθη ἐν ἔθνεσιν. ἐπιστεύθη ἐν κόσμφ ... ἀνελήφθη ἐν δόξη.

This passage was probably part of a rhythmical creed of the early Church, or of a primitive Christian hymn. For true hymns, see also Luke i. 46-55, 68-79, ii. 29-32; Eph. v. 14; Jude 24, 25; Rev. v. 12-14, &c.

Rom. ix. 2: λύπη μοι ἐστὶ μεγάλη, καὶ ἀδιάλειπτος ὀδύνη τῆ καρδία μου.

Here we have the tone of strong emotion.

For similar rhythmic constructions, see John xiv. 27; Rom. xi. 33; 1 Cor. xv. 54-57; Col. i. 10-12, and many other passages. The parallel clauses often contain strong contrasts, as John iii. 20, 21; Rom. ii. 6-10, where a long series occurs.

Sometimes the construction is more elaborate; a second series of clauses corresponding with the first, but in reverse order. This is called "reverted parallelism," or chiasmus,† or cpanodos (ἐπάνοδος). See a simple illustration, § 312, 1. Simpler still is Matt. xii. 22: "the blind and dumb, both spake and saw." Compare Matt. vii. 6.

So Phil. iii. 10: "TO KNOW HIM, and the power of his resurrection,
and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death,
if by any means I might attain to the resurrection (¿ἐἐανάστασιν) of the dead."

Other more elaborate harmonies of the kind might easily be traced. The whole subject connects itself with the study of the influence of the Old Testament upon the New—an important field of enquiry, as yet only very partially explored.

^{*} See Jebb's "Sacred Literature," and especially the versions of the Epistle to the Romans by the Rev. J. H. Hinton, A.M., and by the Rev. Dr. Forbes.

[†] From the letter chi, X.

c. (1) Three quotations of Greek poetry have been found in the New Testament, all by the Apostle Paul.

Acts xvii. 28: τοῦ γὰρ καὶ γένος ἐσμέν (the former half of a hexameter), by Aratus, a native of Tarsus, B.c. 270; found also with a little variation (ἐκ σοῦ γάρ) in Cleanthes, a poet of Troas, B.c. 300.

1 Cor. xv. 33: φθείρουσιν ήθη χρήσθ' όμιλίαι κακαί, from Menander, an Athenian comic poet, about B.C. 320. (The measure is iambic trimeter.)

Titus i. 12: Κρῆτες ἀεὶ ψεῦσται, κακὰ θηρία, γαστέρες ἀργαί (a complete hexameter), by Epimenides, the Cretan bard (see ver. 5), about B.C. 600.

(2) There are also apparently unconscious verses, such as will sometimes occur in prose style.

Compare the anapæstic line-

"To preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

And the English hexameter-

"Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them."

Also the iambic couplet -

"Her ways are ways of pleasantness, And all her paths are peace."

The following have been traced :-

Hexameters-

Heb. xii. 13: καὶ τροχιὰς ὀρθὰς ποιήσατε τοῖς ποσὶν ὑμῶν.

James i. 17 : πᾶσα δόσις ἀγάθη καὶ πᾶν δώρημα τέλειον.

Iambic measure—

Acts xxiii. 5 : ἄρχοντα τοῦ λαοῦ σου οὐκ ἐρεῖς κακῶς.

This last is a quotation from the LXX. (Exod. xxii. 28). It is possible that the others may be citations also from some unknown poetic source.

ANALYTICAL EXERCISE ON THE SECOND EPISTLE TO THE THESSALONIANS.

The following Exercise illustrates the application of many of the foregoing rules to an extended portion of the New Testament. The figures refer to the Sections, which the student is recommended to consult.

Verbal analysis is not given, as being unnecessary at the present stage. No word, however, should be left without its stem, declension, conjugation, &c., being accurately known. The verbs of the Epistle have already been taken as material for an Exercise (Ex. 15, p. 137).

The Epistle is given as in the Received Text, important corrections being subjoined in the Notes. No interpretation of difficult passages is attempted. The first duty of the New Testament student is to ascertain the plain grammatical meaning of the text: the way to its explanation will then be open.

ANALYTICAL EXERCISE.

CHAPTER I.

ΠΑΥΛΟΣ καὶ Σιλουανὸς καὶ Τιμόθεος, τῆ ἐκκλησίᾳ Θεσσαλονικέων ἐν Θεῷ πατρὶ ἡμῶν καὶ Κυρίῳ Ἰησοῦ Χριστῷ · ² χάρις

Ver. r. Paul, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, nominatives; the compound subject of the sentence of salutation, some such predicate as "send greeting," being understood, involved in χάρις, ver. 2. (For the proper names, see 159, c, d.) to the church, dat. of transmission, 278; secondary obj. of the implied verb. of Thessalonians, extension of secondary obj.; gen. of material (or origin, 248); article omitted, 233, because only some in Thessalonica belonged to the church. in God our Father, ύμιν καὶ εἰρήνη ἀπὸ Θεοῦ πατρὸς ἡμῶν και Κυρίου Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ.

³ Εύχαριστεῖν ὀφείλομεν τῷ Θεῷ πάντοτε περὶ ὑμῶν, ἀδελφοὶ, καθὼς ἄξιόν ἐστιν, ὅτι ὑπεραυξάνει ἡ πίστις ὑμῶν, καὶ πλεονάζει ἡ ἀγάπη ἐνὸς ἐκάστου πάντων ὑμῶν εἰς ἀλλήλους · ⁴ ὤστε ἡμᾶς αὐτοὺς ἐν ὑμῖν καυχᾶσθαι ἐν ταῖς ἐκκλησίαις τοῦ Θεοῦ, ὑπὲρ τῆς ὑπομονῆς ὑμῶν καὶ πίστεως ἐν πᾶσι τοῖς διωγμοῖς ὑμῶν καὶ ταῖς further extension of $\ell \kappa \kappa \lambda \eta \sigma \ell q$; for $\ell \nu$, see 295, 4; $\pi \alpha \tau \rho \ell$, dat. by apposition, 177; $\hat{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$, unemphatic possessive, 333. and the Lord Jesus Christ, Kip $\ell \phi$ under the same regimen with $\Theta \epsilon \hat{\phi}$, without the article, intimating that the union is one and the same with both. See 232, and compare 217, a, b (3), e, note.

Ver. 2. Grace unto you, and peace (the Eastern and Western modes of salutation), subj. of omitted verb, $\epsilon \ell \eta$; comp. 166. from God our Father, extension of subj.; for $\hat{\alpha}\pi \delta$, see 292, 2 (John, in a similar connection, uses $\pi \alpha \rho d$, 2 Ep. ver. 3; $\hat{\epsilon}\kappa$ is more usual). and the Lord Jesus Christ, prep. not repeated, 314, to show that the source is one.

Ver. 3. We are bound, δφ. plur., as referring to the three in ver. 1 (some, less probably, understand the Apostle as speaking of himself, see 239); to thank God, εὐχ., inf. in its ordinary use, 385; tense as 386; for dat. Θεφ, see 278, d. always, adv. qualifying εὐχ. concerning you, for περί, see 302, a. brethren, voc., as is meet, ἄξιδν, neuter, as referring to the substantivized clause. because your faith greatly increases (ὅτι causal, 407), explanation of the clause immediately preceding. For ὑπέρ in composition, see 147, α; the verb is nowhere else found in the New Testament. and the love of every one of you all to one another abounds, ἐνος ἐκάστον, possess. gen., 254 (comp. 269); παντ. ὑμ., partitive gen., 261; present tenses as 361, α. For εἰς (dependent upon ἀγάπη), see 298, 3.

Ver. 4. So that we ourselves boast in you, $\omega\sigma\tau\epsilon$, 391; $\eta\mu$. $a\vartheta\tau$. (emphatic), subj. of inf., 285, 387; $\epsilon\nu$, 295, 4; Lachmann and Tischendorf read $\epsilon\gamma\kappa\alpha\nu\chi\hat{\alpha}\sigma\theta\alpha$. among the churches of God, for $\epsilon\nu$, see 295, 2; for the art. with Θ , 217, α . for your endurance and faith, $\delta\tau\epsilon\rho$, 303, α , 3. For the one article with the two nouns, see 232, α ; the endurance and faith combine to form one character. in all your persecutions, and the afflictions, the article repeated, 232, $\delta\nu$. Which ye endure, $\delta\nu$ 5, dat. by attraction (for $\delta\nu$ 7, as the verb governs a gen. in the New Testament, 2 Cor. xi. 1; 2 Tim. iv. 3), 346, $\delta\nu$ 5; $\delta\nu\epsilon\chi$ 6, only middle in the New Testament, act., "to hold up;" so mid., "to hold one's self up against," θλίψεσιν αις ἀνέχεσθε, δ ἔνδειγμα τῆς δικαίας κρίσεως τοῦ Θεοῦ, εἰς τὸ καταξιωθῆναι ὑμᾶς τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Θεοῦ, β ὑπὲρ ῆς καὶ πάσχετε εἴπερ δίκαιον παρὰ Θεῷ ἀνταποδοῦναι τοῖς θλίβουσιν ὑμᾶς θλίψιν, τα καὶ ὑμῦν τοῖς θλιβομένοις ἄνεσιν μεθ' ἡμῶν, ἐν τῆ ἀποκαλύψει τοῦ Κυρίου Ἰησοῦ ἀπ' οὐρανοῦ μετ' ἀγγέλων δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ, β ἐν πυρὶ φλογὸς, διδόντος ἐκδίκησιν τοῖς μὴ εἰδόσι Θεὸν, καὶ τοῖς μὴ ὑπακούουσι τῷ εὐαγγελίω τοῦ Κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ

Ver. 5. (Which is) a token, nom. (pred. to an implied relative clause, $\delta \ \ell \sigma \tau \nu$); the token being the endurance and faith of the Thessalonians. of the righteous judgment of God, genitives of origin or source, 248; article again employed. in order that ye may be counted worthy, for inf., see 390, c; tense, 386; $\nu \mu \tilde{a}s$, 285. The clause expresses the intent of God's righteous judgment; and hence its result, in proving the fitness of the faithful for God's kingdom. of the kingdom of God, $\beta \alpha \sigma$, gen. after compound of $\delta \xi \iota \sigma s$, 272.

Ver. 6. For the sake of which ye also suffer, for $\delta\pi\tilde{\epsilon}\rho$, see 303, 2. The $\kappa\alpha$ l combines into one the thought of the suffering and the being counted worthy. if truly it is righteous (as it is, implied by $-\kappa\rho$), copula omitted; $\delta\kappa$. neut., because referring to inf. with God, for $\pi\alpha\rho\tilde{\alpha}$ (dat.), see 306, β , 2. to repay to those who afflict you, affliction, in the verb, $\dot{\alpha}\pi\delta$ marks the debt, $\dot{\alpha}\nu\tau$ 1 the return; for the aorist, see 386. (This verb is used both in a good and a bad sense in the New Testament: to "repay" or to "retaliate," Rom. xii. 19.) For the art. and participle, see 395; dat. secondary object, and acc. primary object after the verb, 278.

Ver. 7. And to you, the afflicted, $\theta \lambda i \beta$. is passive (not middle). rest with us, $\mu \epsilon \tau \dot{\alpha}$, as 301, α , 1; $\dot{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$, referring to the three, ch. i. 1. at (\$\ell \nu\$, 295, 7) the revelation of the Lord Jesus from heaven, the time when the recompense shall take place, referred to $\dot{\alpha} = \tau \alpha \pi$, ver. 6; $\dot{\alpha} \pi \phi$, 292, 1; $o \dot{\nu} \rho a \nu o \dot{\nu}$, singular, 240, α , note, and without article, 218. with the angels of his power, compare 258. The angels are the ministers of his power. The art. is unnecessary before $\dot{\alpha} \gamma \gamma$., as the following gen. defines it, 208.

Ver. 8. In a fire of flame, ἐν of investiture, dependent upon K. Ιησ., 295, 3 (Lachm. and others read ἐν φλογὶ πυρόs, in a flame of fire); rec. reading, φλογός; gen. of quality or attribute, 257. allotting vengeance, διδοντος refers to Ἰησοῦ. (The verb in this connection is unusual.) to those who know not God, dat., 278; art. and part., 395; μή, the subjective negative, see 393. and to those who obey not, for the repeated article, see 232, b. the gospel, dat., 278, d. of our Lord Jesus, see 270, note. Christ. (Modern editors generally omit Χριστοῦ.)

Χριστοῦ· ⁹ οἴτινες δίκην τίσουσιν, ὅλεθρον αἰώνιον ἀπὸ προσώπον τοῦ Κυρίου, καὶ ἀπὸ τῆς δόξης τῆς ἰσχύος αὐτοῦ, ¹⁰ ὅταν ἔλθη ἐνδοξασθῆναι ἐν τοῖς ἁγίοις αὐτοῦ, καὶ θαυμασθῆναι ἐν πᾶσι τοῖς πιστεύουσιν, ὅτι ἐπιστεύθη τὸ μαρτύριον ἡμῶν ἐφ' ὑμᾶς, ἐν τῆ ἡμέρα ἐκείνη. ¹¹ εἰς ὃ καὶ προσευχόμεθα πάντοτε περὶ ὑμῶν, ἵνα ὑμᾶς ἀξιώση τῆς κλήσεως ὁ Θεὸς ἡμῶν, καὶ πληρώση πᾶσαν

Ver. 9. Who, the compound relative, denoting character and suggesting the reason, 349. shall pay (the) penalty, eternal destruction, acc. in apposition with $\delta(\kappa n \nu)$, 177. (away) from the presence of the Lord, art. omitted before $\pi \rho \rho \sigma d \pi \sigma \nu$, 219. The meaning of $\partial \pi \sigma \delta$ is doubtful. It may either refer to the source of the punishment, 292, 3, "inflicted by the presence of the Lord," or to the fact of separation, 292, 1, this being itself the doom. Probably the latter meaning is to be adopted. and from the glory of his might, the preposition repeated, to indicate a distinct conception; $\partial \chi \sigma \delta \sigma$ is the gen. of origin, 248. The glory is that of God's manifested might, and exclusion from this beatific vision shall be destruction.

Ver. 10. When he shall have come, ὅταν with subj., 379; fut. perf. force of subj. aor., 383. β (ὅταν as ἐάν). to be glorified, inf. of design, 390, 3, note; for tense, 386. in (or among, 295, 2) his saints, and to be admired in (or among) all who believe (read πιστεύσασιν, aor. part., "already believers," compare 364, e); probably ἐν here is to be taken, not as among simply, but as showing the sphere (295, 4) in which the glory will be displayed, and from which the admiration will spring. because our testimony to you was believed, parenthetical expansion of πιστείσασιν, and the one aor. helps to explain the other: then, belief will have become a fact of the past. ἡμῶν is gen. of origin. For ἐπί, dependent on μαρτήφιον, see 305. γ, 4. in that day, clause dependent on ἐνδοξ. καὶ θανμ., thrown somewhat out of order, compare 409, c. For ἐν, see 295, 7; ἐκείνη, the emphatic demonstrative, 340, note.

Ver. 11. Whereto we also pray, & denoting direction, 298, 4; 3, rel. pron., acc. neut., antecedent in the entire previous sentence, 344; al, with reference to the general sentiment of the preceding, "we not only indulge the hope, but also express it in prayer." always concerning you, 313. 2. that (384, note) our God may count you worthy of the calling, gen., as 272, and for art., see 210. The meaning of & & of is doubtful: make worthy would appear best to suit the context, but this sense of the verb in the New Testament is unexampled. and fulfil every good pleasure (see 224, a; 214, c) of goodness, i.e., every voluntary purpose that can spring from (gen. orig.) goodness; not God's goodness, for which & always from goodness as an element of Christian character, so corresponding with the next clause. and work (also qualified by πάσαν, see 318) of faith (248) in power (295, 6), qualifying πληρώση, "powerfully fulfil."

Ver. 12. In order that the name of our Lord Jesus (Christ), $\delta\pi\omega$ s, as distinguished from $\ell\nu\alpha$, seems to denote the $\hbar\omega$ as contrasted with the where; but the line cannot be very clearly drawn. $\kappa\rho$ as contrasted by most edd. may be glorified (384, α , 1; tense, 374, note) in you (see on ver. 10), and you (understand $\ell\nu\delta$ 0 ℓ 0 ℓ 0 ℓ 0 ℓ 1, in him (or ℓ 1 ℓ 1, i.e., the name, but less probably. See Alford, and 295, 4, note), according to, for $\kappa\alpha\tau\dot{\alpha}$, see 300, β , 5. the grace of our God and Lord Jesus Christ (or of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ), see 232, α , note on Titus ii. 13, where, however, the phrases are different. $\kappa\dot{\nu}\rho$ 100 is so often properly anarthrous (217, \hbar 1) that the former of the above renderings is at least doubtful. (See Ellicott here).

Ver. 1. But (δέ transitional, 4c4; the writer's mind passing from his own prayers to the duty of his readers) we entreat you, brethren, in reference to, 303, α, 3 (not by, as if in adjuration. See Alf.) the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our (gen. obj., 268) gathering together unto him, for ἐπί, see 305, γ, 3 (Mark v. 21), not up to, although the reference is to the final gathering.

ότι ἐνέστηκεν ἡ ἡμέρα τοῦ Χριστοῦ. ³ Μή τις ὑμᾶς ἐξαπατήση κατὰ μηδένα τρόπον ^{*} ὅτι ἐὰν μὴ ἔλθη ἡ ἀποστασία πρῶτον, καὶ ἀποκαλυφθῆ ὁ ἄνθρωπος τῆς ἁμαρτίας, ὁ υἱὸς τῆς ἀπωλείας, ⁴ ὁ ἀντικείμενος καὶ ὑπεραιρόμενος ἐπὶ πάντα λεγόμενον Θεὸν ἡ σέβασμα, ὤστε αὐτὸν εἰς τὸν ναὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ ὡς Θεὸν καθίσαι, ἀποδεικνύντα ἑαυτὸν ὅτι ἐστὶ Θεός. ⁵ οὐ μνημονεύετε ὅτι ἔτι ὢν the repeated μήτε here breaks up the negation into three parts, and connects them. For διά, see 299, α, 2. (Spirit no doubt refers to a pretended prophecy; word, to a pretended saying on inspired authority; letter, therefore, according to the parallel, should mean a pretended epistle. That the reference is not to the First Epistle, the &s seems further to indicate). as that (2 Cor. v. 19 shows that the &s does not in itself imply deceit, but only that the thing was so represented—"to the effect that"). the day of the Christ (or Lord; Kupiov is the accepted reading, instead of Χριστοῦ) is already come (or, is imminent, immediately), not simply is at hand, for the verb always refers to the present; the part. ἐνεστώs expressly signifying the present in distinction from the future (Rom. viii. 38; 1 Cor. iii. 22.)

Ver. 3. Let no one deceive you, $\xi \xi a\pi$., subj. in imper. sense, 375; aor., 373, b. in $(\kappa a\tau \acute{a}, 300, \beta, 5)$ any way, the two negatives strengthen the denial, 401. because, unless the apostasy, definite, 213. shall first have come (383, β , note), and the man of sin (the sin, 214, b) shall have been revealed,—the Apostle does not conclude the sentence, see 412, e, but passes on to describe the characteristics of the "man of sin." the son of perdition (genitives of quality).

Ver. 4. He that withstands, and exalts himself (middle, 355, 1). Obs., the single article shows that the two participles refer to the same subject. But $\partial \nu \tau i \kappa \epsilon' \mu \epsilon \nu \sigma s$ cannot take $\partial \pi'$ following; an object must, therefore, be understood, Christ. On the tense, see 395. above (305, 7, 2) every one called God, observe $\pi d \nu \tau a$, masc. or an object of worship, $\theta \epsilon \delta \nu a$ and $\theta \epsilon \delta a \sigma \mu a$, accus., in apposition with $\pi d \nu \tau a$ after copulative verb. so that he sits, for $\delta \sigma \tau a$, see 391; $\kappa a \theta \delta \sigma a$, intrans. aor., "he took his seat," and so now is seated $\delta a \tau a$ in-literally, $\delta a \tau a$ intrans. aor., "he took his seat," constructio $\delta a \tau a$ is exhibiting himself that he is God, $\delta a \tau a \tau a$ intrans. acc. by $\delta \tau a \tau a \tau a$ is expressing his habit. For the object and object-sentence, see 411, $\delta a \tau a \tau a$ is emphatic.

Ver 5. Remember ye not, interrog., 369, b. that, introducing object-sentence, 380. When yet with you, ων, part. in apposition with subj. of ἔλεγον; for πρός, see 307, γ, 2. I used to tell you these things, for imperf., see 362, b; ὑμῶν, 278, b.

πρὸς ὑμᾶς ταῦτα ἔλεγον ὑμῖν; ⁶ καὶ νῦν τὸ κατέχον οἴδατε, εἰς τὸ ἀποκαλυφθῆναι αὐτὸν ἐν τῷ ἑαυτοῦ καιρῷ. ⁷ τὸ γὰρ μυστήριον ἤδη ἐνεργεῖται τῆς ὰνομίας, μόνον ὁ κατέχων ἄρτι ἕως ἐκ μέσου γένηται · ⁸ καὶ τότε ἀποκαλυφθήσεται ὁ ἄνομος, ὃν ὁ Κύριος ἀναλώσει τῷ πνεύματι τοῦ στόματος αὐτοῦ, καὶ καταργήσει τῆ ἐπιφανείᾳ τῆς παρουσίας αὐτοῦ · ⁹ οῦ ἐστιν ἡ παρουσία κατ ἐνέργειαν τοῦ Σατανᾶ ἐν πάση δυνάμει καὶ σημείοις καὶ

Ver. 6. And now ye know what hinders, νῦν temporal (as when with you I gave you the information, so now ye know), or logical, without reference to time (Ellicott); τὸ κατέχον, part., substantivized. in order that he should be revealed in his own time, for εἰs, see 390, c. The hindrance is "in order to" the revelation being made at the right time, as a barrier might be said to be for the proper admission of a multitude. For ἐν, see 295, 7; for the position of ἐαντοῦ, reflex. pron., 229.

Ver. 7. For, 407, explanatory of the hindrance. the mystery of the lawlessness (or iniquity) is already at work, ἀνομίας, definite, gen. either of apposition, 259, "the mystery which is the iniquity;" or of quality, 257, "the mystery characterized by (the) iniquity;" ήδη, adv. of time, ενεργ., middle present, 361, α. only, μόνον, adv. he who hinders, change from neut. to masc. at present, until he shall have been taken out of the way (midst). This clause may either be read, by a slight inversion of words, as dependent upon the former—"is at work only until he who at present hinders be taken out of the way," the objection to which is the unnatural position of εως—or by supposing an ellipsis of a predicate, "only he who hinders (is working, ἐνεργείται) as yet, until," &c. In this case, the thought which γάρ introduces is in the latter, not the former clause of the verse. Compare the examples in 410, b. (For, although the mystery is even now working, there is as yet a "hinderer.") For ἐκ μέσον, see 219.

Ver. 8. And then, i.e., when the restraining power or person is taken out of the way, $\tau \delta \tau \epsilon$ emphatic. shall the lawless one be revealed, 210. whom the Lord (Jesus added, as in best MSS.) will consume by the breath (Spirit), 280, d. of his mouth, 248. and will destroy by the manifestation of his coming, 258.

Ver. 9. Whose coming is, οῦ, correspondent with ὅν, ver. 8, relative to ἄνομος. according to the working of Satan, κατά as 300, 5; ἐνεργ. anarthrous, "such working, in general, as Satan would perform." For the gen., Σατ., see 20, α. in (of investiture or accompaniment, 295, 3) all power and signs and wonders, πάτη in sense belongs to all three nouns, 318, and denotes "every kind of," 224, α. of falsehood, prob.

gen, of origin, 248 (these things being severally born of falsehood), or perhaps gen. of quality, as E.V.

Ver. 10. And in all (every kind of, as ver. 9) deceit, parallel to the former prepositional clause with έν, the two together explanatory of κατ. ένεργ. Ver. 11. And on this account, 299, b, i.e., because they received not, &c. God will send (or, is sending; πέμπει, not πέμψει, is the approved reading), explanatory of the ἀπολλυμένοις. to them (dat. of transmission) a working of delusion, parallel to ενέργειαν above, gen. of characteristic quality, 257. so that they should believe (the intent. and so the result, of the delusion, 390, c) the falsehood, dative, 278, d; article of "renewed mention," 212.

Ver. 12. That they might all be judged, a second intentional clause, 384, growing out of the preced. who believed not the truth, 395, b; for negative, see 393. but took pleasure, the conduct viewed as past from the point of view of their condemnation. in the iniquity, art. as 212.

Ver. 13. But we, emphatic pron., 169. are bound to give thanks to God always concerning you, see on ch. i. 3. brethren beloved by the Lord (i.e., by Christ, see 217, b), because God (for art., see 217, a) chose you (var. read., είλατο, see 97, b, note), causal sentence; compare the on in ch. i. 3. from the beginning, 219. unto salvation, dependent upon «/A.; for els, see 298, 4. in sanctification of the Spirit, & denoting the sphere (295, 4) in which the salvation is realized. Πνευμ. is gen. of the author, 248; for omitted article, see 217, f. and belief of truth (or, the truth), πίστει without the art., like άγιασμώ, under the common regimen of $\epsilon \nu$, 314; see also 208. Truth is abstract, 214, and is used in the utmost generality; not so much the specific truth of the Gospel, but the Gospel considered as truth; the disposition given being that of harmony with truth in itself, whatever it might be.

Ver. 14. Unto which (state of salvation), the neuter relative referring to the whole object of thought; compare 344. he called you, aor., as before, of specific time. by means of, 299, a, 2. our gospel, i.e., the Gospel as preached by us, see 270, note. for the attainment of the glory, cis, connected with and explanatory of cis σωτ.; δοξ., gen. obj., 263. (The glory of Christ is regarded as in a sense the heritage of Christians; compare John xvii. 24.) of our Lord Jesus Christ, possess.

Ver. 15. Accordingly therefore, for the inferential conjunction, see 406. brethren, stand fast (derivative of ἔστηκα, see 106, 4), and hold fast the instructions, acc. obj. of κρατ., compare 264. which ye were taught, αs, secondary object, with pass. ἐδιδάχ., see 284, note, and 356. whether by word, 299, α, 2. or by our (248) epistle. For ἐτε, see 405.

Ver 16. But may our Lord himself, δέ, as usual, adversative, 404; αδτός, very emphatic, 335. Jesus Christ, and (may) our God and Father (or, God and our Father, see Ellicott on Gal. i. 4) For our God, see ch. i. 11. Who loved us, referring to the last antecedent, God the Father (aor., as referring to a single and complete act). and gave eternal consolation and good hope, abstract, anarthrous; better rendered without indef. art. in grace, connected with δούς, 295, 6 and 4.

Ver. 17. Comfort, for opt., see 378: sing., indicative of the close union between the Father and the Son; so the following. your hearts, plur., see 237. and establish you, such being the order of the best authorities), by denotes again the element; that in which the confirmation is given.

CHAPTER III.

ΤΟ λοιπον, προσεύχεσθε, ἀδελφοὶ, περί ἡμῶν, ἴνα ὁ λόγος τοῦ Κυρίου τρέχη καὶ δοξάζηται, καθὼς καὶ πρὸς ὑμᾶς, ² καὶ ἴνα ρυσθώμεν ἀπὸ τῶν ἀτόπων καὶ πονηρῶν ὰυθρώπων · οὐ γὰρ πάντων ἡ πίστις. ³ πιστὸς δέ ἐστιν ὁ Κύριος, δς στηρίξει ὑμᾶς καὶ ψυλάξει ἀπὸ τοῦ πονηροῦ. ⁴ πεποίθαμεν δὲ ἐν Κυρίφ ἐφ' ὑμᾶς, ὀτι ὰ παραγγέλλομεν ὑμῦν, καὶ ποιείτε καὶ ποιήσετε.

Ver. 1. For the rest (as to what remains to be said), neut. adj., acc. of time (comp. 286, b, z; see also 266, and Ellicott on Gal. vi. 17). pray, brethren, for us, for $\pi\epsilon\rho l$, see on i. 11; also for $l\nu a$. that the word of the Lord may have free course (run) and be glorified, passive, not (as some) middle. even as also (it is) with you, $\kappa a l$ adds in thought the Thessalonian Church to the other places where the word achieved success. For $\pi\rho\delta s$, see 307, γ , 2.

Ver. 2. And that we may be delivered, aor. subj., showing that a specific deliverance is desired, 374, note; the pres. subj., ver. 1, suggesting continuous success, 374, note. from the perverse and wicked men, the article denoting a class, as the hypocrites, Matt. vi. 2, probably specifying the Jewish party in Corinth, whence this Ep. was written. for the faith, the Christian faith, see 213 (not faith in general, which in this connection would hardly have been definite. does not belong to all, lit., "(is) not of all," i.e., is not their possession, see 267, note.

Ver. 3. But (although the faith is denied by so many) faithful is the Lord, a paronomasia with the preceding clause, 413, a, 2. who will establish you, ref. to στηρίξαι, ii. 17. and guard (you) from evil, or less appropriately (yet see Ellicott), the Evil One. Comp. the quotations in 316, p. 292. The neuter sense is sustained by the close connection through στηρίξ, with ἔργω in ii. 17. For ἀπό, see 292, 1.

Ver. 4. But we trust, the adversative δέ bringing the future just expressed into antithesis with the present (so Ellicott). in the Lord, 295, 4 (not simply "in the Lord, who will bring this about by his goodness," but being in Him, as the element of our life and hope, we trust); for πέπουθα, see 99, c, note, also 367. in reference to you, for ἐπί, see 305, γ, 4. that what we command (you) now, as the verb. is pres.; ὑμῦν (dat. by 278. b) is doubtful. ye both are doing, and will do, for καὶ... καί, see 403. The whole clause from ὅτι depends on πεποίθ. as an object-sentence, 380.

δ δε Κύριος κατευθύναι ύμων τὰς καρδίας εἰς τὴν ἀγάπην τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ εἰς ὑπομονὴν τοῦ Χριστοῦ.

6 Παραγγέλλομεν δε ύμιν, άδελφοι, εν ονόματι του Κυρίου ήμων Ίησου Χριστου, στέλλεσθαι ύμας άπο παυτός άδελφου άτάκτως περιπατουντος, και μη κατά την παράδοσιν ην παρέλαβε παρ΄ ήμων. 7 αυτοι γαρ οιδατε πως δεί μιμεισθαι ήμας στι ουκ ήτακτήσαμεν εν ύμιν, 8 ουδε δωρεάν άρτον εφάγομεν παρά τινος,

Ver. 5. But, again slightly adversative, "though this is the case, yet as a further blessing." may the Lord, i.e., Jesus Christ himself, 217, b. (As Christ is separately mentioned at the close of the verse, some refer K. here to the Holy Spirit, quoting 2 Cor. iii. 18; but the argument is very doubtful.) direct your hearts, opt., as in ii. 17; $\delta\mu\Delta\nu$ slightly emphatic from position. into the love of God, for ϵ is, see 293, 1; Θ co δ objective, 269. and into the patience of Christ, prep. repeated, as of a separate object of thought, 314. Before $\delta\pi$, the art. $\tau \dot{\eta} \nu$ should undoubtedly be inserted. Xp. is probably gen. of possession, 254, "such patience as Christ exhibited;" or it may be gen. of author, "the patience that Christ imparts." The objective sense given in E.V., "patient waiting for," is not supported by the meaning of $\delta\pi\nu\rho\nu\nu\dot{\eta}$.

Ver. 6. Now, δέ, transitional (404, ii.) to the preceptive part. we command you, brethren, for παραγ, see ver. 4. in the name of (our or the) Lord Jesus Christ (ἡμῶν, doubtful), ἐν ὀνόμ., dependent upon παρ., 295, 5. that ye withdraw yourselves, object. inf., with acc. subject, 285; στέλλ., only mid. in the New Testament; active, to put together; mid., to draw one's self together, 355, 1; hence to shrink from, with acc., as in 2 Cor. viii. 20, or with ἀπό, as here. from every brother walking disorderly, and not, subjective neg. according to, 300, 5. the instruction (see, ii. 15) which he (or they) received, ἡν, obj. of παρελαβ., 343. The reading here is doubtful; most modern critics preferring they received (παρέλαβον) in reference to the implicit plural in παντός, by synesis, 175. from us, for παρά, see 306, α.

Ver. 7. For yourselves know, emphatic pron. subj.; γdρ suggests an implied thought: "I need not enter into details, for." how ye ought to imitate us (for the impersonal verbs, see 101), "a brachylogy" (Ellicott), implying περιπατεῖν, from preced., "how ye ought to walk—in fact, to imitate us." because we were not disorderly, δτι gives the reason for μιμεῖσθαι, "we propose our conduct for imitation, because." among you, 295, 2,

Ver. 8. Nor, slightly ascensive, "nay, and we did not," 404. did we eat bread, 306, α , 350 (to eat bread is a quasi-proverbial phrase for "to

ἀλλ' ἐν κόπῳ καὶ μόχθῳ, νύκτα καὶ ἡμέραν ἐργαζόμενοι, πρὸς το μὴ ἐπιβαρῆσαί τινα ὑμῶν · 9 οὐχ ὅτι οὐκ ἔχομεν ἐξουσίαν, ἀλλ ἴνα ἑαυτοὺς τύπον δῶμεν ὑμῖν εἰς τὸ μιμεῖσθαι ἡμᾶς. ¹⁰ καὶ γὰρ ὅτε ἡμεν πρὸς ὑμᾶς, τοῦτο παρηγγέλλομεν ὑμῖν, ὅτι εἴ τις οὐ θέλει ἐργάζεσθαι, μηδὲ ἐσθιέτω. ¹¹ ἀκούομεν γάρ τινας περιπατοῦντας ἐν ὑμῖν ἀτάκτως, μηδὲν ἐργαζομένους, ἀλλὰ περιεργαζομένους. ¹² τοῖς ὸὲ τοιούτοις παραγγέλλομεν καὶ παρακαλοῦμεν διὰ τοῦ Κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, ἵνα μετὰ ἡσυχίας ἐργαζόμενοι make a living"). for nought, δωρεάν, an old acc. as adv., 126, α; compare its use in Matt. x. δ, "without an equivalent;" so in other passages. from any one, 306, α. but in (accompaniment, 295, 3) toil and travail (we did so) labouring night and day, 286, b, 2. Both these clauses depend on ἐφάγομεν, implied. in order not to be burdensome, for πρός with inf., see 390, c. to any of you, for acc., compare 281, α; δμών, partitive gen., 262.

Ver. 9. Not that, a frequent elliptical formula, correcting a possible misapprehension, "do not suppose me to say that" (see Ellicott on Phil. iii. 12). We have not a right (to maintenance), but (we do so) in order that we may present ourselves, δῶμεν, aor. of one definite determination; for ἐαντούς, see 335, 2, b. an example, secondary predicate, in apposition with ἑαντ. to you, to the end that, ϵἰς as in ii. 11, &c. (ye) should imitate us.

Ver. 10. For even, see 407, note. When we were among you, for $\pi\rho\delta s$, compare ii. 5. We used to enjoin this upon you, impf., 362, b; for $\pi\alpha\rho\alpha\gamma\gamma\epsilon\lambda\lambda\omega$ and its regimen, see ver. 4, 6. that, introducing objective sentence explanatory of $\tau o \partial \tau o$, but thrown into a quotation form, 382, a; hence $\epsilon\sigma\theta$ imper. "if any one wills not to work," for ϵi , see 383, a; for $\theta\epsilon\lambda\epsilon i$, 363, f. "neither let him eat," neg., 371.

Ver. 11. For, introducing the reason of the command. we hear that some are walking, predicative participle, 394. among you, ἐν as ver. 7. disorderly, doing no work, but being busybodies, participles in apposition with περιπ.; for the paronomasia, see 413, α, 2. The verb περιεργ. does not again occur in the New Testament, although the subst. περίεργοs is found, 1 Tim. v. 13.

Ver. 12. But to such as these, pron. definite, 220. we command and exhort, the dat. obj. belongs grammatically to παραγγ., as in ver 4, &c.; παρακαλ. takes the acc. by (or in, the rec. διά is less fully supported than èν; see Ellicott) the Lord Jesus Christ that, working with quietness, for μετά, see 301, a, 2. they eat, subj. by ενα; tense, 374. Obs. παραγγ. with the inf., ver. 6; with object and obj. clause, ετι, ver. 10.

τον έαυτων ἄρτον ἐσθίωσιν. 13 ὑμεῖς δὲ, ἀδελφοὶ, μὴ ἐκκακήσητε καλοποιοῦντες. 14 εἰ δέ τις οὐχ ὑπακούει τῷ λόγῳ ἡμῶν διὰ τῆς ἐπιστολῆς, τοῦτον σημειοῦσθε · καὶ μὴ συναναμίγνυσθε αὐτῷ, ἵνα ἐντραπῆ · 15 καὶ μὴ ὡς ἐχθρὸν ἡγεῖσθε, ἀλλὰ νουθετεῖτε ὡς ἀδελφόν. 16 αὐτὸς δὲ ὁ Κύριος τῆς εἰρήνης δῷη ὑμῖν τὴν εἰρήνην διὰ παντὸς ἐν παντὶ τρόπῳ. ὁ Κύριος μετὰ πάντων ὑμῶν.

17 Ο ασπασμός τῆ ἐμῆ χειρὶ Παύλου, ὅ ἐστι σημεῖον ἐν πάση here with the intentional particle. The command is given in order that the result may follow. their own bread, emphatically, not that of others.

Ver. 13. But ye, emphatic, by way of contrast to those just mentioned. brethren, be not weary, subj., with imper. force, 375. The reading varies between ἐκκ. and ἐγκ.; the latter (from ἐν) being to grow weary or cowardly in any enterprise; the former, to go out of it through weariness or cowardice. But ἐκκ. is altogether doubtful. in well-doing, pres. part., adjunct to pred., 394, 3, b, "whilst well-doing" being implied; or causal, as c.

Ver. 14. But if any one obeys not, $3^{8}3$, α . our word, 27^{8} , d. through, conveyed by, 299, α , 2. the epistle, i.e., this epistle. note this man, for $\sigma\eta\mu$., middle, see 355, 2, "mark for yourselves." and keep no company with him, dat. of association, 277, α . The presimper. in both cases enjoins the conduct as habitual. that he be ashamed, the purpose, again, not simply the result.

Ver. 15. And, not adversative, but simply conjunctive; another particular of the conduct to be observed. esteem (him) not as an enemy, $\dot{\omega}$ s, a particle of apposition connecting $\dot{\epsilon}\chi\theta_p$. with $\tau o \hat{\nu} \tau o \nu$, understood from preced. but admonish (him) as a brother.

Ver. 16. But (the antithesis being between the persons addressed by the Apostle and those just specified, "as for you," "to return to you") may the Lord of (the) peace, gen. of quality. himself, emphatic pron. give (the) peace to you, δψη, opt. in the usual sense and the ordinary const. of the verb. The article before εἰρ. both times is emphatic, recognising peace as the peculiar and well-understood Christian blessing. always, xρόνου understood with παντός, an adverbial adjunct to δψη. in every way, Lachmann reads τόπφ, place. The Lord be, εῖη as i. 2. with, 301, a, 1. you all.

Ver. 17. The salutation, nominative, in apposition with ver. 18, as a kind of title: "This is the salutation." of me, Paul, with my own hand, for const., see 336, p. 307; $\chi \epsilon \iota \rho i$, dat. of instr., 280, d. which, neuter rel. pron., 346, a. is the sign, pred. om. art., see 206. in every epistle, 224, a. so I write, the other member of the comparison being ἐπιστολῆ· οὕτω γράφω. ¹⁸ ἡ χάρις τοῦ Κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ μετὰ πάντων ὑμῶν. ἀμήν.

Πρὸς Θεσσαλονικεῖς δευτέρα ἐγράφη ἀπὸ ᾿Αθηνῶν.

omitted, as obvious to the orig. readers; compare examples under 412, c. Probably the phrase alludes to some peculiarity in the handwriting. Compare Gal. vi. 11.

Ver. 18. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be, είη, as i. 2. with (301, α, 1) you all. (Amen is omitted by Tischendorf; but see Ellicott.)

The subscription to the Epistle, The second (epistle) to the Thessalonians was written from Athens (see also subscription to First Epistle), is undoubtedly spurious, and is also incorrect. It arose probably from a careless and mistaken interpretation of I Thess. iii. I.

NEW TESTAMENT SYNONYMS.

PROBABLY no two words in any language are precisely synonymous, although many are interchangeable. It has already been shown (p. 256) that words in different languages seldom, if ever, perfectly correspond. Hence arise some of the chief difficulties of translation. It has often been unthinkingly suggested that, in the New Testament for instance, the same Greek word should always be rendered by the same English one. This rule would constantly lead to glaring incorrectness: although, undoubtedly, capricious or unnecessary variations should be avoided. The word suffer, for instance, covers so great an extent of meaning, that we are hardly surprised to find it employed in the Authorized Version for ten distinct Greek words, beside various combinations of the same roots. To provoke, again, occurs twelve times in the English Version for eight different Greek words. To provide is found eight times, representing six distinct originals. The verb ordain occurs eighteen times: once for ποιέω, which Greek word has in different places thirty-six English equivalents; once for γίνομαι, the various equivalents of which are almost innumerable; twice for ὁρίζω, which is translated in four different ways; once for προορίζω, which has three English equivalents; twice for τίθημι, a verb translated in fifteen ways; twice for τάσσω, which is rendered by five different words; thrice for διατάσσω, a verb with five renderings; thrice for καθίστημι, which we find translated in six ways; once for κατασκευάζω, a verb with four English equivalents; once for κρίνω, which is rendered in fifteen ways; and once for χειροτονέω, a word occurring twice, and in each place differently rendered. In addition to these, we have to ordain before, by προγράφω and προετοιμάζω.

Such instances suggest the largeness of the field that is open to the inquirer into the so-called Synonyms, whether of the Greek or the English New Testament. To cover that field, in however perfunctory a manner, would be plainly impossible in the compass of a few pages. All that can be attempted is to point out the main distinctions between some important words in general use, of kindred meaning, and often translated alike in the Authorized Version. For further detail, the English reader is referred to Tittmann's "Remarks on the Synonyms of the New Testament," translated in Clark's Biblical Cabinet, 1833-37; to Archbishop Trench's "Synonyms of the New Testament;" and to the "Syntax and Synonyms of the New Testament," by the Rev. W. Webster, M.A.

I.

First, some groups of Verbs in ordinary use may be selected, with their related Substantives.

1. To Be, Exist, Become.

Eiμί is the ordinary verb of existence; ὑπάρχω implies essential or original condition (Phil. ii. 6), and so is directly contrasted with γίνομαι, to become (James i. 22). See further, Acts xvii. 24; Heb. xi. 6.

2. To Do, to Make.

Ποιέω seems to denote more sustained effort than $\pi \rho \dot{\alpha} \sigma \sigma \omega$, whence the frequent use of the former for well-doing, the latter for ill-doing. For other senses of $\pi \rho \dot{\alpha} \sigma \sigma \omega$, see Eph. vi. 21; Luke iii. 13 (this last compared with $\pi o i \dot{\epsilon} \omega$ in Luke xii. 33, xix. 18).

3. To Will, to Desire.

Bούλομαι denotes the will rather on its intellectual side, "to choose;" $\theta \not\in \lambda \omega$, the simple fact of volition. So the latter is used of arbitrary (Luke iv. 6) or absolute (Rom. ix. 18) authority, the former of determinations where the wisdom and justice are apparent (Luke x. 22, xxii. 42). Thus Bουλή is counsel; $\theta \not\in \lambda \eta \mu a$, will; $\beta o \not= \lambda \eta \mu a$, plan (only in Acts xxvii. 43; Rom. ix. 19). Bούλομαι is also used in recommendations, backed by reason (1 Tim. ii. 8, v. 14). For a striking instance of distinction between the two verbs, compare Mark xv. 9, 12, with verse 15. So Philemon 13, 14. Μέλλω indicates futurity, as the result of predetermination, or of some act or event, "is to be," "is going to," Matt. iii. 7, xi. 14; Luke vii. 2; Heb. i. 14.

4. To Know.

Olda is properly a perfect, "I have seen," and implies the knowledge which comes from without, objective knowledge; γινώσκω, "I learn," in any way, expresses the knowledge as existing in the mind, subjective knowledge. Hence, when knowledge involves experience, γινώσκω is always used (Eph. iii. 19; Phil. iii. 10; I John ii., iii., iv.); ἐπίσταμαι (an old dialectic form of the middle of ἐφίστημι), "to set (the mind) upon," may either mean simply to be aware of, as in the Acts, or to understand (Mark xiv. 68). The distinction between οίδα and ἐπίσταμαι may be noted in Jude 10; that between γινώσκω and ἐπίσταμαι in Acts xix. 15.

5. To See.

Bλέπω denotes the act of seeing, and is referred to the organ; δράω

(Thomas, eldow) is referred to the thing seen, whether in itself (objectively) or in regard to its impression on the mind (subjectively). The former verb, therefore, may be used without an expressed object (as Matt. xiii. 13). Both verbs are applied to mental vision, the former implying greater vividness (Heb. ii. 8, 9). With μή, they have the sense beware; generally, however, βλέπω is used, occasionally with ἀπό. In accordance with the distinction above mentioned, Spaua is a vision; Ba \(\epsi\) \mu a, the exercise of the faculty of sight; τὰ βλεπόμενα, the things seen (2 Cor. iv. 18), i.e., on which the faculty of immediate discernment is exercised; τὸ ὁρατόν, the visible (Col. i. 16), i.e., in itself considered. Tittman distinguishes δράω and its derivatives from eldov, in that the former is objective, and the latter subjective, ὄψομαι being a middle term. Compare ὅραμα, είδος, ὄψις. It is doubtful, however, if this distinction can be maintained in the use of the verbs. θεάομαι (referred to the subject) and θεωρέω (referred to the object) are to look at purposely, or attentively to gaze upon (Matt. vi. 1, xi. 7; John xii. 45 : Acts vii. 56).

6. To Appear.

 $\Delta o\kappa \acute{e}\omega$ "expresses the subjective mental estimate or opinion about a matter which men form, their $\delta J \xi a$ concerning it, which may be right (Acts xv. 28; 1 Cor. iv. 9. vii. 40), but which may be wrong, involving, as it always does, the possibility of error (Matt. vi. 7; Mark vi. 49; John xvi. 2; Acts xxvii. 13);" $\phi a (\nu o \mu a)$ "expresses how a matter phenomenally shows and presents itself, with no necessary assumption of any beholder at all."—Trench. This "phenomenon" may represent a reality (Matt. ii. 7; Phil. ii. 15, "appear," not "shine") or a mere show (Matt. xxiii. 27, 28).

7. To Touch.

"Aπτομαι (middle of ἄπτω, to kindle) is the usual word; θ ιγγάνω denotes a lighter touch (compare the two in Col. ii. 21, where, as Archbishop Trench observes, the order of our translation should be reversed; and see Heb. xi. 28); ψηλαφάω is to feel ("to feel after," Acts xvii. 27), to handle. Pres. part., palpable, material (Heb. xii. 18).

8. To Speak, Say.

Λαλέω is simply to speak, to employ the organ of utterance; $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \omega$ is referred to the sentiment of what is spoken (compare $\beta \lambda \epsilon \pi \omega$ and $\delta \rho \delta \omega$ above); $\phi \eta \mu l$, $\delta \epsilon \omega$, $\epsilon \rho \hat{\omega}$, $\epsilon l \pi \sigma \nu$, to the words; $\delta l \mu \omega$ is a word. in itself considered; $\lambda \delta \gamma \sigma s$, a spoken word, with reference generally to that which is in the speaker's mind; $\epsilon \pi \sigma s$ is only found (Heb. vii. 9) in the phrase $\delta s \epsilon \sigma s \epsilon l \pi \epsilon \nu$, so to speak.

9. To Ask.

Aiτέω is to ask for something, to beg, pray; ἐρωτάω, to question, to ask in general, specifically: "In that day ye shall ask me no questions ... whatsoever ye shall pray the Father in my name." Observe, ἐρωτάω is elsewhere used of Christ's prayers to the Father (John xvii. 9, 15, 20), never of ours. Compare the two in John xvi. 23; and in 1 John v. 16. Πυνθάνομαι, to ask for information, to inquire.

10. To Come.

"Ερχομαι denotes the act, "I am coming;" ηκω, the result, "I am come." John viii. 42: "I came from God, and I am here." See also Heb. x. 9.

11. To Care.

Φρονέω, φροντίζω, implies solicitude (Phil. iv. 10; Titus iii. 8); $\mu\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\tau\dot{\alpha}\omega$ (and impers. $\mu\dot{\epsilon}\lambda\epsilon\iota$), solicitude expressed in forethought, or the employment of means to the desired result; $\mu\epsilon\rho\iota\mu\nu\dot{\alpha}\omega$, anxious or distracting care. So the substantive $\mu\dot{\epsilon}\rho\iota\mu\nu\dot{\alpha}\omega$. See especially 1 Peter v. 7; $\sigma\pi\sigma\nu\delta\dot{\gamma}$ ("haste") is earnestness, diligence, generally.

12. Ought.

 $\Delta \epsilon \hat{\imath}$ (impers.) denotes the duty or necessity as existing in the thing itself, often used for the ought arising from prophecy (Luke xxiv. 26, 46); $\delta \phi \epsilon t \lambda \omega$ refers to the obligation as actually imposed (John xiii. 14); $\chi \rho \dot{\eta}$ (only once in the New Testament, James iii. 10) is connected with $\chi \rho \dot{\alpha} o \mu \alpha \iota$, and originally differs from $\delta \epsilon \hat{\imath}$ as the rule of utility differs from that of abstract right ($\delta \epsilon \hat{\imath}$ would express Butler's philosophy of morals; $\chi \rho \dot{\eta}$, Paley's).

13. To Accomplish, Fulfil, Perfect.

Τέλος expresses the end of a course or series: so $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \omega$, to reach the end; $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \iota \delta \omega$, to complete; $\pi \lambda \eta \rho \delta \omega$ denotes the accomplishment of a plan or purpose, to fulfil; $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \omega$ gives the finishing stroke (John xix. 30); $\pi \lambda \eta \rho \delta \omega$ adds the completing element: the former brings the topstone, the latter, the keystone. Hence they are often interchangeable. Compare Acts xx. 24, where the prominent thought is the completeness of the Apostle's life-work, with 2 Tim. iv. 7, where to this is superadded the thought of its approaching close. The fulfilment of prophecy is expressed by $\pi \lambda \eta \rho \delta \omega$, except John xix. 28, which has $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \iota \delta \omega$. $\Pi \lambda \dot{\eta}_{\Gamma} \omega \mu \alpha$ is generally active, that which brings completeness, fulness, to anything (Matt. ix. 16; 1 Cor. x. 26); but may be used passively, that which is filled (Eph. i. 23), or abstractedly, fulness (Col. ii. 9).

14. To Teach, Instruct.

Διδάσκω is to teach generally; κατηχέω, strictly to teach by word of mouth (Luke i. 4; Rom. ii. 18). Hence catechesis, catechize, of careful, repeated oral instruction; μαθητεύω is (actively) to make, or (intransitively) to be a disciple, in the former sense distinguished from δίδάσκω in Matt. xxviii. 19; παιδεύω involves the notion of discipline, and is often to be rendered chasten,

15. To Preach.

Κηρύσσω is to proclaim, as a herald; κήρυγμα, the proclamation made; $\epsilon \dot{\nu} \alpha \gamma \gamma \dot{\epsilon} \lambda \iota \omega \nu$ and $\epsilon \dot{\nu} \alpha \gamma \gamma \dot{\epsilon} \lambda \dot{\epsilon} \omega$ add the further notion of glad tidings; καταγγέλλω refers simply to the delivery of the message. Found with $\epsilon \dot{\nu} \alpha \gamma \gamma \dot{\epsilon} \lambda \dot{\epsilon} \omega$, Acts xv. 35, 36; with κηρύσσω, Phil. i. 15, 16. Λαλέω, sometimes rendered preach, means simply to talk (see 8), and $\delta \iota \alpha \lambda \dot{\epsilon} \gamma \omega \iota \omega$ (Acts xx. 7, 9) implies conference; $\pi \rho \omega \phi \eta \tau \dot{\epsilon} \omega$, to forth-tell, and $\pi \rho \omega \dot{\rho} \dot{\tau} \eta \dot{\tau}$, are used for preachers under the New Testament (Eph. iv. 11; 1 Cor. xiv. 1), as for the prophets of the Old, both being set to declare the Divine will; $\mu \dot{\alpha} \dot{\tau} \tau \dot{\tau} s$, a soothsayer, is of heathen use, and not found in the New Testament, $\mu \dot{\alpha} \dot{\tau} \tau \dot{\tau} \dot{\omega} \dot{\omega}$ accurring only Acts xvi. 16. See Trench.

16. To Feed (a flock).

Ποιμαίνω is in general to exercise the care of a ποιμήν, to tend the flock (Acts xx. 28), hence to rule, govern (Matt. ii. 6; Rev. ii. 27); βόσκω refers to the special function of providing food, to pasture (Luke xv. 15). Both are included in our Lord's charge to St. Peter (John xxi. 15–17).

17. To Wash, Bathe.

 $\Pi \lambda \acute{\nu} \nu \omega$ is to wash things, as garments, &c.; $\lambda o \acute{\nu} \omega$, to wash the whole body, "to bathe;" $\nu \acute{\iota} \pi \tau \omega$, to wash a part of the body. See John xiii. 10; and remarks by Archbishop Trench.

18. To Anoint.

Χρίω denotes efficial anointing, as of a king or priest, hence Χριστός: $\mathring{a}\lambda\epsilon i\varphi\omega$, anointing for festal purposes (Luke vii. 46), for health (James v. 14), or for embalmment (Mark xvi. 1).

19. Love, to Love.

'Aγαπάω denotes the love of esteem or of kindness, love to character ("diligo"); $\dot{\alpha}\gamma\dot{\alpha}\pi\eta$, its cognate substantive, "is a word born within the bosom of revealed religion. It occurs in the LXX., but there is no example of its use in any heathen writer whatever; the utmost they attained to here was $\phi i \lambda \alpha \nu \theta \rho \omega \pi i \alpha$ and $\phi i \lambda \alpha \delta \epsilon \lambda \phi i \alpha$, and the last, indeed, never in any sense but as the love between brethren in blood."—Trench. Wherever we have "charity" in the E.V., the original is $\partial \gamma \delta \pi \eta$, but it is more generally and better translated "love;" $\phi i \lambda \delta \omega$ expresses the love of the feelings, instinctive, warm affection ("amo"). The force of the two verbs is very beautifully illustrated in John xxi. 15-17, on which see Trench and others.

20. To Weep.

Kλαίω is the verb generally employed; δακρύω, "to shed tears," is found but once, John xi. 35: "Jesus wept." In Matt. ii. 18, θρῆνος (reading doubtful), κλαυθμός, δδυρμός, form a climax, "lamentation, weeping, and mourning."

II.

Some important words, chiefly Adjectives and Substantives, expressive of moral quality, may now be considered.

21. Good.

'Aγαθόs is good; δίκαιος, right. In the former, the notion of beneficence prevails, in the latter that of justice. So with ἀγαθωσύνη, δικαιοσύνη. Still, the two are not opposed. In Rom. vii. 12, both are predicated of the Divine law. In Rom. v. 7, the ἀγαθός is one of the δίκαιοι (as proved by the article and by γάρ). In Matt. vi. 1, seq., δικαιοσύνη* refers to almsgiving, prayers, and religious fasting; καλός contains the notion of giving pleasure, "beautiful," "fair," "honourable." It may be interchanged with ayabos (compare, e.g., I Tim. i. 19, with Heb. xiii. 18), or combined with it, as Luke viii. 15. (So in classic Greek, καλοκαγαθός predicates the highest excellence in morals and manners.) Χρηστός, good, gentle (Matt. xi. 30; I Cor. xv. 33), and χρηστότης, goodness, gentleness, benigaity, are connected with χράομαι, χρή. The New Testament comparative of ἀγαθός is usually κρείσσων, κρείττων really akin to κράτος, force, and betokening the time when strength and goodness were too closely identified. (Compare ἀρετή, "virtue," really courage, found only in the New Testament, Phil. iv. 8; 1 Pet. ii. 9, where see 47; 2 Pet. i. 3, 5.) Βέλτιον, as an adverb, is found 2 Tim. i. 18.

^{*} Undoubtedly the true reading.

22. Evil, Bad.

Raκόs is bad, generically, including every form of evil, physical and moral. So κακία, badness, specially in its forms of meanness, cowardice, malice, ἄδικος, ἀδικία (opposed to δίκαιος, δικαιούνη), wrony; πονηρός expresses especially the more active form of evil, malignally (so ὁ πονηρός, not ὁ κακός, for the Evil one, Satan); πονηρία, malignity; φαῦλος is worthless, "good for nothing," like the old Eng., "naughty," from "naught."

23. Holy.

"Ooios is holy, intrinsically; referred once to the Divine purposes (Acts xiii. 34, from Isa. lv. 3), generally to interior purity; predicated both of God and of men ("pious"); $\ddot{a}\gamma\iota\sigma s$, $\dot{a}\gamma\nu\delta s$, are both derived from a root denoting separation, the former, when applied to men, expressing consecration to God (see 1 Pet. ii. 5, 9), the latter, purity, chastity; $i\epsilon\rho\delta s$, very infrequently (except in its neuter substantival form, $i\epsilon\rho\delta\nu$, on which see 35), is "dedicated to God," and is only used in the New Testament of things; $\kappa\alpha\theta\alpha\rho\delta s$, literally clean, free from impure admixture.

24. True.

'Aληθήs is "true," morally, and is applied to persons or to declarations; $\lambda \lambda \eta \theta \iota \nu \delta s$ is "genuine," "real." The former epithet, for instance, applied to God, denotes His attribute of faithfulness (John iii. 33); the latter expresses the reality of His Godhead, as distinguished from false deities (John xvii. 3). The use of $\lambda \lambda \eta \theta \iota \nu \delta s$ in the Revelation is an exception to this rule (see xix. 9, 11). The substantive $\lambda \lambda \eta \theta \epsilon \iota a$ includes the idea of both adjectives, though generally correspondent with the former.

25. Old.

Παλαιός is "old," as having existed long; ἀρχαῖος, "old," as having existed formerly; ἀρχαῖος μαθητής (Acts xxi. 16), one of the original disciples. Compare 2 Pet. ii. 5; Rev. xii. 9, xx. 2. Παλαιός sometimes connotes the idea of decrepitude, decay (opposed to καινός, see 26), Matt. ix. 16; 1 Cor. v. 7, 8; and for the verb, Heb. viii. 13.

26. New.

Néos is new in reference to time, having recently come into existence (young); καινόs, new (fresh) in reference to quality, different in kind. (See Trench on the words.) So νέα διαθήκη (Heb. xii. 24) is "a covenant recently given;" καινή διαθήκη (Heb. ix. 15), "a covenant new in character;" ἀνανεόω (Eph. iv. 23), to renew in youth; ἀνακαινόω (Col. iii. 10), to renew in character and spirit. So νεότηs, youth; καινότηs, newness, freshness.

27. Perfect

τέλειος, "full-grown," applied to character, means that which has attained the moral τ έλος—manhood in Christ; "however, it may be true that having reached this, other and higher ends will open out before him, to have Christ formed in him more and more."—Trench. The attainment of their highest end is expressed by the perfect τ ετελείωμαι (Phil. iii. 12). Όλοκληρος is complete in parts, no Christian grace lacking; δ λοτέλης denotes maturity in each separate element of character (τ Thess. v. 23).

28. Blessed.

Two different adjectives are translated blessed: μακάριος, happy, as in the Beatitudes, and notably 1 Tim. i. 11, vi. 15; and εὐλογητός, verbal adjective of the verb to bless (Mark xiv. 61; Rom. i. 25).

29. Void, Vain, Futile.

Keνόs, literally empty, refers to the contents; $\mu \dot{\alpha} \tau \alpha i o s$, purposeless, to the result. See the two in 1 Cor. xv. 14, 17: "your faith is $\kappa \epsilon \nu \dot{\eta}$ —there is no substance in it—and $\mu \alpha \tau \alpha l a$, leads to no happy issue." The latter adjective is also employed (from the LXX.) for false, as in the "lying vanities" of heathendom (Acts xiv. 15).

30. Poor.

Πένης (only in 2 Cor. ix. 9) may refer to the poverty of scanty livelihood; πτωχός implies that of utter destitution. See Matt. v. 3, xi. 5.

31. Patience.

Υπομονή (ὑπομένω) denotes not only the passive, but the active virtue of endurance, and may often be rendered persistence, continuance (Luke viii. 15; Heb. xii. 1; James v. 11); μακροθυμία (μακροθυμέω) seems always to involve the notion of tolerance, "long-suffering, bearing with," as God with sinners; ἀνοχή (only in Rom. ii. 4, iii. 25) is forbearance, the result and expression of the Divine μακροθυμία.

32. Anger.

Ovuds is the impulse and passion; $\partial \rho \gamma \dot{\eta}$, the habit and settled purpose of wrath. Both (as in Romans ii. 8) are applied to the anger of God against sinners; the latter, however, being the usual word. Both are ranked among the sins of men (as Eph. iv. 31). Still, there may possibly be a righteous human anger (Eph. iv. 26; compare Mark iii. 5), while the exasperation and bitterness of anger, $\pi \alpha \rho \rho \rho \gamma \iota \sigma \mu \delta s$ are utterly forbidden. (See Trench on these words.)

33. Fear.

Φόβος, φοβέομαι, are words in themselves indifferent, the fear being sinful, or reverent and holy, according to the particular reference; but $\delta \epsilon \iota \lambda \delta s$, $\delta \epsilon \iota \lambda \iota \lambda (a)$, are always bad and base, "cowardly, cowardice;" $\epsilon \dot{\nu} \lambda \dot{\alpha} + \beta \epsilon \iota a$, $\epsilon \dot{\nu} \lambda \alpha \beta \dot{\epsilon} \delta \mu \alpha \iota$, denote apprehension generally (see Acts xxiii. 10), but chiefly pious fear (Heb. xii. 28, and perhaps v. 7).

III.

As a third division, some words may be enumerated of frequent theological or ecclesiastical use.

34. Deity.

Θείδτης (Rom. i. 20), Deity, in an abstract sense (Göttlichheit); Θεότης (Col. ii. 9), Deity, personally (Gottheit). See Tittmann.

35. Temple.

'Ιερόν, the whole sacred enclosure (Matt. xxvi. 55; John ii. 14); ναός, the shrine itself, the Holy place, and Holy of Holies (Matt. xxvii. 51; Acts vii. 48; 1 Cor. iii. 16).

36. To Worship.

Προσκυν $\dot{\epsilon}\omega$ is the generic word (primarily expressive of the act, "to fawn," from $\kappa\dot{\epsilon}\omega\nu$) of homage paid to God, to Christ, and (in the Revelation) to the "dragon" and the "beast;" $\sigma\dot{\epsilon}\beta \sigma\mu\alpha\iota$ ($\sigma\dot{\epsilon}\beta\dot{\alpha}\zeta\sigma\mu\alpha\iota$), of the religious feeling, "to cherish, or to pay devotion;" $\lambda\alpha\tau\rho\dot{\epsilon}\dot{\omega}\omega$, of Divine worship, Phil. iii. 3 (idolatrous in Acts vii. 42); $\lambda\dot{\epsilon}\iota\tau\sigma\nu\rho\gamma\dot{\epsilon}\omega$, of solemu, stated observance. So $\lambda\dot{\epsilon}\iota\tau\sigma\nu\rho\gamma\dot{\epsilon}\alpha$, as Luke i. 23; $\lambda\dot{\epsilon}\iota\tau\sigma\nu\rho\gamma\iota\kappa\dot{\delta}s$, Heb. i. 14; $\lambda\dot{\epsilon}\iota\tau\sigma\nu\rho\gamma\dot{\delta}s$, Heb. viii. 2. But these last words may also apply to the ministry of kindness between fellow-Christians; as $\delta\iota\alpha\kappa\sigma\nu\dot{\epsilon}\omega$, but in a more exalted sense. See 80.

37. Altar, Sacrifice.

Θυσιαστήριον is the general word, properly an adjective—that on which sacrifices are offered; βωμός, the altar-structure (orig., "a raised place"), is only found once, of a heathen altar, Acts xvii. 23; θυσία is a sacrifice offered by a priest; ίερεψς, either expiatory, in which sense Christ alone is priest, or eucharistic, in which all Christians are priests alike (1 Pet. ii. 5); προσφορά is any offering to God, priestly or otherwise. In Eph. v. 2, some refer προσφοράν to Christ's consecrated life, θυσιάν to his atoning death.

38. Prayer, to Pray.

Εὐχή is a prayer (James v. 15) or a vow (Acts xviii. 18); εὅχομαι, to pray, or to wish strongly (Rom. ix. 3); προσεύχομαι, προσευχή, are restricted to prayer to God, the latter denoting sometimes a place of prayer, a building below the rank of a synagogue, "proseucha" (Acts xvi. 13); δέησι is in general the expression of need, any urgent request, "supplication." For αἰτέω, ἐρωτάω, see 9; αἴτημα is any particular request; in plur., the individual petitions in the προσευχή. See Phil. iv. 6.

39. Sin, to Sin.

"Sin," says Archbishop Trench, "may be contemplated as the missing of a mark or aim; it is then $\mathring{a}\mu a \rho \tau l a$ or $\mathring{a}\mu \mathring{a}\rho \tau \eta \mu a$ ($\mathring{a}\mu a \rho \tau \mathring{a}\nu \omega$): the overpassing or transgressing of a line; it is then $\pi a \rho \mathring{a}\beta a \sigma \iota s$ ($\pi a \rho a \beta a \ell \iota \omega$): the disobedience to a voice; in which case it is $\pi a \rho a \kappa o \mathring{\eta}$ ($\pi a \rho a \kappa o \mathring{\psi} \omega$): the falling where one should have stood upright; this will be $\pi a \rho \mathring{a}\pi \tau \omega \mu \alpha$: ignorance of what one ought to have known; this will be $\mathring{a}\gamma \nu \mathring{\eta} \mu \alpha$ (Heb. ix. 7): diminishing of that which should have been rendered in full measure; which is $\mathring{\eta}\tau \tau \eta \mu \alpha$: non-observance of a law; which is $\mathring{a}\nu o \mu \ell a$ or $\pi a \rho a \nu o \mu \ell \alpha$; a discord; and then it is $\pi \lambda \eta \mu \mu \ell \mathring{\lambda} \kappa \iota \alpha$: and in other ways almost out of number." Note also $\mathring{o}\varphi \epsilon \ell \mathring{\lambda} \eta \mu \alpha$, in the Lord's prayer (Matt. vi. 12), debt to divine justice. Luke has $\mathring{a}\mu a \rho \tau \ell \alpha$ (xi. 4).

40. Repentance, to Repent.

Μετάνοια, μετανοέω, express a change of mind, and hence of the whole life; μεταμέλομαι, a change of feeling, "to regret." Godly sorrow is said to work μετάνοιαν ἀμεταμέλητον, "repentance that leads to no remorse" (2 Cor. vii. 10). Esau found a place of repentance, μετανοίας (Heb. xii. 17), i.e., of changing his father's mind with respect to the blessing. See Dr. Campbell's Dissertation, in his "Gospels."

41. Grace, Mercy.

Xάριs is free favour, in general, specially of the Divine favour as extended to the sinful; ἔλεοs is mercy, to the miserable (1 Tim. i. 2). The difference between ἔλεοs and οἰκτιρμόs is that, in the latter, pity is the prominent idea; in the former, kindness. For the verbs, see Rom. iz. 15.

42. Forgiveness.

"Αφεσις, ἀφίημι, denote the "remission" of sins, forgiveness, to its full extent, as promised in the Gospel; π άρεσις, found only Rom. iii. 25, literally, passing-by, "pratermission" refers rather to the simple withholding of punishment deserved, a parallel being found Acts xvii. 40 (ὑπεριδών).

43. Redemption.

"Αγοράζω, buy, as in a market-place, for a certain price $(\tau \iota \mu \hat{n})$; $\lambda \upsilon \tau \rho \delta \omega$, effect deliverance by the payment of ransom and exertion of power; $\lambda \dot{\upsilon} \tau \rho \sigma \nu$ is the price paid for releasing any one from captivity, punishment, or death $(\lambda \dot{\upsilon}\omega$, loose); the buying back by paying the price of what had been sold, or the redeeming what had been devoted by substituting something in its place. So $\dot{\alpha} \nu \tau (\lambda \upsilon \tau \rho \sigma \nu)$, with the further idea "in room of," denoting exchange, the price paid for procuring the liberation of another by ransom or forfeit; $\lambda \dot{\upsilon} \tau \rho \omega \sigma \iota s$, $\dot{\alpha} \pi \sigma \lambda \dot{\upsilon} \tau \rho \omega \sigma \iota s$, the process of deliverance; $i\lambda \alpha \sigma \mu \delta s$, $\dot{\epsilon} \xi \iota \lambda \alpha \sigma \mu \delta s$, are the same as $\lambda \dot{\upsilon} \tau \rho \nu \nu$, with the leading idea of propitiation." — Webster. See the use of $i\lambda \dot{\alpha} \sigma \kappa \sigma \mu a \iota$ in the publicar's prayer, Luke xviii. 13; $i\lambda \alpha \sigma \tau \dot{\eta} \rho \iota \nu \nu$, properly an adjective, "propitiatory," of the mercy-seat in LXX. and Heb. ix. 5; of Christ's sacrifice, Rom. iii. 25; $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \pi \sigma \iota \dot{\iota} \sigma \mu a$, $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \pi \sigma \iota \dot{\iota} \eta \sigma \iota s$, denote acquirements for one's self, purchase, generally, Acts xx. 28; 1 Pet. ii. 9; Eph. i. 14.

44. Piety, Religion.

Εὐσεβής, εὐσέβεια, denote worship or piety rightly directed, in human relations as well as divine; $\theta \epsilon \sigma \sigma \epsilon \beta \dot{\eta} s$, $\theta \epsilon \sigma \sigma \dot{\epsilon} \beta \epsilon \iota a$, worship directed towards God; εὐλαβής, εὐλάβεια, denote the devoutness springing from godly fear; $\theta \rho \dot{\eta} \sigma \kappa \sigma s$, $\theta \rho \eta \sigma \kappa \epsilon \iota a$ (James i. 26, 27; Acts xxvi. 5; Col. ii. 18, only), refer to external worship, religious service; $\delta \epsilon \iota \sigma \iota \delta \alpha \iota \mu \sigma \nu$ (Acts xvii. 22), and $\delta \epsilon \iota \sigma \iota \delta \alpha \iota \mu \sigma \nu \iota a$ (Acts xxv. 19), may have a favourable or unfavourable meaning, "religious" or "superstitious," literally, "devoted to the fear of deities,"

45. Miracle, Sign, Wonder.

 Δ δναμις (generally in plur.), applied to Christ's miracles, is a forth-putting of Divine power; τ έρας is a prodigy, a wonderful act; σ ημεῖον, a sign, authenticating Christ's mission, and symbolizing heavenly truths (Acts ii. 22).

46. Parable.

Παραβολή, a detailed comparison, "parable," as usually understood; παροιμία (literally, a wayside discourse), "a proverb," John xvi. 25, 29; "a comparison," 2 Pet. ii. 22; John x. 6.

47. Praise, to Praise.

Alνέω, αlνος (αἴνεσις), are used only of praise offered to God; ἐπαινέω, ἔπαινος, of praise, approbation generally; δόξα, where rendered praise (John ix. 24, xii. 43; 1 Pet. iv. 11), denotes the recognition of character, "the glory." In 1 Pet. ii. 9, the word is ἀρετάς, virtues; μεγαλύνω, to magnify, is a yet more exalted word, Luke i. 46.

48. Psalm, Hymn.

Vaλμό: is probably used restrictively of the Psalms of the older Scriptures; υμνος (not often used, probably from its associations with heathenism) is an ode of praise to God: "A psalm might be a de profundis; a hymn must always be more or less of a magnificat."—Trench. ἀδή is a song that might be either psalm or hymn, or a yet more general expression of Christian feeling (Eph. v. 19; Col. iii. 16).

49. Ordinance.

This word is adopted as the rendering of δδημα, a thing decreed (Eph. ii. 15; Col. ii. 14. See also Col. ii. 20); δικαίωμα, that which it is right to observe (Heb. ix. 1, 10); διαταγή, appointment (Rom. xiii. 2); παράδοσις (1 Cor. xi. 2), instruction or injunction given, elsewhere translated tradition (as 2 Thess. ii. 15); and κτίσις (creation, creature), 1 Pet. ii. 13. As distinguished from δικαιώματα, the ἐντολαί are moral precepts, Luke i. 6.

50. Hebrew, Israelite, Jew, Greek, Hellenist.

'Eβραῖοs denotes the Hebrew-speaking Jewish community; Έλληνιστής being a Greek-speaking Jew. The latter word is rendered "Greeian" in the A.V., in distinction from Έλλην, "Greek," or Gentile (Acts vi. 1, ix. 29; in Acts xi. 20, the reading should probably be Ελληνας). Ἰουδαῖος, Jew, originally referred to the tribe of Judah alone, had come in the New Testament times to designate the whole people; while Ἰσραηλίτης is always a term of honour, "one of the chosen race."

51. Anathema.

'Aνάθημα, a thing devoted in honour of God (Luke xxi. 5); ἀνάθεμα (originally the same word), a thing devoted to destruction, "accursed." So the verb ἀναθεματίζω. See Acts xxiii. 14. The other occurrences of ἀνάθεμα are Rom. ix. 3; 1 Cor. xii. 3, xvi. 22; Gal. i. 8, 9.

52. Hell, Hades.

"Aιδης, "the unseen world," the place of the departed, generally (compare Luke xvi. 23; Acts ii. 27); by metonymy for death and destruction (Matt. xi. 23); once only rendered "grave," 1 Cor. xv. 55; "the gates of hades" are the powers of destruction (Matt. xvi. 18); γέεννα (from "Valley of Hinnom") is "the abode of the lost" (Matt. v. 22, 29, 30, x. 28, xviii. 9, xxiii. 15, 33; Mark ix. 43, 45; Luke xii. 5; James iii. 6, only). See Dr. Campbell's Dissertation, in his "Gospels."

53. Devil, Dæmon.

The almost uniform translation of $\delta\alpha i\mu\omega\nu$, $\delta\alpha i\mu\delta\nu i\nu\nu$, by "devil" is unfortunate. The word (most usual in the New Testament in the second or diminutive form) classically denotes a subordinate divinity, supernatural being. There were $\kappa\alpha\kappa o\delta\alpha i\mu\sigma\nu es$ and $\delta\gamma\alpha^0\delta\alpha i\mu\sigma\nu es$. In Scripture the word always has its evil sense, and demon would be a good rendering; δ $\delta\iota d\beta\sigma\lambda\sigma s$ (Heb., from $\Sigma\alpha\tau a\nu$, $\Sigma\alpha\tau\alpha\nu as$) is the one arch-spirit of evil, "the devil." In its sense of calumniator, the word is found (plur.) 1 Tim. iii. 11; 2 Tim. iii. 3; Titus ii. 3.

IV.

In the last place, a number of miscellaneous words, chiefly Substantives, in ordinary use, will present some interesting points of distinction. The list, it is plain, might be greatly extended; but enough is given to excite the student's inquiries.

54. Life, Death.

 $Z \omega \eta$ is life in its principle, life intrinsic; βlos , life in its manifestations, life extrinsic. Hence the former is used especially for life spiritual and immortal; the latter may denote the duration or manner of life, livelihood. $\Psi \nu \chi \eta$ is the principle of animal life, "the soul." See the next article. Odvaros is death, opposed to $\zeta \omega \eta$: $\nu \epsilon \kappa \rho \delta s$, dead; $\theta \nu \eta \tau \delta s$, mortal. The verbs $\theta \alpha \nu \alpha \tau \delta \omega$ (Rom. viii. 13), $\nu \epsilon \kappa \rho \delta \omega$ (Col. iii. 5), are both translated martify; the former, perhaps, referring rather to the state, "death to sin," the latter to the deed, "slay them."

55. Soul, Mind, Spirit.

Ψυχή, soul or life, is common to man with the irrational animals (Rev. viii. 9), hence self (Matt. xvi. 25, 26), person (Rev. xviii. 13), often the soul as the seat of passion or desire, the point of contact between man's bodily and spiritual nature; ψυχικός, "natural" (1 Cor. ii. 14, xv. 44, 46; James iii. 15; Judle 19, only); σῶμα and ψυχή are jointly elements of what is often called σάρξ, the lower, fleshly nature. So σαρκικός, as 1 Cor. iii. 1, 3, 4. But σῶμα is sometimes used for person, Rom. xii. 1, "your bodies," i.e., the instruments or organs of your entire nature. Πνεῦμα, spirit, man's highest nature, the point of contact between the human and the Divine; πνευματικός, spiritual, as 1 Cor. ii. 13, 15; φρένες (only in 1 Cor. xiv. 20), the understanding; νοῦς, the mind, percipient and intelligent, the reason; καρδία, the heart, is used not only for the seat of the emotions, but for that of the intellectual faculties, αί καρδίαι, καὶ τὰ νοήματα (Phil. iv. 7), "thought at its source and in its manifestations;" διάνοια, the understanding, as exercised, for good or evil, Eph. ii. 3; Matt. xxii. 37.

56. Form, Fashion, Likeness.

Efsos is appearance, that may or may not have a basis in reality; $\epsilon t \delta \omega \lambda o \nu$, a mere appearance, "an idol;" $\mu o \rho \phi \eta$, the form as indicative of the interior nature; $\sigma \chi \hat{\eta} \mu a$, the form, externally regarded, "the figure, fashion (see Phil. ii. 6, 7, 8); $\epsilon l \kappa \omega \nu$ denotes the exact representation, "image;" $\sigma \kappa i \alpha$, the shadowy resemblance (Heb. x. 1); $\chi \alpha \rho \alpha \kappa \tau \eta \rho$, the impress, as enstamped (Heb. i. 3). Compare $\chi \dot{\alpha} \rho \alpha \gamma \mu a$, "stamp, engraving."

57. Power.

Δύναμις, used also of miracles (see 45), inherent power, might; $\hat{\epsilon}\xi$ ουσία, power delegated, authority; $\hat{\epsilon}\sigma\chi$ ύς, strength, as an endowment (so $\hat{\epsilon}\sigma\chi$ ύω, to be strong, prevail, more emphatic than δύναμαι); $\kappa\rho$ άτος, strength as exerted, "force."

58. World.

Kόσμος, the scheme of material things, the world, often in opposition to the kingdom of heaven; alάν has reference primarily to duration (probably derived not from ἀεὶ &ν, but from ἄημι, to breathe; hence life, duration:) adj., alάνιος, belonging to the alάν: ἀlδιος is from ἀεὶ, and means simply everlasting, only found Rom. i. 20; Jude 6); alάνες (Heb. i. 2), "the ages," or, as E.V., "the worlds," in respect to their successive ages; alκονμένη, the earth as inhabited, the world of men. For κόσμος and alκονμένη interchangeable, compare Matt. iv. 8, with Luke iv. 5.

59. Master.

Kύριοs expresses lordship in general; $\delta \epsilon \sigma \pi \delta \tau \eta s$, ownership (correlative with $\delta \delta \delta \lambda s$); $\delta \iota \delta \delta \sigma \kappa \alpha \lambda \delta s$ (correlative with $\mu \alpha \theta \eta \tau \dot{\eta} s$) is teacher. In James iii. 1, the meaning seems to be censors; $\dot{\epsilon} \pi \iota \sigma \tau \dot{\alpha} \tau \eta s$ (only in Luke), literally, superintendent, is the Greek rendering of the Hebrew $\dot{\rho} \alpha \beta \beta \dot{\iota}$, found in its original form in Matt., Mark, John.

60. Servant.

Δοῦλος, slure, is the lowest word in the scale of servitude (δουλόω, to enslave; δουλεύω, to serve, as a slave); $\hat{\nu}\pi\eta\rho\dot{\epsilon}\tau\eta s$, "under-rower," expresses in general subservience to another's will (so $\hat{\nu}\pi\eta\rho\epsilon\tau\dot{\epsilon}\omega$); διάκονος, διακονία, διακονέω, imply service, ministry, in every form; $\theta\epsilon\rho\dot{\epsilon}\pi\omega\nu$ is attendant (only in Heb. iii. 5); $\theta\epsilon\rho\alpha\pi\epsilon\dot{\nu}\omega$ ($\theta\epsilon\rho\alpha\pi\dot{\epsilon}\dot{\nu}\omega$) have special reference to healing; $\hat{\nu}$ ικέτηs, a household servant, Acts x. 7 (so $\pi\alpha\hat{\epsilon}$ s, see 62).

61. Family, Tribe, House.

Φυλή is a tribe, as of Israel; $\pi \alpha \tau \rho \iota d$, a family, in the wider sense, descendants of a common ancestor (only in Luke ii. 4; Acts iii. 25; Eph. iii. 15; in E.V. different each time); $\sigma \tilde{\iota} \kappa \sigma s$, $\sigma \tilde{\iota} \kappa \iota d$, both mean household, the former referring to the inmates, the latter to the building and that which it contains ($\delta \tilde{\omega} \mu \alpha$ always in the New Testament of the building, with $\tilde{\epsilon} \pi t$, "house-top.")

62. Child, Infant.

Τέκνον, child by natural descent (from τίκτω); παῖs, a boy or girl, a child in legal relation, also a servant (Luke xv. 26; Matt. xii. 18; Acts iv. 27, 30); παίδιον, a young child; βρέφοs, a babe; νήπιος (from νη, negative, and εἶπον), a child in power and character.

63. Man.

 $^{\nu}A\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi os$, a man, member of the human family (homo); $a\nu\eta\rho$, a man in sex and age (vir).

64. Time.

Χρόνος, time as duration; καιρός, a definite time, with reference to some act or crisis, "opportunity."

65. Lamp, Light.

Φῶs, light, generally; φωστήρ, luminary (Phil. ii. 15); λέχνος, a lamp (John v. 35), (λυχνία, a lampstand); λαμπάς, a torch (Matt. xxv. 1; Acts xx. 8); φέγγος, light in its splendour, "radiance."

66. Clothes.

'Ίμάτιον, raiment, generally, also an outer garment, opposed to χιτών, an inner vest (Matt. v. 40); ἐσθής, apparel, generally applied to what is ornate or splendid; ἔνδυμα, anything put on (Matt. iii. 5, vi. 28, 67. Crown.

Στέφανος, "a gerland," a conqueror's or a festal crown (στέμμα, a sacrificial garland, Acts xiv. 13); διάδημα, "a fillet," a royal crown, Rev. xii. 3, xiii. 1, xix. 12, only.

68. Burden.

Bάροs denotes the pressure of a weight, which may be relieved or transferred, Gal. vi. 2; $\phi o \rho \tau i o \nu$ is specific, the "load," which each must bear for himself," ver. 5; $\gamma \delta \mu o s$, the lading of a ship (Acts xxi. 3); $\delta \gamma \kappa o s$, the weight that encumbers, Heb. xii. 1.

69. Basket.

Kόφινοs, a travelling basket (Matt. xiv. 20); σπυρίs, a large hamper used for storage (Matt. xv. 37; Acts ix. 25). In all the accounts of the two miracles, the baskets used in each are distinguished.

70. Net.

Δίκτυον, a net, in general; ἀμφίβληστρον, a fishing-net flung from the hand (Matt. iv. 13; Mark i. 16); σαγήνη (Matt. xiii. 47), a large drawnet, "seine."

71. Gate, Door.

 θ ύρα, a door (janua); πύλη, a gate (porta); πυλών, a great gate, an outer gate, a porch.

72. Fold, Flock.

Aδλή is fold; ποίμνη (dim. ποίμνιον) is flock. The promise in John x. 16, is, that there shall be "one flock and one shepherd."

73. People.

Four words are so translated: $\lambda\alpha\delta s$, people, collectively, with a general reference to the Jews as the people of God; $\xi\theta\nu\sigma s$, nation (plur., $\xi\theta\nu\eta$, Gentiles); $\delta\hat{\eta}\mu\sigma s$, people, as a municipality; $\delta\chi\lambda\sigma s$, "irregular crowd, mob."

74. Thief.

 $\kappa\lambda\dot{\epsilon}\pi\tau\eta s$, "thief," one who steals by fraud (fur); $\lambda\eta\sigma\tau\dot{\eta}s$, "robber," one who steals by violence (latro). The crucified malefactor and Barabbas probably belonged to the hordes of banditti which then ravaged the land.

75. Stone.

Πέτρα, a rock (Πέτρος, the same word, only with mase termination to make it a proper name), "saxum;" $\lambda i\theta os$, a stone, detached or hewn, "lapis."

76. Other.

"Aλλος denotes numerical, $\epsilon \tau \epsilon \rho \sigma s$ generic distinction, "different." See Gal. i. 6, 7, "to another ($\epsilon \tau \epsilon \rho \sigma \nu$) Gospel which is not another ($\epsilon \lambda \lambda \sigma$)." There may be various kinds of so-called Gospels, but there is really no other than that which the Apostle preached.

VOCABULARY.

In the following Vocabulary, the Declension of Substantives is marked by the subjoined Genitive termination; their Gender, by the Article.

Of Adjectives, the Feminine and Neuter forms are given; in those of two terminations, the Neuter.

To Verbs, the Future endings, and, where necessary, other forms, have been generally appended.

The Hyphen has been freely used, to indicate the formation, not only of synthetic, but parathetic compounds. (See §§ 146–148.) For further etymological details, a larger Lexicon must be consulted.

The Scripture References are intended to illustrate the ordinary as well as the special uses of words, and are introduced as fully as space would permit. Nothing, however, can supersede the use of the Greek Testament Concordance.

The Vocabulary is purposely restricted to the Received Text. For words that occur only in MSS, or in critical editions, the student is referred to Grimm's Clavis or to Bruder's Concordance.
